Depreciation is calculated by the straight-line method, based on the estimated useful lives of the assets, except for machinery and equipment in production line of the Company, which is calculated by production based method, and machinery and computer equipment of West Coast Engineering Company Limited, which is calculated by the double declining method, as follows:

Land improvement	5	Years
Leasehold right for land	10	Years
Leasehold improvement	5	Years
Buildings	20	Years
Machinery and equipment in production line	Production units
Hot Rolled Coil Strip Mill	Estimated at a total of 48 MT
Hot Finishing Line Mill	Estimated at a total of 14 MT
The Second Skin Pass Mill	Estimated at a total of 14 MT
Other machinery and equipment	5-10	Years

26.5 Fair value of financial instruments

The following methods and assumptions are used by the Company and subsidiaries in estimating fair value of financial instruments.

Cash in hand and at banks, current investments, accounts and notes receivable and short-term loans and advances to related parties: For those with maturities not exceeding 90 days from December 31, 2004 and 2003, the carrying amounts approximate their fair values; for those with maturities exceeding 90 days, including deposit at bank used as collateral, the fair values are estimated using the discounted cash flows analysis based on the current savings deposit rate.

Bank overdrafts and loans from financial institutions: The carrying amount of these financial liabilities which bear floating rates of interest approximates their fair values.

Accounts and notes payable: For those with maturities not exceeding 90 days from December 31, 2004 and 2003, the carrying amounts approximate their fair values. For those with maturities exceeding 90 days including long-term loans and convertible debentures, the fair values are estimated using the discounted cash flows analysis based on the current interest rates for similar types of borrowing arrangements.

As at December 31, 2004, the carrying values of financial assets and liabilities which are different from the fair values, are as follows:
