About T-Systems

T-Systems is one of Europe's leading providers of information and communications technology (ICT). Within the Deutsche Telekom group, T-Systems is responsible for serving major business accounts. The company has some 42,000 staff on its payroll in more than 20 countries. In 2002, the solutions provider generated €10.5 billion¹ in sales.

T-Systems' solutions improve the business competitiveness of its customers in the industry sectors of telecommunications, services and finance, public and healthcare as well as manufacturing. For its customers, the company optimises processes, cuts costs and improves earnings, making targeted use of industry expertise and cutting-edge technology.

Its services range from the integration of new ICT solutions into existing customer systems, through the implementation and operation of desktop systems, data centers and networks, all the way to telecommunications services and solutions for international carriers.

For more information about the company and its services, visit < www.t-systems.com >.

¹ T-Systems' 2002 German GAAP total revenues of €11.3 billion as adjusted to the new accounting treatment of its agency business implemented on 1 January 2003. The adjustment reduces T-Systems' net revenue by approximately €820 million. For further information, please refer to "Reconciliation to new structures" on p42 in Deutsche Telekom's 2003 First Quarter Report at http://download-dtag.t-online.de/englisch/investor-relations/4-financial-reports/interim-reports/2003_q1.pdf
