SembCorp Environmental Management's Venture into E-waste

In reference to the Straits Times article entitled "SembEnviro snares 75% of Citiraya's customers - Mass defections could be the last straw for troubled e-waste recycler" dated May 18, 2005.

SembCorp Environmental Management (SembEnviro) is constantly on the look out to capitalise on technologies and various commercial opportunities to grow its businesses. Over the years, SembEnviro has been strengthening its capabilities to target the full spectrum of the waste cycle, including that of electronic waste (e-waste); and it presently extends a wide range of services to many companies in Singapore. In some cases, SembEnviro have taken heed of requests by its customers to extend their services into e-waste management.

Furthermore, it was recently disclosed during SembCorp Industries' first quarter 2005 results that SembEnviro's new e-waste destruction facility will be in operation by second quarter 2005. The new plant capable of crushing and destruction only, will be able to handle up to 200 tonnes per month of e-waste materials.

The operating earnings of this plant as well as the earnings from the new e-waste customers recently secured by SembEnviro are not expected to be material for SembCorp Industries' Earnings Per Share in 2005.
