Cobham Wins €90m Contracts for the A400M Military Transport Aircraft

Cobham plc (Cobham) announces that it has won two contracts, together worth over €90m, to provide air refuelling systems and Satcom antennas for the new tanker versions of the A400M Military Transport Aircraft (A400M).

Flight Refuelling Limited, part of the Cobham Air Refuelling & Auxiliary Mission Equipment Division, has been selected by Airbus to supply its fourth generation refuelling systems for the A400M. The order, worth in excess of €85m, will provide the tanker versions of the A400M for Germany, Spain and France.

Air refuelling operations will be a key tactical role of the A400M following its introduction into service, with the first tanker versions scheduled to commence service in 2011. The solution provided by Cobham will enable refuelling of both fast jet and rotorcraft platforms

The second order to supply Satcom antennas for the A400M has been secured by two Cobham Antennas Division companies, Chelton (Electrostatics) Limited in England and Omnipless in South Africa. The initial order is worth €5m, with Chelton (Electrostatics) providing management control and Omnipless providing the design technology and manufacturing support.

Allan Cook, Cobham Chief Executive, said,
"Selection by Airbus to supply fourth generation wing pod dispensing equipment and hose drum units for centreline refuelling operations further consolidates Cobham's position as the market leader for strategic and tactical air refuelling solutions. The selection of our advanced phased array Satcom antennas reinforces our technical design and manufacturing capabilities."

Trading Statement

Cobham plc is updating the market on trading prior to its 31st December year-end and ahead of its preliminary results announcement on 9th March 2006. For 2005, segmental results will be reported for the former Aerospace Systems (ASG), Flight Operations and Services and Chelton Groups.

The overall trading performance of the Group in the second half of the year is consistent with the outlook provided at the time of the interim results announcement.

In ASG, the sale of the Fluid and Air companies was completed on 1st November and the sale of Countermeasures is progressing as expected. Trading in the continuing divisions of Life Support and Air Refuelling and Auxiliary Mission Equipment ("AR & AME") has been good, with recent orders including one covering an urgent operational requirement for life support equipment for ground vehicles in Iraq and a €58m order for Eurofighter Typhoon Chaff and Flare systems. AR & AME has also been selected by Airbus to supply its fourth generation air-to-air refuelling system for tanker versions of the A400M Military Transport Aircraft (A400M). The initial order for these systems will be worth in excess of €85m.

Trading in Flight Operations and Services has been broadly satisfactory. NAS has been selected as preferred bidder for the A$1 billion Coastwatch programme in Australia which, when finalised, should result in a further contract extension to this important programme until 2020.

Trading in Chelton has been strong. Recent acquisitions have been successfully integrated into the Defence Electronic Systems division and orders for intercom systems for the U.S. military light utility vehicles are now being shipped in volume. Other significant orders include three major suites of antennas for the A400M and there have been increased sales of stabilised antennas for oil-rigs in the Gulf of Mexico. The Antennas division has completed the purchase of the remaining shareholding of its former joint venture, TracStar Inc, for a consideration of US$7.6m in cash, further consolidating its focus on the growing satellite antenna market.

The Board is confident that the group's strong order book of £1.5bn and its financial strength position it well to execute the technology-focused strategy announced in September. For 2006, segmental results will be reported for the six new divisions.
