SPL WorldGroup Expands into Canada

San Francisco, CA, USA, January 16, 2004 — Dave Mulit, general manager of SPL WorldGroup's Americas region, has announced the opening of the company's first location in Canada. The Toronto area office is the company's fifth office in the Americas and the fourteenth worldwide. Heading the office will be software industry veteran Bob Hopkins, who recently joined SPL from J.D. Edwards Canada (now part of PeopleSoft®). Prior to his tenure at J.D. Edwards, Hopkins was National Director of Intergraph Canada's Utilities and Communications Division; he has also held senior positions with IBM Canada, Amdahl Corporation and Prime Computer/Computervision. "We are fully committed to helping JEA continue its outstanding customer service record," said Dave Mulit, general manager of the Americas for SPL. "JEA's forward-looking IT strategy has received national recognition, and we are proud to be a partner in delivering its benefits to all the communities it serves."

"There are some clear differences between customer care and billing needs in Canada and elsewhere," noted Mulit. "Several provinces have moved more aggressively toward deregulation than have most of the US states. The Canadian approach to competition is distinct from those taken in Latin America, Europe, and the Asia/Pacific countries. During this period of rapid evolution, Bob Hopkins will help us keep SPL focused on the needs of our growing list of Canadian clients."

"The new Canadian office is part of our global commitment to understanding and responding to our clients' unique needs," said SPL CEO Harry Debes. "Energy, utility, and services businesses reflect the cultural and political characteristics of the countries they serve, and it's vital that their customer and billing systems readily accommodate those differences."

In joining SPL, Hopkins commented, "SPL is exactly what has been needed in the Canadian CIS marketplace. We offer a great lineup of award-winning products and services, top-ranked systems integration partners, 20+ years of experience in customer care and billing, as well as all-important vendor stability. I couldn't be happier with the opportunity to do a first-class job for Canadian utilities and services companies."

In addition to expanding the use of SPL's flagship CorDaptix™ customer care and billing system throughout Canada, Hopkins will assist PeopleSoft Canada in marketing the PeopleSoft CIS system, which is developed and supported on PeopleTools®, by SPL.

The new SPL office is located just outside Toronto in Markham, Ontario; the phone number is 905-201-5054.
