Re: IDACORP, Inc.
Incoming letter dated September 29, 2004

Dear Ms. Powers:

This is in response to your letter dated September 29, 2004 concerning the shareholder proposal submitted to IDACORP by John Jennings Crapo. Our response is attached to the enclosed photocopy of your correspondence. By doing this, we avoid having to recite or summarize the facts set forth in the correspondence. Copies of all of the correspondence also will be provided to the proponent.

In connection with this matter, your attention is directed to the enclosure, which sets forth a brief discussion of the Division's informal procedures regarding shareholder proposals.

Sincerely,

Jonathan A. Ingram
Deputy Chief Counsel

Re: IDACORP, Inc. — Shareholder Proposal

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We are writing on behalf of IDACORP, Inc., an Idaho corporation (the "Company"), with regard to a shareholder proposal (the "Proposal") and a supporting statement dated May 14, 2004 (the "Original Supporting Statement") and a revised supporting statement dated May 25, 2004 (the "Revised Supporting Statement" and, together with the Original Supporting Statement, the "Supporting Statements") submitted by Mr. John Jennings Crapo (the "Proponent") in connection with the annual meeting of the Company's shareholders to be held in May 2005. We believe that the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement may be properly excluded from the Company's 2005 proxy materials (the "2005 Proxy Materials"), pursuant to Rule 14a-8(h)(3), Rule 14a-8(d) and Rule 14a-8(f) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"). We also believe that any other proposals that may be made by the Proponent may be properly excluded from the Company's materials for all shareholders' meetings to be held in 2005 and 2006 pursuant to Rule 14a-8(h)(3). We respectfully request that the staff (the "Staff") of the Division of Corporation Finance of the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "Commission") confirm that it will not recommend any enforcement action against the Company based on the omission of the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement.

Enclosed for filing pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j) of the Exchange Act are six copies of this letter, the Proposal, the Original Supporting Statement and the Revised Supporting Statement. We are forwarding a copy of this letter to the Proponent as required.

I. The Proposal and the Supporting Statements

The Proposal and Original Supporting Statement, dated May 14, 2004, are as follows:

MY SHAREHOLDER PROPOSAL

We shareholders and proxies ballotting in Meeting of Shareholders voting in person and by proxy ballot respectfully request the Honorable Board of Directors ("Board") of IDACORP to present to us a properly worded shareholder proposal which if approved will accomplish the following:

Provide for reasonable payment of travel costs to and from IDACORP stockholder meetings of shareholders who have been approved by the Honorourable United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") to present Shareholder Proposals - the travel costs to include travel costs, costs of travel, lodging, meals, similar costs to include all such meetings until the shareholder proposal is enacted.

Supporting Statement
In Brief Summary

Shareholder proponent submitted a shareholder proposal which was approved by the SEC – by a so-called action letter and said proponent had planned to present the shareholder proposal this month – the 20th – at a meeting to be held at Corporate Headquarters. Said proponent had another meeting in February where he was to present the proposal – at Manhattan, New York City, NY. That meeting was postponed for shareholder action until May 18th, 2004.

The distance from Boston, MA to New York City is similar as that from Idaho Falls, ID to Boise ID. A difficult commute that the State of Idaho provides it's Representatives and Senators in it's State Legislature Meeting at Boise, Idaho by Calendar Year 2003 Figures $15,643 annually, $99 per diem if required to maintain a second residence, $38 per diem if no second residence – for each member of the state Legislature. The figures may vary for the President of the State of Idaho Senate who is the State of Idaho Lieutenant Governor.

In the case of the proponent he doesn't have the usual residence but abodes in a shelter for homeless men – as a homeless man, at 444 Harrison Avenue, Boston, MA – who travelled by interstate bus to New York City at night and arrived at the meeting place to be told the meeting was to be held Tuesday, May Eighteenth (18th) 2004.

Proponent stayed at an inn at Boston – Holiday Inn prior to his departure for New York and upon his return to Boston and paid for his lodgings while he traveled to from New York City and while at New York City for the purpose

Proponent when he went to from the February 2004 Stockholder Meeting left his portable cart in the Holiday Inn bedroom – which is quite similar to the carts US Postal Service Letter carriers on their routes to deliver mail to avoid objections from complainants.

Costs of travel by private jets are exhorbitant. Chaufeurs other such conveniences, hotels, travel agents, et cetera are exceedingly costly and cumbersome to arrange. Corporate Directors and other Board members whose travel connected with their Board affiliations are paid for the Companies of which they collectively are the Governance.

At this time proponent can't find out when the annual Meeting of Shareholders of the Money Group, Inc. will be held and where.

Said proponent last year attended a shareholder meeting at Tampa, FL traveling to & from there by Amtrak train and bus where he presented a similar shareholder proposal and the SEC has issued an action letter which permits the shareholder proposal to be introduced and presented again.

Apparently there is no Amtrak train to Boise. There used to be Amtrak train to Boise and Pocatello, Idaho. Apparently Sandpoint, Idaho has transcontinental Amtrak train service. Amtrak bus to Boise is from Washington State apparently.

	Miles
Boston to Salt Lake City, Utah	2,343
Seattle Washington	2,976
and Portland, Oregon	3,046
Seattle, Washington to Salt Lake City, Utah	836

The shareholder proposal has lots & lots of merit and the proponent has introduced and presented shareholder proposals at numerous national and regional publicly held corporations and other companies.

End of Shareholder Proposal.

Copies of the Proposal and Original Supporting Statement are enclosed as Exhibit A.

Because the length of the Proposal and Original Supporting Statement was over 500 words, it did not comply with the procedural requirements of Rule 14a-8(d). On May 18, 2004, in accordance with Rule 14a-8(f), the Company sent the Proponent a notice of his failure to follow certain of the procedural requirements for submission of shareholder proposals. A copy of that letter is enclosed as Exhibit B.

In response to the Company's letter, the Proponent submitted a Revised Supporting Statement, dated May 25, 2004, as follows:

REVISED SUPPORTING STATEMENT

4:30 PM 24 May 2004, I enter awkwardly into 444 Harrison Avenue Boston MA — to homeless men's shelter. A familiar appearing man was polite to me as I entered second door from ally.

Another familiar appearing person failed to be as cordial as I'm accustomed to him being. I went to canteen machine through crowd. I bought beverage and pastry. Environment was disruptive.

4:49 PM a public safety officer summoned a familiar appearing person accused someone at table of unlawful consumption of alcohol. Said it was against law on premises. Familiar appearing person was in corner OFC next to way.

I've fatigue. It's very noisy. My hearing hurts. Banging. Slamming...

5 PM (circa) I found my clean intimate attire for morning.

10:30 AM 25 May 2004 power outage. I set switch "0" to 60 minutes maximum permitted at 33 Traveler Street Boston MA.

Before 5:20 PM 24 May 2004 I brushed my teeth and I sprinkled water on my face. I couldn't find a towel. I've found my French/English dictionary.

5:18 PM My meal ticket. I got # ten (10)

6:21 PM FLR three I found sheets & pillow slip — near men's room area not lighted as well as like it some in bead already. Quietly I made bed.

I couldn't find my cup. I went down to FLR two (02) for paper cup. I went to fountain drank water. Brought used cup back to FLR three (03).

5:25 PM I climbed stairs FL one (01) to two (02). Familiar appearing employee on duty. I got pajama bottoms too large but wore them (later). My cart I put between wall lockers. On my way to shower I asked a familiar appearing man what his first name was. A man wouldn't let me get to end corner of shower hallway. He insisted he has rights and I said to his pal — who staggered too I want my cart in my view as I shower. I don't wish to risk my records, which I have with me.

I showered using my bar soap. I use new pen 10:55 AM 25 May 2004. I dried myself some put on my robe and my cart and I to room by stairs up to FLR three …

6:45 PM (I use other pen.) I'm thirsty. I urinate … flush urinal after me and I wash dry my hands with water and soap.

I become frustrated as I write.

6:55 PM to 10 PM I slept some and silently was awake too.

I had a dream - a woman was torturing me.

10:07 PM to 2:30 AM I slept some silently too I was awake I reflected as I wrote in so-called reading room this is a concentration camp like many across our nation - the United States of America…

5:38 AM 25 May 2004 Someone was insulting to me in large men's room. I was falsely accused of being unreliable. I told him I had too much to do when he departed it to end of supporting statement.

A copy of the Revised Supporting Statement is enclosed as Exhibit C.

II. Summary

We believe that the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement may be properly omitted from the 2005 Proxy Materials and any other proposals made by the Proponent may be properly omitted from the proxy materials for all shareholders' meetings to be held in calendar years 2005 and 2006 pursuant to Rule 14a-8(h)(3), because neither the Proponent nor his qualified representative appeared and presented his proposal at the annual meeting of the Company's shareholders held on May 20, 2004.

In addition, we believe that the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement may be properly omitted from the 2005 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rule 14a-8(d) and Rule 14a-8(f), because the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement exceed 500 words.

III. Grounds for Omission of the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement

1. The Proponent Failed to Appear at 2004 Annual Meeting and Present Prior Proposal

Under Rule 14a-8(h)(1), the proponent of a shareholder proposal must attend the shareholder meeting to present the proposal or, alternatively, send a representative who is qualified under state law to present the proposal on the proponent's behalf. Rule 14a-8(h)(3) provides that if a shareholder or a qualified representative fails, without good cause, to appear and present a proposal included in the proxy materials, the company will be permitted to exclude all of the shareholder's proposals from the company's proxy materials for any meetings held in the following two calendar years.

In connection with the annual meeting of the Company's shareholders held on May 20, 2004 (the "2004 Annual Meeting") the Proponent submitted a shareholder proposal (the "Prior Proposal") recommending that the Company's board of directors disclose each year in the proxy materials the "charitable donations program" of the Company for the immediate past calendar year. The Prior Proposal was included in the Company's 2004 proxy materials. A copy of the Prior Proposal from the Company's 2004 proxy materials is enclosed as Exhibit D.

Neither the Proponent nor the Proponent's qualified representative appeared at the 2004 Annual Meeting to present the Prior Proposal. The Company's Chief Executive Officer placed the Prior Proposal before the 2004 Annual Meeting for a vote. As the Proponent himself states in his current Proposal and Supporting Statements, the Proponent did not appear at the 2004 Annual Meeting because he had to attend another shareholders' meeting in New York City two days before, the travel costs would have been exorbitant and there is no Amtrak service to Boise. The Company does not believe that the Proponent has stated a "good cause" for his failure to appear and present the Prior Proposal. Previous no-action positions of the Staff indicate that conflicts in schedules and personal inconvenience are not "good cause" for purposes of Rule 14a-8(h)(3). See, e.g., Eastman Chemical Company (available February 10, 1997)

(proponent informed the company that he would not attend because of advanced age, schedule conflicts and personal inconvenience); Tri-Continental Corporation (available March 4, 1996) (Mr. Crapo complained of the costs and inconvenience involved in traveling to the annual meeting of the company's shareholders); Harnischfeger Industries, Inc. (available December 15, 1992) (proponent stated that that he is "retired and older"); United States Steel Corporation (available January 23, 1984) (proponent attended another company's annual meeting).

Rule 14a-8(h)(3) is applicable even though the Company's Chief Executive Officer placed the Prior Proposal before the 2004 Annual Meeting for a vote. The Staff has consistently taken the position that a proponent's failure to present a proposal, in person or by proxy, for action at the meeting of shareholders at which the proposal is to be voted upon is not cured if the proposal is acted upon by shareholders at the meeting because the company or another person present at the meeting, other than the proponent's qualified representative, places the proposal before the meeting for a vote. On numerous occasions, the Staff has allowed companies to exclude proposals where a proposal was acted on at a meeting although the proponent or his qualified representative failed to present it. See, e.g., Flower Foods, Inc. (available February 18, 2004); Raytheon Company (available January 22, 2003); Eastman Chemical Company (available February 27, 2001).

In addition, the failure by a proponent or the proponent's qualified representative to present a proposal without good cause is grounds for exclusion of that proponent's proposals for the following two calendar years. See, e.g., International Business Machines (available January 2, 2004); Avaya (available November 14, 2003); Wm. Wrigley Jr. Company (available December 5, 2003).

As a result of the Proponent's failure to appear and present the Prior Proposal, we believe that under Rule 14a-8(h)(3) the Company may exclude the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement from the 2005 Proxy Materials and omit any proposal made by the Proponent from the proxy materials for all meetings of the Company's shareholders to be held in calendar years 2005 and 2006.

2. The Proposal and Revised Supporting Statement Exceed the Length Limitation Set Forth in Rule 14a-8(d)

Rule 14a-8(d) establishes a 500-word limitation for shareholder proposals, including any accompanying supporting statement.

The length of the Proposal and Original Supporting Statement was over 500 words. On May 18, 2004, in accordance with Rule 14a-8(f), the Company sent the Proponent a notice of this deficiency. See Exhibit B. In response to the Company's letter, the Proponent submitted the Revised Supporting Statement, dated May 25, 2004. However, the Proponent failed to cure the deficiency — the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement contain approximately 634 words.

Because the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement exceed the 500-word limitation imposed by Rule 14a-8(d) and the Proponent has failed to cure this deficiency, we believe that the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement may be omitted from the 2005 Proxy Materials in reliance on Rules 14a-8(d) and 14a-8(f).

The Staff has generally permitted the omission of a shareholder proposal from proxy materials where a proponent failed to revise a proposal to comply with this limitation. See Amgen, Inc. (available January 12, 2004) (allowing the omission of a revised proposal that exceeded 500 words) and Amoco Corporation (available January 22, 1997) (allowing the omission of a revised proposal of 503 words).

IV. Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, we request that the Staff concur in our view that the Company may omit (i) the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement from the 2005 Proxy Materials and any other proposals that may be made by the Proponent from the proxy materials for all shareholders' meetings to be held in calendar years 2005 and 2006 pursuant to Rule 14a-8(h)(3) and (ii) the Proposal and the Revised Supporting Statement from the 2005 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rule 14a-8(d) and Rule 14a-8(f). In addition, we respectfully request the Staff to confirm that no enforcement action will be recommended to the Commission if such omissions are made.

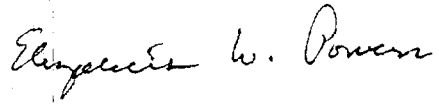
The Company expects to file proxy materials with the Commission in March 2005.

If you have any questions regarding this request, or need additional information, please telephone me at (212) 424-8662. Please acknowledge receipt of this letter by stamping the enclosed additional copy of this letter and returning it in the enclosed envelope.

Very truly yours,



Elizabeth W. Powers

IN THE BOSTON DISTRICT WHICH INCLUDES CITIES AND TOWNS WITH ZIP CODES BEGINNING WITH 021, 022, 024.

ANNOUNCEMENT NUMBER 83789 IS OPEN BETWEEN JANUARY 9TH, 2004 AND MARCH 31ST, 2004 AT 11:59 p.m. EST.

Apply on the Internet at www.usps.com/employment or on a Touch-Tone Phone by calling 1-866-999-8777 (TTY 1-800-800-8776) and follow the prompts. You will need the Announcement Number identified above. Applicants can only apply once per Announcement Number. Duplicate applications will not be accepted.

The Job – CASUAL LETTER CARRIER

Casuals are non-career employees and are utilized as a limited-term supplemental work force. The following is an overview of the primary responsibilities associated with the casual letter carrier position.

Casual letter carriers travel planned routes to deliver and collect mail. Letter carriers typically cover their routes on foot or by vehicle. They must work outdoors in all kinds of weather. Carriers may be required to carry mailbags on their shoulders, and a mailbag full of mail can weigh 35 pounds or more. Carriers have to load and unload sacks of mail and parcels weighing as much as 70 pounds. Carrier duties require prolonged standing, walking, and reaching. Letter carrier applicants must have a valid state driver's license, a safe driving record, and at least two years of documented driving experience.

Casual letter carrier positions may require irregular work hours and/or weekend. This is a day job, with work hours between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Limited Appointments

Casual appointments are limited to two 90-day appointments in a calendar year. In addition, casuals may be re-appointed for up to 21 days during the holiday season.

Reasonable Accommodation

The Postal Service provides reasonable accommodation to qualified individuals with disabilities. Instructions for requesting reasonable accommodation are provided in the package sent to each applicant who applies for a casual appointment. The decision on granting reasonable accommodation will be on a case-by-case basis.

Drug-Free Requirement

To qualify for postal employment, an applicant must be drug-free. This is determined through the use of a urinalysis drug screen. Applicants who are in the area of consideration for employment will be scheduled for the drug test.

Age Requirement

The general minimum age requirement for positions in the Postal Service is 18 years at the time of appointment, or 16 years with a high school diploma.

Citizenship

All applicants must be citizens of, or owe allegiance to, the United States of America, or have been granted permanent resident alien status in the United States. Verification is required at the time of hiring consideration.

Selective Service Registration Requirement

To be eligible for appointment to a position in the Postal Service, males born after December 31, 1959 must (subject to certain exceptions), be registered with the Selective Service System in accordance with Section 3 of the Military Selective Service Act. Males between 18 and 26 years of age (have not reached their 26th birthday), can register with the Selective Service System at any U. S. Post Office, or with a consular officer if outside the United States. Your registration status can be verified with the Selective Service System by calling (847) 688-6888.

Political Recommendation Prohibited

The law (39 U.S. Code 1002) prohibits political and certain other recommendations for appointments, promotions, assignments, transfers, or designations of persons in the Postal Service. Statements relating solely to character and residence are permitted, but every other kind of statement or recommendation is prohibited unless it either is requested by the Postal Service and consists solely of an evaluation of the work performance, ability, aptitude, and general qualifications of an individual or is requested by a Government representative investigating the individual's loyalty, suitability, and character. Anyone who requests or solicits a prohibited statement or recommendation is subject to disqualification from the Postal Service and anyone in the Postal Service who accepts such a statement may be suspended or removed from office.

New Hot & Hearty Soups

JOHN J. CRAPO, PRO SF

Maine Lobster Bisque
A perfect blend of minced sweet lobster meat simmered in rich cream and sherry—there's nothing better!

Rosie's Chicken Noodle
This soup is prepared the old fashioned way with large tender chunks of white chicken meat in a wonderful chicken broth with plenty of vegetables and pasta.

Shrimp & Roasted Corn
This bisque features tender shrimp and roasted sweet corn in delightful combination with red peppers.

Classic #9 Steak & Cheese
This hearty soup is loaded with shaved steak, peppers, onions, mushrooms and cheese.

Santa Fe Chipotle Vegetable
This spicy soup is tomato based and loaded with black beans and corn. Then added is fresh garlic, cumin, cilantro, scallions, onions, tabasco sauce, fresh jalapeno and lime juice. Vegetarian and Lowfat.

Thanksgiving Every Day
Dig into this memorable combination of turkey, wild rice blend, cranberries, cream and sherry and you will truly give thanks!

Hearty Garden Veggie
This soup is loaded with huge chunks of tomatoes, onions, mushrooms, squash, zucchini, carrots, green beans, cauliflower, green and red bell peppers and broccoli. Vegetarian and Lowfat.

New England Clam Chowder
Made with sweet cream, loaded with hand-shucked clams, all-natural clam broth, and tender potatoes.

Broccoli & Cheddar Cheese
We gently simmer chunks of broccoli and sharp cheddar cheese together for this creamy and delicious soup.

Available soup varieties change daily.

Important Special Meeting of Stockholders

January 8, 2004

Dear Stockholder: JOHN JENNINGS CRAPO PRO SE

You are cordially invited to attend the special meeting of stockholders of The MONY Group Inc., to be held on Tuesday, February 24, 2004, at 9:30 a.m. local time, at the New York Marriott Marquis hotel, 1535 Broadway, New York, New York.

At the special meeting, you will be asked to consider and vote upon a proposal to adopt the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of September 17, 2003, among AXA Financial, Inc., AIMA Acquisition Co. and The MONY Group Inc., providing for the acquisition of MONY by AXA Financial. If the MONY stockholders adopt the merger agreement, AIMA Acquisition Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of AXA Financial, will merge with and into MONY, and each issued and outstanding share of MONY common stock will be canceled and converted automatically into the right to receive $31.00 in cash without interest, less any applicable withholding tax, except for any such shares of MONY common stock with respect to which appraisal rights have been properly perfected under Delaware law. As a result of the merger, MONY will cease to be a publicly traded company and will become a wholly owned subsidiary of AXA Financial.

Your board of directors, by unanimous vote and after careful consideration, (i) has approved the merger agreement, including the merger and the other transactions contemplated thereby, (ii) has determined that the terms of the merger and the other transactions contemplated by the merger agreement are advisable, fair to and in the best interests of MONY and its stockholders and (iii) recommends that MONY stockholders vote "FOR" adoption of the merger agreement.

Completion of the proposed merger is subject to the satisfaction or valid waiver of a number of conditions, including, among others, obtaining certain necessary approvals and consents from applicable insurance and banking regulators. Therefore, even if MONY's stockholders adopt the merger agreement, we cannot assure you that the proposed merger will be completed.

The accompanying proxy statement provides you with detailed information about the proposed merger and the special meeting. Please give this material your careful and prompt attention. You may also obtain more information about MONY from documents that we have filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

Judge Rules in Favor of Opponents of MONY Takeover

JOHN J. CRAPO, PRO SE

By FLOYD NORRIS

A federal judge cleared the way yesterday for opponents of the planned takeover of the MONY Group to use a tactic that the company had contended was a violation of federal securities law. At the same time, the opponents drew support from an organization whose recommendations are followed by some institutional investors.

The two actions may make it more difficult for MONY, the former Mutual of New York, to win shareholder approval to be acquired by AXA Financial, the large French insurance company. Opponents say the price, which is $31 a share, or about $1.5 billion, is too low. The management of MONY has warned that the company will run into severe operating difficulties if the deal is rejected.

The ruling by Judge Richard J. Holwell of Federal District Court in Manhattan was the first by a judge on a tactic that the Securities and Exchange Commission had informally approved but that MONY believed violated S.E.C. rules.

Some shareholders contend that AXA's $31-a-share offer is too low. JJC JJC

A Boston hedge fund, Highfields Capital Management, has sent letters to MONY shareholders opposing the merger. At issue is whether it could include copies of the company's proxy ballot. Doing so would make it easier for shareholders to change their vote and oppose the deal at the Feb. 24 shareholder meeting. MONY sued Highfields to prevent it from using the tactic.

Judge Holwell said yesterday that to bar sending out the proxy materials "can be seen as frustrating the animating spirit that lies at the core" of the S.E.C. rule in question, which is intended to make it easier for shareholders to communicate without having to mount expensive battles in which they mail out their own proxy ballots.

Another federal judge had issued a temporary restraining order last week, when Judge Holwell was unable to hear the request. He held a hearing on Friday and extended the order pending his decision.

The recommendation that shareholders oppose the merger came from Institutional Shareholder Services, which said the $31 price was unreasonably low and criticized the size of payments that would be made to top officers of MONY.

The managing director of Highfields, Richard L. Grubman, called the court ruling "a victory for all shareholders" and praised the Institutional Shareholder Services recommendation.

The chief executive of MONY, Michael I. Roth, said, "We disagree with I.S.S.'s recommendation and believe that the $31 cash offer represents the best alternative for MONY stockholders."

He said opponents had "failed to present any concrete plan to create additional value" for shareholders, or to propose an alternative transaction.

A MONY spokeswoman, Mary Taylor, said the company was disappointed by the judge's decision.

For the merger to go through, the company needs the approval of a majority of its outstanding shares at the annual meeting. Many MONY shares are held by individual investors, often because they held insurance policies when the company converted from a mutual insurer to a stock company. Both sides agreed that some of these shareholders would not take the time to obtain a new ballot if letters from Highfields and other investors persuaded them to change their minds and vote against the merger.

Thus, the provision of a proxy ballot could be crucial, even though it will be mailed back to the management and Highfields will not have access to reports on how many ballots are being cast for or against the merger, as it would have if it were circulating its own ballot. Doing that would have required a full-scale proxy fight, which would be costly and could not be done in the time remaining before the vote.

MONY shares, which have been trading above the $31 offer price, fell 24 cents yesterday, to $31.15 in trading in New York.

Taxpayers foot hefty legal bill for Hub gangsters

By MAGGIE MULVIHILL and JONATHAN WELLS

SPECIAL REPORT

Federal taxpayers have shelled out $1.3 million over the past decade to Boston's most vicious organized crime figures and corrupt law enforcement officials, federal court records show.

Murderous gangsters like Stephen former FBI agent John J. Connolly Jr., and king snitch Kevin Weeks all received payments from the federal government after claiming they were broke, records show.

The payments, made under the federal "Criminal Justice Act," which provides for legal representation for $1,307,548 to date, the records show.

That cost does not include the substantial price the public is paying to defend the Department of Justice

Critic's corner

By Robert Bianco

By S. Adyani, Fox

▶ Will Randi get her family to the wedding on the finale of My Big Fat Obnoxious Fiancé (Fox, 9 p.m. ET/PT)? My bet is yes, because her relatives seem to have a better understanding of the obligations that family members owe to each other than she does.

▶ We all knew a reversed-role parody of Queer Eye for the Straight Guy was inevitable. Still, we might have hoped it would be at least slightly less inept than Comedy Central's Straight Plan for the Gay Man (10 p.m. ET/PT). For each "man mission" in this three-week special, four comedians teach a gay man to "act straight" — a real-men-are-slobs concept that is insulting to gay and straight men alike. The twist really has nothing to do with Queer Eye, which isn't trying to teach straight men to act gay, unless you're immature enough to equate any interest in fashion, grooming or comfort with homosexuality. But even if that kind of conversion were the point of Queer Eye, the joke still wouldn't work in reverse. As long as gay bashing and legal oppression exist, teaching a gay man to "pass" for straight will be wildly offensive. It's the one disadvantage of being powerful in our society: You don't get to make fun of those below you on the power ladder.

Randi: Here comes the Fiancé finale.

November 21st · The Birth of Americanism

The Anniversary of
The Signing of the Mayflower Compact

In 1620 the Pilgrims, persecuted for conscience's sake, "braved the tempests of the vast and furious ocean and the terrors lurking in the American wilderness" to plant their State of Freedom. Even before landing they set up their government by a written Compact; the first charter of a government of the people, by the people and for the people known to history. In the cabin of the Mayflower humanity recovered its rights. I am now going to read to you this venerable document, the first American State paper. In due respect I ask you all to rise and remain standing while it is being read.

The Compact

IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN. We whose names are underwritten, the loyal subjects of our dread sovereign Lord, King James, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, etc.

Having undertaken, for the glory of God, and advancement of the Christian faith and honor of our King and Country, a voyage to plant the first colony in the northern parts of Virginia, do by these presents, solemnly and mutualy in the presence of God, and one of another, covenant and combine ourselves togither into a civil body politic, for our better ordering and preservation and furtherance of the ends aforesaid; and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, constitutions and offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the general good of the Colony; unto which we promise all due submission and obedience.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF we have hereunder subscribed our names at Cape Cod, the 11 of November, in the year of the reign of our sovereign Lord King James, of England, France and Ireland the eighteenth and of Scotland the fifty-fourth. Ano. Dom. 1620.

Thus these men became the First Americans. They believed that God created all men equal; therefore, without other precedent; they made all men equal before the Law. Here was the birth of popular constitutional liberty, foreshadowing our Declaration of Independence and our American Constitution, which guarantees Freedom to all of us today. Tremendous suffering was endured as they grappled with the great unknown. Half their number perished in the struggle of that first terrible Winter On the sarcophagus, which contains their remains, is this inscription:

"This monument marks the first burying-ground in Plymouth of the Passengers of the Mayflower. Here, under cover of darkness, the fast dwindling Company laid their dead; levelling the earth above them lest the Indians should learn how many were the graves.

READER, History records no nobler venture for Faith and Freedom than that of this Pilgrim band. In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and cold, they laid the foundations of a State wherein every man, through countless ages, should have liberty to worship God in his own way. May their example inspire thee to do thy part in perpetuating and spreading, throughout the World, the lofty Ideals of our Republic."

(Note: November 21st, of our Calendar is the same as November 11th, of the Old Style Calendar.)

John Winslow married Mary Chilton before 22 May 1627. They did not have any children at that time. "Families of the Pilgrims" gives 12 Oct. 1624 as the date of their marriage, but there is no proof for the date.
Josias Winslow married Margaret Bourne about 1636. (DeForest p. 123)
Kenelme Winslow & Elen Adames, widdow, were married June 1634. (PCR 1:30)
Edward Gray married to Mary Winslow the 16 of Jan. 1650. (PCR 8:11)
Robert Latham married Susanna Winslow about 1649 as their first child, Mercy, was born 2 June 1650. (PCR 8:10) The wills of both John Winslow and his wife Mary (Chilton) Winslow mention their granddaughter Mercy Harris. She is the above Mercy Latham, having married Isaac Harris, thereby proving that Susanna Winslow married Robert Latham before 2 June 1650.

William, the distinguished governor of Plym. Colony and author of the remarkable history of its foundation, was the son of William and Alice (Hanson,) Bradford, of Austerfield, Eng., bapt. March 19, 1589-90. Resided at home till the Scrooby church, of which he was a member, removed to Holland about 1607. He came to N. England in the Mayflower, signed the Compact, and made his home at Plymouth.

No man did more than he in work as well as care, in the secular and religious life of the Colony. He wrote with his own hand a detailed history of the movement, from the time when the church was organized at Scrooby until the year 1650. Into this he introduced numerous letters and lists of names which bring the life of the Colony before the reader in a very vivid way. The book was kept in the hands of his descendants until the year 1728, when his grandson, Maj. John Bradford, lent it to Rev. Thomas Prince, of Boston, to be used in his preparation of a New England Chronology. At some later time it was carried from Boston to England, and placed in the library of the Fulham Palace. Thence it was brought, by the offices of of Hon. George F. Hoar and Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, lately Ambassador of the United States, and deposited in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, with appropriate ceremonies May 20., 1897. The State government has issued a very beautiful edition of the work, which is sold at the office of the Secretary at $1.00 a copy.

another (Mass. Col. Records, vol. 2, p. 203), which contained the following:

> It is therefore ordered, that every township in this jurisdiction, after the Lord hath increased them to the number of fifty householders, shall then forthwith appoint one within their towne, to teach all such children as shall resort to him to write and reade, whose wages shall be paid either by the parents or masters of such children, or the inhabitants in generall, by way of supply, as the major part of those that order the prudentials of the towne shall appoint; provided, those that send their children be not oppressed by paying much more than they can have them taught in other townes.

Here was the germ of the free school principle; and towns in the colony and the county, after its formation, were reasonably zealous in carrying out the provisions of these acts. It may be added here that all school affairs came before the towns until 1789, when the district system was adopted, the towns still retaining the controlling power. The district system was continued until 1864. Meanwhile the districts gradually gained prestige until in 1817 they could, as corporations, own their school houses and other property, contract with teachers through prudential committees, etc. When the district system was dropped, general school committees were chosen in the towns.

CHAPTER III.

INDIAN TROUBLES.

The primary causes of the bloody conflict known as King Philip's war must be sought far back of the outbreak of hostilites in 1675, and need not be discussed at length here; the details are a part of the general history of New England and they had their birth in conditions and circumstances that were unavoidable. While the conflict might, perhaps, have been postponed by a different course of action on the part of the authorities and settlers of the Plymouth Colony, it was undoubtedly inevitable sooner or later.

In the early years military affairs received due attention and the citizen soldiery were usually in readiness to respond to a call to arms; but for a long period substantial peace was maintained. The possibility of trouble with the Indians was always present, and the Pequot war, which was chiefly confined to Connecticut and was concluded before settlement began in Taunton, was an object lesson of importance to the settlers. It soon became evident after the assumption of the sachemship of the Wampanoags by Philip, in 1662, that he was not likely to maintain the friendly relations with the English so firmly established by his father. He was jealous of the progress of the settlers in occupation of the lands they had purchased, and early began plotting with the Narragansetts and other Indians for their extermination. When he was sent for, in 1662, to appear at Plymouth and give an account of his actions, he professed nothing but friendliness for the colonists and a desire to continue the amicable relations established by his father and brother, and signed a treaty of submission. Five years later, in 1667, he was again called upon by the authorities to explain reports that he had adopted measures to join the French or the Dutch against the English. Once more he made ample professions of friendship and was permitted to depart and peace reigned about three years. Early in 1671 he began hostile demonstrations on account of alleged injury done to his planting lands by the settlers. The Plymouth government thereupon sent a request to Boston for aid in an endeavor to pacify the chief The request was granted and word was sent from Boston to Philip to meet certain men from there, with others from Plymouth, at Taunton, and consult upon the differences. This commission consisted of William Davis, William Hudson and Thomas Brattle, on the part of Massachusetts, and Governor Prence, Josiah Winslow and Constant Southworth, with some others, from Plymouth. The meeting took place on April 10, when word was received from Philip that he was at Three-Mile River, about four miles south of the village, and wished the governor of Plymouth to meet him there. This request was refused, and James Brown and Roger Williams were sent back with word to Philip that he must come on to Taunton Green, the place appointed for the meeting. These messengers found Philip with a considerable retinue of Indians, in war paint, as if expecting a battle. Philip consented to repair to the village if hostages were left with his party, and Brown and Williams remained. The chief with a part of his men then moved forward as far as the grist mill (see history of Taunton herein), having posted sentinels in his rear, and sent for the governor to meet him there. The Plymouth men were now exasperated and would have attacked the Indians but for the interposition of the Massachusetts men, and Philip was finally prevailed upon to proceed to the village,

The chief with a part of his men then moved forward as far as the grist mill (see history of Taunton herein), having posted sentinels on his rear, and sent for the governor to meet him. The Plymouth men were now exasperated, and would have attacked the Indians, but for the interposition of the Massachusetts men, and Philip was finally prevailed upon to proceed to the village, upon a stipulation made by him that the conference should be held in the meeting-house, the English on one side and he and his men on the other. It was a memorable gathering and upon its conclusions hung momentous events. There is no doubt that at that time the wily chief was maturing plans to unite all the Indian nations of New York and New England against the colonists, which, had they been successfully consummated, might have changed the whole course of events.

Philip at first denied all hostility to the English, insisting that his warlike preparations were made for attack upon the Narragansetts; but when he was confronted with proofs that he was on the best of terms with that nation, he reluctantly admitted the truth. He was then required by the commissioners to make reparation for past injuries and to give security for his peaceful attitude in the future. The latter only he agreed to do, and he and his council signed a humiliating treaty of submission, acknowledging his folly and wickedness and agreeing to give up his "English arms" to the "government of New Plymouth." The treaty was signed by him and five others.

It is not strange that this agreement was broken by the Indians. While they might, but probably would not, have kept faith as to their peaceful actions in the future, it might have been foreseen that they would never give up their arms without a struggle. Guns and powder and lead were almost a necessity for the natives in the chase, and in the following June it was learned that Philip was influencing his subjects to secrete their arms; such as had been surrendered were distributed among the towns. The Council of War met on the 23d of August, 1671, a part of the proceedings of which was the sending of letters to Philip requiring him to come forward and submit to the provisions of the treaty before noticed, and to the authorities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island invoking their co-operation against the Indians. Philip did not reply to this summons, but went to the Massachusetts authorities and entered complaint against the Plymouth government. This resulted in the meeting of commissioners from Massachusetts and Connecticut, and others, with the Plymouth authorities, for "a fair and deliberate hearing of the controversy between our colony and the said sachem, Philip, he being present, at which meeting it was proved by sufficient testimony to the conviction of the said Philip and satisfaction of all that audience, . . . that he had broken his covenant made with our colony at Taunton in April last in divers particulars, as also carried very unkindly unto us divers ways." A series of articles of agreement were then drawn and read to Philip, in which he acknowledged his allegiance to the English king; agreed to pay £100 in three years; would refer any difference between himself and the English to the governor of Plymouth for settlement; would not make war without the governor's consent, and would not sell any of his lands without approval of the Plymouth government. The sachem and seven of his council signed these articles, but evidently with a mental reservation; they continued their plots and schemes. The peace thus secured was only temporary. The war-cloud hung constantly in the sky, and minor incidents of hostilities kept the settlers in continual apprehension of the terrible outbreak that finally came.

While it is both impracticable and unnecessary to here present a detailed history of this war, a brief review of the important events in which the settlers of Bristol county took part is admissible. The contest began with the plundering of houses in what is now Swansea (then in old Rehoboth), on Sunday, June 20, 1675, while the families were absent at meeting, and the first bloodshed followed in the same locality on the 24th. That day had been set apart for fasting and prayer on account of anticipated suffering, and as the people were returning from meeting they were fired upon by the Indians and one man killed, while others were wounded. Two men were then sent away for a surgeon and both were killed. In another part of the town six others were killed. Such was the beginning in Bristol county territory of a terrible harvest of death and destruction.

On Sunday previous to the outbreak a message of alarm was sent to Plymouth and the governor ordered the captains in the town to march their companies to Taunton and assemble on June 21, where Major Bradford would receive them. The first relief received by the Swansea settlers was a company of seventeen mounted men from Bridgewater, who arrived at a fortified house at what is Gardiner's Neck on the 22d. In this house were collected sixteen men and fifty-four women and children, who were defended until reinforcements came, when the noncombatants were sent into Rhode Island. Besides the mounted men there were at Swansea a company of infantry under Capt. Daniel Henchman; a company of volunteers under Capt. Samuel Moseley, and a company under Capt. James Cudworth, of Scituate. On the 26th several companies of troops left Boston and arrived just before night at the scene of the war. On the 27th a party of Indians burned the houses of John Tisdall, sr., and James Walker in Taunton, and killed

Tisdall, and John Knolles and Samuel Atkins of Eastham.[1] Tisdall's house was near Assonet, Walker's on the west side of the great river and probably down Three-Mile River. Taunton being on the direct road from Boston to Swansea and Mount Hope, was made a place of rendezvous for various bodies of soldiers and several houses were transformed into garrisoned refuges. A body of troops under Major Savage marched from Swansea and Rehoboth in pursuit of Philip, and not overtaking him, proceeded to Taunton, arriving July 17, where they found "eight garrisoned houses."[2]

Returning to the consideration of affairs in Swansea, the combined forces there were placed under command of Capt. James Cudworth. The house of Rev. John Myles (or Miles), standing near a bridge over Palmer's River, about three miles north of Warren, was strengthened against attack and there the troops assembled.[3] The Indians were growing bold and bloodthirsty, lurking so near this house that they were enabled to shoot two of the sentinels; no one was safe away from his dwelling. Early in the strife, when a detachment of Prentice's cavalry, accompanied by Captain Church, was on a march forward, they had no sooner crossed the Miles bridge than they were fired upon from ambuscade and William Hammond, a pilot, was killed, and Quartermasters Gill and Belcher wounded. The troopers were panic-stricken and fled in disorder. On the 29th of June a body of Indians came into view, whooping at the white men and challenging a fight. Captain Moseley and his company accepted the challenge, rushed furiously upon them, driving them about a mile and killing half a dozen. Ensign Savage was wounded in this sortie.

Philip was now closely pressed and prudently abandoned his seat of operations, hastened down into the Pocasset country, where he joined

[1] At the March court of 1670-7 three Indians named Timothy Jacked (alias Canjuncke), Nassamaquat and Pompacanshe, were indicted for killing these three men and were tried by a jury. The verdict was peculiar; as to the first two named it was, "We find they are very suspicious of the murder charged on them. And in the reference unto Pompacanshe, we find nothing against him." They were all "sent out of the country speedily" by the court.

[3] There were three principal garrison houses maintained in old Rehoboth during the war; one [illegible] was in what is now Attleborough, called Woodcock's garrison; another on the south end of [illegible] konk plain (now Seekonk Common), and the third the one above noticed at the bridge. The Woodcock garrison was named from John Woodcock, who built the house and kept a tavern in it. Several other houses were occupied temporarily as garrisons. Capt. Benjamin Church, in his writings, mentions a Major Brown's garrison, and Mr. Baylies in his Memoirs notices a garrison at the house of one Bourn, at Mattapoisett, twelve miles from Swansea; the latter was undoubtedly at what is now Gardiner's Neck.

with those and the Seaconnet Indians and began a campaign of blood and fire, laying waste Dartmouth, Freetown, Westport, New Bedford, Compton and Tiverton.[1] Early in July Captain Church induced the commander in Swansea to send Captain Fuller and thirty six men to Pocasset and make and effort to treat with the Indians. This was after the brave man had endeavored to incite the troops to a hot pursuit of Philip. When Fuller and his men arrived at their destination they divided into two parties, were pursued by the Indians and barely escaped death or capture.

In the old town of Dartmouth there were three garrisons; one was on the north bank of the Aponagansett River, known as Russell's garrison.[2] Another was the Cooke garrison, at Oxford village, in Fairhaven, the walls of which were in good preservation until recent times. A quarter of a mile distant was the house of John Cooke, from whom the garrison took its name; he was a prominent settler and land owner of Dartmouth, who died in 1695. The third garrison was on Palmer's Island, between New Bedford and Fairhaven, which became a convenient and comparatively safe place of refuge. Regarding the destruction of Dartmouth by the Indians, Drake wrote as follows:

> They burnt nearly thirty houses in Dartmouth (a place in New Plymouth Colony), killing many people after a most barbarous manner, as skinning them all over alive, some only their heads, cutting off their hands and feet; but any woman they took alive they defiled, afterward putting her to death by some of these or the like ways.

The scattered condition of the inhabitants of Dartmouth rendered them easy prey to the savages, and few escaped to the garrisons. Dartmouth was not required to furnish soldiers during this war on account of her maintenance of the garrisons, and for several years after peace came the town was not taxed because of the great suffering of the inhabitants.

On the 18th of July an expedition was sent against Philip, who was located in a swamp in what is now Tiverton. The English, discovering a few Indians at the edge of the swamp, rushed recklessly forward; the Indians retreated, thus drawing on the soldiers until they reached

[1] Captain Church says: "The enemy were not really beaten out of Mount Hope Neck, though it was true they fled from thence, yet it was before any pursued them. It was only to strengthen themselves and to secure a more advantageous post."

[2] Russell's garrison was situated "about a mile from the mouth of the river on land now (1892) owned by Capt. Charles Gifford. The cellars are still as clearly defined as when visited by Drake in 1827. . . . Years ago there were walls of rude masonry about four feet high with an exit on the northeast corner, leading to a brook near by."—Ellis's History of New Bedford. p. 25.

an ambuscade, when fifteen were shot down, and they were compelled to retreat for the day. Fortifications were then built around the outskirts of the swamp, with the hope of starving the Indians into submission. One night near the last of the month Philip and his subjects suddenly fled, reached the opposite shore in canoes and made their way into the Nipensic country (now in Worcester county), where he joined with other tribes and swept through the Connecticut valley, burning villages, devastating homes and slaying settlers. In the mean time the colonial soldiery had reached the Narragansett country and extorted a treaty of friendship from Canonchet, the powerful chief of that tribe. The news of this event reached Philip and spurred him on to greater activity in his war of extermination.

While these operations were in progress to the westward, the Massachusetts and Plymouth authorities were unremitting in their efforts to adequately prepare for further warfare with the Indians. On the 9th of September, 1675, commissioners of each colony met at Boston, and the representatives of Plymouth Colony made a statement, "Shewing the manner of the beginning of the present war with the Indians of Mount Hope and Pocasset." A general declaration of war was then signed by the commissioners under which combined action could be secured. An order of the General Court was issued on the 4th of October, 1675, appointing James Cudworth to the "office of a Generall, or Commander in Cheife, to take the charge of our forces that are or may be sent forth in the behalfe of the Colonie against the Enemie as occation may require." The proportion of men to be furnished by each town was also fixed and further appointments of officers made. Early in December the following order was issued:

> Gentle, You are hereby to requre your men pressed, to be in reddiness to march soe as they attaine to meet at Providence on the 10th of Dec. next, and in order thereunto, that they rendevous on the seaventh of the said month att Plymouth, on eighth att Taunton, att Rheoboth on the 9th, and Providence on the tenth, as aforesaid, And that you see that they not only be able and fitt men, but alsoe well fitted with clothing nessary for the season, and provided with knapsack and ammunition, according to order, viz.: Halfe a pound of powder and 4 pounds of bullets to each man. Fayle not.

The last important attack made by Philip in the interior was that upon Hatfield, Mass., on October 29, when he with his one thousand warriors was repulsed with heavy loss. He was now alarmed and moved hurriedly into Rhode Island, where he joined the Narragansetts, who united with him, regardless of their recently made treaty. Philip now had a force of about three thousand warriors. Proceeding to the site of South Kingston, R. I., where there was a fort in a large swamp, and where winter provisions had been gathered, he awaited the expected oncoming of the English. About fifteen hundred colonial troops marched forward amid the snows of winter, on the 12th of December, and soon arrived at Wickford, R. I. From that time to the 18th reconnoitering was kept up and a number of Indians were captured. As soon as a body of Connecticut forces arrived, the forward movement was begun and on the 19th the siege of the Indian fort commenced. It was a feeble palisade and in a few hours five hundred wigwams and the store of provisions were in flames; hundreds of men, women and children perished in the fire. Quarter was neither asked nor given and a thousand warriors were slain and several hundred made prisoners. The English lost eighty-six killed and one hundred and fifty wounded. Canonchet was killed, but Philip escaped and again fled to the Nipmucks, whence he started on another campaign of slaughter and destruction in the spring. Weymouth, Groton, Medfield, Lancaster and Marlborough, and Warwick and Providence in Rhode Island, were attacked and within a few weeks the war extended over a space of three hundred miles. But notwithstanding this temporary success and the terrible consequences thereby entailed, there could be but one end to the struggle of savagery against civilization.

From March until the last of August, 1676, important events in the war took place within or near the limits of Bristol county. On Sunday, March 26, was fought within the original bounds of the county and near Pawtucket a bloody battle between the English under Capt. Michael Peirce, of Scituate, and the Indians led by Canonchet. The English captain was killed with nearly all of his command, and the Indian losses were even greater. The Indians were now largely divided into smaller parties, roving about among the settlements, lurking in concealment and killing settlers whenever an opportunity offered. For example, Woodcock's garrison, in Rehoboth, before mentioned, was attacked in April; one of Woodcock's sons was killed in a field, another workman was wounded and the son's house was burned. Woodcock swore lasting vengeance against the savages and many fell at his hands after that. There were only fourteen persons living at Woodcock's settlement at that time, most of whom were members of his own family and those of his sons and daughters.[1]

[1] A meeting of the Council was held in Boston on June 17, 1676, at which an order was passed

Two days after Peirce's fight and on March 28, a party of Indians crossed the river and burned about forty houses, thirty barns and two mills. These houses stood around what is now Seekonk Common. Only the garrison house and one other were left standing. Robert Beers, an Irishman and a bricklayer, was killed on that occasion. Tradition credits Philip with being present at the burning of the village.

The Narragansett chief, Canonchet, was captured on the 9th of April. Jealousy arose among the Indians, some of the tribes, among them the Narragansetts, charging their misfortune to Philip's ambition and then deserting his cause. The end of the struggle was approaching. On May 24 Capt. Thomas Brattle, of Boston, with about fifty mounted men and a small force of infantry marched to Pawtucket Falls, where they discovered a body of Indians on the opposite side of the river. The cavalry found a fording place further up the stream, crossed over and fell upon the unwarned savages, killing several and capturing others. Some time in the same month, four men of Taunton, viz., Sergt. James Phillips, James Bell, Henry Andrews and Edward Babbitt, were killed, leaving thirty-two fatherless children.

On June 19 Swansea was again attacked by the Indians and nearly all of the remaining houses were burned. On the 26th of that month Hezekiah Willett, son of Capt. Thomas Willett, was captured and after cutting off his ears and nose the savages set him free. He probably soon died from his injuries. On the 6th of August an Indian arrived at Taunton and offered to conduct soldiers to a party of the enemy who could be easily captured. Twenty men volunteered and proceeded to what is known as Lockety Neck (now in Norton) and captured the whole party of twenty-six Indians. On the 1st of August Philip's wife and his son, aged about nine years, were taken prisoners by the English, with several other women and children, an event that crushed the heart and life of the sachem. On Saturday, August 12, early in the morning, Philip was shot by a faithless Indian near Mount Hope, and Captain Church cut off his head and it was carried on a pole to Plym[illegible] out.[1] Philip's great warrior chief, Annawan, now became sachem, that a body of soldiers should "repair to Dedham on 2d day next early, and range the woods to and again for the discovery, distressing and destroying the enemy." This action was taken on account of information received "that the Indians are skulking to and again about Wrentham, Woodcock's, or Mount Hope." These orders were carried out.

[1] "The death of Philip occurred in this wise: An Indian deserter came to Capt. Church, in Rhode Island, and told him that Philip was at Mount Hope, at the same time offering to guide him to the place and help to kill him, for the sachem had killed his (the informant's) brother, and it was his duty to kill the murderer. This was the 'faithless Indian' who shot Philip. The but his career in that capacity was brief. On the 28th of August he was captured by Captain Church[1] at a place known as Annawan's Rock, in the easterly part of the town of Rehoboth. This event ended the war.

King Philip's war was most disastrous to all New England, and the energies and progress of the colonists were crippled for a number of years. In Massachusetts and Plymouth Colonies thirteen towns were destroyed, six hundred houses burned, and about six hundred persons killed; the property destroyed had an estimated value of $750,000.

There is a sequel to the story of this war that is not a subject for gratifying contemplation. Notwithstanding Captain Church's pledges to Annawan that he would intercede with the English authorities in his behalf, which pledges he kept, the old warrior was beheaded, with others of his tribe. This is not all. Nearer the close of hostilities there were at Russell's garrison about one hundred and fifty Indians who had surrendered to Captain Eels and Ralph Earl, upon solemn promises that they would be protected; these Indians were encamped in the woods near the garrison when Captain Church and his men arrived on the scene. In the face of the promises made, and the emphatic protest of Captain Church, these Indians were carried off to Plymouth and after a sort of trial were condemned and sold into slavery. This unwarranted and unjust act has received condemnation from some of the greatest minds of the country and needs no further consideration here.

An order was issued in June, 1676, that an account of the particular disbursements caused by the war should be sent in to the July court, that there might be a "right proportioning of the whole charge upon the several towns." The amount of disbursements sent in was £1692 16*s.* 2*d.* In 1677 the conquered lands of Showamet and Assonet were ordered to be sold and the proceeds divided among the towns. In 1680 the Mount Hope lands were sold to John Walley, Col. Nathaniel

Col. Benjamin Church was born in Duxbury, Mass., in 1639, and died January 17, 1717, in the seventy-eighth year of his age, at Little Compton, R. I. He married Miss Alice Southworth, and had five sons and a daughter. His daring and intrepidity can scarce find an equal in our annals. He was particularly distinguished in Philip's war, and was afterwards sent on an expedition against the Eastern Indians. (Church's History of Philip's war.) William Church, esq., of Providence, R. I., and Church Gray, esq., of Seekonk, are lineal descendants of this hero, the former by the father's and the latter by the mother's side.

CHAPTER IV.

FROM 1685 TO 1776.

The inborn, unconquerable spirit of determination and perseverance of the pioneers of Bristol county, their hopefulness, and their ambition lifted them above the discouragement and suffering of the late war, and under the white banner of peace they soon began a sure, if slow, march of progress. Such increase of population was made throughout the colony during the decade following the close of King Philip's war, that its division became a necessity in order to secure proper local government in the various sections. Accordingly, on June 2, 1685, Plymouth Colony was divided into the counties of Plymouth, Barnstable and Bristol. The towns then composing the latter were Taunton, Rehoboth, Dartmouth, Swansea, Bristol, Tiverton, Little Compton, and Freetown, and the plantation of Cumberland Gore, and Attleborough, in the order of their formation, as described in Chapter II. A considerable part of this territory was afterward set off to Rhode Island (1746). Industrial operations within what finally became Bristol county were still confined to a few saw and grist mills, the Leonard iron works in Taunton (see history of Taunton in later chapters), and the working in small shops of shoemakers, blacksmiths and hatmakers. There were only two schools in this territory, one in Taunton and one in Rehoboth. There were several church societies, the pastors of which made teaching the young, to some extent, a part of their occupation.

In the same year of the county incorporation Nicholas Peck, Thomas Leonard and Joseph Church were appointed to hold in Bristol county courts similar in character to the old Court of Common Pleas. Bristol (now in Rhode Island) was made the shire town of the county. Taunton was very displeased, and with reason, at the way in which the county was constituted. Thomas Leonard and Nathaniel Williams, deputies to the court, were requested "to do their utmost endeavors to

HOW THIS BOOK CAME TO BE

For seven years we have traced descendants of two Mayflower passengers for the Five Generations Project of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants. Having reached a point where only weekday travel to distant areas would supply further information for such genealogical research, we found ourselves with winter evenings and weekends free. Knowing how invaluable the Marshfield records in print would be for us and other Project workers, we felt that this was a cause to which we might contribute our time and also our experience in reading old handwritings. Our Marshfield ancestry through Resolved White and William Sherman, respectively, plus the fact that the records were already on microfilm, helped influence our decision.

The Rhode Island Society of Mayflower Descendants is financing this volume as a service and expects only a return of its original investment when all copies are sold.

THE VITAL RECORDS OF MARSHFIELD, MAS

Literally transcribed from the original records.

By George Ernest Bowman.

The first volume of the Marshfield town records is in a dilapidated condition, but further decay has been prevente the Emery process. This book contains records of town m ings, and of births, marriages and deaths, the latter being p independently. In 1879 the vital records were copied for town by Israel H. Hatch, and a comparison of his copy the original record has enabled the present transcriber to ply a few names and dates which have disappeared in the m time. Everything which is not now on the original record been enclosed in parentheses.

The original paging is indicated by figures enclosed brackets.

November 21st · The Birth of Americanism

The Anniversary of
The Signing of the Mayflower Compact

In 1620 the Pilgrims, persecuted for conscience's sake, "braved the tempests of the vast and furious ocean and the terrors lurking in the American wilderness" to plant their State of Freedom. Even before landing they set up their government by a written Compact; the first charter of a government of the people, by the people and for the people known to history. In the cabin of the Mayflower humanity recovered its rights. I am now going to read to you this venerable document, the first American State paper. In due respect I ask you all to rise and remain standing while it is being read.

The Compact

IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN. We whose names are underwritten, the loyal subjects of our dread sovereign Lord, King James, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, etc.

Having undertaken, for the glory of God, and advancement of the Christian faith and honor of our King and Country, a voyage to plant the first colony in the northern parts of Virginia, do by these presents, solemnly and mutually in the presence of God, and one of another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil body politic, for our better ordering and preservation and furtherance of the ends aforesaid; and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, constitutions and offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the general good of the Colony; unto which we promise all due submission and obedience.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF we have hereunder subscribed our names at Cape Cod, the 11 of November, in the year of the reign of our sovereign Lord, King James, of England, France and Ireland the eighteenth and of Scotland the fifty-fourth. And. Dom. 1620.

Thus these men became the First Americans. They believed that God created all men equal; therefore, without other precedent; they made all men equal before the Law. Here was the birth of popular constitutional liberty, foreshadowing our Declaration of Independence and our American Constitution, which guarantees Freedom to all of us today. Tremendous suffering was endured as they grappled with the great unknown. Half their number perished in the struggle of that first terrible Winter On the sarcophagus, which contains their remains, is this inscription:

"This monument marks the first burying-ground in Plymouth of the Passengers of the Mayflower. Here, under cover of darkness, the fast dwindling Company laid their dead; levelling the earth above them lest the Indians should learn how many were the graves.

READER, History records no nobler venture for Faith and Freedom than that of this Pilgrim band. In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and cold, they laid the foundations of a State wherein every man, through countless ages, should have liberty to worship God in his own way. May their example inspire thee to do thy part in perpetuating and spreading, throughout the World, the lofty Ideals of our Republic."

WILLIS
Edward Holman married Amey Glasse, widow of Richard Willis, before 1645 (Pope p. 237). It was before 17 April 1644 when they deeded land. (PCR 12:113)
John Willis married Elizabeth Palmer before 2 Jan. 1637-8. (PCR 7:7)
Richard Willis & Amey Glasse married the 7th Oct. 1639 (PCR 1:134)

WILLS
Ralph Chapman and Lydia Wills were married the 23 Nov. 1642 (Marshfield VR p. 1) She is almost surely the Lydia Wells who came to New England in 1634, apparently as a servant to William Hatch. (Planters p. 116). Her period of servitude would probably have ended in 1641.

WILLS cont'd
William Wills and Luce ---- his wife married at Plimouth at the time of the Court, either upon the 4 or 5 day of Sept. 1638. (Lothrop 9:286) The Court met 4 Sept. 1638. (PCR 1:96)

WINSLOW
The first marriage in this place is of Edward Winslow to Mrs. Susanna White, widow of Mr. William White, May 12, 1621. (MD 30:4)
John Winslow married Mary Chilton before 22 May 1627. They did not have any children at that time. "Families of the Pilgrims" gives 12 Oct. 1624 as the date of their marriage, but there is no proof for the date.
Josias Winslow married Margaret Bourne about 1636. (DeForest p. 123)
Kenelme Winslow & Elen Adames, widdow, were married June 1634. (PCR 1:30)
Edward Gray married to Mary Winslow the 16 of Jan. 1650. (PCR 8:11)
Robert Latham married Susanna Winslow about 1649 as their first child, Mercy, was born 2 June 1650. (PCR 8:10) The wills of both John Winslow and his wife Mary (Chilton) Winslow mention their granddaughter Mercy Harris. She is the above Mercy Latham, having married Isaac Harris, thereby proving that Susanna Winslow married Robert Latham before 2 June 1650.

Dear Mr. Crapo:

I am writing to applaud you for introducing the proposal to be voted on at the next stockholders meeting of IDACORP.

I have sent in my proxy supporting your proposal (for what little good it will do) and I hope by some miracle that it passes. It is a sound suggestion and would put some accountability into the way money is given.

It seems to me, with the number of shares of stock which you hold, that you should be on the board! I see the same names appearing on many of the executive boards of various corporations and companies in Idaho. A sort of corporate incest.

A very minor stockholder,

Gov. Mitt Romney's drainage problem at his Belmont home should not receive a dollar of public subsidy until a nearby pond is cleaned up, an Arlington lawmaker said yesterday.

A proposal before Belmont's Town Meeting to allocate $172,000 to eliminate puddling on Romney's property should be postponed until the state repairs the drainage damage to Spy Pond in Arlington, Rep. James Marzilli (D-Arlington) said.

Romney's home and Spy Pond are subject to the same storm runoff from a hill that encompasses Belmont and Arlington, he said.

"The difference is that a couple of dozen people live on Mitt Romney's street, while a quarter million people from Arlington, Cambridge, Belmont and Somerville use Spy Pond," Marzilli said.

The Herald reported yesterday that officials made the Marsh Street project the lone earmarking in a $1.1 million roadway improvement plan. One selectman defended the fast-tracked plan because Romney might someday help Belmont at the State House.

After being contacted by the Herald, Romney said he would ask that the project be delayed until he leaves office.

Marzilli, responding to the report, said sand dropped by the Massachusetts Highway Department on Route 2 has washed into nearby Spy Pond and created a sand bar threatening the health of the pond.

A Highway Department spokesman said yesterday that the sand bar cannot be removed because dangerous chemicals and pollutants would be released.

"As one of the residents of the town, I hope I get the same treatment as everyone else and, if we've got a water problem, deal with it after I'm out of office," Romney said.

Romney denied the project was fast-tracked until the Herald inquired about it.

"This is something we requested over many years, so fast track is something I'm not familiar with in that regard," Romney said.

Mailman threats disrupt postal service

By FRANCI RICHARDSON

Nearly three weeks after a group of threatening youths taunted a letter carrier, mail service resumed yesterday, but not without the Fall River mayor demanding an explanation for why service was halted in the entire area.

"I think if postal workers are having a difficult time, it needs to be addressed," Fall River Mayor Ed Lambert said yesterday. "But I'm not sure the way to address it is to inconvenience everyone."

On April 3, a male letter carrier was taunted by a bunch of foul-mouthed, bat-wielding youths as he tried to complete his route at the property run by the housing authority.

"It caused him to fear for his safety," said Christine Dugas, spokeswoman for the post office. "There was a very strong safety concern in this area."

Service was stopped the next day, and local residents were forced to pick up their own mail at the post office.

After postal carriers were assured a similar incident would not occur again, service was resumed Thursday. The letter carrier, who was not identified, was escorted yesterday along his route by a supervisor. Postal officials also have requested that more police patrol the area during the delivery time, Dugas said.

But Lambert is hoping for a meeting with officials Monday.

"They need to take action against who is causing the problem and not inconvenience the majority of the people who live there," he said.

All of our prices are based on round trip flights, with the aircraft returning to its base. One way pricing may also be provided from Los Angeles to New York City. If a one way trip is needed from San Jose, CA to Richmond, VA, pricing would be based on the one way from LA to NYC, plus the initial reposition to San Jose and up to the NY base after the Richmond stop.

Round trip pricing consists of total flight time, overnights, and daily minimums of at least two hours per day. It may be more cost effective, on occasion, to send the plane back to it's base and re-launch for the return trip than to keep the plane with the passengers at the local hangar.

Mark John Dalton, 89, attorney, aide to JFK

JOHN J. CRAPO. PRO SE

Mark John Dalton of South Woodstock, Vt., and Dover, an aide to President John F. Kennedy, leading Boston attorney, decorated World War II veteran and former Herald writer, died Sunday of colon cancer at his home in South Woodstock. He was 89.

Born in Cambridge, Mr. Dalton attended Boston College High School and Boston College. He also attended Harvard Law School, where he graduated with honors in 1941. Mr. Dalton was a resident of Dover for more than 50 years.

Before going to law school, Mr. Dalton worked as a newspaper columnist, drama critic and book reviewer for the Boston Herald from 1936 to 1938.

After law school, Mr. Dalton served as a law clerk for the U.S Circuit Court of Appeals. He later worked as an attorney for the office of Price Administration in Washington, D.C.

Shortly after he joined the OPA, Mr. Dalton enlisted in the Navy in 1942 and enrolled in the advanced Naval Intelligence School in New York. He was assigned to the Eighth Naval District in New Orleans, where he monitored merchant shipping during a period of heavy attack from German submarines on American merchant vessels. He was later assigned to Amphibious Forces and was appointed a combat operational amphibious intelligence officer.

In 1944, Lt. Dalton was assigned to Adm. Don P. Moon, who commanded the Utah Beach forces on D-Day, June 6, 1944. At 6:50 a.m., Lt. Dalton was the Navy's first intelligence officer to land on Utah Beach during the Sixth Wave. His now-famous message from the beach to Adm. Moon, in which he wrote "landings can be made anywhere on Red Beach... obstacles are no longer obstacles" cleared the way for the Normandy invasions to proceed on Utah Beach.

After his decorated military service, Mr. Dalton practiced law for more than 50 years in Boston. Throughout his long career, he worked in politics, lobbying and public-sector unions and he was general counsel for the Mass. State Employees Association. He also served as an adviser and speech writer for President Kennedy during his congressional and senatorial campaigns.

"He carried himself humbly and nobly," fellow attorney Joe DeLorey said of his mentor. "I have never walked down the street with anyone who had so many hats tipped to him as Mr. Dalton. Each person who greeted him in my presence did so with a genuine warmth and respect."

For many years, he was a lector at the local church in Dover and he remained active in his community, often attending Town Hall Meetings.

Mr. Dalton loved reading and was a lifelong proprietor of the Boston Athenaeum. He also enjoyed taking long walks through Dover or along the Charles River.

Husband of the late Barbara Higgins, Mr. Dalton is survived by four sons, Mark of Londonderry, N.H., Michael of Woodstock, Vt., Richard of Chestnut Hill and Timothy of Arlington; two daughters, Margaret of Woodstock and Mary Ann of Arlington; and six grandchildren.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. tomorrow at St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill.

Burial will be in Highland Cemetery, Dover.

Arrangements by Waterman and Sons, Wellesley.

marry Sarah Bassett in 1649 and move to her family land on the banks of the South River, across from the old North/South River mouth.[14]

When Josiah married Penelope Pelham of a prominent Boston family in 1651, the couple returned to London for the marriage ceremony in St. Bride's Church, the very place where Edward Winslow had joined the Separatists before coming to America. Edward was back in London at the time, serving Cromwell. Oil portraits of Edward, Josiah, and Penelope were painted by Robert Walker of London. Edward Winslow's portrait, now at the Pilgrim Society in Plymouth, is the only likeness of any Mayflower passenger that exists today.

It seems probable that Josiah Winslow and Penelope, upon their return from London, began to build their own home adjacent to the original Winslow house. Josiah's mother, Susannah, must have been living in the old homestead. Two cellar holes were discovered later, indicating the existence of two houses at the original Winslow site (marked by a granite stone off Perryn Way across Careswell Street from the 1699 Winslow House). Susannah died sometime before 1675, having outlived her husband, Edward Winslow, by some 20 years.[15]

Josiah followed in the footsteps of his father and assumed a variety of civic responsibilities. He was a delegate to the Plymouth Colony Court, a commissioner to the Confederacy for New England, and governor of Plymouth Colony from 1673 until his death in 1680. Although not a military man by nature, he was made commander in chief of the colonial forces during the 1675 King Philip's Indian War. When Plymouth authorities seized Wampanoag Chief Massasoit's son Wamsutta (Alexander) for questioning, they brought him to Winslow's Green Harbor home. Alexander became ill at Careswell and died on the way back to his people at Titicut (Middleborough). His death was blamed directly on the Winslow family and was one of the precipitating causes of the ensuing war. Josiah Winslow led the troops in the decisive Great Swamp fight in Rhode Island on 19 December 1675. This battle broke the strength of the Indians and led to their ultimate surrender in July 1676. Josiah was destined to live only four more years.[16]

Josiah and Penelope Winslow had two children who lived to adulthood: a daughter, Elizabeth, born in 1664; and a son, Isaac, born in 1670. It was Isaac who built the present so-called Historic Winslow House in 1699, a year before his marriage to Sarah Wensley. Again, in the public-service tradition of the Winslow family, Isaac attained numerous prominent positions, both military and civil, in the colony. He served as judge of the Probate Court at Plymouth, chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas, and president of the Council for the Province of Massachusetts Bay. He was known in Marshfield and in the colony as the Honorable Isaac Winslow.[17]

Isaac Winslow and Sarah Wensley were married by the Reverend Cotton Mather in Boston on 11 July 1700. Sarah Wensley was the daughter of Samuel Wensley and Elizabeth Freeman Paddy Wensley, whose portrait hangs with other Winslow portraits at the Pilgrim Society in Plymouth. Reproductions of the Winslow family portraits are to be seen at the 1699 Winslow House. Isaac and Sarah Winslow had six children, all of whom lived to adulthood. This was the largest family to live at the 1699 Winslow House. Their first child, another Josiah, born in 1701, was a young man of only twenty-three when he was killed by the Indians in May 1724 at the battle of St. George River in Maine. A daughter, Penelope, married James Warren of another Mayflower Pilgrim line. A son, Edward, married Hannah Howland, descendant of Pilgrim John Howland. Edward was a prominent Plymouth Loyalist at the time of the American Revolution and was forced to leave Plymouth by the Patriots.

It was the Honorable Isaac Winslow's son John, born in 1703, who brought wide-spread fame to the Winslow family of Careswell in Green Harbor. John had an outstanding military career in the French and Indian War and made a name for himself in the so-called Acadian campaign. He was sent in 1755 by Governor William Shirley of Massachusetts to be second in command under Lieutenant Colonel Robert Monckton of the colonial

In 1655 Peregrine was granted two hundred acres elsewhere in the colony, described as "along the path from Bridgewater to the Bay" by the Plymouth Colony Court, in honor of his being the first-born child of the Pilgrims. He sold this acreage, but from time to time received additional land in other parts of the colony from the court. During his years in Marshfield he purchased several pieces of land adjacent to his farm.[2]

Peregrine was born in 1620 on the Mayflower at Provincetown. He was the son of Susannah and William White. His childhood was spent in the household of his stepfather and mother, Edward Winslow and Susannah White Winslow. The family lived in Plymouth until they moved to the Winslow homestead, Careswell, at Green Harbor in 1636. At sixteen he served the colony in the Indian uprising known as the Pequot War. He continued in the military, becoming a lieutenant and then a captain in the militia. During his long life in Marshfield, he was a farmer and public-spirited citizen, serving the town as a surveyor and as a representative to the General Court. In 1700, at an advanced age, he became the town's schoolteacher. He must have been an independent Yankee since he saw no

of the Winslow family, Isaac attained numerous prominent positions, both military and civil, in the colony. He served as judge of the Probate Court at Plymouth, chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas, and president of the Council for the Province of Massachusetts Bay. He was known in Marshfield and in the colony as the Honorable Isaac Winslow.[17]

Isaac Winslow and Sarah Wensley were married by the Reverend Cotton Mather in Boston on 11 July 1700. Sarah Wensley was the daughter of Samuel Wensley and Elizabeth Freeman Paddy Wensley, whose portrait hangs with other Winslow portraits at the Pilgrim Society in Plymouth. He was sent in 1755 by Governor William Shirley of Massachusetts to be second in command under Lieutenant Colonel Robert Monckton of the colonial ward Winslow. The northern half (that area which later Webster estate) was granted to William Thomas. A piece se two large parcels was granted first to Robert Carver, Thomas in exchange for land on Parsonage Street. (John servant of Edward Winslow and was no relation to the entioned above.) Edward Winslow, William Thomas, and the first three homesteads in Green Harbor. They cleared and pasturage, planted orchards, set aside wood lots, and and ways between their farms and fields.

r grants followed. Some of the first grantees never lived either sold it or exchanged it with others. Sometimes land was granted with the provision that the grantee had to settle on it or it would revert to the town. The first grants in Marshfield were made by the Plymouth Colony Court. After the town was incorporated in 1640, the Marshfield proprietors, or settled freemen of the town, were responsible for granting land within the town. Freemen were defined as male inhabitants who were church members and in good standing in the community. Edward Bumpus was given a piece of land at Oven Hill Point (Duck Hill). John Rouse had land at Careswell Creek near the Winslow property. James Pitney received a grant which he sold to James Lindall in 1646. Pitney's daughter, Sarah, married John Thomas, and the Thomas family lived for many generations at the old homestead. Sarah Pitney Thomas was honored by her descendants who erected a statue in her memory and in memory of all the early colonial women of Marshfield. The statue is in the possession of the Historic Winslow House Association today.[10]

When Edward Winslow arrived in Marshfield, he was accompanied by his wife, Susannah White, and their three children. He had married Susannah as his second wife 12 May 1621, she being the widow of William White. Both had lost their spouses during the illness that struck the Pilgrims the first winter at Plymouth. Theirs was the first marriage ceremony held at Plymouth Colony. Susannah brought to the marriage her two sons, Resolved and Peregrine White, who were about eighteen and sixteen years of age in 1636 when the family came to Marshfield. In addition, the Winslows had a son of their own, Josiah Winslow, born in 1629 in Plymouth. Josiah was seven years old when he came to Green Harbor. A daughter, Elizabeth, born during the 1630s, completed this "first family" of Marshfield.[11]

Edward Winslow was active in the affairs of both colony and town and must have had little time for his family and his farm. The Winslows had servants and farmhands to help with the hard work of pioneering in early Green Harbor. Winslow, having served a term as governor of Plymouth Colony in 1633, began another term in 1636 and was to hold this office again in 1644. When not governor, he served as assistant governor almost continuously. Winslow worked on the 1636 revision of the laws of Plymouth Colony. He served as a member of the General Court at Plymouth until 1646 and was one of the so-called Undertakers, or those responsible for the colony debt, until 1641. He was commissioner to the New England Confederacy in 1643 and 1644. He traveled to Maine to set up trading posts on the Kennebec and Penobscot rivers, and to Connecticut and the Aptuxet Trading Post in Bourne to trade with the Indians.[12]

In addition to his many duties with the colony, Winslow encouraged people to settle at Green Harbor so that the town might qualify for incorporation. In Plymouth Colony, a town could not be incorporated until it reached a certain population and had a minister and parsonage. The town was incorporated on 2 March 1640. The church and town were one, and early town meetings were held in the church. At a Marshfield town meeting in 1645 one of the first publicly funded schools in the colonies was established.

Having traveled to England in 1624, 1631, and 1634, Winslow returned again in 1646. It was to be his last trip. Away from his home at Marshfield for the remaining nine years of his life, he was destined to die in the service of Puritan Oliver Cromwell in the West Indies campaign of 1655.[13]

Edward Winslow's son Josiah was seventeen when his father left for England the final time. Josiah's half-brother Resolved White had left home in 1640 at the time of his marriage to Judith Vassall, daughter of the ferry-keeper at the North River, and half-brother Peregrine White was to

FOR MODERATORS ONLY

We'd like moderators to pick up the nameplates for your panel from Program Operations (room 305) before you proceed to the Green Room. Besides being the Keeper of the Nameplates for a panel, as the moderator you can help make it focused and fun:

Before the Panel

- If you're not sure, determine whether you are a member of the panel and have something of interest to say on the topic or whether you're there primarily to ensure the others stay on track.
- Prepare some questions/topics to keep the panel going if conversation lags.
- Meet briefly with the other panelists in the Green Room to talk about a general approach for the panel and a mutual understanding of the topic. (Don't get too detailed or you risk losing spontaneity.)

During the Panel

- Start the panel after you are sure that a substantial number of the audience are in place. Introduce the panelists or have them introduce themselves, perhaps asking them to relate (briefly!) their interest in or experience with the topic.
- Briefly outline the topic of the panel for the audience.
- Make sure all panelists get a fair chance to speak. This may involve drawing out a quiet panelist, or occasionally cutting off a garrulous one for the good of the panel. (Try humor first, confrontation last.)
- Unless the topic is going nowhere, prevent the discussion from drifting away from the topic. No matter how interesting a newer topic may be, remember that people have come expecting to hear a discussion of the listed topic.
- Allow time for questions from the audience towards the end of the panel, but don't let individual questioners monopolize the panel. (Again, this may involve cutting people off but is for the good of the panel). Don't move to questions too quickly: the panelists are on the program item because they are considered to have some expertise or interest in the topic and to be able to talk about it intelligently or amusingly (or both!)
- If you are in a large room, repeat questions from the audience so everyone in the room knows what was asked.
- If there are as many people in the audience as on the podium, make sure that you are covering topics that the audience wants to hear about. Ask them.

Logistics

- Please don't add anyone to the panel without confirming the addition with Program Operations (even if the person swears it's ok).
- Bring the panel gracefully to a close once your friendly neighborhood Program Operations volunteer flashes the "5 MINUTES" sign, and please be finished completely by the time s/he returns with the STOP sign.
- Please don't linger after the panel, and discourage other panelists from doing so, so that the next panel can start on time. If people want to communicate with the panelists, please encourage them to do so outside.

News Release

THE McGRAW-HILL COMPANIES REPORTS
FIRST QUARTER EARNINGS PER SHARE OF 39 CENTS

Revenue Grows by 9.7%
Operating Margin Improves in All 3 Segments

New York, NY, April 27, 2004—The McGraw-Hill Companies (NYSE:MHP) today reported diluted earnings per share of 39 cents from net income for the first quarter of 2004. The results include a one-time non-cash benefit of $20 million, or 10 cents per share, of accrued tax liabilities following the completion of various federal, state, local and foreign tax audits. This compares to the first quarter 2003 diluted earnings per share from net income of 50 cents, which included an after-tax impact of 29 cents from discontinued operations last year.

Income from continuing operations for the first quarter of 2004 increased 91.3% to $76.3 million. Net income for the first quarter of 2004 was $75.7 million.

Revenue for the first quarter of 2004 increased 9.7% to $911.6 million.

"We gained momentum late in the first quarter and finished with a very solid performance," said Harold McGraw III, chairman, president and chief executive officer of The McGraw-Hill Companies. "Buoyed by a surge of financing in March, Financial Services produced a record first quarter. We also saw pickups in education and advertising and benefited from rigorous cost controls.

Education: "Revenue for the segment increased 6.4% to $278.2 million and the operating loss was reduced by 2.0% to $68.8 million in the first quarter compared to the same period last year. Favorable foreign exchange rates contributed $6.1 million to revenue and had a slightly negative impact on operating profits.

"Revenue for the McGraw-Hill School Education Group grew by 8.6% to $125.1 million in the first quarter. Revenue for the McGraw-Hill Higher Education, Professional and International Group increased by 4.7% to $153.1 million.

"Growth in reading and testing markets was key to the McGraw-Hill School Education Group's improved performance in a seasonally slow quarter for education. The federal No Child Left Behind Act signed into law in 2002 placed new emphasis on teaching reading in the early years. As a result, educators are now acquiring reading preparation materials for the pre-K market, new programs for grades K-3, and remedial products for grades 4-6. Some of the funding for our material came from Reading First and Early Reading First programs, which are part of the No Child Left Behind Act.

"We continue to benefit from the increased emphasis on testing as states prepare to meet mandatory federal requirements to test annually every child in grades 3 through 8 in reading and math beginning in the 2005-06 school year. Custom-contract revenue improved in California, Wisconsin, Connecticut, West Virginia, Colorado and Maryland, but expenses increased because of additional scoring requirements for some state contracts. We also won a new statewide contract for Arizona.

"Sales in higher education markets here and abroad offset softness in professional titles in the first quarter. School products also contributed to improved international sales in Latin America, the United Kingdom, and Canada.

Dear Mr. Crapo:

We are in receipt of your letter of May 14, 2004. In accordance with Rule 14a-8(f) of the SEC's proxy rules, we are hereby notifying you of your failure to follow certain of the procedural requirements for submission of shareholder proposals.

Rule 14a-8(d) states that a shareholder proposal, including any supporting statement, may not exceed 500 words. The length of your proposal is over 600 words.

You may correct this deficiency by resubmitting to us a revised proposal, not exceeding 500 words. In accordance with SEC rules, you must submit the revised proposal to us by letter postmarked, or by electronic transmission, no later than 14 days after you receive this letter.

Very truly yours,

Robert W. Stahman

STOCKHOLDER PROPOSAL

Mr. John Jennings Crapo, of Porter Square Branch, P.O. Box 400151, Cambridge, Massachusetts, 02140-0002, a holder of 207 common shares, proposes to submit the following proposal at the special meeting. The following proposal appears exactly as proposed by Mr. Crapo:

Proposal

Shareholders recommend that the Board of Directors of Mony Group Inc ("Group") publish in the proxy statement of each stockholder annual meeting a report containing an item concerning the charitable donations programs of the Group for the past calendar year with the following information:

(Re-written here for you so as to be clearer, more concise, more sensible)

(i) an explanation of ~~at least five hundred words explaining~~ the standards of the Group and procedures of said corporation governing its donations to United States of North America Internal Revenue Service approved private foundations to include standards for denial of such help.

(ii) an enumeration of such said qualifying charities and approved foundations which our Group Board of Directors plans to help in the ensuing calendar year, including with every charity an elucidation of at least twenty five words regarding how it complied with the standards and procedures enumerated in (i).

(2) I ask the OFC of Secy to cross out this paragraph when he/she inserts numbers of stockholder votes were cast at said meeting. How many shares which weren't voted how many votes were cast for my stockholder proposal—the percentage, how many against, the percentage and numbers of shares voting in opposition, the percentage and the number of shares voted blank, and that percentage.

(3) I've sent Mr. Daniel J. Gallagher a copy of a letter from Mr. Robert A. Romagna of Florida I received which I felt I should call to the Group's attention.

(4) Enclosed with this I enclose copy of the receipt I signed for delivery of this via Express Mail to me at U.S. Post Office, as well as the front piece of said express mail article of mail. Mr. Romagna went through a campaign with me. I briefly write so to comply with five hundred-word limit of the shareholder's proposal and its supporting statement.

Dear Sir:
You need help, very badly, in writing up your thoughts. Please have an English writing well-spoken friend or relative help you compose your correspondence. You do not repeat your words, but do use commas to separate thoughts within a sentence and not just ramble on without a complete idea. Also re-word (3) above as shown this proposal is "fairly" clear after one reads it through several times. However the "Supporting Statement" is useless. It doesn't say (why) you want the information you have asked for — Not one word more about the matter of questioning the donations & how they are chosen!!

STOCKHOLDER PROPOSAL

Mr. John Jennings Crapo, of Porter Square Branch, P.O. Box 400151, Cambridge, Massachusetts, 02140-0002, a holder of 207 common shares, proposes to submit the following proposal at the special meeting. The following proposal appears exactly as proposed by Mr. Crapo:

PAID

Proposal

Shareholders recommend that the Board of Directors of ~~Mony~~ Group Inc ("Group") publish in the proxy statement of each stockholder annual meeting a report containing an item concerning the charitable donations programs of the Group for the past calendar year, with the following information:

(Re-written here for you so as to be clearer more concise and sensible)

(i) an explanation ~~of at least five hundred words explaining~~ the standards of the Group and procedures of said corporation governing its donations to United States of North America Internal Revenue Service approved private foundations to include standards for denial of such help.

(ii) an enumeration of such said qualifying charities and approved foundations which our Group Board of Directors plans to help in the ensuing calendar year, including with every charity an elucidation of at least twenty five words how it complied with the standards and procedures enumerated in (i).

means nothing to the above statement.

Supporting Statement — Seems to have no connection with the actual proposal at all. Convoluted "Gobbly goop" wording

(1) The shareholder proposal although it didn't pass at the stockholder meeting of stockholders and proxies meeting in annual meeting of shareholder and proxies meeting for the purpose of annual meeting.

(2) I ask the OFC of Secy to cross out this paragraph when he/she inserts numbers of stockholder votes were cast at said meeting. How many shares which weren't voted how many votes were cast for my stockholder proposal—the percentage, how many against, the percentage and numbers of shares voting in opposition, the percentage and the number of shares voted blank, and that percentage.

Strange wording of request

(3) I've sent Mr. (who is he?) Daniel J. Gallagher a copy of a letter from Mr. Robert A. Romagna of Florida I received which I felt I should call to the Group's attention.

I received MOVE UP AS SHOWN!

? Redundant? This what? Romagna letter???

(4) Enclosed with this I enclose copy of the receipt I signed for delivery of this via Express Mail to me at U.S. Post Office, as well as the front piece of said express mail article of mail. Mr. Romagna went through a campaign with me. I briefly write so to comply with five hundred word limit of the shareholders proposal and its supporting statement.

Board of Directors Recommendation

The MONY board of directors recommends a vote "AGAINST" this proposal.

Dear Sir:

You need help very badly in writing your thoughts! Please have an English writing well-proposed friend or relative help you. Do not repeat your words, but do use commas (,) to separate thoughts within a sentence and not just ramble on without a complete idea. Also re-word (3) above as shown.

APRIL, 2004

Mr. Crapo,

There is a very good reason why people are NOT voting for your proposal, which is basically an O.K. request.

Read our remarks from our copy of your proposal to understand why it is not being voted for. It's all in your wording of it and not giving a meaningful, sensible, related supporting reason for it!!

How many shares which weren't voted how many votes were cast for my stockholder proposal—the percentage, how many against, the percentage and numbers of shares voting in opposition, the percentage and the number of shares voted blank, and that percentage.

Strange wording of request

(3) I've sent Mr. Daniel J. Gallagher (who is he?) a copy of a letter from Mr. Robert A. Romagna of Florida I received which I felt I should call to the Group's attention.

(4) Enclosed with this I enclose copy of the receipt I signed for delivery of this via Express Mail to me at U.S. Post Office, as well as the front piece of said express mail article of mail Mr. Romagna went through a campaign with me. I briefly write so to comply with five hundred word limit of the shareholders proposal and its supporting statement.

Board of Directors Recommendation

The MONY board of directors recommends a vote "AGAINST" this proposal.

Dear Sir:

You need help very badly in writing up your thoughts. Please have an English writing well-proposed friend or relative help you compose your correspondence for you. Do not repeat your words, but do use commas (,) to separate thoughts within a sentence and not just ramble on without a complete idea. Also re-word (3) above as shown.

this proposal is "fairly" clear after one reads it through several times. However the "Supporting Statement" is useless. It doesn't say why you want the information you have asked for — not one word more about the matter of questioning the donations & how they are chosen!!

STOCKHOLDER PROPOSAL

Mr. John Jennings Crapo, of Porter Square Branch, P.O. Box 400151, Cambridge, Massachusetts, 02140-0002, a holder of 207 common shares, proposes to submit the following proposal at the special meeting. The following proposal appears exactly as proposed by Mr. Crapo:

Proposal

Shareholders recommend that the Board of Directors of Mony Group Inc ("Group") publish in the proxy statement of each stockholder annual meeting a report containing an item concerning the charitable donations programs of the Group for the past calendar year, with the following information:

(Re-written here for you so as to be clearer more concise and feasible)

(i) an explanation ~~of at least five hundred words explaining~~ the standards of the Group and procedures of said corporation governing its donations to United States of North America Internal Revenue Service approved private foundations, to include standards for denial of such help.

(ii) an enumeration of such said qualifying charities and approved foundations which our Group Board of Directors plans to help in the ensuing calendar year, including with every charity an elucidation of at least twenty five words regarding how it complied with the standards and procedures enumerated in (i).

means nothing to the above statement.

Supporting Statement — Seems to have no connection with the actual proposal at all. Convoluted "Gobbly gook" wording

(1) The shareholder proposal although it didn't ~~win~~ pass at the stockholder meeting of stockholders and proxies meeting in annual meeting of shareholder and proxies meeting for the purpose of annual meeting.

(2) I ask the OFC of Secy to cross out this paragraph what paragraph when he/she inserts numbers of stockholder votes were cast at said meeting. How many shares which weren't voted how many votes were cast for my stockholder proposal—the percentage, how many against, the percentage and numbers of shares voting in opposition, the percentage and the number of shares voted blank, and that percentage.

Strange wording of request

(3) I've sent Mr (who is he?) Daniel J. Gallagher a copy of a letter from Mr. Robert A. Romagna of Florida I received which I felt I should call to the Group's attention.

I received ← MOVE UP AS SHOWN. ← ?, Redundant? this what? the ③ Romagna letter???

(4) Enclosed with this I enclose a copy of the receipt I signed for delivery of this Via Express Mail to me at U.S. Post Office, as well as the front piece of said express mail article of mail. Mr. Romagna went through a campaign with me. I briefly write so to comply with the five hundred-word limit of the shareholders proposal and its supporting statement.

IDACORP

IDAHO POWER
An IDACORP Company

NOTICE OF JOINT ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS
May 20, 2004, AT BOISE, IDAHO

April 12, 2004

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF IDACORP, INC. AND IDAHO POWER COMPANY:

Notice is hereby given that the Joint Annual Meeting of Shareholders of IDACORP, Inc. ("IDACORP") and Idaho Power Company ("Idaho Power") will be held on May 20, 2004 at 10:00 a.m. local time at the Idaho Power Corporate Headquarters Building, 1221 West Idaho Street, Boise, Idaho, for the following purposes:

1. to elect three Directors of IDACORP and Idaho Power for a three year term;
2. to ratify the selection of Deloitte & Touche LLP as independent auditor for IDACORP and Idaho Power for the fiscal year ending December 31, 2004;
3. to act upon a shareholder proposal requesting IDACORP to publish annually in the Proxy Statement an explanation of Board procedures governing donations to and a list of Board approved private foundations; and
4. to transact such other business that may properly come before the meeting and any adjournment or adjournments thereof.

Common shareholders of record of IDACORP and Idaho Power and holders of Idaho Power 4% Preferred Stock and 7.68% Series, Serial Preferred Stock, at the close of business on April 1, 2004, are entitled to vote at the meeting.

All shareholders are cordially invited to attend the Joint Annual Meeting in person. Shareholders interested in attending in person must make a reservation by calling (800) 635-5406. WHETHER OR NOT YOU PLAN TO ATTEND, PLEASE VOTE YOUR PROXY PROMPTLY. It is important that your shares be represented at the meeting. Please vote your proxy, regardless of the size of your holdings, as promptly as possible. Any shareholder voting a proxy who attends the meeting may vote in person by revoking that proxy prior to or at the meeting.

By Order of the Boards of Directors

Robert W. Stahman
Corporate Secretary

TO SHAREHOLDERS WHO RECEIVE MULTIPLE PROXIES
IF YOU OWN IDACORP COMMON STOCK OR IDAHO POWER PREFERRED STOCK OTHER THAN THE SHARES SHOWN ON THE ENCLOSED PROXY, YOU WILL RECEIVE A PROXY IN A SEPARATE ENVELOPE FOR EACH SUCH HOLDING. PLEASE VOTE EACH PROXY RECEIVED.

3. SHAREHOLDER PROPOSAL

Mr. John Jennings Crapo, P.O. Box 400151, Cambridge Massachusetts, 02140-0002, who holds of record 524.698 shares of IDACORP common stock, has notified IDACORP in writing that he intends to submit the proposal set forth below for consideration at the Annual Meeting. The SEC permitted IDACORP to exclude the supporting statement submitted by Mr. Crapo under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) of the Securities and Exchange Commission's proxy rules as vague and indefinite.

MY SHAREHOLDER PROPOSAL

Shareholders recommend that the Board of Directors ("Our Board") of IDACORP publish in the Proxy Statement of each shareholder annual meeting in the Appendix containing an item the charitable donations program of our corporation for the immediate past calendar year with the following data:

i. An explanation of at least five hundred words explaining the standards of Our Board and procedures of it governing. The Corporation's donations to United States of American Internal Revenue Service ("Svce") approved private foundations to include standards for denial of such help.

ii. An enumeration of such said qualifying charities and approved foundations which Our Board plans as our corporate governance to help in the ensuing calendar year included with each charity and foundation an elucidation of at least twenty-five words how it complied with the standards and procedures enumerated in i.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF IDACORP HAS CONSIDERED THIS PROPOSAL AND RECOMMENDS THAT SHAREHOLDERS VOTE "AGAINST" IT FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

The Board opposes Mr. Crapo's proposal because it believes that implementation of the proposal would cause IDACORP to incur undue cost and expense to publish additional information not required to be included in its proxy statement without providing any additional meaningful benefit to our shareholders.

Although Mr. Crapo's proposal is unclear, we believe that his reference to "Internal Revenue Service approved private foundations" means charitable organizations, such as family-sponsored foundations, that do not receive broad public support. Neither IDACORP nor its subsidiaries generally make any contributions to private foundations.

IDACORP's principal means of making charitable contributions to non-profit charitable organizations is through the Idaho Power Contributions Program. Through this program, Idaho Power provides financial support to qualifying organizations and offers academic scholarships to area students seeking higher education. Information regarding Idaho Power's charitable contribution program is published on Idaho Power's website http://www.idahopower.com/aboutus/community/scholarship.htm. Along with other supporting information, the website provides detailed information regarding contribution guidelines and standards, identification and descriptions of specific programs sponsored by Idaho Power and relevant application procedures. In the past, neither the IDACORP nor the Idaho Power Boards of Directors have been involved in the contribution process nor has either Company regularly published the name of the recipients of any contributions.

IDACORP believes that requiring the publication of the information requested by Mr. Crapo in the proxy statement would result in increased costs without providing any additional meaningful information to our shareholders.

THEREFORE, THE IDACORP BOARD OF DIRECTORS UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A VOTE "AGAINST" THIS PROPOSAL.

peace of mind next spring. It's about taking away the scramble."

She suggests developing a relationship with the person who prepares your taxes. Ask him or her which papers to save and which to discard. "Make this person a part of your team," she says.

Another team member can be your investment advisor, if you have one. If you have money invested, your advisor can work with you or your accountant, depending on who's preparing the return, to report capital gains and losses. You also might consider hiring an organizer or bookkeeper to help set up your filing system.

Your best friend during tax time is probably your accountant. No one knows better what you need for filing your best return, and no one (besides you) wants more for the process to run smoothly.

Tim Barry, senior tax manager for Needel, Welch & Stone in Rockland, recommends using last year's return as a launching pad. All the lines on the form that show deductions — whether real estate, auto excise, or itemized — are the basis for your checklist. That checklist should tell you exactly the way you need to save over the next 12 months.

"The biggest thing we find is that lots of clients don't have documentation," he said. "Too many people wait until March 15th and realize that they just haven't saved the paperwork."

Accountants usually provide clients with organizational guides to help with the tax-preparation process. But don't make the mistake of thinking that if you've hired an accountant, you're freed from organizing your tax materials. No accountant, Barry said, can prepare a return without the necessary information.

"It's always better to have too much information than not enough," he said.

But Robin Blank of Chaos Consulting in Boston says that it's a good idea to toss things out that won't be relevant at tax time — provided you know what that includes. Saving a year's worth of phone bills detailing your personal calls, for example, takes up space and creates clutter.

Instead of having lots of small files, she recommends filing papers according to where you're going to need them next. "It doesn't matter where the papers came from, but where they're going," she said. So if you get a receipt for a charitable contribution that you're going to deduct at tax time, put it in your tax folder, not in a donations folder.

She suggests designating at least one box or bin for your 2004 taxes. "As the year goes along, you can slip everything you're going to need in there," she said.

Many people will take that idea a step further, and create separate files for home and business expenses. Depending on how organized you like to be, you might devise categories for such specifics as capital improvements, pay stubs, and mortgage payments.

No matter how you set up your system, she said, it's not necessary to clutter your home with paperwork. Primary work space, such as a desk in your home office, should be designated for regular tasks, such as monthly bill-paying. Documents that you're accumulating throughout the year should be handy, too. While you should have the previous two years of tax returns at hands, the backup paperwork that goes with them shouldn't take up "primary real estate," she said.

"You don't have to put those files in a prominent place," she said. "They should be available, but not necessarily immediate."

Stashing everything in a carton in the attic or garage is fine, so long as you'll be able to retrieve it. And clear labeling, she said, is key to making any system work.

Blank says there are little ways to minimize paper accumulation over the course of a year. For people who charge lots of deductible items on credit cards, for example, she recommends getting a card that provides a year-end summary statement. That way, you don't have to sift through 12 bills come tax time.

Tax preparation often seems overwhelming, but the rewards of paying the government only what you're required to pay make it worthwhile.

"You can train yourself to do these things," Robertson said. "There's hope for everyone."

Start Early. Probably the last you want to do right now is start planning for next year's tax rn, but a little organization now will spare you time and frustration next spring.

Know Thyself. Some people are organized, some are not. If you fall squarely into the latter group, face the fact that you're organizationally challenged. Then figure out what you need and find a method of keeping track of it that will work for even you.

If you don't need it, don't keep it. Saving non-business-expense stuff — each and every restaurant receipt, for example, or the monthly bills from your personal cellphone — isn't going to yield anything but swollen files and more paper to wade through at tax time.

Box it in. A complicated filing system just may not be for you. But anyone can grab just one box or bin, write "TAXES 2004" in black marker, and toss everything tax-related in it.

Delegate. If someone does the tax-return paperwork for you, ask them early on for suggestions about starting and maintaining good records. No one wants you to succeed more than your accountant.

Practice makes perfect. After a year or two of getting it right, tax preparation becomes a breeze for even the most frazzled IRS victim. So slog through this year and look forward to those peaceful springtimes to come.

When you get right down to it, there are two types of people in this world — those who are organized, and those who are not. But both have to pay taxes. By today.

Organized taxpayers think about tax time all year long. They know what's needed to efficiently and thoroughly prepare a return, and they maintain the optimum filing system for keeping track of it all.

Disorganized taxpayers accidentally throw the 1099 form away with the supermarket flyer, or they let the kids turn the filing box that they meant to designate for major expenditures into a social studies diorama. They're the ones who start tearing their hair out in mid-March. Tonight, they'll crowd post offices at 11:55 p.m.

Obviously, it's too late to fix what went wrong this tax season. But specialists say that tax time doesn't have to be an annual nightmare for people who struggle to organize their paperwork. The key is familiarizing yourself with just what you need, and finding a way to keep track of it that suits your personal style.

Someone should have mentioned this to Traiy Evans of Brookline.

"I'm sitting on the floor with not one but two years' worth of taxes," said the 42-year-old owner of The Pride of Greater Boston, a direct mail firm. "Just piles and piles of stuff." Evans is "buried in paperwork" these days, she said, since she plans to sell her business and move out of state.

"I began the year with the best intentions," said Evans, who admits to owning seven personal organizers. "I tried the shoebox, the big envelope, Quickbooks."

She was about halfway through the year, she said, before her filing efforts got the best of her.

"There were too many things going on, and I started putting things into these great big piles and left them to sort out later. Then everything just got all mixed up."

Standolyn Robertson, president of Things in Place in Wayland, tells clients that it's OK to have an imperfect filing system, as long as you know what type of organizer you are. Some people stack their papers in big piles and sift through them later. Others do their filing up front. Either method can work.

"Know yourself," she said. "Then keep your system simple, and always follow through."

There is a wide array of tools available for helping people organize their finances. Whether you choose a software program that helps you keep track of your money electronically, or you prefer a three-ring binder or an accordion folder, you can create and maintain a system that will work for you.

"Your goal is not to be perfect," she said. "Your goal is to have

VI. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

PAID

VII. EXPLANATORY MATERIAL

The following clauses are provided for descriptive purposes only. For detailed information, consult the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, or other appropriate agency, or your attorney.

A. Flood Hazard Insurance Disclosure Clause (Question 11)
The lender may require Flood Hazard Insurance as a condition of the mortgage loan, if the lender determines that the premises is in a flood hazard zone.

B. Chlordane Disclosure Clause (Question 47)
Pesticide products containing chlordane were banned in Massachusetts on June 11, 1985, following a determination by the Department of Food and Agriculture that the use of chlordane may cause unreasonable adverse effects on the environment including a risk of cancer. Although existing data does not conclusively prove that significant health effects have occurred as a direct result of chlordane use, the long-term potential health risks are such that it is prudent public health policy, according to the Department, to eliminate the further introduction of chlordane into the environment.

C. Urea-Formaldehyde Foam Insulation Disclosure Clause (Question 49)
The buyer acknowledges that he has been advised that Urea Formaldehyde Foam Insulation (UFFI) has been declared by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) to be a banned hazardous substance and that new installation is prohibited. Where UFFI was previously installed, the seller is required to advise the buyer (1) where such UFFI is located and, if known, when it was installed; (2) a copy of test results concerning the air level of formaldehyde; and (3) a copy of information from the DPH concerning UFFI and formaldehyde levels. Under certain circumstances the cost of removal may be reimbursed. Exposure to hazardous levels of formaldehyde may cause personal injuries, including headaches, nausea or cancer. The buyer acknowledges that he has been advised to consult the DPH or his attorney for further information.

D. Asbestos Disclosure Clause (Question 51)
The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission has maintained that asbestos materials are hazardous if they release separate fibers which can be inhaled. Asbestos is a common insulation material on heating pipes, boilers, and furnaces. It may also be present in certain types of floor and ceiling materials, shingles, plaster products, cements and other building materials. The buyer may have the property professionally inspected for the presence of asbestos and if repair or removal of asbestos is desired, proper safety guidelines must be observed.

E. Lead Paint Disclosure Clause (Question 52)
Whenever a child under six years of age resides in any residential premises in which any paint, plaster or other accessible material contains dangerous levels of lead, the owner is required by law, to remove said paint, plaster or cover with appropriate materials so as to make it inaccessible to a child under six years of age. Consumption of lead is poisonous and may cause serious personal injury. Whenever such residential premises containing dangerous levels of lead undergoes a change of ownership, as a result, a child under six years of age will become a resident, the new owner is required by law to remove said paint, plaster or cover with appropriate materials so as to make it inaccessible to such child.

F. Hazardous Materials Disclosure Clause (Questions 18b; 57)
In certain circumstances Massachusetts law can hold an owner of real estate liable to pay for the cost of removing hazardous or toxic materials from real estate and for damages resulting from the release of such materials, according to the Massachusetts Oil and Hazardous Material Release and Response Act, General Laws, Chapter 21E. The buyer acknowledges that he may have the property professionally inspected for the presence of, or the substantial likelihood of release of oil or hazardous material and such proof of inspection may be required as a prerequisite for financing the property.

G. Radon Disclosure Clause (Question 53)
Radon is an odorless, colorless, tasteless gas produced naturally in the ground by the normal decay of uranium and radium. Radon can lead to the development of radioactive particles which can be inhaled. Studies indicate the result of extended exposure to high levels of radon may increase the risk of developing lung cancer

H. Agency Disclosure

VIII. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Seller(s) hereby acknowledge that the information set forth above is true and accurate to the best of my (our) knowledge. I (we) further agree to defend and indemnify the broker(s) (or any sub-agent of our brokar) for disclosure of any of the information contained herein. Seller(s) further acknowledge receipt of copy of Seller's Description of Property.

Style, grace define splendid Newton Center condo

By TODD LARSON
COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER CO.

The aftermath of the Great Depression transformed many of Boston's majestic 19th century mansions into multifamily homes and boarding houses.

Yet their soaring, sprawling floor plans and multifaceted facades greatly facilitated such downsizings with minimal loss of these homes' former glory.

A noteworthy example is the Queen Anne/Shingle Style hillside house at 1074 Centre St. in Newton Center.

Built in 1880, the home became a two-family in the 1940s, then a two-unit condominium in 1990.

But its high ceilings, grand fireplaces and other classic features remain as intact as they did in yesteryear, and Unit A is now up for sale at $465,000.

The condo's mansion dimensions and decorative details offer buyers room to grow, spaces to explore and ornaments to ogle.

A paneled door with stained glass opens to a vestibule and foyer.

To the left, a guest bedroom sports striped wallcovering and a bracketed bow-window niche.

Nearby, the living room features three Queen Anne windows that let in lots of light.

A broad doorway leads to a dining room with a central fireplace, paneled mantel and nice windows.

The kitchen, updated in 1990, features paneled cabinetry with brass hardware, along with green granite-finish laminate counters and an original china cabinet.

There's also beadboard wainscoting, a country-style chandelier and an aluminum sink.

The unit also has a master bedroom with pale yellow walls, a brick fireplace and paneled mantel.

This room, currently used as a child's bedroom, has a two-window bed alcove whimsically painted in flower-vine and fire-breathing dragon designs. The ceiling features playful fresco images of circus elephants.

The condo also has two

Nearby, a retro-Victorian family bathroom features tile flooring, a lip-rimmed pedestal sink and a textured stained-glass window.

There's also a second, "European-style" bathroom in which a stand-up shower takes up almost the whole space. This bathroom also offers a textured stained-glass window and corner pedestal sink.

Downstairs, a shared basement has separate washers, dryers, storage rooms, updated gas furnaces, hot water tanks and 100-amp electrical service for each unit.

Out back, each unit has its own barbeque-friendly deck overlooking a shared patio and back yard.

Both condos also come with three deeded parking spaces — one in a detached garage and two more in the driveway.

Nearby, a retro-Victorian family bathroom features tile flooring, a lip-rimmed pedestal sink and a textured stained-glass window.

There's also a second, "European-style" bathroom in which a stand-up shower takes up almost the whole space. This bathroom also offers a textured stained-glass window and corner pedestal sink.

Downstairs, a shared basement has separate washers, dryers, storage rooms, updated gas furnaces, hot water tanks and 100-amp electrical service for each unit.

Out back, each unit has its own barbeque-friendly deck overlooking a shared patio and back yard.

Both condos also come with three deeded parking spaces — one in a detached garage and two more in the driveway.

The aftermath of the Great Depression transformed many of Boston's majestic 19th century mansions into multifamily homes and boarding houses.

Yet their soaring, sprawling floor plans and multifaceted facades greatly facilitated such downsizings with minimal loss of these homes' former glory.

A noteworthy example is the Queen Anne/Shingle Style hillside house at 1074 Centre St. in Newton Center.

Built in 1880, the home became a two-family in the 1940s, then a two-unit condominium in 1990.

But its high ceilings, grand fireplaces and other classic features remain as intact as they did in yesteryear, and Unit A is now up for sale at $465,000.

The condo's mansion dimensions and decorative details offer buyers room to grow, spaces to explore and ornaments to ogle.

A winding uphill path from Centre and Rice streets approaches the ground-floor unit's evergreen-surrounded porch entrance.

A paneled door with stained glass opens to a vestibule and foyer.

To the left, a guest bedroom sports striped wallcovering and a bracketed bow-window niche.

Nearby, the living room features three Queen Anne windows that let in lots of light.

A broad doorway leads to a dining room with a central fireplace, paneled mantel and nice windows.

The kitchen, updated in 1990, features paneled cabinetry with brass hardware, along with green granite-finish laminate counters and an original china cabinet.

There's also beadboard wainscoting, a country-style chandelier and an aluminum sink.

The unit also has a master bedroom with pale yellow walls, a brick fireplace and paneled mantel.

This room, currently used as a child's bedroom, has a two-window bed alcove whimsically painted in flower-vine and fire-breathing dragon designs. The ceiling features playful fresco images of circus elephants.

The condo also has two smaller bedrooms. One features a circular bay of three windows, nice wallpaper and one closet. The other offers a closet and a window overlooking the back yard.

Nearby, a retro-Victorian family bathroom features tile flooring, a lip-rimmed pedestal sink and a textured stained-glass window.

European adventure on a weak U.S. dollar

NEW YORK - - If you're traveling to Europe, here are some strategies for coping with the weak dollar from the editor of TravelSmart newsletter, Nancy Dunnan.

■ Buy a package. Tours that include your airfare, hotel and roundtrip airport/hotel transfers are less expensive than if you book each segment individually because big companies can negotiate volume discounts.

■ Book tours that include meals.

■ Lock in rates. Ask if package prices are guaranteed in U.S. dollars or if surcharges can be added to compensate for currency fluctuations.

■ Go off-season. Prices for most European countries go up in April, drop in late fall and rise again at holiday time.

■ If your schedule is flexible, check out last-minute deals on European packages, car rentals and flights at www.VisitEurope.com. Prices on cruises, hotels and tours that aren't sold out always fall as the deadline nears.

■ Consider alternate destinations. Europe and the United Kingdom are among the most expensive destinations in the world right now for Americans. You get more for your money in Eastern Europe or Turkey; Asian destinations such as China, Malaysia, India, Thailand and Singapore; or Latin American destinations like Mexico, Panama, Ecuador, Peru, Honduras or Belize.

■ Negotiate. Wherever you're going, ask for a second room for the family at half-price; a lower rate if you stay five or more nights; a discount for seniors, grandparents, children and those celebrating a birthday or anniversary; a special price for being a frequent guest or bringing in a large group or family reunion.

■ If you're traveling from one European destination to another, get a rail pass good in two or three countries through Rail Europe (home to Eurail and BritRail; 888-382-7245 or www.RailEurope.com). If you're traveling with others, rent a car rather than buying plane or train tickets for each of you. If you must fly within Europe, use a discount carrier such as Ryan Air (www.ryanair.com) or EasyJet (www.easyjet.com). Also check rates from EuropeByAir (www.europebyair.com), which sells $99 one-way passes within Europe to 150 European cities. You must buy Eurail and BritRail passes and EuropeByAir tickets before leaving the United States.

■ Do as the locals do. Dine in nontourist type restaurants. Eat a hearty breakfast and have a snack for lunch. Pack picnic lunches. Drink local wines and beers. Select local cuisine. Take the bus, subway or light rail instead of taxis. Live in an apartment or hotel with kitchenettes. Buy half-price theater tickets. In London, use the Society of London Theatre Company's Web site: www.officiallondontheatre.co.uk.

Proud Würzburg sculpts a Baroque niche

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

WURZBURG, Germany — A confession: I had never heard of Tilman Riemenschneider. To be honest, I would have been hard-pressed to state with confidence that Tilman Riemenschneider was a person, and not, say, a runny cheese.

But once I arrived in this city, about an hour and 15 minutes from the Frankfurt airport by high-speed train, I realized quickly I could not admit my ignorance: everyone here is clearly proud of Riemenschneider. I went to the opening of an exhibit on Riemenschneider. (Aha! getting closer), and a journalist from a Frankfurt newspaper, upon hearing that a visitor from the United States was there, rushed up to ask eagerly what Americans thought of Riemenschneider. "Uh," was my educated response.

Riemenschneider, it turns out, was a medieval German sculptor. He had a workshop in Würzburg in the late 1400s and early 1500s, and many of his beautifully expressive carvings in stone and wood are scattered throughout the city's churches and museums. He also was mayor of Würzburg, and despite (or perhaps because of) his power, spent a few years in prison for backing the losing side in the Peasant War.

I learned all this at two major exhibitions that Würzburg has mounted this year to celebrate its 1300th birthday. I also learned how great a gap my previous ignorance represented for Riemenschneider's work as a craftsman (in that era, he would have eschewed the label artist), was unparalleled.

His sculptures hint at the Renaissance just then getting under way in Germany, although deeply pious, they also reflect a kind of delight in the human form. His faces of Adam and Eve, for example, convey gentle emotion; the fingers of Mary as she lightly supports her baby are graceful and fluid.

The Marienberg fortress, home until the early 1700s of all of Würzburg's ruling prince-bishops, houses one of the exhibits. Set upon a hill lined with vineyards and overlooking the city from across the Main river, the fortress provides a striking setting for Riemenschneider's work.

Inside, in the Mainfrankisches museum, the exhibition focuses on the period in Riemenschneider's life when he was at the height of his artistic and political powers. A number of the works on display were created by his then-flourishing workshop, but they all convey — with almost factorylike precision — the signature expressions and fluidity for which Riemenschneider was known.

Among the more than 200 works, my favorite was the towering figure of the Apostle Philip. With his rippling jowls and bulging cheeks, Riemenschneider's Philip looks for all the world like a smug, well-fed burgermeister.

Back in town, the exhibit at the Dom (or cathedral) museum has a very different feel. For several years now, the museum's curator has been delighting and infuriating Würzburg residents with his insistence on displaying ancient and medieval works side by side with contemporary pieces, and he gives Riemenschneider the same treatment.

Focusing specifically on the artist's faith, this exhibition is arranged thematically, so that a Riemenschneider crucifix stands across from a Beidermeyer cross carved from wood made to look like pleated paper, and an elegantly polished 16th century Pieta forms the backdrop for Katha Kollwitz's 1937 version, in which a bronze Mary cradles the body of her son into her Russian babuschka's body.

By the time I had finished with both exhibitions, I felt like a Riemenschneider expert. Which isn't to say that I was necessarily ready for more.

Fortunately, there are plenty of reasons to visit Würzburg that have nothing to do with the sculptor. Utterly destroyed by Allied bombs on March 16, 1945, the city was rebuilt from scratch, and today, Würzburg looks as Baroque as it ever did, with its delightful blend of Necco-colored houses and towering spires.

Tucked into a bend of the Main river, the city is home to what is perhaps the most impressive Baroque palace outside of Versailles. Built in the 1720 by then-unknown architect Baltasar Neumann, the Würzburg Residence stretches at least the length of a city block and contains a series of rooms as extravagantly decorated as anything the Sun King might have thought up.

Würzburg also is in one of the leading wine-producing regions in Germany, creating fruity white wines sold in Franconia's characteristically round-bottomed green bottles. One of the best wineries in town can be found beneath the 16th century rooms of the Juliusspital, a still-functioning hospital founded by another of the city's favorite sons, the Prince Bishop Julius Eckhert. The town also boasts an old university, a stereotypically Teutonic town hall built in 1376, and an impressively Gothic stone bridge. There are also plenty of lovely churches, from the picturesque Kappele set on a hillside across the river to the Cathedral of St. Kilian whose Romanesque spires dominate the city center.

And where there are churches in Würzburg, there are more Riemenschneiders.

For more information, go to www.wuerzburg.de.cq.

HARVARD HAA ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Dear Harvard Traveler:

IMMERSE YOURSELF IN THE SPIRIT of the enchanting Danube during an unforgettable six-night cruise from Nuremberg to Vienna to experience the region's captivating holiday markets and signature music. There is no better way to get into the spirit of the season than by visiting a region where many of our most cherished holiday traditions began.

A SEASONAL HIGHLIGHT in Mittel Europa, traditional Christkindlmärkte have flourished in Austria and southern Germany for nearly 700 years, providing opportunities for local artisans to display their wares in magical winter settings, against a backdrop of towns and villages carpeted in snow. We visit the world-famous Christmas markets of Munich, Nuremberg, Regensburg, and Salzburg. For those who appreciate the enduring quality of traditional craftwork, this is an unparalleled shopping experience.

FOR SIX DAYS, we cruise the Danube aboard one of Europe's finest river craft, the M/S Amadeus, enjoying a rich musical program of private holiday concerts along the way, including the Weissenkirchen children's choir and musicians in historic costume in Vienna. We enjoy the spectacular winter scenery of Germany and Austria, soul-warming regional cuisine, and the essence of the holidays at Christkindl.

WE ARE HONORED TO BE ACCOMPANIED on our journey by the esteemed Dr. James Yannatos, director of the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra. An accomplished lecturer, composer, and conductor, Dr. Yannatos brings us his unique insights into the region and its music. His knowledge and talent will add immeasurably to our experience. I hope you will join us on this unique holiday experience as we cruise the Danube this December!

Best regards,

Philip Lovejoy
Associate Director, Alumni Education

Faculty

Professor James Yannatos

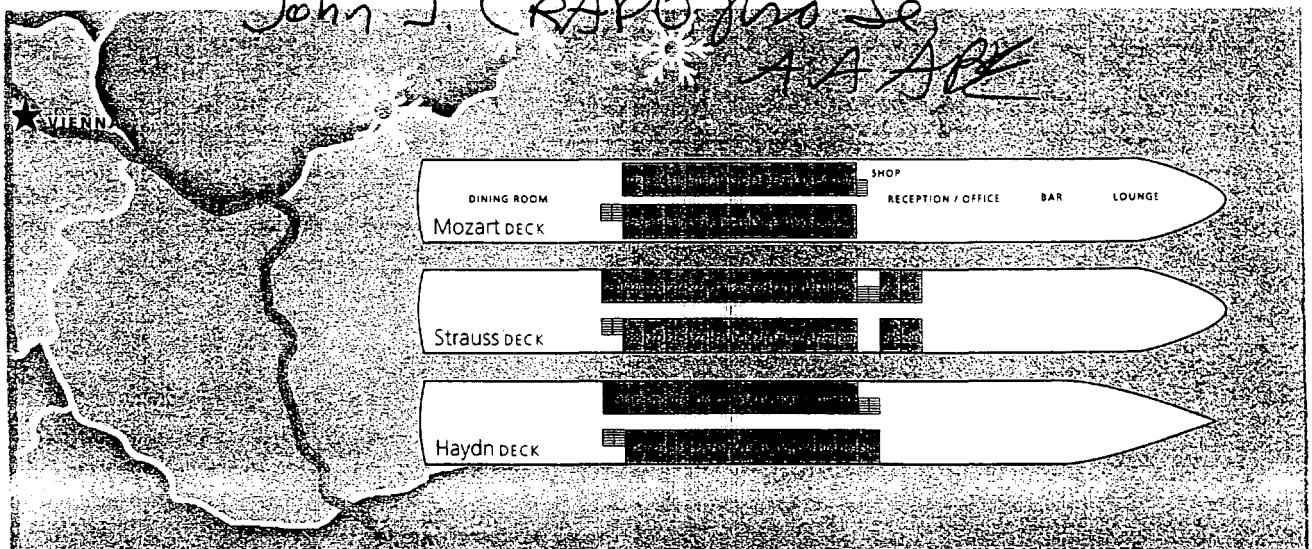
We are pleased to be accompanied on this trip by faculty member Dr. James Yannatos. Dr. Yannatos is a conductor, violinist, and composer. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Iowa before coming to Harvard in 1964. He directs the Harvard-Radcliffe Orchestra and teaches an undergraduate course in conducting. Several of his works were published in the past few years, and CDs of his music have been released by Albany Records. Dr. Yannatos will celebrate 40 years at Harvard University this year.

Special Feature

Travelers who play musical instruments are invited to bring their instruments along with them on this cruise. We will have the unprecedented opportunity to gather for daily, informal sessions on board to play chamber music in the company of Dr. Yannatos.

VIENNA TOURISM

#55 John J CRAPO, JR Se



Following lunch at one of Austria's oldest restaurants, St. Peter's Keller, there is time to explore the Christmas Market, one of the finest in the country, before returning to the ship in Linz.

M/S AMADEUS (B/L/D)
Wachau Valley / Vienna

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16
Upon arrival in Melk, visit the 900-year-old Benedictine Abbey, one of the most significant Baroque complexes in all of Europe. A guided tour of the interior includes the abbey's splendid library and huge cloister. Continue across the river to the village of Weissenkirchen for a private tasting of some of the best wines grown in Mittel Europa, while the local children's choir joyously sings songs of the season. After reboarding the Amadeus, our cruise takes us past some of the most beautiful scenery along the Danube shore, to the lovely Wachau Valley. En route to Vienna, after dinner aboard, travel to the city center for a concert of Mozart and Strauss music performed by artists in period costume.

Optional Post-Tour Extension: Vienna

DECEMBER 17 TO 21, 2002

Spend two additional nights in the Imperial City of Vienna and enjoy a panoramic tour of the city and visits to the Town Hall and the Christmas Market. At every turn Vienna offers impressive reminders of the vigorous Hapsburg dynasty. We travel by coach around the Ringstrasse, the wide boulevard encircling the central city, ending at St. Stephen's Cathedral, considered the heart and soul of Vienna since the twelfth century. We continue our walking tour through the Inner City to the Graben, adorning the Pestsäule, a plague column erected in 1693. Hour is at your own leisure to enjoy the Christmas Market. The following day we visit Schönbrunn Palace, the Hapsburg Baroque residence of the Empress Maria Theresa. [illegible]

The Amadeus

FROM ITS OPEN TOP DECK, perfect for skyline or star gazing, to its spacious staterooms, the Austrian-registered M/S Amadeus is a delightful way to travel the Danube. Designed for the smoothest, quietest, and safest cruise, this 73-cabin vessel offers all the comforts of a four-star hotel along with state-of-the-art technology. The staterooms are among the largest of any European river vessel, with private baths, individually controlled thermostats and audio systems, full-length closets, and beds that may either be separated as twins or combined for doubles. An internationally trained chef creates continental meals, and every day the pastry chef prepares fresh bread and pastries. The dining room offers one seating for meals, and tea is served daily. Charles E. Clapp II, at 80, was a federal tax court judge

By David Schoetz
GLOBE CORRESPONDENT

When people asked Charles Clapp how a college physics major ended up a federally appointed tax judge, he had a straightforward answer: His physics skills trained him to methodically work through problems to arrive at the most logical conclusions. The Honorable Charles E. Clapp II, who was appointed by President Reagan in 1983 to the US Tax Court, where he served for 15 years, died Wednesday in his Duxbury home of complications from heart disease. He was 80.

"To be appointed tax court judge is the pinnacle of the tax court profession," said his son, Charles of Hingham.

"He clearly made his mind up to make his mark."

Born in Newton, Judge Clapp graduated from Dedham High School in 1940.

He spent a postgraduate year at Deerfield Academy before attending Williams College in Williamstown. After graduating, he served as a Navy lieutenant in the Pacific theater from 1944 to 1946 on the amphibious transport ship USS Okanogan.

Judge Clapp entered Harvard Law School after the war, earning his degree in 1949.

On a double date during law school, he fell for Elinor Jones, who was actually his friend's companion for the evening. He married her two years later in 1951 and was recalled to active military duty during the Korean War, where he served as a navigator in the Atlantic Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea.

CHARLES CLAPP

According to his wife, Judge Clapp soon decided that he did not want to spend his entire career as a naval officer. He earned a clerkship with Judge J. Edgar Murdock on the US Tax Court in Washington, a position he held for three years that exposed him to the post he would ascend to almost 30 years later. "If anything, it was a career that ended up coming full circle," said his son.

A desire to return to New England took the Clapp family to Rhode Island, where Judge Clapp took a job in 1955 at the Edwards & Angell law firm in Providence. After five years as a tax lawyer, he was named a partner in the firm, where he built a reputation for personal relationships with his clients. "Much more so than just being their lawyer, he was their friend and counsel," his son said.

Family members said Judge Clapp's loyalty to the Republican Party was one reason Reagan appointed him in 1983 to the US Tax Court.

The more critical reason, they said, was Judge Clapp's mastery of tax law and his high-minded sense of ethics. The work as a federal judge brought him to courthouses throughout the country and gave him and his wife opportunities to reconnect with old friends and visit their seven children.

"He loved that US map on his wall, marking the places where he sat from Honolulu to Anchorage," his son said.

Judge Clapp served as an active judge until 1993 and continued working as a senior judge for five more years.

He retired to his family's summer home in Duxbury in 1998.

According to his wife, his devotion to law was surpassed only by his love of family and a willingness to serve others.

"He made a definite decision that he would not let his job be the primary thing that took all his time," his wife said. "He wanted to spread that time around as much as he could."

A regular at the sporting events that his four daughters and three sons participated in, Judge Clapp regularly helped make their school lunches when they were children. He was active in the Boy Scouts of America, serving as the president of the Narragansett Scout Council and earning the council's highest honor, the Silver Beaver, for volunteerism.

He was elected three times to the Barrington Town Council in the 1970s, sat on the board of directors for the United Way of Rhode Island, and served as a trustee at the St. Andrew's School in Barrington.

Judge Clapp also loved the sea. He raced Beetle Catboats, 12-foot crafts his son described as "slow, pudgy, and wonderful to sail."

He also owned a larger Catboat named after his youngest daughter Nancy Elizabeth that he loved because it was big enough for the whole family to enjoy off the Duxbury shoreline.

"Half the family are out on that boat now," his wife said. "Out there on their father's boat on a beautiful sunny day."

In addition to his wife and son, Judge Clapp leaves two other sons, David of Lake Forest, Ill., and Peter of Rockport, Maine; four daughters, Judith of Prescott, Ariz., Martha Clapp Hall of Vernon, N.J., Loraine Clapp Codega of Barrington, R.I., and Nancy Elizabeth Clapp Kerber of Hingham; a brother, John Clapp of Savannah, Ga.; two sisters, Delina Clapp Macfarland of Orchard Park, N.Y.; and Patience Foster Moll of Old Lyme, Conn.; and 14 grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Friday at noon in St. John the Evangelist Episcopal Church in Duxbury.

Walter George Muelder, whose crusade for ecumenism and social justice inspired Martin Luther King Jr. among many others, died Saturday at Brigham and Women's Hospital following a heart attack.

The Rev. Dr. Muelder, a former dean and professor of social ethics at Boston University School of Theology, was 97.

"Martin Luther King Jr. affectionately noted Rev. Muelder as a significant influence in his path to nonviolence and civil rights," the theology school's current dean, Ray L. Hart, said in a statement. Rev.Muelder's seminar, "Race Relations," "inspired civil rights leaders Rev. Douglas Moore, who organized the first sit-in in North Carolina, and John Cartwright, [former head of BU's Martin Luther King, Jr. Center]," he wrote.

Although Rev. Muelder retired in 1972, he continued to teach until about a decade ago. For the past eight years he lived at Springhouse, a retirement community in Jamaica Plain, where he served on the board of directors. He remained active right up until his heart attack, his daughter, Linda Schell of Holbrook, said.

A Methodist minister and the son of one, Rev. Muelder made a lasting impact in the theological field, colleagues said, particularly in promoting religious ecumenism and the inclusion of African-Americans and women in the theological community.

In his younger years, Rev. Muelder was a social activist. Among his causes: the defense of residents of Japanese ancestry during World War II, and of victims of McCarthyism in the 1950s.

"Dad spoke out in support of Margaret Sanger, the birth control advocate, and, while studying in Germany in the 1930s took part with a small group of Americans in a large protest parade against the Nazi Party," Schell said.

"Dad was not reluctant to jump into controversial areas," she said, "but at the same time, he was often the calming voice in a group of passionate people, trying to keep things constructive."

Retired professor John Cartwright of St. Helena Island, S.C., both a student and later a colleague, said Rev. Muelder's "passion for social justice was renowned. Walter was before his time and a kind of pioneer in the whole business of inclusion of African-Americans and women in the theological community. Because of him, the School of Theology at BU was one of the first so-called white seminaries' that welcomed black students."

Rev. Muelder was also instrumental in doubling the size of the theology school's faculty and in moving the school from its isolated location on Beacon Hill to its present site on Commonwealth Avenue.

The dean worked for religious ecumenism through the World Council of Churches, of which he was a longtime member. "Walter believed there was something to be learned from all the great religions and that was reflected in the kinds of people he invited to the faculty of the school," Cartwright said.

Rev. Muelder also made a lasting impact on his subject area.

"Walter also defined the field of social ethics," Cartwright said. "I don't know whether that was being taught anywhere else at the time, but it was most characteristic of Walter. Being a student of philosophy and not simply a theologian, he felt ethics was broader than any other church doctrine."

Albert Einstein publicly praised Rev. Muelder's "Idea of a Responsible Society," which he delivered as a lecture in 1954, according to a BU spokesman.

Rev. Muelder was dean of the theology school from 1945-72. Though that kept him preoccupied with administrative duties, it didn't prevent him from pursuing his joy of teaching. Rev. Muelder and his wife, Martha (Grotewohl) to whom he was married for 63 years, held Friday night social gatherings for his students, and he kept in touch with many of them — some for 30 or 40 years, Cartwright said.

Right after retirement, he taught for a year at Berea College in rural Kentucky, a school specifically set up for the education of the poor in Appalachia, where he first started his teaching career in 1934.

Rev. Muelder was born in Boody, Ill., one of seven children of the Rev. Epke Hermann and Minnie (Horlitz) Muelder, a dedicated Methodist couple who had immigrated from Germany. For his first few years, German was his main language.

Rev. Muelder attended Knox College in Galesburg, Ill., where he earned his bachelor of science degree, magna cum laude, in 1927.

He followed in his father's footsteps and enrolled in the BU School of Theology. The elder Muelder had graduated there in 1909 and had helped pay his tuition by preaching at the Methodist Church in North Stoughton. So did his son.

Rev. Muelder graduated from the School of Theology in 1930, magna cum laude, and he earned his doctorate from BU in 1933. An ordained elder of the United Methodist Church, Rev. Muelder served parishes in Illinois, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Wisconsin.

His sermons were not of the fire-and-brimstone nature, said retired BU dean George Makechnie, of Peterborough, N.H.

"Walter's messages were tied to the lives people were living. When Walter spoke, everyone listened because they knew he had something important to say," Makechnie said.

But he could still be intimidating.

"Walter was a frightening presence because he knew so much, because he was so thoroughly grounded in the history of theology and the history of the church," said retired BU professor Paul Deats, Jr. of Newton, who was one of his graduate students and a friend for 50 years.

Last week, Deats accompanied Rev. Muelder to Danvers where he spoke to a group of retired ministers about the role of their church in today's world. Rev. Muelder was presented with the Golden Cane Award for being the oldest Methodist clergyman in New England. The night before his death he listened to the ballgame between his beloved Red Sox and the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Red Sox won.

Besides his daughter, Rev. Muelder is survived by two other daughters, Sonja Devitt of Stratford, Conn. and Helga Wells of Swarthmore, Pa.; a brother, Milton E. of Lansing, Mich.; two sisters, Florence Smith of Columbus, Ohio, and Ruth Stank of Kenosha, Wis., and his companion, Elinor Downs of Boston; and five grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at BU's Marsh Chapel, 765 Commonwealth Avenue. Burial will be private.

A Methodist minister and the son of one, Rev. Muelder made a lasting impact in the theological field, colleagues said, particularly in promoting religious ecumenism and the inclusion of African-Americans and women in the theological community.

In his younger years, Rev. Muelder was a social activist. Among his causes: the defense of residents of Japanese ancestry during World War II, and of victims of McCarthyism in the 1950s.

"Dad spoke out in support of Margaret Sanger, the birth control advocate, and, while studying in Germany in the 1930s took part with a small group of Americans in a large protest parade against the Nazi Party," Schell said.

"Dad was not reluctant to jump into controversial areas," she said, "but at the same time, he was often the calming voice in a group of passionate people trying to keep things constructive."

The Rev. Walter Muelder promoted religious ecumenism.

wright of St. Helena Island, S.C., both a student and later a colleague, said Rev. Muelder's "passion for social justice was renowned. Walter was before his time and a kind of pioneer in the whole business of inclusion of African-Americans and women in the theological community. Because of him, the School of Theology at BU was one of the first so-called white seminaries' that welcomed black students."

Rev. Muelder was also instrumental in doubling the size of the theology school's faculty and in moving the school from its isolated location on Beacon Hill to its present site on Commonwealth Avenue.

The dean worked for religious ecumenism through the World Council of Churches, of which he was a longtime member. "Walter believed there was something to be learned from all the great religions and that was reflected in the kinds of people he invited to the faculty of the school," Cartwright said.

Rev. Muelder also made a lasting impact on his subject area.

"Walter also defined the field of social ethics," Cartwright said. "I don't know whether that was being taught anywhere else at the time, but it was most characteristic of Walter. Being a student of philosophy and not simply a theologian, he felt ethics was broader

Albert Einstein publicly praised Rev. Muelder's "Idea of a Responsible Society," which he delivered as a lecture in 1954, according to a BU spokesman.

Rev. Muelder was dean of the theology school from 1945-72. Though that kept him preoccupied with administrative duties, it didn't prevent him from pursuing his joy of teaching. Rev. Muelder and his wife, Martha (Grotewohl) to whom he was married for 63 years, held Friday night social gatherings for his students, and he kept in touch with many of them — some for 30 or 40 years, Cartwright said.

Right after retirement, he taught for a year at Berea College in rural Kentucky, a school specifically set up for the education of the poor in Appalachia, where he first started his teaching career in 1934.

Rev. Muelder was born in Boody, Ill., one of seven children of the Rev. Epke Hermann and Minnie (Horlitz) Muelder, a dedicated Methodist couple who had immigrated from Germany. For his first few years, German was his main language.

Rev. Muelder attended Knox College in Galesburg, Ill., where he earned his bachelor of science degree, magna cum laude, in 1927.

He followed in his father's footsteps and enrolled in the BU School of Theology. The elder 1909 and had helped pay his tuition by preaching at the Methodist Church in North Stoughton. So did his son.

Rev. Muelder graduated from the School of Theology in 1930, magna cum laude, and he earned his doctorate from BU in 1933. An ordained elder of the United Methodist Church, Rev. Muelder served parishes in Illinois, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Wisconsin.

His sermons were not of the fire-and-brimstone nature, said retired BU dean George Makechnie, of Peterborough, N.H.

"Walter's messages were tied to the lives people were living. When Walter spoke, everyone listened because they knew he had something important to say," Makechnie said.

But he could still be intimidating.

"Walter was a frightening presence because he knew so much, because he was so thoroughly grounded in the history of theology and the history of the church," said retired BU professor Paul Deats, Jr. of Newton, who was one of his graduate students and a friend for 50 years.

Last week, Deats accompanied Rev. Muelder to Danvers where he spoke to a group of retired ministers about the role of their church in today's world. Rev. Muelder was presented with the Golden Cane Award for being the oldest Methodist clergyman in New England. The night before his death he listened to the ballgame between his beloved Red Sox and the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Red Sox won.

Besides his daughter, Rev. Muelder is survived by two other daughters, Sonja Devitt of Stratford, Conn. and Helga Wells of Swarthmore, Pa.; a brother, Milton E. of Lansing, Mich.; two sisters, Florence Smith of Columbus, Ohio, and Ruth Stank of Kenosha, Wis., and his companion, Elinor Downs of Boston; and five grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at BU's Marsh Chapel, 765 Commonwealth Avenue. Burial will be pri-

Eric S. Marmorek, at 97; bore witness to the Holocaust

June 21, 2004 JOHN J. CRAPO #78

By Emma Stickgold
GLOBE CORRESPONDENT

At 31, Eric S. Marmorek found himself amid thousands of fellow concentration camp prisoners in Germany, surrounded by atrocities that ravaged the European Jewish population starting in the late 1930s.

On Saturday, more than six decades after negotiating to purchase his freedom, the longtime Newton resident who helped found Sharon Memorial Park died at the North Hill retirement community in Needham. He was 97.

Betrayed by an employee at his family's tile business who alerted Nazi officials to his Jewish identity, Mr. Marmorek was taken away in 1938 to Dachau and Buchenwald, two German concentration camps.

Since it was relatively early in Adolf Hitler's reign, prisoners with connections to America could pay what was referred to as a "Jew tax" to regain their freedom. For more than a year, his brother, who was studying architecture in London, worked with relatives in the United States to fight for his release.

When the paperwork and money came through, Mr. Marmorek fled to London, where he stayed briefly before arriving in America in 1939.

He readily recalled the demeaning physical labor demanded of prisoners and the torture and death of countless Holocaust victims. The haunting memories, of his bunkmates tied up and hung by their arms, and of eating stale bread stored in stacks alongside the camp's toilets, became stories he relayed to fellow soldiers in the US Army, after he joined stateside efforts in 1944.

A military chaplain suggested that his concentration camp recollections would help soldiers better understand what their comrades were fighting against overseas.

When the war ended in 1945, Mr. Marmorek made a foray into the insurance business, working for Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. for seven years.

He credited his days selling tiles in Vienna as the foundation for a business strategy that became the subject of several training books he wrote. "The sale doesn't begin until the third 'no,'" he said of his philosophy.

That persistence helped him as chief architect of Sharon Memorial Park, a Jewish burial ground in Sharon and Canton. Traveling the world to study similar parks during the design phase, he crafted a model that used strictly flat gravestones, later explaining that it symbolized equality of the deceased.

In 1948, a 317-acre parcel of land was put on the market, and a group of local businesses and community leaders worked to build a modern cemetery that follows strict Jewish burial traditions.

After serving for about two decades as the park's first executive vice president, Mr. Marmorek retired in 1968 and turned to consulting, helping to design and build memorial parks throughout the country.

"He was a very bright man, a thinker, and very creative," his daughter-in-law, Kathleen Marmorek of Newton, said yesterday. "He always was a tall, stately, European gentleman."

Mr. Marmorek received a master's degree in business administration from the University of Wirtschaft and a doctor of science of jurisprudence from the University of Vienna.

"I cannot take it for granted that I am here today," he told a local newspaper in 1994. "Of the 9 million Jews on the European continent, 6 million died. Two out of three. One of the three survived; I was that one. I am very grateful that members of the next generation can hear this testimony from an eyewitness."

Mr. Marmorek leaves his wife, Ruth (Derow) of Needham; his brother, Walter, of London; his son, Frank F., of Newton; his stepdaughter, Ellen Gordon of Natick, and stepson, Peter Derow of Bedford, N.Y.; a granddaughter, six step-grandchildren, and eight step-great-grandchildren. He was predeceased by his first wife, Greta (Steiner).

Services were held yesterday and burial was in Sharon Memorial Park.

Alabama Bishop Forbids Membership in Network

#89 CF

Bishop Henry N. Parsley, Jr., of Alabama, has issued a "pastoral direction" to the Diocese of Alabama forbidding membership in the Network of Anglican Communion Dioceses and Parishes.

While other diocesan bishops have urged clergy not to affiliate with the network, Bishop Parsley's directive is believed to be the first instance of a diocesan bishop formally prohibiting membership in the network under a threat of ecclesiastical sanction.

In his letter to the clergy of Alabama, Bishop Parsley wrote, "the Network of Anglican Communion Dioceses and Parishes is a divisive organization outside the canonical structures of the Episcopal Church, the charter of which is undermining of the good order and mission of this church.

"As provided in the Canons," wrote Bishop Parsley, "I give Pastoral Direction to the rectors of the parishes of the Diocese of Alabama that they are neither to join the Network of Anglican Communion Dioceses and Parishes in their capacity as rector, nor as rector to sign a parish application to affiliate with the Network, and, if they have done so, to remove their signatures thereto."

The Rt. Rev. Robert W. Duncan, Bishop of Pittsburgh and moderator of the network, released a statement disputing Bishop Parsley's characterization of the network as being "outside" the Church, noting that it was conceived by Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams and is recognized by 14 Anglican primates, serving as the only American connection to Anglicanism in the eyes of some primates.

Bishop Duncan urged Bishop Parsley "to reconsider his Pastoral Directive." He added, "Attempts to use episcopal power as a means of limiting the freedoms of faithful Episcopalians have proven utterly bankrupt over the last 30 years, leaving disunity and broken fellowships wherever they have been put in place."

Interest in the network was not widespread, Bishop Parsley told THE LIVING CHURCH. "I know of only two parishes involved with it." His decision to release a diocesan-wide letter, however, was "important to me as the bishop to give pastoral guidance to the whole diocese over this issue."

Colorado Priest Admonished Following Ceremony

The Rev. Bonnie Sarah Spencer, assistant rector of Church of the Good Shepherd, Centennial, Colo., began a six-week leave of absence June 2 after being admonished by the Bishop of Colorado for taking part in a commitment ceremony with her lesbian partner.

In issuing the godly admonition, the Rt. Rev. Robert J. O'Neill said Ms. Spencer's choice to have the ceremony was "of grave concern," but she had not violated the canons, the diocese's ethical guidelines for clergy, or diocesan sexual misconduct policy. Ms. Spencer apologized in a letter to clergy of the diocese, stating, "I do value mutual accountability and recognize a need for it in our community."

Writing to diocesan clergy, Bishop O'Neill explained that on April 24, Ms. Spencer and her partner went to Good Shepherd to commit their lives to each other before four others, using promises they had written. They exchanged rings and said Psalm 150. No one officiated, nor were there vestments, clerical collars, blessings or rites or wording from the prayer book. The church's interim rector had approved the use of the church.

Bishop O'Neill said Ms. Spencer and her partner asked his permission for a formal blessing of their relationship and he declined, as he has similar requests.

"In light of the tension that exists in the Church today regarding issues of human sexuality, it is both unfortunate and problematic that any clergyperson would unilaterally make such a decision with such potentially divisive consequences for the wider body," Bishop O'Neill wrote. "This is a time in which it is incumbent upon all of us, as clergy, to exercise restraint and the kind of mutual accountability that is essential to our common life and ministry."

To address sexuality issues, Bishop O'Neill formed a task force, which is expected to issue preliminary recommendations by the end June.

INFORMAL PROCEDURES REGARDING SHAREHOLDER PROPOSALS

The Division of Corporation Finance believes that its responsibility with respect to matters arising under Rule 14a-8 [17 CFR 240.14a-8], as with other matters under the proxy rules, is to aid those who must comply with the rule by offering informal advice and suggestions and to determine, initially, whether or not it may be appropriate in a particular matter to recommend enforcement action to the Commission. In connection with a shareholder proposal under Rule 14a-8, the Division's staff considers the information furnished to it by the Company in support of its intention to exclude the proposals from the Company's proxy materials, as well as any information furnished by the proponent or the proponent's representative.

Although Rule 14a-8(k) does not require any communications from shareholders to the Commission's staff, the staff will always consider information concerning alleged violations of the statutes administered by the Commission, including argument as to whether or not activities proposed to be taken would be violative of the statute or rule involved. The receipt by the staff of such information, however, should not be construed as changing the staff's informal procedures and proxy review into a formal or adversary procedure.

It is important to note that the staff's and Commission's no-action responses to Rule 14a-8(j) submissions reflect only informal views. The determinations reached in these no-action letters do not and cannot adjudicate the merits of a company's position with respect to the proposal. Only a court such as a U.S. District Court can decide whether a company is obligated to include shareholder proposals in its proxy materials. Accordingly a discretionary determination not to recommend or take Commission enforcement action, does not preclude a proponent, or any shareholder of a company, from pursuing any rights he or she may have against the company in court, should the management omit the proposal from the company's proxy material.

Re: IDACORP, Inc.
Incoming letter dated September 29, 2004

The proposal relates to travel expenses.

There appears to be some basis for your view that IDACORP may exclude the proposal under rule 14a-8(h)(3). We note your representation that IDACORP included the proponent's proposal in its proxy statement for its 2004 annual meeting, but that neither the proponent nor a representative appeared to present the proposal at this meeting. Moreover, the proponent has not stated a "good cause" for the failure to appear. Under the circumstances, we will not recommend enforcement action to the Commission if IDACORP omits the proposal from its proxy materials in reliance on rule 14a-8(h)(3). This response will also apply to any future submissions to IDACORP by the same proponent with respect to any shareholder meetings held during calendar year 2005 and calendar year 2006. In reaching this position, we have not found it necessary to address the alternative basis for omission upon which IDACORP relies.

Sincerely,

Heather L. Maples
