Wolters Kluwer Appoints Jack Lynch as Senior Vice President of Business Development

Amsterdam (May 11, 2006) - Wolters Kluwer, a leading multinational publisher and information services company, announced today the appointment of Jack Lynch to the position of Senior Vice President of Business Development. Mr. Lynch replaces Dave Lampert, who recently was named President of Wolters Kluwer Asia Pacific.

Mr. Lynch will identify and investigate cross-divisional business opportunities for Wolters Kluwer, focusing on leveraging flagship products and business models. With investment in business development, particularly in the area of electronic products, as one of the key elements of the company's three-year strategy, Mr. Lynch also will play an important role as a thought leader in Wolters Kluwer's continued online transformation.

Previously, Mr. Lynch served as president of the Pearson School Technology Group within the Pearson Education School Companies. In this role, he oversaw technology-focused businesses, including Pearson School Systems, Family Education Network and a new online start up initiative, as well as central software development and business development and strategic initiatives. Mr. Lynch also was founding CEO and board member at Bigchalk, The Education Network and general manager of a number of information services and technology companies including Jnana Technologies, an artificial intelligence software company, and CCH Legal Information Services, a leading provider of corporate agent representation, corporate filing and UCC search and filing services that has since become part of Wolters Kluwer.

"I am very pleased that Jack will join Wolters Kluwer in this role. He has an excellent background in technology and innovation in cutting-edge media industries, and a proven understanding of how our products and services can meet the needs of customers to improve their businesses," commented Nancy McKinstry, CEO and Chairman of the Executive Board. "Jack is also very familiar with Wolters Kluwer since he was CEO of the Corporate Legal Services for several years in the '90s. Throughout his career, Jack has focused on leveraging technology to deliver indispensable information to professionals, and as Senior Vice President of Business Development he will support Wolters Kluwer businesses in driving growth further."

Mr. Lynch holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Boston University. He will report to the CEO and Chairman of the Executive Board, Nancy McKinstry.
