- Ways to Go

Golden Hope Mines Limited plans to reassess the merits and timeliness of further exploration of its mineral holdings in the Bellchasse Mineral Belt south of Quebec City, Quebec. Extensive work in the region by the Company in the 1980's and 1990's established the presence of large mineral systems containing a diversity of gold and gold-base metal occurrences. All occurrences are essentially roadside in a rural region of highly developed infrastructure.

The principal focus of renewed evaluation will be on the Bellchasse Deposit, a partially defined concentration of gold-quartz mineralization offering bulk mining possibilities. The gold is commonly coarse and "nuggety" in character; finer gold is pervasive throughout the defined system. Systematic grade determinations have not been made but it is clear that coarse gold is essential to the overall grade composition of the deposit. Industry experience has shown that coarse gold does not accurately respond to sampling by routine drilling methods. Alternative technology involving large surface samples - bulk samples - is preferable for overcoming the problematic nugget effect.

Among other good exploration possibilities, the Champagne Deposit will receive significant attention. The partially defined deposit consists of classical massive sulfide, typical of the class of deposit worldwide. It contains values in copper, lead, zinc and silver and a strong credit in gold. When last investigated in 1991 a step-out hole 2,000 feet west of the Champagne Deposit intersected discovery quality mineralization consisting of 15.0 feet of massive sulfides typical of the main deposit. There has been no follow-up investigation of this important occurrence.

The coming months will be dedicated to organization and planning of a surface bulk sampling operation of the Bellchasse Deposit beginning in the spring of 2003. Definition drilling will be done concurrently.

In the meantime, some drilling will be directed to the fringe reaches of the Bellchasse Deposit as presently known to investigate specific targets and to further define geological controls. Winter drilling in the Champagne area is also contemplated, seasonal constraints permitting.

 News Release

Ms. Debra Chapman reports

Golden Hope Mines has planned a follow-up basal till sampling program on its jointly held MacDougall Inlet south property (Golden Hope Mines Limited 50 per cent, Fancamp Exploration 50 per cent) located in the Clarence Stream district of southwestern New Brunswick, where Freewest Resources Canada has made a number of intrusion-related gold discoveries.

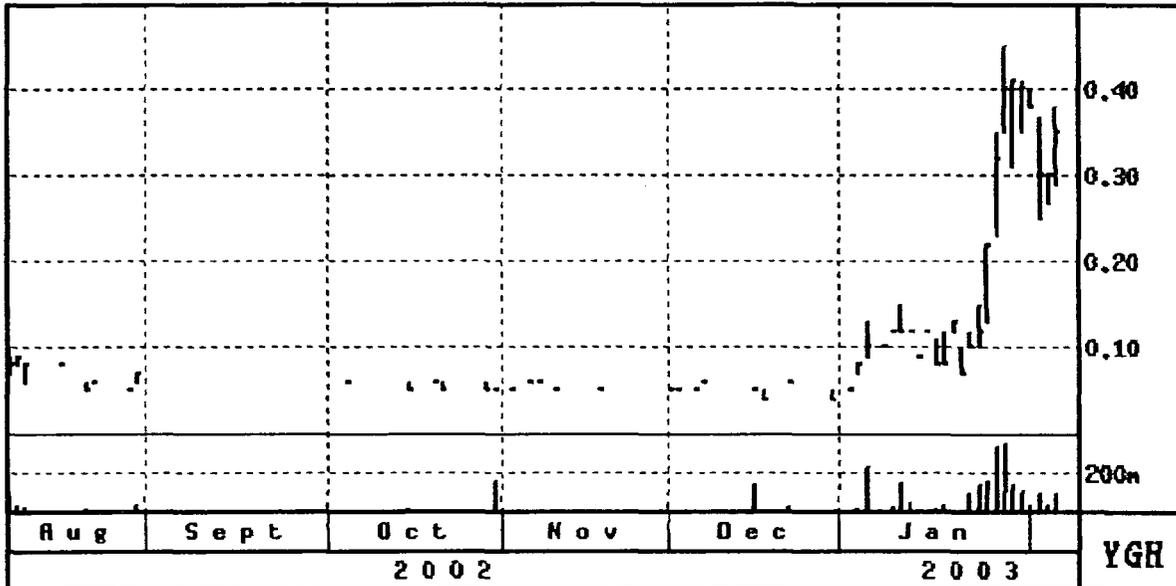

Geochemically anomalous gold and arsenic values were identified in basal till on the trace of a major fault zone in the course of a reconnaissance till sampling program, and serious follow-up is warranted.
