Wanadoo and Sony Computer Entertainment France team up to offer online capabilities for games on PlayStation®2 console with eXtense PlayStation®2 pack.

Under a recent agreement between Wanadoo and Sony Computer Entertainment France, PlayStation®2 users will be able to play with remote adversaries via a WiFi broadband wireless Internet connection. The new partnership opens online game capabilities to a broader audience of Internet users and game enthusiasts.

From 1 October 2003, the eXtense PlayStation®2 pack will be available at a price of €218.95 (including VAT) from all France Télécom offices. It includes a Wanadoo WiFi wireless modem and an Ethernet adapter for the PlayStation®2 console, at half price.

Players will be able to take part in games over the Internet, communicate with other players during the game (using a headset with microphone), and enjoy all the excitement of a full-featured online game environment. And because the Wanadoo eXtense WiFi pack supports shared connection, other members of the family can use their networked computers at the same time.

Georges Fornay, CEO of Sony Computer Entertainment France, has this say about the new arrangement:

"We're delighted with the deal, under which Wanadoo acts as exclusive partner on the French market. Cooperation with France's leading ISP brings console game enthusiasts fast, convenient access to full online capabilities. The broadband boom propels PS2 into a new phase, with online capabilities attracting new Internet users."

Jean-Claude Delmas, chairman of Wanadoo France, adds the following comment:

"The partnership with Sony is an excellent illustration of productive cooperation between two leaders on their respective markets. By combining our expertise in broadband Internet access with Sony's in online games, we open new online entertainment capabilities for Internet users, thus demonstrating our determination to keep providing Internet users with innovative services that meet their every expectation.

Visuals for the new pack are available from the photo gallery at www.francetelecom.com and from the France Télécom media library (toll-free phone 0800 800 334)

Wanadoo sells offline games business to MC2 Entertainment

Wanadoo today announced the sale of its subsidiary Wanadoo Edition (28.2 million euros of revenues in 2002) to MC2 Entertainment, the company created in order to take over Microïds on June 27 of this year. Upon completion of the transaction Wanadoo will hold 12 percent of MC2 Entertainment.

The sale allows Wanadoo to refocus its strategy on online games, centered around its Goa label. At the same time, the Wanadoo Edition catalogue gains access to the North American market through MC2's Canadian subsidiary, Microïds Canada.

Wanadoo and MC2 Entertainment are cooperating in this initiative since they share the belief that the entertainment software market is moving towards a label-based structure.

Ties between the Wanadoo group and MC2 Entertainment — which already distributes Wanadoo Edition products in Italy — have been further strengthened by a related agreement, under the terms of which MC2 Entertainment will distribute Wanadoo online games in key European markets.

Jean-Marc Steffann, Wanadoo France Senior Vice President, Portals, said: "This agreement secures the continuity of Wanadoo Edition's business while maintaining synergies with Goa, our online gaming portal."

Emmanuel Olivier, Chairman of MC2 Entertainment, stated: "The label-driven structure of the market is clearly the way forward for interactive entertainment content, putting creativity at the heart of operations."
