Bernard Ghillebaert joins the executive team of Orange

Brussels, 6 July 2004 – After the launch of Mobistar in 1995 and being in charge of this company for 8 years, Bernard Ghillebaert decided to accept a new challenge, proposed by the Orange Group. He will replace Richard Brennan in the executive team of the Orange group, as Executive Vice President, responsible for the markets, products and technology. The transition period will take a few months. The successor of Bernard Ghillebaert will be presented by the Orange Group to the Board of Directors during their next meeting on 26 July 2004.

Bernard Ghillebaert has been the Chief Executive Officer of Mobistar since the company was founded in 1995. He spent his entire career in mobile telecommunications. Graduated from the prestigious École Polytechnique et de Télécom Paris, he joined the Centre National d'Études des Télécommunications in 1976 within the France Telecom Group. In 1982, he took the lead of the GSM development and standardisation project. He is considered as one of the main architects of the Itineris' launch, the mobile subsidiary of the Group known today as Orange France.

He was the first employee of Mobistar, and also the first CEO, at the time of the acquisition of the second license for mobile telephony in Belgium in 1995. Under his leadership the company has grown to become a stable and profitable company. In the Executive Team of the Orange Group, Bernard Ghillebaert will be responsible for the marketing and the development of products and services.
