ELEMENTIS plc TRADING UPDATE

Elementis today issues a trading update ahead of the preliminary results for the year ending 31 December 2004.

Sales for 2004 in sterling terms are expected to be about 5 per cent ahead of those reported for 2003. Specialties, Pigments and Specialty Rubber have shown good volume growth, while Chromium volume has been flat, with a sharp increase in export sales, particularly to China, offsetting the loss of the North American residential CCA market.

Prices have risen in all business sectors, generally offsetting higher raw material, freight and energy costs in the Specialties, Pigments and Specialty Rubber businesses. In Chromium, prices continued to increase in the second half of the year, but the benefits were not sufficient to offset intense variable cost inflation, including energy, and the unfavourable effect of currency on exports from the Eaglescliffe, UK, operation.

Consequently, Elementis expects that operating profit for 2004 will fall somewhat below current market expectations.

The trading outlook for Chromium chemicals is encouraging. After more than four years of decline, Elementis prices are currently 12 per cent above where they were 12 months ago on average, and over 20 per cent higher for some products; recent increases have been particularly steep in the major Far East markets. Elementis estimates that global capacity utilisation now exceeds 90 per cent and that, given current world-wide demand trends, it will continue to rise. Elementis announced a 10-15 per cent price increase as of 1 December 2004, and expects that further price increases will follow in 2005.

The Specialties, Pigments and Specialty Rubber businesses are currently experiencing good demand, and Elementis expects volume growth to continue in 2005. During the coming year additional benefits are expected from completion of the Taicang, China, Pigments plant, currently undergoing commissioning, and cost savings from the integration of the Sasol Servo acquisition.
