Supplemental Response to Part C - Question 5

The issuer will pay its managing member an annual fee equal to $15,000 and will reimburse the managing member for all reasonable direct expenses she incurs in her capacity as the issuer's managing member (e.g., travel expenses).

Net cash flow of the issuer will be distributed to the members at times and in amounts to be determined in good faith by the managing member to be in the mutual best interests of the issuer and the members. Each year, the managing member may make a distribution to each member equal to product obtained by multiplying (a) the amount of profits allocable to such member for the preceding year and (b) the then-current highest individual income tax rate (the "Tax Distribution"). Until such time as the aggregate amount of distributions received by each member equals the amount of such member's initial cash contribution to the issuer, distributions will be made in the following priority: (i) Tax Distribution, (ii) 90% of the total amount of the then-current distribution (less any Tax Distribution) to each of the members (including the managing member in her capacity as an investor) in proportion to their positive capital accounts and (iii) the remaining 10% of the total amount of the then-current distribution (less any tax Distribution) to the managing member.

Once each member has received an aggregate amount of distributions equal to the amount of such member's initial cash contribution to the issuer, distributions will be made with the following priority: (i) Tax Distribution, (ii) 70% of the total amount of the then-current distribution (less any Tax Distribution) to each of the members (including the managing member in her capacity as an investor) in proportion to their positive capital accounts and (iii) the remaining 30% of the total amount of the then-current distribution to the managing member.
