ARGOS REJECTS OFT DECISION AND LAUNCHES LEGAL CHALLENGE

Argos today is launching an immediate legal challenge to what it believes is a wholly unfounded and unjustified ruling by the Office of Fair Trading ("OFT"). Argos firmly rejects the OFT's assertion that it is or has been involved in any price fixing activity with either Hasbro or Littlewoods.

The OFT's case is based on unreliable and contradictory testimonies provided solely by Hasbro, which has been found guilty in a prior case and has negotiated full leniency in return for supporting the OFT's unfounded case against Argos. It has provided Argos with no evidence of any collusion between Argos and either Hasbro or Littlewoods, despite having had full access to and co-operation from Argos and its employees.

Kate Swann, Managing Director of Argos, commented:

"We reject this ruling in the strongest terms and have instructed lawyers to launch an immediate appeal. We completely refute any suggestion that Argos has been involved in price fixing or anti-competitive activity.

We are extremely surprised that the OFT is prepared to base its case on contradictory and unreliable evidence from Hasbro."

None of the OFT's findings affects Argos' ongoing business practices. The toy market in the UK is very price competitive and Argos prides itself on the great value of its toy offer. Argos is committed to providing choice, value and convenience across all of its ranges and for all of its customers.
