RBC acquires controlling stakes in Helios Computer and ASKO-TBS Consulting

Moscow, October 26, 2005 – RBC Information Systems (RTS, MICEX: RBCI), the leading Russian media and IT group, announced today the successful acquisition of controlling stakes in two information technology (IT) firms – Helios Computer and ASKO-TBS Consulting. RBC also has an option to increase its ownership in both companies to 100% within the next three years.

Helios Computer has two main business areas: production and system integration of IT equipment. ASKO-TBS Consulting specializes in providing services in the field of IT consulting. As a result of these acquisitions, RBC's total staff will increase by about 200 employees. The combined acquired client base of the two firms exceeds 150 state organizations and commercial enterprises.

Commenting on the announcement, German Kaplun, Chairman and CEO of RBC, said, "The purchases we've made represent a strategic step toward the enhancement of RBC's ability to capitalize on the high growth of the Russian IT market. I strongly believe that the acquisition of these attractive IT operations will substantially strengthen our position in the IT industry and lay down a solid platform for the further development of our IT business."

The average acquisition multiple will reach 6 on a P/E basis if RBC decides to increase its ownership in these companies to 100%. Payments for the controlling stakes were made in cash. RBC management expects the consolidation of the purchased assets to take place in 2006 and to add at least $50m to RBC's total revenue.

The company intends to increase the economic efficiency of the acquired firms by actively using cross-selling opportunities and cost synergies with its current IT operations, whereas the media part of RBC's business will offer an excellent promotional platform. Additionally, a broader scope of IT products and services and significantly increased revenue will enable RBC to successfully bid for larger IT contracts with state and commercial organizations.
