Independent Auditors of Internal Accounting Control Required by SEC Rule 17a-5

We have examined the financial statements of Prestwick Securities, Inc., (the "Company") for the year ended December 31, 2003 and have issued our report thereon dated February 4, 2003. As part of our examination, we made a study and evaluation of the Company's system of internal accounting control (which includes the procedures for safeguarding securities) to the extent we considered necessary to evaluate the system as required by generally accepted auditing standards. The purpose of our study and evaluation, which included obtaining an understanding of the accounting system, was to determine the nature, timing, and extent of the auditing procedures necessary for expressing an opinion on the financial statements.

Also, as required by rule 17a-5(g)(1) of the Securities and Exchange Commission, we have made a study of the practices and procedures (including test of compliance with such practices and procedures) followed by Prestwick Securities, Inc. that we considered relevant to the objectives stated in rule 17a-5(g).

We also made a study of the practices and procedures followed by Prestwick Securities, Inc., in making the periodic computations of aggregate indebtedness and net capital under rule 17a-3(11) and the procedures for determining compliance with the exemptive provisions of rule 15c 3-3. We found Prestwick Securities, Inc., to be in compliance with the conditions of the exemption and no facts came to our attention indicating that such conditions had not been complied with during this period under audit. We did not review the practices and procedures followed by Prestwick Securities, Inc., in making the quarterly securities examinations, counts, verifications, and comparisons, and the recordation of differences required by rule 17a-13 or in complying with requirements for prompt payment for securities under section 8 of Regulation T of the board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, because the Company does not carry security accounts of customers or perform custodial functions relating to customer securities.

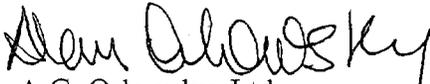

The management of the Company is responsible for establishing and maintaining an internal control structure and the practices and procedures referred to in the preceding paragraph. In fulfilling this responsibility, estimates and judgments by management are required to assess the expected benefits and related costs of internal control structure policies and procedures and of the practices and procedures referred to in the preceding paragraph and to assess whether those practices and procedures can be expected to achieve the Commission's above mentioned objectives. Two of the objectives of an internal control structure and the practices and procedures are to provide management with a reasonable, but not absolute, assurance that assets for which the company has responsibility are safeguarded against loss from unauthorized use or disposition and that transactions are executed in accordance with management's authorization and recorded properly to permit preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principals. Rule 17a-5(g) lists additional objectives of the practices and procedures listed in the preceding paragraph. Because of the inherent limitations in any internal control structure or the practices and procedures referred to above, error or irregularities may occur and not be detected. Also, projection of any evaluation of them to future periods is subject to the risk that they may become inadequate because of change in conditions or that the effectiveness of their design and operation may deteriorate.

Our consideration of internal control structure would not necessarily disclose all matters in the internal control structure that might be material weakness under standards established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. A material weakness is a condition in which the design or operation of the specific internal control structure elements does not reduce to a relatively low level the risk that errors or irregularities in amounts that would be material in relation to the financial statements being audited may occur and not be detected within a timely period by employees in the normal course of performing their assigned functions. However, we noted no matters involving the internal control structure, including procedures for safeguarding securities, that we consider to be material weaknesses as defined above.

We understand that practices and procedures that accomplish the objectives referred to in the second paragraph of this report are considered by the Commission to be adequate for its purposes in accordance with the securities Exchange Act of 1934 and related regulations, and that practices and procedures that do not accomplish such objectives in all material respects indicate a material inadequacy for such purposes. Based on this understanding and on our study, we believe that the Company's practices and procedures were adequate at December 31, 2003 to meet the Commission's objectives.

This report is intended solely for the use of management, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the NASD, and should not be used for any other purpose.

We have audited the accompanying balance sheet of Prestwick Securities, Inc., (the "Company") as of December 31, 2003, and the related statements of income, cash flow and changes in stockholders' equity for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatements. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Prestwick Securities, Inc., as of December 31, 2003 and the results of its operations and its cash flow for the year then ended in conformity with generally accepted accounting principals.
