Post 2012 Review of Victorian Gambling Licences

The Victorian Government today announced a review of electronic gaming machine, wagering and lotteries licences in Victoria. This review will examine the future structure of licensing arrangements in Victoria and does not affect this company's existing licences, which expire in 2012.

The Victorian Government said the review will take place in two stages, beginning with a review of lotteries licences to be completed next year. The review of gaming and wagering licences will commence in late 2005 with consultations to take place throughout 2006. An announcement of the post-2012 structure for gaming and wagering will be made in 2007 with the licences awarding process to follow.

The Victorian Government has confirmed that the number of machines will not be reconsidered by the review, nor will it address specific problem gambling measures.

TABCORP Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer Matthew Slatter said: "It is pleasing that we finally have a process for relicensing to be resolved.

"The timetable, composing of a review and then the awarding process, allows public and stakeholder consultation and is a positive methodology to then award gaming and wagering licences in Victoria.

"However, we are disappointed about the length of time the Government has scheduled for the review process and the awarding of licences."

"It was our understanding that the future of the gaming and wagering licences beyond 2012 would be resolved during this term of government and I know that the lack of certainty beyond 2012 will disappoint the company's shareholders as well as other stakeholders such as Victorian pubs, clubs and the racing industry.

Mr Slatter said: "As Australia's premier gambling and entertainment group, TABCORP remains in a very strong position to continue to hold the wagering and gaming licences in Victoria beyond 2012."
