Re: Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
Incoming letter dated December 15, 2003

Dear Ms. Israeli:

This is in response to your letter dated December 15, 2003 concerning the shareholder proposal submitted to Dow Jones by John Jennings Crapo. Our response is attached to the enclosed photocopy of your correspondence. By doing this, we avoid having to recite or summarize the facts set forth in the correspondence. Copies of all of the correspondence also will be provided to the proponent.

In connection with this matter, your attention is directed to the enclosure, which sets forth a brief discussion of the Division's informal procedures regarding shareholder proposals.

Re: Shareholder Proposal of John J. Crapo
Securities Exchange Act of 1934—Rule 14a-8

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter is to inform you that Dow Jones & Company, Inc. ("Dow Jones") intends to omit from its proxy statement and form of proxy for our 2004 Annual Meeting of Stockholders (collectively, the "2004 Proxy Materials") a shareholder proposal and supporting statement (collectively, the "Proposal") received from John J. Crapo (the "Proponent"). The Proposal relates to having Dow Jones publish in its proxy statement information relating to its "charitable donations program." The Proposal was delivered to Dow Jones in handwritten form, along with over 150 pages of basically incoherent and irrelevant "exhibits." We have prepared a transcript of the Proposal (to aid in legibility and interpretation), and in that regard the transcript provides some punctuation and changes the cases of some letters. Copies of our transcript of the Proposal, and the Proposal in its original form, along with the many pages of exhibits included therewith (including a copy of 147 pages of Proponent's personal diary), are attached hereto as Attachments 1 and 2.

Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j), enclosed are six (6) copies of this letter and its attachments. Also in accordance with Rule 14a-8(j), a copy of this letter and its attachments is being simultaneously mailed to the Proponent, informing him of Dow Jones's intention to omit the Proposal from the 2004 Proxy Materials. Dow Jones intends to mail its definitive 2004 Proxy Materials on or about March 19, 2004. Accordingly, pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j), this letter is being submitted not less than 80 days before Dow Jones files its definitive materials and form of proxy with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Dow Jones hereby respectfully requests that the staff of the Division of Corporation Finance (the "Staff") concur in our opinion that the Proposal may be excluded from Dow

Jones' 2004 Proxy Materials on the basis set forth below. Dow Jones believes that the Proposal may properly be excluded from the 2004 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(12) relating to resubmissions.

A shareholder's proposal may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(12) if it "deals with substantially the same subject matter as another proposal . . . that has . . . been previously included in the company's proxy materials within the preceding 5 calendar years" and it received "less than 3% of the vote if proposed once within the preceding 5 calendar years." The Proposal is identical to the proposal submitted by the Proponent last year and included in the Dow Jones 2003 proxy statement. At the 2003 annual meeting of stockholders, according to the calculations of the judges of election, the Proponent's proposal received 2.58% of the vote. The Proposal can be excluded from the 2004 Proxy Materials since it failed to meet the 3% threshold in last year's vote.

I would also note for the information of the Staff that annual information about the Company's charitable contributions program is available to Dow Jones stockholders and the public on the Company's corporate Web site at www.dowjones.com.

I would be happy to provide you with any additional information and answer any questions that you may have regarding this subject. Should you disagree with the conclusions set forth in this letter, I respectfully request the opportunity to confer with you prior to the determination of the Staff's final position. Please do not hesitate to call me at (212) 416-3317, if I can be of any further assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

Where to Find Grants and Foundation Information

This guide includes a list of grant and foundation resources intended for nonprofit organizations or individuals seeking funding for education or research. The sources included do not provide grant funding for small businesses. In addition, Social Sciences Reference at the Boston Public Library has a Foundation Reference Center that includes other resources not available at Kirstein.

The Foundation Directory. New York: Foundation Center, 2002. (1st Floor VF Desk D)
This annual directory published by the Foundation Center provides extensive information on the finances and giving interests of over 10,000 U.S. foundations. For easier use, this directory has a variety of indexes such as geographic, subject, and type of support. Their website (http://www.fdncenter.org) has a searchable database of nonprofit literature, links to extensive statistical information on nonprofits and a free online Foundation Finder of 65,000 private and community foundations that is searchable by name, city or state. You may also search for and view a foundation's IRS 990-PFs (annual report that details revenues, expenses, and executive salaries.)

Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance. Washington, D.C. : The Office of Management and Budget, 2002. (1st Floor {462bf})
This annual catalog contains descriptions of over 1400 assistance programs, both financial and otherwise, run by 62 Federal agencies. Although some aid to individuals is available, most of the assistance listed is for organizations and more funding is available for continuing projects rather than start-ups. Their website (http://www.cfda.gov) provides access to a searchable online database of the assistance programs listed in the catalog. It is also updated more frequently.

Directory of Corporate Giving. Rockville: Taft Group, 2002. (1st Floor VF Desk D)
This annual directory includes detailed profiles of over 1,000 corporate charitable giving programs in the United States. Each profile includes the corporate foundations' giving philosophy and a list of recent grants to help the user determine if a corporate foundation is likely to fund a given type of project.

Corporate 500: The Directory of Corporate Philanthropy. San Francisco : Public Management Institute, 1995. (1st Floor VF Desk D)
This directory provides a detailed profile of major corporate giving programs. It provides information on eligibility, an analysis of their grant contributions and a list of their officers and sample grants.

Massachusetts Grantmakers Directory. Boston : Associated Grantmakers of Massachusetts, 1997-8. (1st Floor)
Although a bit dated, this directory from the Associated Grantmakers of Massachusetts includes extensive information on various grantmakers within Massachusetts from independent foundations to corporate giving programs. An appendix is also included that covers fund-raising techniques and other useful information. Their website (http://www.agmconnect.org) offers a variety of services such as tip sheets on how to form a nonprofit organization, how to apply for grants, and writing sample inquiry letters. It also includes links to websites of nonprofit organizations and foundations in Massachusetts.

Grants Register. Chicago : St. James Press, 2001. (1st Floor {11})
This book provides an overview of awards intended for students at or above the postgraduate level, or those who need funds for further professional training. The Grants Register lists organizations alphabetically and for each organization a list of available awards is given.

#TWO(02) of Four(04) exhibits

Operating Grants for Nonprofit Organizations. Phoenix, Ariz.: Oryx Press, 2001. (1st Floor (18))
This book focuses on operating grants for nonprofits, or grants that "fund the day to day expenses of running a nonprofit organization." This book lists more than a 1,000 funding programs from both the private and public sector as well as federal or state organizations.

Directory of Research Grants. Phoenix, Ariz.: Oryx Press, 2002. (1st Floor (17))
This directory includes concise descriptions of over 5200 research funding programs.
The program listings are for "nonrepayable research funding" for projects in a variety of areas and include both financial and contact information.

Brown, Larissa Golden and Martin John Brown. Demystifying Grant Seeking: What You Really Need to Get Grants. San Francisco : Jossey-Bass, c2001 (2nd Floor HG177.B767 2001)
This book focuses on the principles of grantseeking including research, establishing relationships with funders, and evaluating your results. The authors provide a detailed step by step process to grantseeking as well as a complete sample grant proposal.

Quick, James Aaron and Cheryl Carter New. Grant Seeker's Budget Toolkit. New York : John Wiley, 2001. (2nd Floor HG177 .Q53 2001)
This resource provides detailed guidance about the budgeting and financial planning steps necessary for succesful grant seeking. It includes a step by step budgeting system with examples and sample budget planning forms.

Other Websites

Catalogue for Philanthropy—http://www.catalogueforphilanthropy.org
This website provides a searchable online directory of charitable foundations in Massachusetts. The database includes all entries printed in the catalogue from 1997 to 2000. For each charity, the user will find a brief history as well as major programs and funding interests.

Guidestar—http://www.guidestar.org
At this website, you can search for charities and nonprofits throughout the U.S. Guidestar provides brief descriptions and basic financial information for over 850,000 organizations plus electronic access to IRS Form 990 (annual report) for many organizations.

National Center for Charitable Statistics--http://nccs.urban.org
This organization offers statistical information on the nonprofit sector on the both the state and national level. The latest data available is from 1999, but can still be useful. This website also offers access to IRS Form 990 (annual reports) and sometimes offers more up to date forms than Guidestar.

Other Libraries

Associated Grantmakers of Massachusetts Library
55 Court Street
Boston, MA (617) 426-2606
The AGM library, which is open to the public, is located one block from the Kirstein Business Branch. This library maintains more extensive resources on grantwriting, fundraising, & nonprofit management. The AGM also maintains a collection of IRS 990-PF forms for Massachusetts foundations.

EASTER'S GIFT

Faithful flock to joy of spiritual rebirth

By ERIC CONVEY

Bishops in flowing vestments and children hunting colored eggs dominate Easter images in largely Catholic Boston, but a lot more happens here on Christianity's holiest day.

The story of Jesus' resurrection will resonate from bustling Protestant congregations on the North Shore to a diverse Eastern group in the Back Bay — as well as at parishes serving the region's 2.1 million Roman Catholics.

One of those observances will be at this morning's satsang — a regular gathering whose name means "in the company of holy people" — at the Ramakrishna Vedanta Society on Boston's Deerfield Street, said Swami Tyagananda.

Vedanta adherents embrace tenets of all major religions, including Christianity. Today's satsang will offer a message about Easter and musical selections that include a song that deals with the Beatitudes, considered by many Christians to be Jesus' most important set of teachings, and the classic "Ave

IN THE WAKE OF the Plague by Mrs
Norman F. Cantor 6:15 PM Page 11 the Black Death ... involved at least the bubonic plague, the same pandemic that had devastated the Eastern Roman/Byzantine Empire IN 6th Cent and invaded the whole Mediterranean world IN the 3d Century or even before. Only big question on medieval side of the Black Death is whether bubonic plague was exclusively the cause of the devastation of the 1340's or whether another disease was simultaneously occurring in some parts of Europe & particularly IN England.
Bubonic plague is a bacillus carried by parasites on backs of rodents, principally but not exclusively IN the Middle Age, the species of black rat.
Black rats & plague parasites residing on them could have been disseminated by shipping in international trade. Port of Bristol pre was the major initial point of entry for the pestilence into Europe & Europe
When a human contracts bubonic plague, without an antidote (not available until the application of antibiotics IN the 1940's) there is a four (4) out of five (.8) probability that he will die within two (or) weeks stages flu-like symptoms accompanied by high fever Bulges, black welts and bulges which appear in groin or near the armpits Tenfold

Ten percent of victims have the symptoms normally - hence only seen (upon) an autopsy Pneumonia is 3d stage today antibiotics result in recovery in first (or 1st) two stages Cats, in addition to any rodent may carry the disease
Mr Graham Twigg emphasized the pestilence was nearly as great in Winter as in Summer as in Summer
- I write on my satchel -
C.I.S taking saliva & meat from sick herds of cattle finds a form of transmission to humans, as it has in chimpanzees in Africa today the republic of Congo is believed by scientists to have started the AIDS disease in East Africa the "plague" disease that killed about seventy (70) in Britain in the 1990's was traced to humans eating the sacred steed

the mutant CCR5 could IN fact, say O'BRIEN, be traced back to only seven (07) hundred years ago at that time a "historic 2003 strong selective event involving a 1940's. There are still substantial outbreaks IN Eastern Asia, especially INDIA

Palestine/ISRAEL, etc. Asiatic Turkey
One documented case of bubonic plague
IN 1980's was IN eastern California - a woman came down with it after she ran over a squirrel with power mower. It is thought that the disease entered California at some port on a rodent travelling on a ship from Eastern Asia

p21 Medieval physician didn't know about bacillus parasite carried on rodents balls it was assumed, it was spread through the air from person to person as a miasma, thus induced healthy people to flee cities to isolated country estates, as was done by most of the English royal family. "Modern medicine believes that plague can be spread by saliva from an ill person to a healthy one at the pneumonic stage" so medieval physicians were not entirely wrong.

Rodents are clearly central to the problem p22 the affluent could escape the plague eshmat mortality

Affluent not more than 25 % for peasant French priest 40% to 50 % urban places mortality about 40 % which is surprising given the difficulty medieval towns had ridding selves of sewage upon which rodents feed figure for urbanites was about 40% for commoners

Rich urban people fled to country retreats but archbishops, great lords and wealthy merchants also fell to the plague it was a democratic disease

Medieval physicians were convinced the plague was airborne therefore they ordered windows must remain closed and covered for the afflicted with thick tapestries the wealthy people late medieval tapestries in the cloisters in New York City and the Louvre in Paris were therefore functional as well as decorative p22 tapestry making originated in the Middle East and via Byzantium it spread to Europe the manufacture of large tapestries required work shops of imposing size and drawers highly organized and well paid workers

Here heavy window coverings were not enough for the rich they wanted elaborate embroidered narratives of their favorite scenes from popular romance

Weaves (p 23) guilds in Flanders and Northern Europe responded quickly to the demand frequent bathing was proscribed as dangerous by med professions you O-pened your pores to the airborne disease Europe entered the purgent no bath era which lasted until the mid 1700's until the disappearance of the plague. Even the Emperor Napoleon rarely bathed instead he had a mas-sage with French cologne each

I A.S. I sat at chairman's desk managing I mainly the shareholders proposal (5a) proposal concerning Dow Jones is distinguished by the Corporate Board of Directors Myself I'm very pleased I live in Metropolitan area is late at Boston and at 4:43 I got up Yesterday and have not been to bed since I did sleep a few minutes on the bus coming here. Trouble keep in touch
I signed the Chairman's visitor book and I wrote a very brief note in my purpose for seminar here to Penn Law City, is to attend the stockholder meeting Dow Jones
My shareholder's proposal Yesterday I bought a book written by a professor emeritus at Wharton University on the Black Death and finished at post a few pages but what I can infer what the impact it had on the Economy after the Epidemic that followed
I think I have to clear the impact of what our Business Directors does concerning the Shareholder proposals this is the fact that will have on the generations to come

Research Doctors of Journal Hospital and Medical Center Paterson N.J. 1997. Plague is a Zoonotic infection caused by Yersinia pestis. Animal reservoirs (carriers) include rodents, rabbits, & occasionally, larger animals. Cats have become ill and have given the disease to man. Flea bites, carriers spread disease to man from other. There is a risk of infection in these areas are occupation, outdoor campers are at risk both pet owners & domestic animal rescuers contact especially during hunting season. Turns into bubonic plague with associated case, and rodents, cat, moist, sputum and dark sores. Pre-Medical medicine did not know if it is identified early enough the plague can be cured by Science today.

Holding shields at New York City University that they are taking a shower in the College GYMNASIUM and Mr. Hanson and the next 3 hot seconds under the faucets under the armpits and bottom (Main famous plague law books) they should dress quick leave immediately. Mr Daniel Clague talked with me re Locker. Will I help I said yes, showed him my bag of clean laundry and my bottle of Ibuprofen & ammunition Lahm... We I told him of Colonel Lawrence... of Arabia - connection between current events with IRAQ & Noam Scott patient confidentiality, eh - also Pulitzer prize winning book on Col T.E. Lawrence. Mr Clague says he'll work on locker

I DZ'd my meal ticket 5:50 PM

I paused large men's room URINAL then I washed & dried. I put mat over in to enclosure. While I sat down after I took off my Boots.

I've taken my psychotropic medicines

While I did that Someone asked me about a locker I'd found. I/We asked could I/he take it to a Locksmith & have a key made for it. I said why not write Memo Parker for an opinion on the finding circumstances, how locker came to your possession.

BOOKS ON HEALTH

JOHN LANGONE

Disabled But Able

"A Matter of Dignity: Changing the Lives of the Disabled," by Andrew Potok. Bantam Books, $24.95.

Some 50 million Americans have serious disabilities, and while the lives of many have improved considerably, 70 percent of them are unemployed. A vast majority can work and want to, writes the author of this look into the world of the disabled, but the presumption that they will be a burden and the "disincentive of losing health insurance" often prevent them from doing so.

Mr. Potok, a writer and painter who is blind, makes an impassioned plea for empowering the disabled through new tools and laws, and for attitudinal changes that discard the notion that employing the disabled is "a charitable deed." Although society expects and rewards an individual's lifelong productivity, he writes, "The right to a job is not seen as one of society's obligations."

In making his case for a transformation, the author chronicles a number of individuals, disabled and "intact," who are "helping to create access, who elicit change via care," people with an "unflamboyant, unshakable conviction that what they are doing is an essential human obligation." He introduces his readers to civil rights activists, to innovators who provide computer accessibility for the blind with talking computer programs, specialists in orthotics and prosthetics who create artificial body parts and trainers of guide dogs for the blind.

Mr. Potok concludes that even though those in the "medical engineering business" sometimes feel that anything is possible, waiting for cures for blindness or spinal cord injuries instills false hope, "a very cruel expectation." Such an expectation, he writes, "loses sight of the pressing need for civil rights and ongoing care."

When Life in Your Own Skin Is Agony

By JESSICA KOVLER

Adam B. Kaufman, 29, describes his skin as a "personal hell" that leaves him in unrelenting pain.

"Have you ever put on one of those facial masks and let it harden?" said Mr. Kaufman, an actor from New York. "That's how I feel. It hurts to move my face, and my eyes are close to swollen shut."

Mr. Kaufman suffers from persistent atopic dermatitis, the most severe form of eczema, for which there is no cure.

His doctors told him the condition, while incurable, could be alleviated with steroid creams. They worked for a time but had serious side effects, including swelling. And Mr. Kaufman gradually developed increasing immunity to the drugs.

His experiments with alternative techniques proved mildly effective for a short time; they included acupuncture, tanning beds for ultraviolet rays, baths filled with oatmeal and, once, washing with a "tar shampoo," a petroleum-based solution that promised a cure.

"There's only one way for people to know how we feel," he said. "If you've ever had poison ivy, you know uncomfortable and distracting the itching can be. Now imagine it all over your body all the time."

But now, Mr. Kaufman has found his most hopeful option yet, a new class of nonsteroidal eczema drugs recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

Two of the new drugs, Eladil and ProTopic, are available by prescription. Another, Dermolastin, a protease inhibitor used to treat chronic atopic dermatitis, is still in clinical trials. Mr. Kaufman has been taking Eladil for several weeks, and he says his condition has improved markedly, though not without flare-ups.

The National Institutes of Health estimate that 15 million people in the United States have some form of eczema. Nearly half of these cases are in children and will generally improve by late adolescence.

Atopic dermatitis causes red, itchy, scaly and inflamed skin. During flare-ups, open weeping or crusted sores develop from the scratching or from infections. Patients often describe their skin as looking like leather.

"But this is so much more than just a dermatological issue," said Dr. Adam Goldstein, an associate professor at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine. "Physicians need to realize how frequently serious asthma and allergies accompany the visual symptoms on the skin."

Patients frequently experience the atopic triad — a combination of symptoms that include allergic reactions to foods and airborne irritants, breathing difficulties and patches of red, flaky skin.

Aside from physical ailments, many patients suffer mentally. Mr. Kaufman, for example, suffered a major depression in 2001, he says, as a result of just not "feeling right in my own skin." Stress, anxiety, insomnia and depression, however, only worsen the symptoms of eczema, creating a vicious cycle of discomfort and misery.

"It's so important that health care professionals become sensitive, not only to the physical symptoms of the disease but also the psychological effects it can have on patients," said Dr. Lawrence Kutner, co-director of the Harvard Medical School Center for Mental Health.

He added that many children could suffer problems in school as a result of lack of sleep from itching and scratching all night and could suffer social problems as a result of being ostracized.

"It can be difficult to concentrate, because the constant itching seizes our attention," said Shelley Diamond, a doctoral candidate in psychology who has atopic dermatitis. "People know the disrupting effects of pain, but not of itch."

Studies show that pain is far more tolerable than itch, even with medications to control both.

While medications may treat the illness, nothing can cure it. Patients will always have an increased susceptibility to skin flare-ups and an increased sensitivity to other skin diseases.

Ms. Diamond takes 16 medications daily, most for her myriad symptoms, itch, inflammation, dryness, sneezing and wheezing.

Aside from symptoms and treatments, many patients now fear the effect of bioterrorism on their already sensitive skin. The National Eczema Association recently issued a warning urging anyone who has ever had eczema or atopic dermatitis not to receive the smallpox vaccine because of a heightened risk of life-threatening reactions.

Richard Lee for The New York Times

"It hurts to move my face, and my eyes are close to swollen shut," said Adam B. Kaufman, who says a new drug is helping his eczema.

Cahill backed up DeNucci's assessment, and said he fired the Treasury's internal auditor, Richard Mee, last Friday.

"We had our suspicions," Cahill said. "We just felt it was better to pull the trigger now rather than wait for the audit to come out."

The audit also hit O'Brien for paying a 5 percent interest rate on abandoned savings accounts, when the law allows the state to pay the lesser rates that were in effect when the accounts were abandoned — a glitch DeNucci estimates cost the state an extra $2 million. Asked about the excess interest payments, O'Brien said, "I don't know if I can answer that question."

Cahill said he's already changed the interest policy, and that the Treasury will pay lower rates in the future. The audit also includes photos that show boxes of abandoned property piled haphazardly around a storage room — side by side with a nearly identical photo from Malone's tenure.

"We had stuff everywhere," said Cahill, who moved the property to a secure facility in Chelsea. "It was actually not in a very controlled environment."

O'Brien aides disputed the accuracy of the photo and said they kept abandoned property in locked cabinets in an alarmed room in a different Treasury office. O'Brien, an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor, frequently clashed with DeNucci when she was in office.

BOSTON HERALD WEDNESDAY, APRIL 30, 2003

Auditor: No accounting for mess left at Treasury by O'Brien

By ELISABETH J. BEARDSLEY

Former state Treasurer Shannon P. O'Brien overpaid $2 million worth of interest, left property storage rooms in shambles, and failed to conduct a single internal audit during her four-year tenure, according to a new transition review by state Auditor Joseph DeNucci.

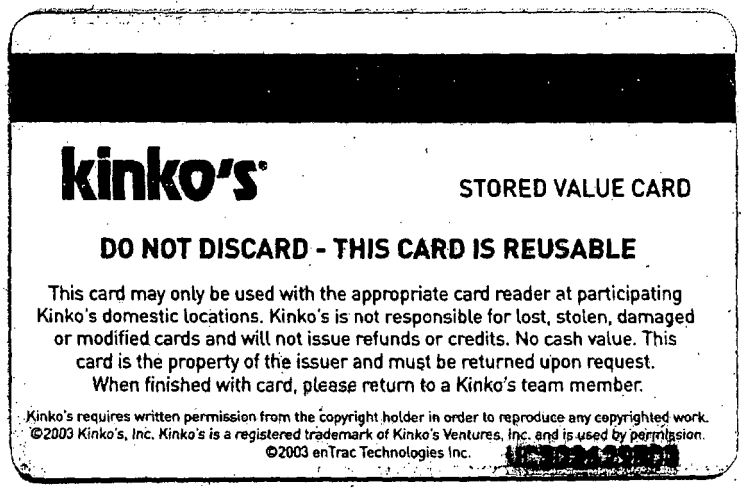

Newly installed state Treasurer Timothy P. Cahill had requested the official audit, which is standard procedure when a constitutional office changes hands.

"If you look at the Treasury at the point Treasurer Cahill took it over, there are obviously still a lot of problems there," said DeNucci spokesman Glenn Briere. "The purpose of this report is to give him a road map to determine what needs to be done."

Blasting O'Brien for "inadequate" accounting controls, the audit zeroed in on the "nonexistent" internal audits — a policy announced with fanfare after the embezzlement scandal under former Treasurer Joseph Malone.

O'Brien denied the charge and insisted her office had done "a number" of internal audits — but was unable to provide documentation. "As in the past, there are some inaccuracies in this particular audit," O'Brien said. "I'm only disappointed that we didn't have an opportunity to review the audit and correct the inaccuracies."

Treasurer finds O'Brien customer service woes

By ELISABETH J. BEARDSLEY

Treasurer Timothy P. Cahill has launched a volley at his predecessor, fellow Democrat Shannon P. O'Brien, accusing her of leaving 9,000 citizen e-mails unanswered amid a record of shoddy customer service.

All of the e-mails involved requests from people who were trying to track down abandoned property, which is held by the state Treasury.

Branding the backlog as "unacceptable," Treasury spokeswoman Karen Sharma said Cahill pulled staffers off other tasks and assigned them to full-time e-mail duty — responding to every inquiry within 10 days after taking office in January.

Cahill wants to publicly telegraph that the massive backlog — along with lengthy telephone hold times and nearly half a million dollars of unreturned municipal cash — wasn't his fault, she said.

"That was the previous administration," Sharma said. "(Cahill) just wants to make it clear this is something that we inherited. It's completely unacceptable to the treasurer."

Sharma added that under O'Brien people who called the Treasury after seeing the twice-yearly advertisements of abandoned property would be left on hold for up to 15 minutes. Cahill has reduced the wait to two minutes, she said.

O'Brien, the former Democratic gubernatorial nominee defeated by Gov. Mitt Romney, said she "can't speak to the details" of the unanswered e-mails or phone hold times, which she said were the responsibility of staffers who are still employed by Cahill.

But O'Brien defended her overall record of returning abandoned property, which she described as record-setting.

During her first two years in office, O'Brien returned 660,000 shares of unclaimed stock, surpassing the previous five years combined, in which 654,000 shares of stock were returned, she said.

For all abandoned property claims, O'Brien's office set a record in fiscal year 2001 by paying out 28,711 claims, which exceeded the previous high of 24,355 claims paid in fiscal year 1994.

"There's always room for improvement," she said. "But if you're not paying attention to customer service, you can't set records."

Cahill also highlighted nearly $500,000 in unclaimed cash belonging to cities and towns, some of which dates back "many years."

The city of Boston is owed $150,000 and Cambridge has dibs on $36,000, Sharma said. The Treasury is holding $8,000 for Somerville.

O'Brien, who routinely held feel-good press conferences around the state to give money back to cities and towns, said it was not her fault that some communities never submitted paperwork for unclaimed cash.

Rumors spark a massive bank run in New York's Chinatown

By Jennifer Friedlin
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Cathy Wu had heard only that "something bad" had happened at her Chinatown bank. But in an immigrant community already on edge, the rumors were enough to spark a bank run reminiscent of the Great Depression.

In a panic, Wu and thousands of other account holders converged on Abacus Federal Savings Bank last week, and after waiting for hours, pulled as much as $30 million total from their accounts.

The run began with embezzlement charges against a former Abacus employee. In Chinatown, this kind of news tapped into a general sense of unease following the terrorist attack of Sept. 11, 2001, on the nearby World Trade Center, the US economic downturn, and the health scare in Asia, specialists said.

"The community is still reeling from the effects of 9/11, and then there's SARS and so many businesses have not been able to recover," said Cynthia Lee, a specialist on the politics of Chinatown and deputy director of programs at the Museum of Chinese in the Americas. "People said it looked like a scene from the Depression era — and that's what we're experiencing in Chinatown."

Chinatown has yet to recover the 8,000 jobs lost when streets were closed after the terrorist attack. The prolonged economic woes have increased financial strains on the many people who care for extended families in the United States and in China.

Recently, anxiety about the SARS virus spreading in China and being carried by international travelers has exacerbated the economic malaise, reducing the number of visitors to Chinatown's restaurants and shops.

Then, early last week, a Chinese-language newspaper and radio station reported that a former Abacus branch manager had been accused of taking at least $1 million. Carol John Mee Lim was fired and later charged with embezzlement.

As worried customers began lining up outside the bank Tuesday, bank managers and community activists, some with bullhorns, tried to explain that their money was safe.

The 1933 establishment of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures as much $100,000 per account, nearly eliminated bank runs in the United States. In fact, they're so rare that officials at the FDIC and the American Bankers Association keep no statistics on the phenomenon.

Abacus is FDIC-insured and regulators said it was in sound financial shape, with $280 million in assets.

Still, many people waiting between police barricades to get into the bank said they were concerned about passports, papers, and other personal items they had stored in safety deposit boxes, even though no such property had been reported missing.

"I just wanted to look and check and make sure everything is OK," said Rita Lin, 24, who stood in line for five hours.

The news also spread to Philadelphia, where jittery patrons of another Abacus branch temporarily emptied the vault of cash during a bank run Wednesday.

Don Lee, an executive director at the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, said many of the bank customers, particularly recent immigrants, were probably unaware of such safeguards as FDIC insurance. "To many of these people, government is one thing and an agency that insures is something else. They don't associate the government with protection."

DIVISION OF CORPORATION FINANCE
INFORMAL PROCEDURES REGARDING SHAREHOLDER PROPOSALS

The Division of Corporation Finance believes that its responsibility with respect to matters arising under Rule 14a-8 [17 CFR 240.14a-8], as with other matters under the proxy rules, is to aid those who must comply with the rule by offering informal advice and suggestions and to determine, initially, whether or not it may be appropriate in a particular matter to recommend enforcement action to the Commission. In connection with a shareholder proposal under Rule 14a-8, the Division's staff considers the information furnished to it by the Company in support of its intention to exclude the proposals from the Company's proxy materials, as well as any information furnished by the proponent or the proponent's representative.

Although Rule 14a-8(k) does not require any communications from shareholders to the Commission's staff, the staff will always consider information concerning alleged violations of the statutes administered by the Commission, including argument as to whether or not activities proposed to be taken would be violative of the statute or rule involved. The receipt by the staff of such information, however, should not be construed as changing the staff's informal procedures and proxy review into a formal or adversary procedure.

It is important to note that the staff's and Commission's no-action responses to Rule 14a-8(j) submissions reflect only informal views. The determinations reached in these no-action letters do not and cannot adjudicate the merits of a company's position with respect to the proposal. Only a court such as a U.S. District Court can decide whether a company is obligated to include shareholder proposals in its proxy materials. Accordingly a discretionary determination not to recommend or take Commission enforcement action, does not preclude a proponent, or any shareholder of a company, from pursuing any rights he or she may have against the company in court, should the management omit the proposal from the company's proxy material.

Response of the Office of Chief Counsel
Division of Corporation Finance

Re: Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
Incoming letter dated December 15, 2003

The proposal recommends that Dow Jones' proxy statement contain information described in the proposal regarding Dow Jones' charitable donations program.

There appears to be some basis for your view that Dow Jones may exclude the proposal under rule 14a-8(i)(12)(i). Accordingly, we will not recommend enforcement action to the Commission if Dow Jones omits the proposal from its proxy materials in reliance on rule 14a-8(i)(12)(i).

Sincerely,

Lesli L. Sheppard-Warren
