(a) The goodwill brought forward from 2003 related to the acquisition of shareholding interests of 35.86% and 7.43% in Dragonair by CNACG and its then wholly-owned subsidiary, CNAC, in June 1996 and October 1997, respectively. The aggregate goodwill arising from these two acquisitions was approximately RMB2,130 million and subsequently reduced to approximately RMB1,205 million through deemed disposal upon the initial public offering of CNAC and the accumulated amortisation on the straight-line basis over a period of 20 years until 1 January 2001 (the date of adoption of IFRS 3 by the Group).

(b) The goodwill arose in 2004 related to the acquisitions of effective shareholding interests of 48.0% in Shandong Aviation, 22.8% in Shandong Airlines and 13.9% in LSGHK by the Group, resulting in an aggregate goodwill amount of approximately RMB200 million.

During the year, Shandong Aviation and Shandong Airlines restated their retained earnings as at 31 December 2004 and as such the goodwill, being calculated as the excess of the cost of the business combination over the Group's interest in the net fair value of the identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities of Shandong Aviation and Shandong Airlines arising on the acquisitions of shareholding interests in these two companies, were adjusted accordingly.

Impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair, Shandong Airlines and Shandong Aviation

Goodwill acquired through the business combination in relation to the acquisition of shareholding interests in Dragonair, Shandong Airlines and Shandong Aviation has been allocated to the cash-generating unit, Dragonair, Shandong Airlines and Shandong Aviation, within the airline operations segment.

The recoverable amount of Dragonair has been determined based on a value in use calculation. To calculate this, cash flow projections are based on financial budgets approved by management covering a one-year period. The discount rate applied to the cash flow projections beyond the one-year period is 5.0% (2004: 5.0%). No growth has been projected beyond the one-year period.

Key assumptions used in the value in use calculation of Dragonair, Shandong Airlines and Shandong Aviation

The following describes each key assumption on which management has based its cash flow projections when undertaking the impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair, Shandong Airlines and Shandong Aviation:

Passenger revenue – the bases used to determine the value assigned to the budgeted passenger revenue are available seat kilometers, passenger traffic, passenger load factor and passenger yield. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Operating expenses – the bases used to determine the values assigned are staff headcount, scheduled flight hours, passenger traffic and jet fuel consumption. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

38. RESERVES (Continued)

Notes:

(a) As described in note 1 to these financial statements, the financial statements of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2004 have been prepared as if the Group had been in existence throughout the year and as if the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies were transferred to the Company prior to 1 January 2004. Upon incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, the historical net asset value of the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies transferred to the Company were converted into the Company's registered capital as described in note 37 (c) to these financial statements with all the then existing reserves eliminated and the resulting difference dealt with in the capital reserve and retained earnings. Accordingly, the aggregate of the capital reserve and retained earnings amounts, being the difference between the amount of share capital issued and the historical net asset value of the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies transferred to the Company as at 30 September 2004, were presented in the reserves of both the Group and the Company.

Retained earnings of the Company and the Group upon incorporation of the Company represent the amounts set aside for distributions, details of which are set out in note 13 to these financial statements. Therefore, these amounts were not capitalised by the Company and the Group upon the Company's incorporation.

(b) Details of the distributions are set out in note 13 to these financial statements.

39. LONG TERM COMPENSATION PLAN

The Company has adopted a long term compensation plan (the "Plan") which was approved by the shareholders on 18 October 2004 for the purpose of motivating its employees. The Plan provides for the grant of share appreciation rights ("SARs") to eligible participants, including the Company's Directors (excluding independent non-executive Directors), supervisors (excluding independent supervisors), president, vice presidents, heads of key departments in the Company's headquarters, general managers and general deputy managers of principal branches and subsidiaries as well as selected senior professionals and key specialists. In any event, SARs will be granted to no more than 200 individuals. The Plan will remain in force unless otherwise cancelled or amended.

Under the Plan, the holders of SARs are entitled the rights to receive an amount in respect of the appreciation in market value of the Company's H shares from the date of grant of SARs and the date of exercise. No shares will be issued under the Plan and therefore the Company's equity interests will not be diluted as a result of the issuance of SARs. The maximum number of unexercised SARs permitted to be granted under the Plan is, upon their exercise, limited to 2% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to eligible participants under the Plan within any 12-month period is, upon their exercise, limited to 0.4% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to any eligible participant is limited to 10% of the total number of unexercised SARs in issue at any time during each year. Any further grant of SARs in excess of the above limits is subject to shareholders' approval in general meetings.

The exercise period of all SARs commences after a vesting period and ends on a date which is not later than five years from the date of grant of the SARs. As at each of the last day of the second, third and fourth anniversary of the date of grant, the total number of SARs exercisable will not exceed 30%, 70% and 100%, respectively, of the total SARs granted to the respective eligible participants.

The exercise price of SARs will be equal to the average closing price of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange for the five consecutive trading days immediately preceding the date of the grant.

As at 31 December 2005 and 31 December 2004, no SARs had been issued under the Plan.

40. DISTRIBUTABLE RESERVES

As at 31 December 2005, in accordance with the PRC Company Law, an amount of approximately RMB8,505 million (2004: RMB7,704 million) standing to the credit of the Company's capital reserve account, and an amount of approximately RMB305 million (2004: RMB52 million) standing to the credit of the Company's reserve funds, as determined in accordance with PRC GAAP, were available for distribution by way of future capitalisation issue. In addition, the Company had retained earnings of approximately RMB1,641 million (2004: RMB208 million), as determined in accordance with PRC GAAP and being the lesser amount of the retained earnings determined in accordance with PRC GAAP and IFRSs, available for distribution as dividend.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the following legal matters set out in items (a) and (b) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As at 31 December 2005, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(a) Pursuant to the Restructuring of CNAHC, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange, the Company entered into a restructuring agreement with CNAHC and CNACG on 20 November 2004 ("Restructuring Agreement"), except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(b) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities including 121 passengers and 8 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of these financial statements. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation, the predecessor of the Company. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 31 December 2005, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of approximately RMB197 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB197 million is an amount of approximately RMB179 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The Directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact on the Group's financial position.

(a) Fair value

Financial assets of the Group and the Company mainly include cash and cash equivalents, pledged deposits, trade receivables, available-for-sale investments, deposits and other receivables. Financial liabilities of the Group and the Company mainly include bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, trade payables, other payables, bills payable and air traffic liabilities.

The carrying amounts of the Group's and the Company's financial instruments approximated their fair value as at the balance sheet date. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time and based on relevant market information about the financial instruments. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgement and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect the estimates.

44. FINANCIAL RISK MANAGEMENT OBJECTIVES AND POLICIES

The Group's principal financial instruments, other than derivatives, comprise bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, cash and cash equivalents and pledged deposits. The main purpose of these financial instruments is to raise finance for the Group's operations. The Group has various other financial assets and liabilities such as trade receivables and trade payables, which arise directly from its operations.

The Group also enters into derivative transactions, including principally swaps and collars contracts. The purpose is to manage the jet fuel price risk arising from the Group's operations.

It is, and has been throughout the year under review, the Group's policy that no trading in financial instruments shall be undertaken.

The Group operates globally and generates revenue in various currencies. The Group's airline operations are exposed to business risk, liquidity risk, jet fuel price risk, foreign currency risk, interest rate risk and credit risk. The Group's overall risk management approach is to moderate the effects of such volatility on its financial performance.

Financial risk management policies are periodically reviewed and approved by the Board of Directors and they are summarised below.

(a) Business risk

The operations of the air transportation industry are substantially influenced by global political and economic development. Factors such as accidents and wars may have a material impact on the Group's operations or the industry as a whole. In addition, the Group primarily conducts its principal operations in Mainland China and accordingly is subject to special consideration and significant risks not typically associated with companies in the United States of America and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among other things, the political, economic and legal environment, competition and influence of the CAAC in the Chinese civil aviation industry.

(b) Liquidity risk

The Group's net current liabilities amounted to approximately RMB16,006 million at 31 December 2005 (2004: RMB9,053 million). The Group recorded a net cash inflow from operating activities of approximately RMB6,048 million for the year ended 31 December 2005 (2004: RMB6,151 million). For the same period, the Group had a net cash outflow from investing activities of approximately RMB12,500 million (2004: RMB4,979 million). The Group also recorded a net cash outflow from financing activities of approximately RMB766 million and an inflow from financing activities of approximately RMB5,620 million for the years ended 31 December 2005 and 2004, respectively. The Group has recorded a decrease in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB7,165 million and an increase in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB6,824 million for the years ended 31 December 2005 and 2004, respectively.

With regards to 2006 and thereafter, the liquidity of the Group is primarily dependent on its ability to maintain adequate cash inflow from operations to meet its debt obligations as they fall due, and on its ability to obtain external financing to meet its committed future capital expenditure. With regards to its future capital commitments and other financing requirements, the Company has already obtained several banking facilities with several PRC banks of up to an amount of RMB78,570 million as at 31 December 2005, of which an amount of approximately RMB33,476 million was utilised.

The Directors of the Company have carried out a detailed review of the cash flow forecast of the Group for the year ending 31 December 2006. Based on such forecast, the Directors have determined that adequate liquidity exists to finance the working capital and capital expenditure requirements of the Group during 2006. In preparing the cash flow forecast, the Directors have considered historical cash requirements of the Group as well as other key factors, including the availability of the above-mentioned loans financing which may impact the operations of the Group prior to the end of 2006. The Directors are of the opinion that the assumptions and sensitivities which are included in the cash flow forecast are reasonable. However, as with all assumptions in regard to future events, these are subject to inherent limitations and uncertainties and some or all of these assumptions may not be realised.

(c) Jet fuel price risk

The Group's strategy for managing the risk on jet fuel price aims to provide the Group with protection against sudden and significant increases in prices. In meeting these objectives, the Group allows for the judicious use of approved derivative instruments such as swaps and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits.

Moreover, counter-party credit risk is generally restricted to any gains on changes in fair value at any time, and not the principal amount of the instrument. Therefore, the possibility of material loss arising in the event of non-performance by a counter-party is considered to be unlikely.

The fair values of derivative instruments of the Group and the Company at the balance sheet date are as follows:

	Group		Group
Swaps and collars expiring:

Over 6 months to 21 months	127,659	(1,791)	–	–

	Company		Company
Swaps and collars expiring:

Over 6 months to 21 months	115,220	(1,791)	–	–
	115,220	(1,791)	–	–

Fair values of derivative instruments, denominated in United States dollars, are obtained from quoted market prices, dealer price quotations, discounted cash flow models and option pricing models, which consider current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as time value of money, yield curve and volatility of the underlying instruments.

(d) Foreign currency risk

The Group's finance lease obligations as well as certain bank and other loans are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen, and certain expenses of the Group are denominated in currencies other than RMB. The Group generates foreign currency revenue from ticket sales made in overseas offices and would normally generate sufficient foreign currencies after payment of foreign currency expenses, to meet its foreign currency liabilities repayable within one year. RMB against United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars have been comparatively stable in the past. However, RMB against Japanese yen had experienced a significant level of fluctuation during the year which is the major reason for the significant exchange difference recognised by the Group for the year.

(e) Interest rate risk

The Group's earnings are also affected by changes in interest rates due to the impact of such changes on interest income and expense from short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities. A significant portion of the Group's interest-bearing financial liabilities with maturities over one year have predominately fixed rates of interest and are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen.

The Group's short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities are predominately denominated in RMB, United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars.

(f) Credit risk

The Group's cash and cash equivalents are deposited with banks in Mainland China, overseas banks and an associate. The Group has policies in place to limit the exposure to any one financial institution.

A significant portion of the Group's air tickets are sold by agents participating in the Billing and Settlements Plan ("BSP"), a clearing system between airlines and sales agents organised by the International Air Transportation Association. The balance due from BSP agents amounted to approximately RMB529 million as at 31 December 2005 (2004: RMB531 million).

Except for the above, the Group has no significant concentration of credit risk, with exposure spread over a number of counter-parties.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

The Group is part of a larger group of companies under CNAHC and has extensive transactions and relationships with members of CNAHC. As such, it is possible that the terms of these transactions are not the same as those that would result from transactions among wholly-unrelated parties. Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or joint control. The transactions were made at prices and terms mutually agreed between the parties. The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the transactions with related parties (see below) were conducted in the usual course of business.

The Group has also established pricing policies for products and services, and such pricing policies do not depend on whether or not the customers are State-owned Enterprises. Having due regard to the substance of the relationships, the Directors are of the opinion that none of these transactions are material related party transactions that require separate disclosure.

CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT

Dear shareholders,

On behalf of the board of directors of Air China Limited, I wish to express our sincere appreciation for your support to the Group (including Air China Limited, its subsidiaries and joint ventures).

In 2004, the Group achieved a great-leap-forward development. By seizing the market opportunities, we focused our efforts on corporate restructuring and listing preparation, flight safety maintenance as well as on internal operation coordination enhancement. Despite the fact that the global aviation industry experienced a recession for three consecutive years, our H Shares were successfully listed on both Hong Kong and London stock exchanges on December 15, 2004, achieving gross proceeds of approximately USD1,120 million or approximately RMB9,300 million in equivalent (taking into account of proceeds from subsequent exercise of over-allotment option). We topped the list of all initial public offerings among the airlines over the past seventeen years. With a premium of 101% of share issue price over net asset value per share at June 30, 2004, the shareholders' equity of the Company amounts to RMB16,548 million and the liabilities to assets ratio reduced to approximately 72.97%. As a result, the capital structure of the Company has been optimized, with our brand value significantly enhanced and our corporate governance structure further improved.

In 2004, the Group achieved the best performance ever in its history for major performance indicators and consolidated profit before tax reached RMB3,657 million. Air traffic revenue and other operating revenue reached RMB30,835 million and RMB2,686 million respectively, representing increases of 31.6% and 120.4% over 2003. According to CAAC's statistics, our total profit accounted for over 50% of the total profit of the whole mainland China airlines.

To improve our services, the Group established an efficient internal service management system while at the same time adopted measures to maintain and upkeep customer relationship, resulting in a decrease of about 17% in customer complaints compared to the previous year. Last year, the Company was appointed as the only airline partner of 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, which greatly boosted the brand name of the Company. In 2004, according to a travellers' satisfaction survey, the Company obtained two awards, namely Excellence Award for Travellers' Satisfaction and Excellence Award for Service Brand categorized for airlines carrying over 15 million passengers. Our successful listing in Hong Kong and London make our brand the focus among the media and the investors, thereby significantly enhancing our intangible asset value.

Cathay Pacific Airways Limited ("Cathay Pacific"), as a strategic investor, acquired 10% share capital of the Company upon its listing. This not only provides a platform for cooperation between the two companies in many business and operation sectors, but also creates opportunities for network connection between Hong Kong and Beijing. Such a relationship helps to improve the operation efficiency as well as the management capability of the Company. In addition, the Company holds indirect interest in Dragonair and Air Macau through CNAC and enjoyed cooperation with Dragonair under codeshare arrangements on certain routes between Hong Kong and the mainland China. We also have a similar cooperation arrangement with Air Macau through which we expect to realize better profitability.

Looking forward, as the economic globalization proliferates, we are fully aware of the challenges and opportunities lying ahead. The greatest opportunity is that the Chinese economy is now in a prime period of strategic growth. In the coming three years, the demand for air traffic will keep going at an anticipated growth rate of 13% to 15%. The international market will grow faster than the domestic market while the cargo sector will grow faster than the passenger sector. However, affected by international political and economic environment, the cost of jet fuel may stay high and the competition can be more severe. Interest rate, exchange rate and capital market are also undergoing frequent changes. All these will present new challenges to the Group's financial risks control capability.

Where there is challenge, there is opportunity. The Group is now facing an opportunity for development and transformation. By completing airline integration and listing, the Group achieved significant milestones. Our fleet is expanding rapidly and, when the fleet of all the Company's subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates are taken into account, the fleet comprises over 250 aircraft, which could enable us to enjoy economies of scale. Our development focus on hub and network, whereby strengthening our dominance over the market. We have already built up our competitive edge within the sector and re-secured our leading position. All these have laid a solid foundation for a rapid, healthy and balanced development of the Group in the future. Our goal is to maximise the value of the Company and to establish the Company as the favored airline for mainstream passengers, the most valuable and profitable airline in China and an airline with international competitiveness.

In 2005, without prejudice to safety operation, the Company will further enhance our core competitiveness and brand recognition to create a sound development environment featured by safety, high efficiency and sustaining profitability. Thus the Company will take the following measures:

1. Through functional integration, transform and streamline our organizational structure to enhance our operational efficiency. To tighten internal risk control and prevent operational risk exposure.

2. Solidify our hub position while building up a more rational market reach. Continue to focus on Beijing, Chengdu and East China markets, give appropriate attention to the South China market, and realize more synergy by working closely with our Hong Kong and Macau counterparts.

3. Strengthen our competitiveness in a balanced international and domestic network.

CHAIRMAN'S STATEMENT

4. Deploy more air cargo capacity. Optimize cargo transportation network.

5. Continue our efforts in providing safe, convenient, comfortable and customerised services. Improve the quality of our services, and further enhance our brand name recognition by leveraging our status as the only airline partner of the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games.

Looking back, in 2004, the Company well exceeded the profit forecast made at the time of its initial public offering, thus affirming its commitment to its shareholders. I would like, on behalf of the board of directors, to express my appreciation to the management team and staff of the Group for their professionalism and dedication. Last but not the least, I, on behalf of the board of directors, would like to thank our shareholders for their trust and support.

We are the national flag carrier of China and a leading provider of air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services in China. We are primarily based in Beijing, the capital and a major hub for domestic and international air transportation. We have the largest share of air transportation business at Beijing Capital International Airport, China's busiest airport. With our operational centre in Beijing and extensive route network serving major Chinese cities and international destinations, we believe we are well positioned to capture the growing demand for airline services in greater China.

Our leading position in the Chinese air transportation market is primarily attributed to our status as:

- China's largest commercial airline, accounting for approximately 29.2% of the total RTKs flown by all Chinese airlines in 2004, according to CAAC statistics;
- China's largest air cargo services provider, accounting for approximately 36.0% of the total RFTKs flown by all Chinese airlines in 2004, according to CAAC statistics;
- the Chinese airline with the highest brand value, according to World Brand Lab, which ranked "Air China" the 32nd most valuable brand name in China, the highest ranked Chinese airline brand.

We believe that by operating a well-balanced route network with complementary domestic and international routes, we can provide our passengers with convenient direct flights and transfer services. Our investments in Air Macau, Dragonair, Shenzhen Airline and Shandong Airline allow us to benefit from the growth in other aviation markets. We have formed business partnerships with various leading international and regional airlines, which we believe will assist us in broadening our scope of service, expanding our international customer base and providing additional customized customer services.

As of December 31, 2004, the Company (including Air China Cargo) operated a fleet of 151 aircraft, serving 72 domestic and 36 international and regional destinations. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL POSITION AND OPERATING RESULTS

Shareholders are advised to read the following discussion and analysis in conjunction with the financial statements of the Group prepared in accordance with the International Financial Reporting Standards as set out on pages from 44 to 126 of this Annual Report.

The Group is the national flag carrier and a leading provider of air passenger, air cargo and airline related services in China. Taking advantage of its balanced network of extensive and complementary domestic and international routes as well as its dominant position in Beijing, the Group offers non-stop and transit services to its passengers from overseas, mainland China, Hong Kong and Macau. As at December 31, 2004, we operated an overall of 183,693 flights serving 72 domestic and 36 international and regional destinations. We offered an average of 3,426 scheduled passenger flights and 367 scheduled cargo flights weekly. We operated a fleet of 151 aircraft, including 124 Boeing aircraft, 26 Airbus aircraft, 1 business jet, the average age of our fleet was 8.1 years.

During the year, Chinese and global economy continued to improve, thereby bringing about a rapid surge of market demand for airline services in China, which greatly mitigated the adverse effects of the outbreak of SARS in 2003. Meanwhile, the Group also faced certain challenges due to the soaring price of international jet fuel and intensified competition. Against this background, the Group seized the market opportunity by adopting a series of effective measures, resulting in great improvement in financial results and a more secured leading position in China aviation market. In 2004, we were appointed as the exclusive airline partner of 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, which significantly promoted the Company's brand recognition. In addition, the successful listing of our shares on Hong Kong and London stock exchanges laid a solid foundation for the Group's future development.

The Group operated certain airline business through its subsidiaries and operating results of each subsidiary have already been calculated into the consolidated financial statements. CNAC is the largest subsidiary of the Company and is listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. CNAC is the controlling shareholder of Air Macau and the single largest shareholder of Dragonair. In 2003 and 2004, the operating revenues of CNAC accounted for 5.7% and 6.0% of the operating revenues of the Group in these years respectively.

In 2004, Air China Cargo, a branch of the Company in 2003, was transformed into a joint venture in which the Group holds 51% equity interest, and its operating results has been included in the consolidated financial statements prepared in accordance with proportionate consolidation method under IFRS. In 2004, the Group accomplished acquisition of 48% of the equity interest of Shandong Aviation Group and 22.8% of the equity interest of Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd..

The Group's business, its financial position and operating results are mainly affected by such external factors as the development of Chinese economy and international trade, regulations of aviation industry, jet fuel price, special events, the seasonal nature of airline operation, performance of associates, financing costs, which were not within the control of the Group to a certain extent.

The Group's net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent for 2004 was RMB2,386 million and that for 2003 was RMB160 million. Our operating revenue increased by 36.0% to RMB33.521 million in 2004 from RMB24,641 million in 2003. Our operating expenses increased by 29.9% to RMB29,036 million in 2004 from RMB22,357 million in 2003. As the increase in operation revenue exceeded that in operation expenses, the profit from operation increased by 96.4% to RMB4,485 million in 2004 from RMB2,284 million in 2003. Our finance costs decreased by 23.4% to RMB1,800 million in 2004 from RMB2,349 million in 2003. Share of profits less losses from associates increased by 130.9% to RMB561 million in 2004 from RMB243 million in 2003. Generally speaking, our profit before tax increased by 1,954.5% to RMB3,657 million in 2004 from RMB178 million in 2003. Net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent increased by 1,391.3% to RMB2,386 million in 2004 from RMB160 million in 2003.

Our operating revenues principally included air traffic revenues and other operating revenues. Most of our operating revenues were from air traffic revenues, representing 92.0% of operation revenues in 2004, while the other operating revenues represented 8.0% of operating revenues. Among air traffic revenues in 2004, 89.7% was generated from passenger services and 10.3% was from cargo and mail services.

Operating revenue increased by 36.0% to RMB33,521 million in 2004 from RMB24,641 million in 2003, mainly due to revenue growth from passenger services. Revenue from passenger services increased by 45.4% to RMB27,665 million in 2004 from RMB19,030 million in 2003. The capacity of passenger traffic in ASKs increased by 27.9% to 64,894 million ASKs in 2004 from 50,733 million ASKs in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 71.9% in 2004 from 66.0% in 2003. Income per RPK increased by 3.7% to RMB0.56 in 2004 from RMB0.54 in 2003. In 2004, the daily utilization of aircraft averaged at 10.2 hours, increased by 1.5 hours when compared to 2003.

Revenue generated from international passenger services accounted for 39.7% of the total revenue from passenger services of the Group in 2004, representing an increase of 62.6% to RMB10,835 million in 2004 from RMB6,663 million in 2003, and the main reason was an apparent recovery of the demand for international airline services in 2004 from the SARS outbreak in 2003 and the increased input of capacity in international routes by the Group. The passenger traffic capacity (in ASKs) of international routes of the Group increased by 41.5% to RMB27,897 million kilometers in 2004 from RMB19,709 million kilometers in 2003. The passenger load factor increased to 70.4% in 2004 from 64.8% in 2003. Level of passenger yield from international routes increased to RMB0.51 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.47 per RPK in 2003.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL POSITION AND OPERATING RESULTS

Revenue generated from domestic passenger services accounted for 55.1% of the Group's total revenue from passenger services in 2004, increasing by 38.3% to RMB15,340 million in 2004 from RMB11,093 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of passenger load factor and yield of domestic services. The passenger traffic capacity (in ASKs) of domestic airline of the Group increased by 19.5% to RMB34,627 million kilometers in 2004 from RMB28,983 million kilometers in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 73.6% in 2004 from 67.4% in 2003. Passenger yield in domestic services increased to RMB0.60 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.57 per RPK in 2003.

Passenger traffic revenue from Hong Kong and Macau accounted for 5.2% of the Group's passenger traffic revenue in 2004, increasing by 17.0% to RMB1,490 million in 2004 from RMB1,274 million in 2003, primarily due to the uprising of passenger load factor in Hong Kong and Macau services. The passenger traffic capacity (in ASKs) of Hong Kong and Macau services of the Group increased by 16.1% to RMB2,371 million kilometers in 2004 from RMB2,042 million kilometers in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 64.5% in 2004 from 58.1% in 2003. Passenger yield from Hong Kong and Macau services decreased to RMB0.67 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.68 per RPK in 2003.

Revenue from cargo and mail operations decreased by 27.8% to RMB3,170 million in 2004 from RMB4,392 million in 2003, primarily due to the fact that Air China Cargo, which is engaged in cargo operations, had changed into a joint venture in 2004 of proportionally consolidation from a branch of the Company. The cargo traffic capacity (in AFTKs) increased by 20.2% to RMB4,843 million kilometers in 2004 from RMB4,028 million kilometers in 2003.The overall load factor of cargo traffic decreased to 53.3% in 2004 from 54.8% in 2003. The overall cargo yield increased to RMB1.99 per RFTK in 2004 from RMB1.87 per RFTK in 2003.

Other operating revenue increased by 120.3% to RMB2,686 million in 2004 from RMB1,219 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase in bellyhold income.

Operating expenses increased by 29.9% to RMB29,036 million in 2004 from RMB22,357 million in 2003, primarily due to increases in jet fuel costs, take-off, landing and depot charges and aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses, and employee compensation costs. Operating expenses as a percentage of operating revenues decreased to 86.6% in 2004 from 90.7% in 2003.

Jet fuel expenses increased by 54.0% to RMB8,354 million in 2004 from RMB5,425 million in 2003, primarily due to the increased consumption of jet fuel as a result of the increased number of flights operated and higher domestic and international jet fuel prices. Our weighted average jet fuel cost for each barrel increased by 25.7% to RMB474 in 2004 from RMB377 in 2003.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL POSITION AND OPERATING RESULTS

Take-off, landing and depot charges increased by 22.6% to RMB4,230 million in 2004 from RMB3,450 million in 2003, primarily due to the increased number of flights operated.

Depreciation expenses increased by 2.5% to RMB3,463 million in 2004 from RMB3,377 million in 2003, primarily due to the acquisition of eleven aircraft from August to September in 2004.

Aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses increased by 32.0% to RMB2,836 million in 2004 from RMB2,149 million in 2003, primarily due to increased line maintenance requirements as a result of increased block hours.

Employee compensation costs increased by 22.8% to RMB2,921 million in 2004 from RMB2,379 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of flight hours.

Air catering charges increased by 39.0% to RMB1,172 million in 2004 from RMB843 million in 2003, primarily due to an increase in the number of passengers carried by the Group.

Aircraft and jet engines operating lease expenses increased by 17.7% to RMB1,071 million in 2004 from RMB910 million in 2003, primarily due to the addition of nine aircraft acquired through operating leases.

Other operating lease expenses increased by 2.7% to RMB187 million in 2004 from RMB182 million in 2003, primarily due to higher rental rates for our terminal stations and sales offices as compared to the lower rental rates for the same negotiated after the SARS outbreak.

Other flight operation expenses increased by 27.7% to RMB2,698 million in 2004 from RMB2,112 million in 2003, primarily due to a change in the accounting method of the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, whereby it is no longer offset by revenues but is released to costs directly in 2004.

Selling and marketing expenses increased by 31.1% to RMB1,387 million in 2004 from RMB1,058 million in 2003, primarily due to higher sales commissions as a result of increased ticket sales.

General and administrative expenses increased by 51.8% to RMB715 million in 2004 from RMB471 million in 2003, primarily due to higher travelling expenses resulting from increased business volume and donation for Olympic Games and loss on property, plant and equipment retirement.

Net finance costs decreased by 23.4% to RMB1,800 million in 2004 from RMB2,349 million in 2003, of which interest expenses decreased by 18.6% to RMB1,824 million in 2004 from RMB2,241 million in 2003, primarily due to the repayment of certain bank loans and a decrease in finance lease obligations. In 2004, share of profits less losses from associates was RMB561 million, as compared to that of RMB243 million in 2003, primarily due to the significant increase of the profits of our associates Dragonair, Jardine Airport Services Limited ("JASL") and Menzies Macau Airport Services Limited.

The Company is subject to the PRC income tax at a rate of 33%. The income tax of the Group increased to RMB1,108 million in 2004 from RMB90 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of the profit before taxation in 2004.

In 2003 and 2004, the Group generated net cash from operating activities of RMB5,425 million and RMB6,151 million respectively, whilst the Group's net cash outflow from investing activities in the same period reached RMB4,360 million and RMB4,974 million respectively, primarily due to the amounts utilized for purchase and improvement of aircraft and aviation equipment. In 2004, the Group's net cash inflow from financing activities amounted to RMB5,620 million, primarily due to the new issues of shares by the Company at the end of the year; while in 2003, the Group recorded a net cash outflow from financing activities of RMB2,207 million, primarily due to the repayment of certain bank loans.

Similar to other Chinese airlines, we have been operating with a net current liabilities position. As at December 31, 2003 and 2004, the net current liabilities of the Group were RMB12,384 million and RMB6,860 million respectively. As at December 31, 2004, the equity attributable to shareholders of the Group was RMB16,548 million, representing an increase of RMB9,655 million when compared with RMB6,893 million in the previous year, primarily due to the issuance by the Company of 2,550,618,182 H Shares with a par value of RMB1.00 each at an offer price of HKD 2.98 per share.

As of December 31, 2004, the Group had contracted for 27 passenger aircraft to be delivered from 2005 to 2006. Other investment in capital expenditure items is estimated to be RMB1,899 million, which mainly involves improvement of first class and business class cabins, the Company's ancillary projects in No. 3 Terminal of Beijing International Airport, and some long-term investment projects. Some capital expenditures projects of the Company are generally subject to Chinese government approval, and are subject to adjustments depending on approval time, the prevailing market conditions, financing and other relevant factors.

The Group is exposed to the fluctuations in jet fuel price during its ordinary operations. International jet fuel prices have been historically, and will in the future continue to be, subject to price volatility and fluctuations in supply and demand. Our strategy for managing our jet fuel price risk aims to provide us with protection against sudden and significant price increases. To meet these objectives, we will continue to use instruments such as swaps, options and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits. The Group recorded a gain of RMB170 million and RMB41 million from the derivative instruments from jet fuel used by us in 2003 and 2004, respectively.

A substantial portion of the Group's debt, part of its operating revenues and expenses and capital expenditures are denominated in certain major foreign currencies and consequently subject to fluctuations in exchange rates. The Group recorded exchange losses of RMB297 million and RMB55 million in 2003 and 2004, respectively. In order to reduce our foreign currency risk, we have pursued a strategy for certain major foreign currencies, to make the match between our revenues and payments denominated in such currencies. We are also currently evaluating proposals to hedge our foreign currency exposure by entering into hedge transactions.

1. GROUP REORGANISATION, PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Air China Limited (the "Company") was incorporated on 30 September 2004 in Beijing, the People's Republic of China (the "PRC"), as a joint stock limited company as part of the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of CNAHC, a PRC state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "Hong Kong Stock Exchange") and the London Stock Exchange as described below.

Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(a) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to the business of the provision of airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(b) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally carry on the business of the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the Company entered into a restructuring agreement with CNAHC and CNACG on 20 November 2004 (the "Restructuring Agreement"). In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNAHC transferred to the Company, among other things, the following:

(a) all of the airline and airline-related businesses operated by Air China International Corporation (中國國際航空公司), the Company's immediate predecessor;

(b) all related assets, including aircraft and other property, plant and equipment of Air China International Corporation;

(c) all related liabilities, including Air China International Corporation's bank loans; and

(d) the equity interests in various investees in airline and airline-related businesses owned by Air China International Corporation, including equity interests in Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo"), Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering Corporation, Beijing ("AMECO") and Shenzhen Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shenzhen Airlines").

In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNACG transferred its approximately 69% equity interests in China National Aviation Company Limited ("CNAC") to the Company by way of a capital contribution.

The effective date of the Restructuring was 30 September 2004, after which date the Company assumed the rights and obligations of the businesses, assets and liabilities transferred to the Company by CNAHC and CNACG.

As at the date of approval of these financial statements, the Group is in the process of applying to the relevant government authorities to obtain the title certificates of certain of the above-mentioned assets, primarily buildings and land use rights, with an aggregate carrying value of approximately RMB3,098 million, and to register the already transferred equity interests in certain investees, including equity interests in Air China Cargo, AMECO and Shenzhen Airlines, from Air China International Corporation into the Company's name. The Directors of the Company are of the view that the Group is entitled to lawfully and validly occupy and use the above-mentioned assets and own the aforesaid equity interests. The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the aforesaid matter will not have any significant impact on the Group's financial position as at 31 December 2004.

In consideration for CNAHC and CNACG transferring the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies to the Company, the Company issued 5,054,276,915 domestic shares (in the form of State legal person shares) and 1,445,723,085 non-H Foreign Shares with a par value of RMB1.00 each to CNAHC and CNACG, respectively (note 37 (a)). The shares issued to CNAHC and CNACG represented the then entire registered and issued share capital of the Company upon its incorporation.

Prior to the incorporation of the Company, the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies were held by two subsidiaries of CNAHC, namely, Air China International Corporation and CNAC, a Hong Kong incorporated company with its shares publicly traded on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. Air China International Corporation is a state-owned enterprise established in the PRC on 1 July 1988 and was subject to the supervision and regulation of the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China, formerly known as the Civil Aviation Administration of China ("CAAC"), a regulatory authority of the civil aviation industry in the PRC. Pursuant to the documents issued by the State Council and the Ministry of Finance dated 14 July 2002 and 9 August 2002, respectively, the PRC government approved the formation of CNAHC, a state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, which then held, inter alia, a 100% direct interest in Air China International Corporation, a 100% direct interest in China Southwest Airlines ("CSWA"), a 100% direct interest in China National Aviation Corporation ("CNAC (PRC)"), which owned 100% interest in CNAC Zhejiang Airlines ("ZJA") and approximately a 69% indirect interest in CNAC. In 2003, CNAHC undertook further reorganisation measures to merge the business operations of CSWA and ZJA into Air China International Corporation, following which CSWA and ZJA became branches of Air China International Corporation.

The Group's principal activities are airline and airline-related services, including aircraft engineering services, air catering services and airport ground handling services conducted mainly in the PRC, Hong Kong and Macau.

The registered office of the Company is located at 9th Floor, Blue Sky Mansion, 28 Tianzhu Road, Zone A, Tianzhu Airport Industrial Zone, Shunyi District, Beijing 101312, the PRC.

In the opinion of the Directors, the Company's ultimate holding company is CNAHC.

Further details of the Restructuring are set out in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004 issued in respect of the listing of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange.

On 15 December 2004, 2,805,680,000 new H shares in the Company, details of which are set out in note 37 (b) to these financial statements, were listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange. On 11 January 2005, an additional 420,852,000 new H shares in the Company, details of which are set out in note 47 (a) to these financial statements, were issued and listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange upon the exercise of the over-allotment option.

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the consolidated financial statements of the Group for the years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004 have been prepared as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests. Accordingly, the assets and liabilities of the Company are stated at historical amounts, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

The consolidated balance sheets as at 31 December 2003 and 2004 present the Group's assets and liabilities as if the Restructuring had been completed at 1 January 2003. The consolidated results and consolidated cash flows include the Group's results of operations and cash flows as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2003. The Company's Directors are of the opinion that the consolidated financial statements prepared on this basis present fairly the consolidated financial position, consolidated results and consolidated cash flows of the Group as a whole. Therefore, the net profit for the year ended 31 December 2004 includes the consolidated results before the Restructuring.

As the Company was only incorporated on 30 September 2004, there are no comparative figures as at 31 December 2003 in the Company's balance sheet.

The consolidated financial statements have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

Basis of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements comprise the financial statements of the Company and all its subsidiaries. The financial statements of the subsidiaries are prepared for the same reporting period as the parent company using consistent accounting policies. Adjustments are made to bring into line any dissimilar accounting policies that may exist.

Subsidiaries are consolidated from the date on which control is transferred to the Group and cease to be consolidated from the date on which control is transferred out of the Group. This control is normally evidenced when the Group owns, either directly or indirectly, more than 50% of the voting rights of a company's share or registered capital, is able to govern the financial and operating policies of an enterprise so as to benefit from its activities. All significant inter-company transactions and balances within the Group are eliminated on consolidation.

Minority interests represent the interests of outside shareholders in the results and net assets of the Company's subsidiaries, not held by the Group and are presented in the consolidated balance sheet within equity, separately from the shareholders' equity.

Foreign currencies

Foreign currency transactions are recorded at the applicable exchange rates ruling at the transaction dates as quoted by the People's Bank of China. Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies at the balance sheet date are translated into RMB at the applicable exchange rates ruling at that date as quoted by the People's Bank of China. All exchange differences are dealt with in the income statement.

On consolidation, the financial statements of overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB. The income statements of these subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year, and the balance sheets are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the balance sheet date. The resulting translation differences are included in the exchange fluctuation reserve.

For the purpose of the consolidated cash flow statement, the cash flows of the overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the dates of the cash flows. Frequently recurring cash flows of overseas subsidiaries, which arise throughout the year, are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year.

Subsidiaries

A subsidiary is a company whose financial and operating policies the Company controls, directly or indirectly, so as to obtain benefits from its activities. A subsidiary is consolidated from the date the Company obtains control until such time as control ceases.

The results of subsidiaries are included in the Company's income statement to the extent of dividends received and receivable. In the Company's balance sheet, the Company's interests in subsidiaries are stated at cost less any impairment losses.

Interests in joint ventures

The Group's interests in its joint ventures are accounted for by proportionate consolidation, which involves recognising a proportionate share of the joint venture's assets, liabilities, income and expenses with similar items in the consolidated financial statements on a line-by-line basis.

Interests in associates

The Group's investments in its associates are accounted for under the equity method of accounting. An associate is an entity in which the Group has significant influence and which is neither a subsidiary nor a joint venture of the Group. The investments in associates are carried in the balance sheet at cost plus post-acquisition changes in the Group's share of net assets of the associates, less any impairment in value. The income statement reflects the Group's share of the results of operations of the associates. The Group's investments in its associates include goodwill (net of accumulated amortisation and impairment) on acquisition, which is treated in accordance with the accounting policy for goodwill stated below. When the Group's share of losses in an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Group does not recognise further losses, unless the Group has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associates.

In the Company's balance sheet, the investments in associates are stated at cost less any impairment losses. The results of associates are accounted for by the Company on the basis of dividends received and receivable.

Property, plant and equipment

Property, plant and equipment, other than construction in progress ("CIP"), are stated at cost less accumulated depreciation and any impairment in value.

The cost of an asset comprises its purchase price and any directly attributable costs of bringing the asset to its working condition and location for its intended use. Expenditure incurred after the assets have been put into operation, such as repairs and maintenance, is normally charged to the income statement in the period in which it is incurred. In situations where it can be clearly demonstrated that the expenditure has resulted in an increase in the future economic benefits expected to be obtained from the use of the asset, the expenditure is capitalised as an additional cost of that asset.

Depreciation is calculated on the straight-line basis over the expected useful life of the asset, after taking into account its estimated residual value, as follows:

	Depreciation life	Residual value
Aircraft and flight equipment	10 to 20 years	Nil–5%
Buildings	15 to 35 years	5%
Machinery, transportation equipment and office equipment	4 to 20 years	5%

The gain or loss on disposal or retirement of a property, plant and equipment recognised in the income statement is the difference between the net sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the relevant asset at the time of disposal.

CIP represents office buildings and various infrastructure projects under construction and equipment pending installation in the aircraft and is stated at cost less any impairment losses, and is not depreciated. Cost comprises the direct costs of construction, the cost of equipment as well as finance charges from borrowings used to finance these assets during the construction or installation period. CIP is reclassified to the appropriate categories of property, plant and equipment when completed and ready for use.

The carrying values of property, plant and equipment are reviewed for impairment when events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying values may not be recoverable. If any such indication exists and where the carrying values exceed the estimated recoverable amounts, the assets or cash-generating units are written down to their recoverable amounts. The recoverable amount of property, plant and equipment is the greater of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. For an asset that does not generate largely independent cash inflows, the recoverable amount is determined for the cash-generating unit to which the asset belongs. Impairment losses are recognised in the income statement.

Lease prepayments

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (continued)

Goodwill

Goodwill represents the excess of cost over the fair value of the identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities of acquired businesses. The Group early adopted IFRS 3, Business Combinations, and applied the requirements of IFRS 3 to goodwill existing at or acquired after, and to business combinations occurring from 1 January 2001. In accordance with IFRS 3, the Group ceased amortising goodwill as of 1 January 2001.

On disposal of subsidiaries, associates or joint ventures, the gain or loss on disposal is calculated by reference to the net assets at the date of disposal, including the attributable amount of goodwill which remains unamortised and any relevant reserves, as appropriate.

IAS 36 (amended 2004) requires that goodwill be tested for impairment at the cash-generating units on an annual basis and whenever there is an indication that a unit may be impaired, by comparing the carrying amount of the unit, including the goodwill, with the recoverable amount of the unit. An impairment loss shall be recognised for a cash-generating unit if the recoverable amount of the unit is less than the carrying amount of the unit. The impairment loss shall be allocated to reduce the carrying amount of the assets of the unit (group of units) in the following order: (i) first, to reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to the cash-generating unit (group of units); and (ii) then, to the other assets of the unit pro-rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the unit. In allocating an impairment loss, the Group shall not reduce the carrying amount of an asset below the highest of: (i) its fair value less costs to sell (if determinable); (ii) its value in use (if determinable); and (iii) zero.

Advance payments for aircraft and related equipment

Advance contract payments to aircraft manufacturers to secure deliveries of aircraft and related equipment in future years, including attributable finance costs, are included in assets. The advances are accounted for as part of the cost of property, plant and equipment upon delivery of the aircraft.

Investments

All investments are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration given and including acquisition charges associated with the investments.

After initial recognition, investments, except those investments which do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured, are classified as available-for-sale and measured at fair value through profit or loss. Gains or losses on available-for-sale investments are recognised in the income statement. Investments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured are stated at cost less impairment.

Leases

Finance leases which transfer to the Group substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the leased item are capitalised at the inception of the lease at the fair value of the leased properties or, if lower, at the present value of the minimum lease payments. Lease payments are apportioned between the finance charges and reduction of the lease liability so as to achieve a constant rate of interest on the remaining balance of the liability. Finance charges are charged directly against income. Capitalised leased assets are depreciated over the estimated economic useful lives of the assets.

Leases where the lessor retains substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the asset are classified as operating leases. Where the Group is the lessor, assets leased by the Group under operating leases are included in non-current assets and rentals receivables under the operating leases are credited to the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms. Where the Group is the lessee, rentals payable under the operating leases are charged to the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms.

Inventories

Inventories, which consist primarily of expendable spare parts and supplies, are stated at cost less any provision for obsolescence, and are expensed when consumed in operations. Cost is determined on the weighted average basis.

Work in progress represents material cost, labour cost and overhead cost capitalised for the provision of aircraft engineering services and is stated at the lower of cost, calculated on a weighted average basis, and net realisable value. Net realisable value is determined on the basis of anticipated sales proceeds less estimated costs to be incurred to completion and disposal.

Cash and cash equivalents

For the purpose of the consolidated cash flow statement, cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand and demand deposits, and short term highly liquid investments which are readily convertible into known amounts of cash and which are subject to an insignificant risk of changes in value, and have a short maturity of generally within three months when acquired, less bank overdrafts which are repayable on demand and form an integral part of the Group's cash management.

For the purpose of the balance sheet, cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand and at banks and other financial institutions, including term deposits, which are not restricted as to use.

Manufacturers' credits

In connection with the acquisition of certain aircraft and related equipment, the Group receives various credits from the manufacturers. Such credits are deferred until the aircraft and related equipment are delivered, at which time they are applied as a reduction of the cost of acquiring the aircraft and related equipment.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (continued)

Employee benefits

(a) Pension obligations

The full-time employees of the Group are covered by various government-sponsored pension plans under which the employees are entitled to a monthly pension based on certain formulae. Certain government agencies are responsible for the pension liability to these retired employees. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these pension plans. Under these plans, the Group has no legal or constructive obligation for retirement benefits beyond the contributions made. Contributions to these plans are expensed as incurred.

(b) Termination and early retirement benefits

Termination benefits are payable whenever an employee's employment is voluntarily terminated before the normal retirement date or whenever an employee accepts voluntary redundancy in exchange for these benefits. The Group recognises termination benefits when it is demonstrably committed to either terminating the employment of current employees according to a detailed formal plan without possibility of withdrawal or to providing termination benefits as a result of an offer made to encourage voluntary redundancy.

(c) Housing benefits

In prior periods, the Group sold staff quarters to its employees, subject to a number of eligibility requirements, at below market prices. When staff quarters are identified as being subject to sale under these arrangements, the carrying value of the staff quarters is written down to the net recoverable amount. Upon sale, any difference between sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the staff quarters is charged to the income statement. The above staff quarters' allocation scheme was phased out before the incorporation of the Company in accordance with the policies of the PRC government.

In 1998, the State Council of the PRC issued a circular, which stipulated that the sale of quarters to employees at preferential prices should be withdrawn. In 2000, the State Council further issued a circular stating that cash subsidies should be made to the employees following the withdrawal of allocation of staff quarters. However, the specific timetable and procedures to implement these policies were to be determined by the individual provincial or municipal government based on the particular situation of the province or municipality.

Based on the relevant detailed local government regulations promulgated, certain entities within the Group have adopted cash housing subsidy plans, whereby, for those eligible employees who have not been allocated with any quarters or who have not been allocated with quarters up to the prescribed standards before the staff quarters' allocation scheme was terminated, the Group will pay them one-off cash housing subsidies based on their years of service, position and other criteria. These cash housing subsidies are charged to the income statement in the year in which it was determined that the payment of such subsidies is probable and the amounts can be reasonably estimated.

In addition, all full-time employees of the Group are entitled to participate in various government-sponsored housing funds. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these funds based on certain percentages of the salaries of the employees. The Group's liability in respect of these funds is limited to the contributions payable in each period.

Provisions

Provisions are recognised when the Group has a present obligation (legal or constructive) as a result of a past event and it is probable that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation provided that reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation. If the effect of the time value of money is material, provisions are determined by discounting the expected future cash flows at a pre-tax rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and, where appropriate, the risks specific to the liability. Where discounting is used, the increase in the provision due to the passage of time is recognised as an interest expense.

Maintenance and overhaul costs

In respect of aircraft and engines under operating leases, the Group has the responsibility to fulfil certain return conditions under the relevant operating leases. In order to fulfil these return conditions, major overhauls are required to be conducted on a regular basis. Accordingly, estimated costs of major overhauls for aircraft and engines under operating leases are accrued and charged to the income statement over the estimated period between overhauls using the ratios of actual flying hours/cycles and estimated flying hours/cycles between overhauls. The costs of major overhauls comprise mainly labour and materials. Differences between the estimated costs and the actual costs of overhauls are included in the income statement in the period of overhaul.

In respect of aircraft and engines owned by the Group or held under finance leases, costs of major overhauls are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

All other routine repair and maintenance costs incurred in restoring such property, plant and equipment to their normal working condition are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

Revenue recognition

Revenue is recognised when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Group and the revenue can be reliably measured on the following bases:

(a) Provision of airline and airline-related services

Passenger revenue is recognised either when transportation is provided or when a ticket expires unused rather than when a ticket is sold. Unused tickets generally expire one year from the date the ticket was sold, or for partially used tickets, the date of first flight. Ticket sales for transportation not yet provided are included in current liabilities as air traffic liabilities. In addition, the Group has code-sharing agreements with other airlines under which a carrier's flights can be marketed under the two-letter airline designator code of another carrier. Revenues earned under these arrangements are allocated between the code share partners based on existing contractual agreements and airline industry standard pro-ratio formulae and are recognised as passenger revenue when the transportation is provided.

Cargo and mail revenues are recognised when the transportation is provided.

Revenue from airline-related services is recognised when services are rendered.

Revenue was stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund prior to 1 January 2004. From 2004, contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund are included in other flight operation expenses to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government.

(b) Sale of goods

Revenue is recognised when the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the buyer, provided that the Group maintains neither managerial involvement to the degree usually associated with ownership, nor effective control over the goods sold.

(c) Trading of investments

Revenue is recognised on a trade date basis.

(d) Interest income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis taking into account the principal outstanding and the effective rate of interest applicable.

(e) Dividends

Revenue is recognised when the owners' right to receive the payment has been established.

(f) Rental income and aircraft and related equipment lease income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis over the terms of the respective leases.

Frequent flyer programme

For Air China Companion Club member accounts that have sufficient mileage credits to claim the lowest level of free travel, the Group records a liability for the estimated incremental costs associated with providing travel awards that are expected to be redeemed. Incremental costs include the cost of incremental fuel, meals and insurance but do not include any cost for aircraft ownership, maintenance, labour or overhead allocation. The liability is adjusted periodically based on awards earned, awards redeemed, changes in the incremental costs and changes in the Air China Companion Club programme, and is included in the balance sheet as a current liability.

Government grants

Government grants are recognised at their fair values when it is probable that the grant will be received and all attaching conditions will be complied with. When the grant relates to an expense item, it is recognised as income over the periods necessary to match the grant on a systematic basis to the costs that it is intended to compensate. Where the grant relates to an asset, the fair value is credited to a deferred income account and is released to the income statement over the expected useful life of the relevant asset by equal annual instalments.

Borrowing costs

Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition of aircraft, construction or production of qualifying assets, i.e. assets that necessarily take a substantial period of time to get ready for their intended use, are capitalised as part of the costs of those assets. The capitalisation of aircraft borrowing costs ceases when the aircraft is placed into revenue earning services and the capitalisation of other assets' borrowing costs ceases when the assets are substantially ready for their intended use or sale.

Where funds have been borrowed generally, and used for the purpose of obtaining qualifying assets, a capitalisation rate ranging between 5.58% and 5.76% has been applied to the expenditure on the individual asset.

All other borrowing costs are charged to the income statement in the period in which they are incurred.

Income tax

Income tax comprises current and deferred income tax. Income tax is recognised in the income statement, or in equity if it relates to items that are recognised in the same or a different period directly in equity.

Deferred income tax is provided, using the liability method, on all temporary differences at the balance sheet date between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and their carrying amounts for financial reporting purposes. Deferred income tax liabilities are recognised for all taxable temporary differences:

- except where the deferred income tax liability arises from goodwill amortisation or the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, except where the timing of the reversal of the temporary differences can be controlled and it is probable that the temporary differences will not reverse in the foreseeable future.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised for all deductible temporary differences, carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses, to the extent that it is probable that taxable profit will be available against which the deductible temporary differences, and the carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses can be utilised:

- except where the deferred income tax asset relating to the deductible temporary difference arises from the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of deductible temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, deferred tax assets are only recognised to the extent that it is probable that the temporary differences will be reversed in the foreseeable future and taxable profit will be available against which the temporary differences can be utilised.

The carrying amount of deferred income tax assets is reviewed at each balance sheet date and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable profit will be available to allow all or part of the deferred income tax asset to be utilised. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply to the period when the asset is realised or the liability is settled based on tax rates (and tax laws) that have been enacted or substantively enacted at the balance sheet date.

Derivative financial instruments

The Group uses derivative financial instruments to hedge its exposure to fuel prices. In accordance with IAS 39, such derivative financial instruments are carried in the balance sheet at fair value as financial assets or financial liabilities.

For the purposes of hedge accounting, hedges are classified as either fair value hedges where they hedge the exposure to changes in the fair value of a recognised asset or liability; or cash flow hedges where they hedge exposure to variability in cash flows that is either attributable to a particular risk associated with a recognised asset or liability or a forecasted transaction.

Changes in the fair value of derivatives that are designated and qualify as fair value hedges and that are highly effective are recorded in the income statement, along with any changes in the fair value of the hedged assets or liabilities that are attributable to the hedged risk. In relation to fair value hedges (interest rate swaps) which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, any gain or loss from remeasuring the hedging instrument at fair value is recognised immediately in the income statement. Any gain or loss on the hedged item attributable to the hedged risk is adjusted against the carrying amount of the hedged item and recognised in the income statement. Where the adjustment is to the carrying amount of a hedged interest-bearing financial instrument, the adjustment is amortised to the income statement such that it is fully amortised by maturity. In relation to cash flow hedges (forward foreign currency contracts) to hedge firm commitments which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, the portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognised directly in equity and the ineffective portion is recognised in the income statement.

When the hedged firm commitment results in the recognition of an asset or a liability, then, at the time the asset or liability is recognised, the associated gains or losses that had previously been recognised in equity are included in the initial measurement of the acquisition cost or other carrying amount of the asset or liability.

For all other cash flow hedges, the gains or losses that are recognised in equity are transferred to the income statement in the same year in which the hedged firm commitment affects the income statement, for example when the future sale actually occurs.

For derivatives that do not qualify for special hedge accounting, any gains or losses arising from changes in fair value are taken directly to the income statement for the year. Hedge accounting is discontinued when the hedging instrument expires or is sold, terminated or exercised, or no longer qualifies for special hedge accounting. At that point in time, any cumulative gain or loss on the hedging instrument recognised in equity is kept in equity until the forecasted transaction occurs. If a hedged transaction is no longer expected to occur, the net cumulative gain or loss recognised in equity is transferred to the income statement for the year.

Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements of the Group in accordance with IFRS requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (continued)

Related parties

Parties are considered to be related if one party has the ability, directly or indirectly, to control the other party or exercise significant influence over the other party in making financial and operating decisions. Parties are also considered to be related if they are subject to common control or common significant influence. Related parties may be individuals or corporate entities.

Recoverable amount of non-current assets

At each reporting date, the Group assesses whether there is any indication that an asset may be impaired. Where an indicator of impairment exists, the Group makes a formal estimate of the recoverable amount. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. Recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's or cash-generating unit's fair value less costs to sell and its value in use and is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets.

Trade and other receivables

Trade receivables, which generally have 30 to 90 day terms, are recognised and carried at original invoice amount less an allowance for any uncollectible amounts. An estimate for doubtful debts is made when collection of the full amount is no longer probable. Bad debts are written off when identified.

Other receivables are recognised and carried at cost less allowances for any uncollectible amounts.

Interest-bearing loans and borrowings

All loans and borrowings are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration received net of issue costs associated with the borrowings.

After initial recognition, interest-bearing loans and borrowings are subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest rate method. Amortised cost is calculated by taking into account any issue costs, and any discount or premium on settlement.

Gains and losses are recognised in the income statement when the liabilities are derecognised or impaired, as well as through the amortisation process.

Derecognition of financial instruments

The derecognition of a financial instrument takes place when the Group no longer controls the contractual rights that comprise the financial instrument, which is normally the case when the instrument is sold, or all the cash flows attributable to the instrument are passed through to an independent third party.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (continued)

Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IFRS 2, Share-based Payment, is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005 and requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the entity. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 will apply for grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested at the beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The Group does not expect IFRS 2 to have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 16 (amended 2004), Property, Plant and Equipment, replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998), Property, Plant and Equipment, and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. These include that the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Further, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. In addition, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. Also, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive in the future on the asset's actual retirement date. The Group does not expect the adoption of new policies arising from the amended standard, when implemented, will have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 24 (revised 2003), Related Party Disclosures, replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994) and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definitions and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

3. SEGMENT INFORMATION

Segment information is presented by way of two segment formats: (i) on a primary segment reporting basis, by business segment; and (ii) on a secondary segment reporting basis, by geographical segment.

The Group's operating businesses are structured and managed separately, according to the nature of their operations and the services they provide. Each of the Group's business segments represents a strategic business unit that offers services which are subject to risks and returns that are different from those of the other business segments.

Currently, the Group's business segment information is divided into four business segments — airline operations, engineering services, airport terminal services and other businesses ("others"). Segment net profit represents revenues less expenses directly attributable to a segment and the relevant portion of enterprise revenues less expenses that can be allocated on a reasonable basis to a segment, whether from external transactions or from transactions with other segments of the Group.

Segment assets and liabilities mainly comprise those operating assets and liabilities that are directly attributable to the segment or can be allocated to the segment on a reasonable basis.

In determining the Group's geographical segments, revenues are attributed to the segments based on origin and destination of each flight segment. Assets, which consist principally of flight and ground equipment, supporting the entire worldwide transportation system, are mainly located in the PRC. An analysis of assets and capital expenditure of the Group by geographical distribution has therefore not been included.

Intersegment sales and transfers are transacted with reference to the selling prices used for sales made to third parties at the then prevailing market prices.

In 2004, the entire Air Cargo Business was transferred to Air China Cargo, a 51% owned joint venture of the Company, in the form of the Company's capital contribution and advance to Air China Cargo. Subsequent to the transfer of Air Cargo Business to Air China Cargo, the Group's effective interest in the Air Cargo Business was diluted from 100% to 51% and, accordingly, a gain on dilution of investment in Air Cargo Business of approximately RMB330 million arose.

9. DILUTION GAINS ON INVESTMENTS (continued)

(b) In accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to these financial statements, 60% shareholding interest in Beijing Air Catering Co., Ltd. ("BACL") and 75% shareholding interest in Southwest Air Catering Company Limited ("SWACL") were deemed to be held by the Group as of 1 January 2003.

During 2004, the Group transferred its entire 60% shareholding interest in BACL and 60% shareholding interest in SWACL to Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, for a consideration of RMB294 million and RMB87 million, respectively.

In addition to the above, the Group also transferred its remaining 15% shareholding interest in SWACL to Hongkong Southwest Air Catering Limited ("HKSACL"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million.

Subsequent to the completion of the above transactions, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively and, accordingly, gains on dilution of investments in BACL and SWACL aggregating approximately RMB80 million arose.

11. RETIREMENT BENEFITS

All of the Group's full-time employees in the PRC are covered by a government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme, and are entitled to an annual pension determined by their basic salaries upon their retirement. The PRC government is responsible for the pension liabilities to these retired employees. The Group is required to make annual contributions to the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme at rates ranging from 15% to 20% of the employees' basic salaries during the year and has no further obligation for post-retirement benefits in respect of the above. This defined contribution plan continues to be available to the Group's employees after the Restructuring. The related pension costs are expensed as incurred.

Prior to the Restructuring, the Group also paid certain supplementary pension benefits (the "Supplementary Pension Benefits") to its employees who retired before the formation of the Company. Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to assume past payments and future liabilities in respect of the Supplementary Pension Benefits for those employees who retired before the formation of the Company for nil consideration. The pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits borne by CNAHC was approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) (note 46). The Group's employees who retire after the formation of the Company are not entitled to the Supplementary Pension Benefits. CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group against losses from any claims for the Supplementary Pension Benefits.

Further, the Group implemented an early retirement plan for certain employees in addition to the benefits under the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the Supplementary Pension Benefits described above. The benefits of the early retirement plan are calculated based on factors including the remaining number of years of services from date of early retirement to normal retirement date and the salary amount on the date of early retirement of the employees. The costs of early retirement benefits were recognised in the period when employees opted for early retirement. Where the effect of discounting is material, the amount recognised for early retirement benefits is the present value at the balance sheet date of the future cash flows expected to be required to settle the obligation. The increase in the discounted present value amount arising from the passage of time is included in finance costs in the income statement.

	Group

According to the PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law, the Company, its subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates established in the PRC are subject to the enterprise income tax at a rate of 33% (2003: 33%) on their taxable income.

Hong Kong profits tax has been provided at the rate of 17.5% (2003: 17.5%) on the estimated assessable profits arising in Hong Kong during the year.

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on 30 September 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation was calculated at the applicable tax rate on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to domestic enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to CNAHC for the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) referred to in note 14 (b) to these financial statements will be calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau.

Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company will settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureaus.

There are no income tax consequences attaching to the payment of dividends by the Company to its shareholders.

(i) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in BACL ("BACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB294 million; and

(ii) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in SWACL ("SWACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB67 million.

On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of BACL Agreement and SWACL Agreement were completed and these two acquisition agreements were effective on that date accordingly.

On 20 April 2004, Air China International Corporation entered into a stock transfer agreement with HKSACL ("HKSACL Agreement"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, pursuant to which, Air China International Corporation disposed of 15% of the equity interest in SWACL to HKSACL for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million. On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of HKSACL Agreement were completed and this agreement was effective on that date accordingly.

Immediately after the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively.

As a result of the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group made a payment of approximately RMB378 million to CNAHC, representing the total consideration payable by CNAC and HKSACL for the acquisitions of the entire shareholding interests held by the Group in BACL and SWACL pursuant to the Restructuring as set out in note 1 to these financial statements. This payment has been made to CNAHC and accounted for as a special distribution to CNAHC by the Company.

(b) In accordance with the (財政部關於印發《企業公司制改建有關國有資本管理與財務處理的暫行規定》的通知) "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance (the English title is a direct translation of the Chinese title of the notice), which became effective from 27 August 2002, and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on the audited accounts prepared in accordance with the accounting principles and the financial regulations applicable in the PRC (the "PRC GAAP"), generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC after giving effect to relevant necessary adjustments. The net profit attributable to shareholders mentioned above for the said period is calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC of approximately RMB191,721,000 which in turn will settle the tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau as detailed in note 12 to these financial statements.

In addition, in accordance with (財政部關於印發《企業公司制改建有關國有資本管理與財務處理的暫行規定》的通知) "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG.

(c) The profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company represent the net assets which have been carved-out and treated as deemed distributions pursuant to the Restructuring set out in note 1 to these financial statements and dividends paid during that period.

The rates of dividend and the number of shares ranking for dividends are not presented in this footnote for those profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company as such information is not considered meaningful.

Cash dividends to shareholders in Hong Kong will be paid in Hong Kong dollars.

Following the incorporation of the Company, under the PRC Company Law and the Company's articles of association, net profit after tax as reported in the PRC statutory financial statements can only be distributed as dividends after allowance has been made for the following:

(i) Making up prior years' cumulative losses, if any;

(ii) Allocations to the statutory common reserve fund of at least 10% of after-tax profit, until the fund aggregates 50% of the Company's registered capital. For the purpose of calculating the transfer to reserves, the profit after tax shall be the amount determined under the PRC GAAP. The transfer to this reserve must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

The statutory common reserve fund can be used to offset previous years' losses, if any, and part of the statutory common reserve fund can be capitalised as the Company's share capital provided that the amount of such reserve remaining after the capitalisation shall not be less than 25% of the share capital of the Company;

(iii) Allocations of 5% to 10% of after-tax profit, as determined under PRC GAAP, to the Company's statutory public welfare fund, which will be established for the purpose of providing for the Company's employees collective welfare benefits such as the construction of dormitories, canteens and other staff welfare facilities. The fund forms part of the shareholders' equity as only individual employees can use these facilities, while the title of such facilities is held by the Company. The transfer to this fund must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders; and

(iv) Allocations to the discretionary common reserve if approved by the shareholders.

The above reserves cannot be used for purposes other than those for which they are created and are not distributable as cash dividends.

In accordance with the articles of association of the Company, the net profit after tax of the Company for the purpose of dividends payment is based on the lesser of (i) the net profit determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP; and (ii) the net profit determined in accordance with IFRS.

14. APPROPRIATIONS (continued)

Prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, no profit appropriation to the aforesaid reserve funds was required.

Notes:

(a) The goodwill brought forward from 2003 related to the acquisition of shareholding interests of 35.86% and 7.43% in Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited ("Dragonair") by CNACG and its then wholly-owned subsidiary, CNAC, in June 1996 and October 1997, respectively. The aggregate goodwill arising from these two acquisitions was approximately RMB2,130 million and subsequently reduced to approximately RMB1,205 million through deemed disposal upon the initial public offering of CNAC and the accumulated amortisation on the straight-line basis over a period of 20 years until 1 January 2001 (the date of adoption of IFRS 3 by the Group).

(b) The goodwill arose in the current year related to the acquisitions of effective shareholding interests of 48.0% in Shandong Aviation Group Corporation ("Shandong Aviation"), 22.8% in Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shandong Airlines") and 13.9% in LSG Lufthansa Service Hong Kong Limited ("LSGHK") by the Group, resulting in an aggregate goodwill amount of approximately RMB200 million.

Impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair

Goodwill acquired through the business combination in relation to the acquisition of shareholding interest in Dragonair has been allocated to the cash-generating unit, Dragonair, within the airline operations segment.

The recoverable amount of Dragonair has been determined based on a value in use calculation. To calculate this, cash flow projections are based on financial budgets approved by management covering a one-year period. The discount rate applied to the cash flow projections beyond the one-year period is 5.0%. No growth has been projected beyond the one-year period.

Key assumptions used in the value in use calculation of Dragonair

The following describes each key assumption on which management has based its cash flow projections when undertaking the impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair:

Passenger revenues — the bases used to determine the value assigned to the budgeted passenger revenues are available seat kilometers, passenger traffic, passenger load factor and passenger yield. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Operating expenses — the bases used to determine the values assigned are staff headcount, scheduled flight hours, passenger traffic and jet fuel consumption. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

The proceeds from the sale of the 198,331,240 State legal person shares and 56,730,578 non-H Foreign Shares aggregating approximately RMB759 million, after deducting the portion of share issuing expenses of approximately RMB50 million which were borne by the Social Security Fund in connection with these sales of State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares, were remitted to the Social Security Fund.

(c) As referred to in note 37 (b) above, the Company issued 2,805,680,000 H shares to the public by way of placement and offer. After deducting aggregate net proceeds of approximately RMB759 million from the sale of 198,331,240 H shares converted from State legal person shares and 56,730,578 H shares converted from non-H Foreign Shares which were remitted to the Social Security Fund as referred to in note 37 (b) above and share issuing expenses of approximately RMB536 million (before deducting share issuing expenses of approximately RMB50 million borne by the Social Security Fund as referred to in note 37 (b) above), the Company raised net proceeds of approximately RMB7,601 million, of which paid-up share capital amounted to approximately RMB2,551 million and capital reserve amounted to approximately RMB5,050 million.

The H shares rank pari passu, in all material respects, with the State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares of the Company.

Notes:

(a) As described in note 1 to these financial statements, the financial statements of the Group for the years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004 have been prepared as if the Group had been in existence throughout the period and as if the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies were transferred to the Company at 1 January 2003. Upon incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, the historical net asset value of the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies transferred to the Company were converted into the Company's registered capital as described in note 37 (a) to these financial statements with all the then existing reserves eliminated and the resulting difference dealt with in the capital reserve and retained profits. Accordingly, the aggregate of the capital reserve and retained profits amounts, being the difference between the amount of share capital issued and the historical net asset value of the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies transferred to the Company as at 30 September 2004, were presented in the reserves of both the Group and the Company.

Retained profits of the Company and the Group upon incorporation of the Company represent the amounts set aside for distributions, details of which are set out in note 14 to these financial statements. Therefore, these amounts were not capitalised by the Company and the Group upon the Company's incorporation.

(b) Details of the distributions are set out in note 14 to these financial statements.

39. LONG-TERM COMPENSATION PLAN

The Company has adopted a long-term compensation plan (the "Plan") which was approved by the shareholders on 18 October 2004 for the purpose of motivating its employees. The Plan provides for the grant of share appreciation rights ("SARs") to eligible participants, including the Company's Directors (excluding independent non-executive Directors), supervisors (excluding independent supervisors), president, vice presidents, heads of key departments in the Company's headquarters, general managers and general deputy managers of principal branches and subsidiaries as well as selected senior professionals and key specialists. In any event, SARs will be granted to no more than 200 individuals. The Plan will remain in force unless otherwise cancelled or amended.

Under the Plan, the holders of SARs are entitled the rights to receive an amount in respect of the appreciation in market value of the Company's H shares from the date of grant of SARs and the date of exercise. No shares will be issued under the Plan and therefore the Company's equity interests will not be diluted as a result of the issuance of SARs. The maximum number of unexercised SARs permitted to be granted under the Plan is, upon their exercise, limited to 2% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to eligible participants under the Plan within any 12-month period is, upon their exercise, limited to 0.4% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to any eligible participant is limited to 10% of the total number of unexercised SARs in issue at any time during each year. Any further grant of SARs in excess of the above limits is subject to shareholders' approval in general meetings.

The exercise period of all SARs commences after a vesting period and ends on a date which is not later than five years from the date of grant of the SARs. As of each of the last day of the second, third and fourth anniversary of the date of grant, the total number of SARs exercisable will not exceed 30%, 70% and 100%, respectively, of the total SARs granted to the respective eligible participants.

39. LONG-TERM COMPENSATION PLAN (continued)

The exercise price of SARs will be equal to the average closing price of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange for the five consecutive trading days immediately preceding the date of the grant.

As of 31 December 2004, no SARs had been issued under the Plan.

40. DISTRIBUTABLE RESERVES

As at 31 December 2004, in accordance with the PRC Company Law, an amount of approximately RMB7,703.5 million standing to the credit of the Company's capital reserve account, and an amount of approximately RMB51.9 million standing to the credit of the Company's statutory reserve funds, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP, were available for distribution by way of future capitalisation issue. In addition, the Company had retained profits of approximately RMB207.6 million, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and being the lesser amount of the retained profits determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and IFRS, available for distribution as dividend.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the following legal matters and litigation set out in items (a) to (c) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As of 31 December 2004, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(a) Pursuant to the agreement for the Restructuring entered into by the Company with CNAHC and CNACG, except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(b) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities including 121 passengers and 8 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of these financial statements. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 31 December 2004, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of RMB190 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB190 million is an amount of RMB173 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The Directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

(c) Air China International Corporation is one of the defendants in a civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) (the "Litigation"). United Aero-Supplies System of China Limited ("UASSC") had entered into an agreement with the defendants for the exclusive purchase of aviation equipment consigned to UASSC for sale and, that as the defendants failed to perform the agreement, UASSC has the right to compensation. Since UASSC is in the course of its winding up proceedings, all the rights and benefits of UASSC in connection with the claim have been transferred to New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC"). Air China International Corporation, as one of the defendants to the Litigation, was claimed by NLC for compensation of HK$60,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB63,600,000) for failing to perform the above agreement. Air China International Corporation has filed an objection in respect of the jurisdiction of the court, and has requested the court to transfer the case to Mainland China for trial. Air China International Corporation received an order in respect of this application on 3 May 2004. The judge granted the application and ordered that the action against Air China International Corporation be dismissed. Subsequent to this order, NLC has filed an appeal. The date of hearing for the appeal has been fixed on 28 July 2005. After considering the aforesaid order granted by the judge and consulting the legal counsel, the Directors of the Company consider that Air China International Corporation has a reasonable chance of success in its defence to the claim. Accordingly, the Directors of the Company consider that a provision for such claim and/or the associated legal costs is not required.

(b) Investment commitment

As at 31 December 2004, the Company committed to make a capital contribution of approximately RMB422 million (US$51 million) (2003: Nil) to its joint venture.

(c) Operating lease commitments

The Group leases certain of its office premises, aircraft and related equipment under operating lease arrangements. Leases for these assets are negotiated for terms ranging from 1 to 20 years.

The Group and the Company had the following future minimum lease payments under non-cancellable operating leases:

	Group		Company

43. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

Financial assets of the Group and the Company mainly include cash and cash equivalents, pledged assets, trade receivables, other investments, deposits and other receivables. Financial liabilities of the Group and the Company mainly include bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, trade payables, other payables, bills payable and air traffic liabilities.

The carrying amounts of the Group's and the Company's financial instruments approximated their fair value as at the balance sheet date. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time and based on relevant market information about the financial instruments. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgement and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect the estimates.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

(a) Financial risk management objectives and policies

The Group operates globally and generates revenues in various currencies. The Group's airline operations are exposed to business risk, liquidity risk, jet fuel price risk, foreign currency risk, interest rate risk and credit risk. The Group's overall risk management approach is to moderate the effects of such volatility on its financial performance.

Financial risk management policies are periodically reviewed and approved by the Board of Directors.

(b) Business risk

The operations of the air transportation industry are substantially influenced by global political and economic development. Factors such as accidents and wars may have a material impact on the Group's operations or the industry as a whole. In addition, the Group primarily conducts its principal operations in the PRC and accordingly is subject to special consideration and significant risks not typically associated with companies in the United States of America and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among other things, the political, economic and legal environment, competition and influence of the CAAC in the Chinese civil aviation industry.

(c) Liquidity risk

The Group's net current liabilities amounted to approximately RMB6,860 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB12,384 million). The Group recorded a net cash inflow from operating activities of approximately RMB6,151 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB5,425 million). For the same period, the Group had a net cash outflow from investing activities of approximately RMB4,974 million (2003: RMB4,360 million). The Group also recorded a net cash inflow from financing activities of approximately RMB5,620 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 and a net cash outflow from financing activities of approximately RMB2,207 million for the year ended 31 December 2003. The Group has recorded an increase in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB6,824 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 but a decrease in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB1,057 million for the year ended 31 December 2003.

With regards to 2005 and thereafter, the liquidity of the Group is primarily dependent on its ability to maintain adequate cash inflow from operations to meet its debt obligations as they fall due, and on its ability to obtain external financing to meet its committed future capital expenditures. With regards to its future capital commitments and other financing requirements, the Company has already obtained several banking facilities with several PRC banks of up to an amount of RMB71,700 million as at 31 December 2004, of which an amount of approximately RMB40,183 million was utilised.

The Directors of the Company have carried out a detailed review of the cash flow forecast of the Group for the year ending 31 December 2005. Based on such forecast, the Directors have determined that adequate liquidity exists to finance the working capital and capital expenditure requirements of the Group during 2005. In preparing the cash flow forecast, the Directors have considered historical cash requirements of the Group as well as other key factors, including the availability of the above-mentioned loans financing which may impact the operations of the Group prior to the end of 2005. The Directors are of the opinion that the assumptions and sensitivities which are included in the cash flow forecast are reasonable. However, as with all assumptions in regard to future events, these are subject to inherent limitations and uncertainties and some or all of these assumptions may not be realised.

(d) Jet fuel price risk

The Group's strategy for managing the risk on jet fuel price aims to provide the Group with protection against sudden and significant increases in prices. In meeting these objectives, the Group allows for the judicious use of approved derivative instruments such as swaps and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits.

Moreover, counter-party credit risk is generally restricted to any gains on changes in fair value from time to time, and not the principal amount of the instrument. Therefore, the possibility of material loss arising in the event of non-performance by a counter-party is considered to be unlikely.

The fair values of derivative instruments of the Group and the Company at the balance sheet date are as follows:

	Group and Company		Group
	2004 Assets RMB'000	2004 Liabilities RMB'000	2003 Assets RMB'000	2003 Liabilities RMB'000
Swaps and collars expiring:
Within 6 months	—	—	8,000	(2,400)
Over 6 months to 21 months	—	—	26,000	(3,600)
	—	—	34,000	(6,000)

Fair values of derivative instruments, denominated in United States dollars, are obtained from quoted market prices, dealer price quotations, discounted cash flow models and option pricing models, which consider current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as time value of money, yield curve and volatility of the underlying instruments.

(e) Foreign currency risk

The Group's finance lease obligations as well as certain bank and other loans are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen, and certain expenses of the Group are denominated in currencies other than RMB. The Group generates foreign currency revenues from ticket sales made in overseas offices and would normally generate sufficient foreign currencies after payment of foreign currency expenses, to meet its foreign currency liabilities repayable within one year. RMB against United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars have been comparatively stable in the past. However, RMB against Japanese yen had experienced a significant level of fluctuation over 2004 which is the major reason for the significant exchange difference recognised by the Group for 2004.

(f) Interest rate risk

The Group's earnings are also affected by changes in interest rates due to the impact of such changes on interest income and expense from short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities. A significant portion of the Group's interest-bearing financial liabilities with maturities above one year have predominately fixed rates of interest and are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen.

The Group's short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities are predominately denominated in RMB, United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars.

(g) Credit risk

The Group's cash and cash equivalents are deposited with PRC banks, overseas banks and an associate. The Group has policies in place to limit the exposure to any one financial institution.

A significant portion of the Group's air tickets are sold by agents participating in the Billing and Settlements Plan ("BSP"), a clearing system between airlines and sales agents organised by the International Air Transportation Association. The balance due from BSP agents amounted to approximately RMB531 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB342 million).

Except for the above, the Group has no significant concentration of credit risk, with exposure spread over a number of counter-parties.

45. CONSOLIDATED CASH FLOW STATEMENT

(a) Analysis of balances of cash and cash equivalents is as follows:

45. CONSOLIDATED CASH FLOW STATEMENT (continued)

(c) Major non-cash transactions

(i) During the year, the Group received an aircraft injected by the PRC government amounting to RMB304,787,000 (note 36). This amount has been recorded in property, plant and equipment.

(ii) Upon incorporation of the Company, CNAHC effected the transfer of certain land use rights in an aggregate amount of approximately RMB885,626,000 to the Company.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

The Group is part of a larger group of companies under CNAHC and has extensive transactions and relationships with members of CNAHC. As such, it is possible that the terms of these transactions are not the same as those that would result from transactions among wholly unrelated parties. Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or significant influence. The transactions were made at prices and terms mutually agreed between the parties.

In addition to the Restructuring, further details of which are set out in note 1 to these financial statements, and transactions and balances detailed elsewhere in these financial statements, the Group had the following significant recurring transactions carried out in the ordinary course of business between the Group and (i) CNAHC, its subsidiaries (other than the Group), joint ventures and associates (collectively known as "CNAHC Group"); (ii) its joint ventures; and (iii) its associates:

No royalty charge was levied in respect for the use of these trademarks during each of the two years ended 31 December 2004.

On 25 August 2004, CNAC (PRC) entered into two assignment agreements with CNACG pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) has agreed to assign, free of royalty, the above-mentioned trademarks to CNACG for use in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively. On 25 August 2004, CNACG entered into two licence agreements with CNAC pursuant to which CNACG has agreed to grant licences to CNAC, free of royalty, for the rights to use those trademarks in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively, so long as CNAC is a direct or indirect subsidiary of CNAHC. These licence agreements supersede the licence agreement entered into between CNAC (PRC) and CNAC on 18 October 1997.

(b) Pursuant to certain of the Company's aircraft leasing arrangements and bank loan arrangements, the overseas lessors and lenders require guarantees to be given by some major PRC state-owned banks. In giving such guarantees, the PRC state-owned banks in turn require CNAHC and CNAF to provide counter-guarantees in favour of the banks. As at the balance sheet date, the amounts of such counter-guarantees provided by CNAHC and CNAF were as follows:

	Group

* Subsequent to 31 December 2004, these counter-guarantees provided by CNAF amounting to RMB4,737 million in favour of the banks have been fully released.

Certain of the Group's bank loans from the PRC banks are guaranteed by Air China International Corporation and other related parties, further details of which are set out in note 34 to these financial statements.

(c) In connection with the Restructuring, the Company entered into several agreements with CNAHC which govern the use of trademarks granted by the Company to CNAHC, the provision of financial services by CNAF, the provision of construction project management services by China National Aviation Construction and Development Company, the subcontracting of charter-flight services to CNAHC, the leasing of properties from and to CNAHC, the provision of air ticketing and cargo services, media and advertising services arrangement to China National Aviation Media and Advertising Co., Ltd., the tourism services co-operation agreement with CNAHC, the comprehensive services agreement with CNAHC, and the provision of maintenance and other ground services by China Aircraft Services Limited.

(d) On 19 August 2004, Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, entered into the following acquisition agreements:

(i) a sale and purchase agreement with CNACG in relation to the acquisition of approximately 16% of the issued share capital of LSGHK, a company incorporated in Hong Kong with limited liability ("CNACG Agreement"); and

(ii) a sale and purchase agreement with Hong Kong International Air Catering Limited ("HKIAC"), a company incorporated in Hong Kong with limited liability and in which Air China International Corporation has a 25% equity interest, in relation to the acquisition of approximately 4.2% of the issued share capital of LSGHK ("HKIAC Agreement").

The total consideration of the above acquisitions is approximately RMB122 million. Immediately after the completion of the CNACG Agreement and HKIAC Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in LSGHK is approximately 14%.

(e) All pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits of approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) were borne by CNAHC (note 11).

The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the above transactions with related parties were conducted in the usual course of business.

47. EVENTS AFTER THE BALANCE SHEET DATE

(a) On 11 January 2005, upon the exercise of the over-allotment option, the Company issued to the public by way of placement of 420,852,000 H Shares, consisting of 382,592,727 new shares and 29,749,686 State legal person shares and 8,509,587 non-H Foreign Shares, with a par value of RMB1.00 each at HK2.98 (equivalent to approximately RMB3.17072) per share. After deducting net proceeds of approximately RMB117 million received from the sale of these State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares, the amount of which should be remitted to the Social Security Fund, and share issue expenses of approximately RMB47 million (before deducting share issue expenses of approximately RMB4 million borne by the Social Security Fund as mentioned above), the Company raised net proceeds of approximately RMB1,170 million, of which paid-up share capital amounted to approximately RMB383 million and capital reserve amounted to approximately RMB787 million. The above H shares rank pari passu, in all material respects, with the State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares of the Company.

47. EVENTS AFTER THE BALANCE SHEET DATE (continued)

(b) On 26 January 2005, the Company and AIE entered into an agreement with Airbus S.A.S. ("Airbus"), pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 20 A330-200 aircraft (the "Airbus Aircraft") from Airbus for an aggregate consideration of approximately US$2.86 billion (equivalent to approximately RMB23.68 billion). The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is payable in cash by instalments. The Airbus Aircraft are scheduled to be delivered in stages to the Company from mid-2006 to end of 2008. Pursuant to the relevant Chinese regulations, the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is conditional upon the PRC government's approval. As of the date of approval of these financial statements, the said government approval has not been obtained by the Company.

(c) On 28 January 2005, the Company, other contracting Chinese airlines, China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation ("CASGC") and Boeing Company entered into an agreement (the "Framework Agreement"), pursuant to which CASGC agreed to purchase (as an agent of the Company and other contracting Chinese airlines) 60 Boeing 7E7 aircraft. The aggregate catalog price of the aircraft is approximately US$7.3 billion (equivalent to approximately RMB60.42 billion). Pursuant to the Framework Agreement, the Company expects to enter into a specific purchase agreement with CASGC and Boeing Company in respect of the purchase of 15 Boeing 7E7 aircraft (the "Boeing Aircraft"). The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of the Boeing Aircraft is expected to be lower than the catalog price. The delivery of the Boeing Aircraft is expected to take place in stages from mid-2008. The specific purchase agreement has not been finalised as at the date of approval of these financial statements.

1 GROUP REORGANISATION, PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The Company was incorporated on 30 September 2004 in Beijing, the People's Republic of China (the "PRC" or "Mainland China"), as a joint stock limited company as part of the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of China National Aviation Holding Company ("CNAHC"), a PRC state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited and the London Stock Exchange as described below.

As disclosed in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004, pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC, and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(a) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(b) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally engage in airline operations and the provision of aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

The principal activities of the Group, joint ventures and associates are airline operations and the provision of airline-related services, including aircraft engineering services, air catering services and airport ground handling services conducted mainly in Mainland China, Hong Kong and Macau.

The registered office of the Company is located at 9th Floor, Blue Sky Mansion, 28 Tianzhu Road, Zone A, Tianzhu Airport Industrial Zone, Shunyi District, Beijing 101312, the PRC.

In the opinion of the Directors, the Company's parent and ultimate holding company is CNAHC.

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the consolidated financial statements of the Group prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004 had been prepared as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests.

The consolidated results for the year ended 31 December 2004 include the Group's results of operations as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2001, which is the earliest date for the preparation of the financial information in relation to the listing of the Company's H shares. The Company's Directors are of the opinion that the consolidated income statement prepared on this basis presents fairly the consolidated results of the Group as a whole.

2 BASIS OF PREPARATION

The consolidated financial statements of the Group have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS") which comprise standards and interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Board, and International Accounting Standards ("IAS") and Standing Interpretations Committee interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Committee that remain in effect.

The consolidated financial statements of the Group have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004) Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement.

The principal accounting policies used in the preparation of the consolidated financial statements of the Group are consistent with those used in the annual audited financial statements of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2004, except that the Group has adopted the following new/revised standards mandatory for financial years beginning on or after 1 January 2005.

(a) IFRS 2 Share-based Payment requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the Group. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 apply to grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested on or after 1 January 2005. The adoption of IFRS 2 did not give rise to any adjustment to the opening balances of retained earnings of the current and prior years or to any change in comparatives.

(b) IAS 16 (amended 2004) Property, Plant and Equipment replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998), Property, Plant and Equipment. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. Firstly, the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for the accounting of subsequent costs. Secondly, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version of the standard included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. Thirdly, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. In addition, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive at the asset's actual retirement date. Furthermore, the amended standard requires major inspection and overhaul costs to be recognised in the carrying amount of an item of property, plant and equipment when such actions are performed.

The adoption of the revised treatment of IAS 16 (amended 2004) has been accounted for prospectively, which resulted in the following:

(i) In prior years, the aircraft were depreciated over their estimated useful lives of 20 years. With effect from 1 January 2005, the estimated useful lives of certain components within the aircraft which are subject to replacement during major overhauls have been reduced to the life of the overhaul cycle. The change in accounting estimate has increased the Group's depreciation charge for the year ended 31 December 2005 by approximately RMB899 million. As a result, the profit after tax of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2005 has decreased by approximately RMB604 million.

(ii) Major overhaul costs incurred for the year ended 31 December 2005 of approximately RMB1,639 million have been capitalised and depreciated over the life of the overhaul cycle. Prior to 1 January 2005, such costs have been charged to the income statement on an incurred basis. In this respect, the costs of aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul of the Group charged to the income statement for the year ended 31 December 2005 decreased by RMB1,639 million. In addition, the Group has derecognised and charged to the income statement for the year ended 31 December 2005 the carrying amount of certain components of approximately RMB430 million which have been replaced during the major overhaul. As a result, the profit after tax of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2005 has increased by approximately RMB824 million.

(c) IAS 24 (revised 2003) Related Party Disclosures replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994). The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definition and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

The IAS 1 Amendment shall be applied for annual periods beginning on or after 1 January 2007. IFRS 7 will replace IAS 32 and has modified the disclosure requirements of IAS 32 relating to financial instruments. The IFRS shall be applied for annual periods beginning on or after 1 January 2007.

In accordance with the amendments to IAS 39 and IFRS 4 regarding financial guarantee contracts, financial guarantee contracts are initially recognised at fair value and are subsequently measured at the higher of (i) the amount determined in accordance with IAS 37 and (ii) the amount initially recognised less cumulative amortisation, when appropriate, recognised in accordance with IAS 18.

The IAS 19 Amendment, IAS 39 Amendments regarding cash flow hedge accounting of forecast intragroup transactions and the fair value option, IFRSs 1 and 6 Amendments, IFRS 6, IFRIC-Int 4, IFRIC-Int 5 and IFRIC-Int 6 do not apply to the activities of the Group. IFRIC-Int 6 shall be applied for annual periods beginning on or after 1 December 2005.

Except as stated above, the Group expects that the adoption of the other pronouncements listed above will not have any significant impact on the Group's financial statements in the period of initial application.

Notes:

(a) Pursuant to the Restructuring, the air cargo business and relevant air cargo assets and liabilities (the "Air Cargo Business") were operated and owned solely by the Group as if it had been directly held by the Group prior to 1 January 2004 in accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1. In 2004, the entire Air Cargo Business was transferred to Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo"), a 51% owned joint venture of the Company, in the form of the Company's capital contribution and advance to Air China Cargo. Subsequent to the transfer of Air Cargo Business to Air China Cargo, the Group's effective interest in the Air Cargo Business was diluted from 100% to 51% and, accordingly, a gain on dilution of the investment in Air Cargo Business of approximately RMB330 million arose.

(b) In accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1, a 60% shareholding interest in Beijing Air Catering Co., Ltd. ("BACL") and a 75% shareholding interest in Southwest Air Catering Company Limited ("SWACL") were deemed to be held by the Group prior to being transferred out during 2004.

During 2004, the Group transferred its entire 60% shareholding interest in BACL and a 60% shareholding interest in SWACL to Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of China National Aviation Company Limited ("CNAC"), a subsidiary of the Company, for considerations of RMB294 million and RMB67 million, respectively.

In addition to the above, the Group transferred its remaining 15% shareholding interest in SWACL to Hongkong Southwest Air Catering Limited, the minority shareholder of SWACL, for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million.

Subsequent to the completion of the above transactions, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75%, respectively, to 41% and accordingly gains on dilution of investments in BACL and SWACL in aggregate of approximately RMB80 million arose.

9 TAX

According to the PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law, the Company, its subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates established in the PRC are subject to enterprise income tax at rates ranging from 15% to 33% (2004: 15% to 33%) on their taxable income.

Hong Kong profits tax has been provided at the rate of 17.5% (2004: 17.5%) on the estimated assessable profits arising in Hong Kong during the year.

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on 30 September 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation was calculated at the applicable tax rates on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to domestic enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to CNAHC for the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) was calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn would settle any tax liability on profit arising during that period with the relevant tax bureau.

Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company would settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureau.

In accordance with the PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law and an approval document issued by the relevant tax bureau on 28 November 2005 (the "Approval Document"), Air China Cargo was approved to be subject to a corporate income tax rate of 24% on its taxable income as reported in its statutory financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2005 and was fully exempted from enterprise income tax for the year ended 31 December 2005 and followed by a 3-year 50% reduction in corporate income tax in the period between 1 January 2006 and 31 December 2008. In addition, pursuant to the Approval Document, Air China Cargo has been granted a 4-year local income tax exemption in the period between 1 January 2005 and 31 December 2008 and followed by a 5-year 50% reduction in local income tax in the period between 1 January 2009 and 31 December 2013.

The determination of current and deferred income tax was based on enacted tax rates. Major components of income tax charge are as follows:

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITIONS AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The following discussion and analysis are designed to assist the reader in understanding the information provided in this announcement so as to fully comprehend the financial performance of the Group as a whole.

2005 Review

During 2005, along with the rapid growth in demand in the PRC's aviation industry, the Group's operations maintained good momentum throughout the year and the Group achieved continued, steady and well-balanced development. In 2005, the Company and Air China Cargo recorded revenue tonne kilometres of 7.44 billion and carried 27.69 million passengers and cargos and mails of 733,000 tonnes, representing increases of 10.2%, 13.0% and 10.2% from 2004 respectively. The Group's total revenue amounted to RMB38.3 billion in 2005, representing an increase of 14.2% compared with last year. Operating profit was RMB3,674 million, representing a decrease of 18.1% from 2004, mainly due to the significant increase in the cost of jet fuel arising from the soaring international oil prices.

The continual increase in international oil prices presented severe challenges to the aviation and transportation enterprises. In 2005, the cost of jet fuel as a percentage of operating expenses of the Group rose from 28.8% in 2004 to 34.0%, representing an increase of RMB3.423 billion compared with 2004. The Group implemented various measures to mitigate the impact of rising jet fuel prices, such as the enhancement of operation control, promotion of computerised planning system, flight route optimisation, redespatch, purchase of advanced aircraft with lower fuel consumption, and jet fuel hedging transactions. As a result of our measures to reduce costs and increase efficiency, the Group substantially mitigated the impact of rising jet fuel price. In addition, the collection of jet fuel surcharge also relieved pressure on operating costs to a certain extent. The Group's net profit attributable to equity holders for 2005 was RMB2,406 million, representing an increase of 0.9% from last year, which was principally attributable to factors such as the appreciation of Renminbi. The Group continued to maintain its leading position among fellow PRC airlines in terms of profitability.

In 2005, we introduced a new flight route between Hangzhou and Hong Kong and resumed the Lhaza – Chengdu – Hong Kong route. The Group also introduced or resumed 20 domestic routes, such as the Beijing – Ningbo route, bringing the Company's total number of routes to 316 with destinations spanning across 22 countries (regions) and 106 cities. In 2005, 25 new aircrafts were added to the Company's fleet, increasing the number of aircrafts to 176. During the year, the Company also entered into purchase contracts for 35 aircrafts and lease agreements for 17 aircrafts. The scale of the Company's fleet will be expanded further to meet the needs for additional routes and increased flight frequency. The expanded fleet capacity will directly contribute to its service capacity for the 2008 Olympic Games.

As at 31 December 2005, the Company had 18,447 employees and its subsidiaries and joint ventures had 12,145 employees. Employees of the Company receive cash remuneration consisting of salary and other cash subsidies. In addition, in order to provide incentives to the flight crew, the Board of the Company approved the Proposal on the Reform of Remuneration and Benefits System for the Flight Crew on 30 December 2005, which came into effect on 1 March 2006.

Earnings Per Share

In 2005, the Group's earnings per share was RMB25.5 cents, representing a decrease of 29.2% compared with RMB36 cents for 2004. This was mainly due to the initial public offering of 2,550,618,182 shares upon the Company's listing in late 2004 and the issue of 382,592,727 shares pursuant to the over-allotment option in the beginning of 2005, which increased the weighted average number of shares compared with last year. Details of earnings per share are set out in note 11 to the financial results in this announcement.

Operating Revenue

In 2005, the Group's operating revenue was RMB38,291 billion, representing an increase of 14.2% compared with last year. Increase in the Group's operating revenue was mainly attributable to the rapid growth of air traffic revenue, which increased by 14.5% in 2005. In 2005, the daily utilization of aircraft averaged at 10.4 hours, increased 0.2 hours as compared with 2004.

Revenue Contribution by Business Segments (RMB'000)	2005	2004	Change (%)
Airline operations	37,380,669	32,766,164	14.1
Engineering services	376,437	296,775	26.8
Airport terminal services	320,477	287,905	11.3
Others	213,383	169,913	25.6
Total operating revenue	38,290,966	33,520,757	14.2

The Group's operating revenues principally included air traffic and other operating revenue. Most of our operating revenue was from air traffic revenue, which represented 92.2% of the Group's total revenue in 2005, while the other operating revenue represented only 7.8% of the total operating revenue. Among air traffic revenues in 2005, 89.5% was generated from passenger services and 10.5% was from cargo and mail transport.

The passenger transport income increased by 14.2% to RMB31.58 billion in 2005 from RMB27,67 billion in 2004. It was mainly attributable to the increase in transport capacity, passenger load factor and profitability level. The Company's transport capacity in terms of available seat kilometres increased by 8.9% to 70.66 billion in 2005 from 64.89 billion million in 2004 . The Company's passenger load factor rose to 74.2% in 2005 as compared with 71.9% in 2004. The Company's passenger yield increased by 1.8% to RMB0.57 in 2005 from RMB0.56 in 2004.

Revenue from cargo and mail increased by 17.2% to RMB3,716 million in 2005 from RMB3,170 million in 2004. Such increase was primarily as a result of the improvements in the traffic capacity, cargo and mail load factor and profitability level. Cargo transport capacity in terms of available freight tonne-kilometres increased by 4.5% to 5,063 million in 2005 from 4,843 million in 2004.

The load factor of cargo transport increased to 54.5% in 2005 from 53.3% in 2004. The overall cargo yield increased by 2% to RMB2.03 for each yield tonne kilometre in 2005 from RMB1.99 for each yield tonne kilometre in 2004.

Operating Expenses

The operating expenses of the Group primarily comprise jet fuel costs, take-off, landing and depot charges, depreciation, aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses, employee compensation costs and air catering charges. In 2005, the Group recorded RMB34.617 billion in operating expenses, representing an increase of 19.2% compared with RMB29.036 billion in 2004, primarily as a result of the rising jet fuel costs.

Operating Expenses (RMB'000)	2005	2004	Change (%)
Jet fuel	11,777,129	8,353,752	41.0
Take-off, landing and depot charges	4,442,585	4,230,349	5.0
Depreciation	4,512,680	3,463,252	30.3
Aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul	1,341,773	2,835,648	(52.7)
Employee compensation costs	3,406,825	2,921,322	16.6
Air catering expenses	1,242,973	1,171,784	6.1
Others	7,893,225	6,059,399	30.3
Total Operating Expenses	34,617,150	29,035,506	19.2

Jet fuel costs increased by 41.0% to RMB11.7 billion in 2005 from RMB8,354 million in 2004 and accounted for 34.0% of operating expenses as compared with 28.8% in 2004. This increase was primarily due to jet fuel price rise and the increased consumption of jet fuel as a result of the increased number of flights operated.

Take-off, landing and depot charges increased by 5% to RMB4,443 million in 2005 from RMB4,230 million in 2004, primarily due to the increased number of flights operated.

Depreciation expenses increased by 30.3% to RMB4,513 million in 2005 from RMB3,463 million in 2004, primarily due to the accounting changes and fleet expansion. Details on the accounting changes are set out in note 2 to the Group's financial results in this announcement.

Aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses decreased by 52.7% to RMB1,342 million in 2005 from RMB2,836 million in 2004, primarily due to accounting changes. Details on the accounting changes are set out in note 2 to the group's financial results in this announcement.

Employee compensation costs increased by 16.7% to RMB3,407 million in 2005 from RMB2,921 million in 2004, primarily due to the increased flight hours, growth of the number of employee, and increased income of employee.

Air catering charges increased by 6.1% to RMB1,243 million in 2005 from RMB1,172 million in 2004, primarily due to an increase in the number of passengers carried.

Expenses on operating leases of aircrafts and engines increased from RMB1,071 million in 2004 to RMB1,531 million in 2005, mainly due to the increase in operations with leased aircrafts as well as wet lease of aircrafts from Air Macau Company Limited, Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited and Shandong Airlines Company Limited.

Other flight operation expenses increased to RMB3,745 million in 2005 from RMB2,698 million in 2004, primarily due to the adjustments in the accounting policies and the increase in CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund as a result of the increased number of routes.

Selling and marketing expenses increased to RMB1,775 million in 2005 from RMB1,387 million in 2004, primarily due to higher related expenses as a result of increased sales income.

The Group is not exposed to any insolvency risk for the reasons set out in the sections titled "Liquidity and Capital Resources" and "Objective and Policy of Financial Risk Management".

Gearing Ratio

As at 31 December 2005, the Group's gearing ratio, which represents total liabilities divided by total assets, was 68.4%, which dropped by 5 percentage points from 73.0% as at 31 December 2004.

Interest Expense

In 2005, interest expense of the Group decreased from RMB1.824 billion in 2004 to RMB1.773 billion, primarily due to the repayment of certain bank loans and decrease in obligations under finance leases.

Interest Cover

In 2005, earnings before finance revenue and finance costs (including interest expense, interest income, exchange gains/losses, net gains on fuel derivatives and dividend income from available-for-sale investments), enterprise income taxes, share of profits less losses of associates, dilution gains on investments and depreciation and amortisation ("EBITDA") as computed under IFRS, divided by interest expense, were 4.62 times, compared with 4.36 times in 2004. The increase in interest cover was attributable to the decrease in interest expense and rise in EBITDA.

Capital Commitments and Contingent Liabilities

As at 31 December 2005, capital commitments of the Group increased substantially from RMB11.832 billion as at 31 December 2004 to approximately RMB38.514 billion, primarily due to commitments in the purchase of certain aircraft and relevant flight equipment to be delivered in the coming years, and for the construction of certain properties.

As at 31 December 2005, the Group had contingent liabilities in respect of bank and other guarantees and other matters arising in the ordinary course of business. Details of contingent liabilities of the Group will be set out in the Company's 2005 annual report.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

The Group finances its operations through cash inflow from operating activities and bank loans. Like many other airline groups in the PRC, the Group has been operating with a net current liabilities position. As at 31 December 2005 and 31 December 2004, net current liabilities of the Group were RMB16 billion and RMB9.053 billion respectively. The increase in net current liabilities was primarily due to a decrease in current assets, in particular, a RMB7.165 billion decrease in cash and cash equivalents.

In 2005, the Group's net cash inflow from operating activities decreased by 2% to RMB6.048 billion from RMB6.156 billion in 2004. Net cash outflow from investing activities in the same period increased by 151% to RMB12.500 billion from RMB4.979 billion in 2004, primarily due to an increase in prepayment for purchase of aircraft. The Group recorded a net cash outflow in financing activities of RMB0.766 billion, primarily due to the repayment of bank loans and the distributions to shareholders pursuant to the Group's restructuring in 2004. The major sources of finance of the Group are bank loans. As at 31 December 2005, the Group had obtained bank facilities of up to RMB78.570 billion from a number of banks in the PRC.

As at 16 September 2005, the Company successfully issued corporate bonds of RMB3 billion in aggregate. The bonds received overwhelming subscription from investors upon issue and were completely taken up on the first date with more than 10-time oversubscription. Prior to this, on 25 May 2005, the Company has successfully issued short-term commercial papers in the amount of RMB2 billion.

Capital Expenditure

For 2005, the capital expenditure of the Company amounted to RMB10.547 billion. Among the capital expenditure of the Company, total investment in aircraft was RMB9.069 billion, including a prepayment of RMB6.183 billion for purchasing aircraft from 2006 onwards.

Other investments in capital expenditure items were RMB1.478 billion, which mainly involved the improvement of first class and business class cabins of certain aircraft, ancillary projects in No. 3 Terminal of Beijing International Airport, as well as certain long-term investment projects.

The Group intended to fund its capital expenditure with internal generated source of funds, bank loans, corporate bonds and the proceeds from the proposed issue of A shares.

Objective and Policy of Financial Risk Management

The Group is exposed to the fluctuations in jet fuel price during its ordinary operations. International jet fuel prices have been historically, and will in the future continue to be, subject to price volatility and fluctuations in supply and demand. The Group's strategy for managing its jet fuel price risk aims to provide itself with protection against sudden and significant price increases. Subject to the applicable laws of the PRC, the Group started to engage in fuel hedging transactions in March 2001. The subjects of hedging instruments were mainly Singapore jet fuel and Brent crude oil derivatives that are closely linked to jet fuel. In 2005, the Group applied hedging to 12.3% of the procured jet fuel, and the net gain on jet fuel derivatives was RMB222 million, representing an increase of 440% compared with 2004.

Foreign liabilities constitute a large proportion of the Group's liabilities. As at 31 December 2005, loans denominated in US dollar and Hong Kong dollar were equivalent to RMB11.352 billion and RMB224 million respectively. Appreciation of the Renminbi will benefit the Company with exchange gains. In 2005, the net exchange gains of the Group was RMB918 million (2004: net exchange losses of RMB55 million). The foreign exchange income and expenses of the Group are generally the same. The Group adopted "natural immunity" method to achieve a matching structure of income and expenses by adjusting the proportion of its liabilities in foreign currencies. The Company will continue to avoid exposure to the risk of exchange rate fluctuation by adopting a strategy that matches the income and payment in certain principal currencies.

Information on financial risk management objectives and polices in other aspects of the Group's operations will be set out in the Company's 2005 annual report.

OUTLOOK FOR 2006

2006 will be a year full of opportunities and challenges. The Company will continue to face the severe challenge of oil price hike in the international market. Besides, with the rapid growth in the PRC's aviation industry, the continued deregulation in civil aviation industry to allow investments by different entities, and the shortage in resources such as air route rights, time slots and key technicians, the Company is expected to face more intense market competition. The Company will continue to overcome these unfavourable factors, through taking full advantage of the golden opportunities arising from the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, maintaining our strategy of building hubs and networks through strategic alliance, optimising of resources allocation and actively developing external cooperation such as code sharing arrangement and aviation alliance. Moreover, the Company will continue to promote organisational transformation, expand its service network and streamline its operation flow. The Company plans to establish an objective appraisal and performance management system to enhance its overall management standard; further improve corporate governance, strengthen the function of special committees; continue to strengthen decision-making function and improve enforceability of decisions, pay attention to risk control and the construction of internal control system, aiming to position itself as a highly recognised and most valuable and profitable airline in the PRC with international competitive strength.

Chairman's Statement

Dear shareholders,

2005 is the first year following the restructuring and listing of the Company. Shares offered under the international offering and the Hong Kong public offering at the end of last year were 40 times and 21 times oversubscribed respectively. On 7 January 2005, the international underwriters exercised in full the over-allotment options referred to in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004, marking the successful conclusion of our H share offering. On behalf of the board of directors, I would like to express our sincere gratitude to you, as our shareholders, for your support and trust.

Passenger services and cargo and mail operations performed well, with passenger traffic reaching 12.5885 million persons and cargo traffic of 340,889 tonnes, representing an increase of 13.0% and 9.0% respectively, compared to the corresponding period last year. However, rising jet fuel prices and increasing competition have significantly affected the operations and profitability of the Group. During the first six months of 2005, the profit from operations of the Group was RMB1,397 million, representing a decrease of 22.0% compared to the corresponding period last year. Although jet fuel prices remain high, the Company managed to maintain the highest profitability among other domestic airlines in the aviation market in China. This was achieved through adopting various effective measures to improve cost controls, budget management and marketing initiatives.

The Company has continued to value safe services and accident prevention and is committed to establishing a mechanism for maintaining long-term operational safety. In the first half of 2005, the Company recorded 278,000 accident-free flight hours, representing an increase of 16.4%, compared to the same period last year. Incident rate per 10,000 flight hours and material error rate per 10,000 flight hours decreased by 89% and 63% respectively, compared to the corresponding period last year. To improve the Company's safety management standards and to ensure that its record of providing safe services is maintained, the Company will continue to establish a long-term operational safety mechanism, further develop its safety standards and its safety management system, as well as further invest in promoting flight safety.

The Company and Cathy Pacific entered into a Marketing Cooperation Memorandum on 19 May 2005, pursuant to which the two parties made code share arrangements for their Beijing-Hong Kong flights. These developments have reinforced the competitiveness and network connections of the Company, thereby further consolidating the synergy between international, domestic and regional flight routes. With Beijing as its central hub, the Company will further optimise its flight routes with a balanced focus on both international and domestic as well as passenger and cargo operations.

The Company is committed to establishing a sales network that effectively complements its flight routes. While maintaining the development efforts in its dominant regions, the Company focused on reinforcing sales in the eastern, south-western and north-eastern parts of the PRC. On the international level, the Company concentrated on increasing sales in Japan, Korea and Europe through implementing a system that coordinates seat control, pricing and revenue. The Company continued to reinforce its cooperation with peer companies. At present, the Company has entered into code-sharing arrangements with 18 airlines and is making steady progress in the formation of an alliance.

In the first half of 2005, the Company commenced the upgrade project for the first class and business class cabins of 15 wide body aircraft. Besides, it continued to improve its service quality by providing safe, convenient, comfortable and customised services to passengers. The Company's ability to leverage on brand name recognition has been further enhanced with increasing awareness of its brand. The brand value and influence of the Company were further boosted after it became the sole airline partner of the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

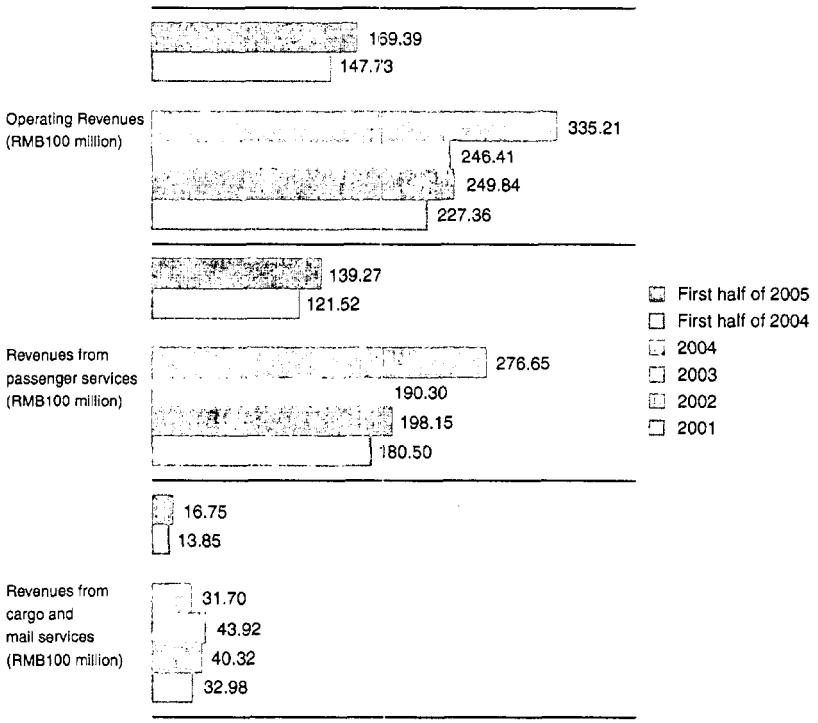
Review for the First Half of 2005

REVIEW OF OPERATIONS

During the first half of 2005, the Chinese economy and the aviation market continued to grow, thereby maintaining the growth in the demand for airline services. However, the sharp increase in jet fuel costs and seasonal fluctuations of air travel exerted relatively substantial pressure on operations in the aviation industry. The rising jet fuel price increased the operating costs of the Group. Without compromising flight safety, the Group has adopted various measures to improve cost controls and efficiency.



For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Group's operating revenue was RMB16.939 billion, representing an increase of 14.7% compared to the corresponding period last year. Most of our operating revenues were generated from air traffic businesses. In the first half of 2005, air traffic revenues accounted for 92.1% of operating revenues. Among this, revenues from passenger services and from cargo and mail services accounted for 82.2% and 9.9% of operating revenues respectively.

During the first six months of 2005, revenues from passenger services were RMB13.927 billion, representing an increase of 14.6% compared to the corresponding period last year. The capacity of passenger traffic in available seat kilometres ("ASKs") was 33.245 billion kilometres, representing an increase of 7.9% compared to the corresponding period last year. Passenger load factor was 71.9%, representing an increase of 3.3 percentage points compared to the corresponding period last year. During the first six months of 2005, revenues from cargo and mail services were RMB1.675 billion, representing an increase of 21.0% compared to the corresponding period last year. Cargo transport capacity in available freight tonne-kilometres ("AFTKs") was 2.391 billion tonnes kilometres (including entire cargo transport capacity in AFTKs of Air China Cargo, a 51%-owned joint venture of the Company), representing an increase of 3.2% compared to the corresponding period last year. The cargo and mail load factor was 53.5%, representing an increase of 0.6 percentage point compared to the corresponding period last year. During the first six months of 2005, the daily utilization of aircraft was 10.2 hours, representing an increase of 0.1 hour compared to the corresponding period last year. The load factor was 63.5%, representing an increase of 2.3 percentage points from the corresponding period last year.

For the six months ended 30 June 2005, operating expenses of the Group was RMB15.541 billion, representing an increase of RMB2.559 billion compared to the corresponding period last year. Among the operating expenses, jet fuel costs were RMB5.062 billion, representing an increase of RMB1.449 billion compared to the corresponding period last year. Jet fuel costs as a percentage of operating expenses increased from 27.8% in the corresponding period last year to 32.6% for the six months ended 30 June 2005. The Group endeavoured to take measures to conserve fuel and enhance efficiency. Through reducing fuel consumption and jet fuel hedging, the Group has successfully achieved a cost savings of RMB93.53 million. In addition, the collection of fuel surcharge also helped to relieve the pressure of rising jet fuel costs.

As of 30 June 2005, the total jet fuel hedging position of the Company was equivalent to 4.5% of its jet fuel consumption in the first half of the year.

MANAGEMENT OF EXCHANGE RISK

In respect of the civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) as disclosed in paragraph (c) of Note 41 to the consolidated financial statements for the year ended 31 December 2004 in the Company's 2004 annual report, Air China International Corporation, AIE and other parties entered into a settlement agreement with New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC") on 20 July 2005, pursuant to which AIE agreed to pay a settlement amount of US$195,250 to NLC. The settlement amount was fully paid by AIE to NLC on 10 August 2005.

Save as disclosed above and in note 17 to the unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements, there have been no material adverse changes in the contingent liabilities of the Group since 31 December 2004.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

The Group finances its working capital needs through cash inflows from operating activities and bank loans. Like many other airlines in the PRC, the Group has been operating with a net current liabilities position. As at 31 December 2004 and 30 June 2005, net current liabilities of the Group were RMB6.860 billion and RMB8.844 billion respectively. The increase in net current liabilities was primarily due to a decrease in current assets, in particular, a RMB2.514 billion decrease in cash and cash equivalents.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURE

During the six months ended 30 June 2005, the capital expenditure of the Company amounted to RMB3.792 billion. The Company's total investment in aircraft was RMB3.362 billion, including a prepayment of RMB2.682 billion for purchasing aircraft from 2006 onwards.

Other investments in capital expenditure items were RMB430 million, which mainly involved the improvement of first class and business class cabins of certain aircraft, ancillary projects in No. 3 Terminal of Beijing International Airport, as well as certain long-term investment projects.

DISCLOSURE REQUIRED BY THE HONG KONG STOCK EXCHANGE LISTING RULES

In compliance with paragraph 40(2) of Appendix 16 to the Rules Governing the Listing of Securities on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "Listing Rules"), the Company confirms that, save as disclosed herein, there has been no material change in the existing information regarding the Company in relation to those matters set out in paragraph 32 of Appendix 16 to the Listing Rules from the information in relation to the matters disclosed in the 2004 Annual Report of the Company.

Condensed Consolidated Interim Financial Statements

Notes:

1. BASIS OF PRESENTATION AND ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Air China Limited (the "Company") was incorporated on 30 September 2004 in Beijing, the People's Republic of China (the "PRC"), as a joint stock limited company as part of the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of China National Aviation Holding Company ("CNAHC"), a PRC state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "Hong Kong Stock Exchange") and the London Stock Exchange as described below.

As disclosed in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004, pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(i) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to the business of the provision of airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(ii) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally carry on the business of the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the consolidated financial statements of the Group prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004 had been prepared as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests.

The consolidated results and consolidated cash flows for the six months ended 30 June 2004 include the Group's results of operations and cash flows as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2001, which is the earliest date for the preparation of the financial information in relation to the listing of the Company's H shares. The Company's directors are of the opinion that the consolidated income statement and consolidated cash flow statement prepared on this basis present fairly the consolidated results and consolidated cash flows of the Group as a whole.

The unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements of the Group have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRSs") which comprise standards and interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Board, and International Accounting Standards ("IASs") and Standing Interpretations Committee interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Committee that remain in effect. In particular, the unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements of the Group comply with IAS 34 Interim Financial Reporting and the disclosure requirements of the Rules Governing the Listing of Securities on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange.

The unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements of the Group have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004) Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement.

1. BASIS OF PRESENTATION AND ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

The principal accounting policies used in the preparation of the unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements of the Group are consistent with those used in the annual audited financial statements of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2004, except for the following standards which have taken effect as at 1 January 2005:

(a) IFRS 2 Share-based Payment requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the Group. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 apply to grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested on or after 1 January 2005. The adoption of IFRS 2 did not give rise to any adjustment to the opening balances of retained profits of the current and prior periods or to any change in comparatives.

(b) IAS 16 (amended 2004) Property, Plant and Equipment replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998) Property, Plant and Equipment. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. Firstly, the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Secondly, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version of the standard included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. Thirdly, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. In addition, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive at the asset's actual retirement date. Furthermore, the amended standard requires major inspection and overhaul costs to be recognised in the carrying amount of an item of property, plant and equipment when performed.

The adoption of the revised treatment of IAS 16 (amended 2004) has been accounted for prospectively, which resulted in the following:

(i) In prior years, the aircraft were depreciated over their estimated useful lives of 20 years. With effect from 1 January 2005, the estimated useful lives of certain components within the aircraft which are subject to replacement during major overhauls have been reduced to the life of the overhaul cycle. The change in accounting estimate has increased the Group's depreciation charge for the six months ended 30 June 2005 by approximately RMB595 million. As a result, the profit after tax of the Group for the six months ended 30 June 2005 has decreased by approximately RMB399 million.

(ii) Major overhaul costs incurred for the six months ended 30 June 2005 of approximately RMB1,243 million have been capitalised and depreciated over the life of the overhaul cycle. Prior to 1 January 2005, such costs have been charged to the income statement on an incurred basis. In this respect, the costs of aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul of the Group charged to the income statement for the six months ended 30 June 2005 decreased by RMB1,243 million. In addition, the Group has derecognised and charged to the income statement for the six months ended 30 June 2005 the carrying amount of certain components of approximately RMB222 million which have been replaced during the major overhaul. As a result, the profit after tax of the Group for the six months ended 30 June 2005 has increased by approximately RMB684 million.

(c) IAS 24 (revised 2003) Related Party Disclosures replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994). The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definition and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

2. SEGMENT INFORMATION

The Group's operating businesses are structured and managed separately, according to the nature of their operations and the services they provide. Each of the Group's business segments represents a strategic business unit that offers services which are subject to risks and returns that are different from those of the other business segments.

Currently, the Group's business segment information is divided into four business segments – airline operations, engineering services, airport terminal services and other businesses ("others"). Segment net profit represents revenues less expenses directly attributable to a segment and the relevant portion of enterprise revenues less expenses that can be allocated on a reasonable basis to a segment, whether from external transactions or from transactions with other segments of the Group.

Intersegment sales and transfers are transacted with reference to the selling prices used for sales made to third parties at the then prevailing market prices.

(b) As referred to in note 16 (a) above, the Company issued 420,852,000 H shares upon the exercise of the over-allotment options granted to international underwriters. After deducting aggregate net proceeds of approximately RMB117 million from the sale of 29,749,686 H shares converted from State legal person shares and 8,509,587 H shares converted from non-H foreign shares, which were remitted to the Social Security Fund and share issue expenses of approximately RMB47 million (before deducting share issue expenses of approximately RMB4 million borne by the Social Security Fund), the Company raised net proceeds of approximately RMB1,170 million, of which paid-up share capital amounted to approximately RMB383 million and capital reserve amounted to approximately RMB787 million.

The H shares rank pari passu, in all material respects, with the State legal person shares and non-H foreign shares of the Company.

17. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES

As at 30 June 2005, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(a) Pursuant to the Restructuring of CNAHC, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange, the Company entered into a restructuring agreement with CNAHC and China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG"), one of the minority shareholders of the Company and is a Hong Kong incorporated company wholly owned by CNAHC, except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(b) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities including 121 passengers and 8 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of these unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation, the predecessor of the Company. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 30 June 2005, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of approximately RMB190 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB190 million is an amount of approximately RMB173 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact on the Group's financial position.

(c) The Company is one of the defendants in a lawsuit pending in the San Francisco Superior Court filed by Environmental World Watch Inc. ("EWW"). The complaint alleges that the Company and certain other commercial airlines operating in California have violated the California Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act (Health and Safety Code Section 25249.5). EWW alleges that the Company and these other airlines caused environmental exposure and occupational exposure from aircraft emissions without providing warnings required by the statue. Up to the date of these unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements, the Company has not been served with the complaint by EWW and, therefore, has not been required to appear in the court to defend against the allegation. The status of the proceedings is still preliminary and, therefore, the directors are of the view that it is not possible to estimate the eventual outcome of the claim with reasonable certainty at this stage. The directors are of the opinion that, based on advice from the Company's lawyers in the United States, even if the Company is served with the complaint and is therefore required to appear in the court, it would appear to have valid defense against this litigation and, accordingly, the directors consider that no provision for this complaint is needed.

(d) The Group has issued guarantees to banks in respect of the bank loan facilities granted to the following parties:

	30 June 2005 RMB'000 (Unaudited)	31 December 2004 RMB'000 (Audited)

Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or joint control. The transactions were made at prices and terms mutually agreed between the parties. The directors of the Company are of the opinion that the transactions with related parties were conducted in the usual course of business.

As at the balance sheet date, the amounts of such counter-guarantees provided by CNAHC and CNAF were as follows:

CNAC's share in the additional capital contribution in SWACL of RMB30,000,000 has not been injected as of the date of these unaudited condensed consolidated interim financial statements.

(b) On 21 July 2005, the People's Bank of China announced that the Renminbi exchange rate regime was reformed to a floating exchange rate regime based on market demand and supply with reference to a basket of foreign currencies. As a result, the exchange rate of US dollar against Renminbi was adjusted to RMB8.11 per US dollar effective from the close of business on 21 July 2005. Pursuant to the renewed management service agreement, CNACG has agreed to provide secretarial, personnel, accounting and general office administrative services to CNAC and its subsidiaries for a period of three years from 1 July 2005 to 30 June 2008 at a monthly fee of HK$500,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB530,000).

From 1 August 2005 to 31 December 2005, airlines companies in the PRC will collect RMB20 from each passenger travelling less than 800 kilometres and RMB40 from each traveller on flights exceeding that distance.

As disclosed in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004, pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(i) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to the business of the provision of airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(ii) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally carry on the business of the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the consolidated financial statements of the Group prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004 had been prepared as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests.

The consolidated results for the six months ended 30 June 2004 include the Group's results of operations as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2001, which is the earliest date for the preparation of the financial information in relation to the listing of the Company's H shares. The Company's directors are of the opinion that the condensed consolidated income statement prepared on this basis presents fairly the consolidated results of the Group as a whole.

The unaudited condensed consolidated income statement and balance sheet of the Group have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRSs") which comprise standards and interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Board, and International Accounting Standards ("IASs") and Standing Interpretations Committee interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Committee that remain in effect. In particular, the unaudited condensed consolidated income statement and balance sheet of the Group comply with IAS 34 Interim Financial Reporting and the disclosure requirements of the Rules Governing the Listing of Securities on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange.

The unaudited condensed consolidated income statement and balance sheet of the Group have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004) Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement.

The principal accounting policies used in the preparation of the unaudited condensed consolidated income statement and balance sheet of the Group are consistent with those used in the annual audited financial statements of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2004, except for the following standards which have taken effect as at 1 January 2005:

(a) IFRS 2 Share-based Payment requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the Group. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 apply to grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested on or after 1 January 2005. The adoption of IFRS 2 did not give rise to any adjustment to the opening balances of retained profits of the current and prior periods or to any change in comparatives.

(b) IAS 16 (amended 2004) Property, Plant and Equipment replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998) Property, Plant and Equipment. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. Firstly, the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Secondly, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version of the standard included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. Thirdly, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. In addition, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive at the asset's actual retirement date. Furthermore, the amended standard requires major inspection and overhaul costs to be recognised in the carrying amount of an item of property, plant and equipment when performed.

The adoption of the revised treatment of IAS 16 (amended 2004) has been accounted for prospectively, which resulted in the following:

(i) In prior years, the aircraft were depreciated over their estimated useful lives of 20 years. With effect from 1 January 2005, the estimated useful lives of certain components within the aircraft which are subject to replacement during major overhauls have been reduced to the life of the overhaul cycle. The change in accounting estimate has increased the Group's depreciation charge for the six months ended 30 June 2005 by approximately RMB595 million. As a result, the profit after tax of the Group for the six months ended 30 June 2005 has decreased by approximately RMB399 million.

(ii) Major overhaul costs incurred for the six months ended 30 June 2005 of approximately RMB1,243 million have been capitalised and depreciated over the life of the overhaul cycle. Prior to 1 January 2005, such costs have been charged to the income statement on an incurred basis. In this respect, the costs of aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul of the Group charged to the income statement for the six months ended 30 June 2005 decreased by RMB1,243 million. In addition, the Group has derecognised and charged to the income statement for the six months ended 30 June 2005 the carrying amount of certain components of approximately RMB222 million which have been replaced during the major overhaul. As a result, the profit after tax of the Group for the six months ended 30 June 2005 has increased by approximately RMB684 million.

(c) IAS 24 (revised 2003) Related Party Disclosures replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994). The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definition and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

7. EARNINGS PER SHARE

The calculation of basic earnings per share for the six months ended 30 June 2005 is based on the net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent for the six months ended 30 June 2005 of approximately RMB591,253,000, and the weighted average of approximately 9,412,073,189 shares in issue during the period as adjusted to reflect the new issue of 382,592,727 H shares on the exercise of the over-allotment options.

The calculation of basic earnings per share for the six months ended 30 June 2004 is based on the net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent for the six months ended 30 June 2004 of approximately RMB788,352,000, and the number of shares in issue during the period on the assumption that the 6,500,000,000 shares issued as at 30 September 2004, the date of incorporation of the Company, had been in issue throughout the period.

Diluted earnings per share for the six months ended 30 June 2005 and 30 June 2004 has not been calculated because no diluting events existed during these periods.

9. COMPARATIVE FIGURES

In 2004, the Company has reclassified its interest in Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo") from a subsidiary to a joint venture upon the termination of a discussion to acquire additional equity interests in Air China Cargo from another joint venture partner. Accordingly, certain comparative amounts for the six months ended 30 June 2004 have been reclassified to conform with the presentation of the annual audited financial statements of the Group for the year ended 31 December 2004 and the current period's presentation.

MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF OPERATING RESULTS AND FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

Overview

During the first half of 2005, the Company maintained its leading position in the aviation market in China while sustaining a strong and steady growth. For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Company operated a total of 100,489 flights (including all flights operated by Air China Cargo, a 51%-owned joint venture of the Company), serving 72 domestic and 36 international and regional destinations. We offered an average of 3,811 scheduled passenger flights and 34 scheduled cargo flights weekly. The fleet of the Company continued to expand. In the first half of the year, a total of 9 aircraft were introduced into the fleet. As at 30 June 2005, we (including Air China Cargo) operated a fleet of 160 aircraft, including 127 Boeing aircraft, 28 Airbus aircraft, 3 CRJ-200 Bombardiers and 2 business jets.

For the first half of 2005, the Chinese economy and the aviation market continued to grow, thereby maintained the growth in the demand for airline services. However, the sharp increase in jet fuel costs and seasonal fluctuations of air travel exerted relatively substantial pressure on operations in the aviation industry. The rising jet fuel price increased the operating costs of the Group. Without compromising flight safety, the Group has adopted various measures to improve cost controls and efficiency.

For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Group's profit from operations was RMB1,397 million, a decrease of 22.0% compared to the corresponding period in 2004. Net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent amounted to RMB591 million, representing a decrease of 25.0% compared to the corresponding period in 2004. The decreases in profit from operations and net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent were mainly due to the rising jet fuel price.

The consolidated income statement includes the operating results of all associates of the Group. For the six months ended 30 June 2005, share of profits less losses from associates was RMB151 million, representing a decrease of 20.8% from the corresponding period last year, primarily due to the decrease in profits from two associates, namely Dragon Airlines Limited and Shenzhen Airlines.

For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Group's interim earnings per share was RMB0.06, a decrease of 47.9% compared to the corresponding period in 2004. This was mainly due to a 25.0% decrease in the net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent compared to the same period in 2004 and the initial public offer of 2,550,618,182 shares upon the Company's listing in late 2004 and the issue of 382,592,727 additional shares in the beginning of 2005, which increased the weighted average number of shares compared to the corresponding period last year.

As at 30 June 2005, the Company had 18,289 employees and its subsidiaries and joint ventures had 10,026 employees. For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Company has put in place a comprehensive training programme. Under the programme, expert technicians received special operational trainings, while management of various departments at the deputy general manager level or above also received training in rotation. In addition, relevant training programmes were also arranged for other staff.

Operating Revenues

For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Group's operating revenue was RMB16.939 billion, representing an increase of 14.7% compared to the corresponding period last year. Most of our operating revenues were generated from air traffic businesses. In the first half of 2005, air traffic revenues accounted for 92.1% of operating revenues. Among this, revenues from passenger services and from cargo and mail services accounted for 82.2% and 9.9% of operating revenues respectively.

During the first six months of 2005, revenues from passenger services were RMB13.927 billion, representing an increase of 14.6% compared to the corresponding period last year. The capacity of passenger traffic in available seat kilometres ("ASKs") was 33.245 billion kilometres, representing an increase of 7.9% compared to the corresponding period last year. Passenger load factor was 71.9%, representing an increase of 3.3 percentage points compared to the corresponding period last year. Revenues from passenger services of the Group were subject to the seasonality of the aviation industry in the PRC. The peak season of the aviation industry falls between July and October each year with the highest demand for passenger services during that period. As such, the Group's revenue from passenger services in the first half of the year is generally lower than that in the second half.

During the first six months of 2005, revenues from cargo and mail services were RMB1.675 billion, representing an increase of 21.0% compared to the corresponding period last year. Cargo transport capacity in available freight tonne-kilometres ("AFTKs") was 2.391 billion tonnes kilometres (including entire cargo transport capacity in AFTKs of Air China Cargo), representing an increase of 3.2% compared to the corresponding period last year. The cargo and mail load factor was 53.5%, representing an increase of 0.6 percentage point compared to the corresponding period last year. During the first six months of 2005, the daily utilization of aircraft was 10.2 hours, representing an increase of 0.1 hour compared to the corresponding period last year. The load factor was 63.5%, representing an increase of 2.3 percentage points from the corresponding period last year.

Operating Expenses

The operating expenses of the Group primarily comprise jet fuel costs, take-off, landing and depot charges, depreciation, aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses, employee compensation costs and air catering charges. For the six months ended 30 June 2005, the Group recorded an increase in operating expenses of RMB2.559 billion compared to the same period in 2004, primarily as a result of the rising jet fuel costs and depreciation charge. The rise in jet fuel costs was attributable to the increased fuel consumption and the substantial increase in jet fuel prices. Among the operating expenses, jet fuel costs accounted for RMB5.062 billion, representing an increase of RMB1.449 billion from the corresponding period last year. Jet fuel costs as a percentage of operating expenses increased from 27.8% for the corresponding period last year to 32.6% for the six months ended 30 June 2005. The Group endeavoured to take measures to conserve fuel and enhance efficiency. Through reducing fuel consumption and jet fuel hedging, the Group has successfully achieved a cost savings of RMB93.53 million. In addition, the collection of fuel surcharge also helped to relieve the pressure of rising jet fuel costs.

Depreciation charges increased due to the adoption of the revised treatment of IAS 16 Property, Plant and Equipment and fleet expansion. The decrease in aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses primarily arose from the adoption of the revised treatment of IAS 16. Details on the accounting policies and revised treatment of IAS 16 are set out in note 1 to the the section headed "Financial Information" in this announcement.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

The Group finances its working capital needs through cash inflows from operating activities and bank loans. Like many other airlines in the PRC, the Group has been operating with a net current liabilities position. As at 31 December 2004 and 30 June 2005, net current liabilities of the Group were RMB6.860 billion and RMB8.844 billion respectively. The increase in net current liabilities was primarily due to a decrease in current assets, particularly a RMB2.514 billion decrease in cash and cash equivalents, coupled with an increase in current liabilities.

As at 31 December 2004 and 30 June 2005, the short term loans of the Group were RMB8.806 billion and RMB9.220 billion respectively, while the long-term loans were RMB12.897 billion and RMB11.441 billion respectively. As of 31 December 2004 and 30 June 2005, our short-term obligations under finance leases were RMB1.705 billion and RMB2.048 billion, respectively, while our long-term obligations under finance leases were RMB10.576 billion and RMB9.180 billion, respectively. The Company has sufficient liquidity and expects to meet its liabilities by internal resources, bank loans and other resources as they fall due.

Gearing Ratio

As at 30 June 2005, the Group's gearing ratio, which represents total liabilities divided by total assets, was 70.4%, dropped by 2.6 percentage points, from 73.0% as at 31 December 2004.

Asset Mortgage

As at 30 June 2005, the Group mortgaged certain aircraft with an aggregate carrying amount of approximately RMB27.081 billion (compared to RMB28.585 billion as at 31 December 2004) pursuant to certain loan and lease agreements.
As at 30 June 2005, certain of the Group's bank deposits in the amount of approximately RMB165 million (compared to RMB117 million as at 31 December 2004) were pledged against the Group's bank and other loans, and obligations in respect of certain operating leases and financial derivatives.

Hedging Instruments

Pursuant to approval by the board of directors, the Company engaged in jet fuel forward contracts to hedge its fuel exposure. The hedging position in oil and oil-derivative products held by the Company in 2005 was restricted to a maximum of 30% of its jet fuel consumption. As of 30 June 2005, the total jet fuel hedging position of the Company was equivalent to 4.5% of its jet fuel consumption in the first half of the year.

Capital Expenditure

During the six months ended 30 June 2005, the capital expenditure of the Company amounted to RMB3.792 billion. The Company's total investment in aircraft was RMB3.362 billion, including a prepayment of RMB2.682 billion for purchasing aircraft from 2006 onwards.

Other investments in capital expenditure items were RMB430 million, which mainly involve the improvement of first class and business class cabins of certain aircraft, ancillary projects in No. 3 Terminal of Beijing International Airport, as well as certain long-term investment projects.

Capital Commitments and Contingent Liabilities

As at 30 June 2005, the Group had capital commitments of approximately RMB23.149 billion, primarily for the purchase of certain aircraft and relevant flight equipment to be delivered in the coming years, and for the construction of certain properties.

As at 30 June 2005, the Group committed to make a capital contribution of approximately RMB372 million (US$45 million) to a joint venture.

As at 30 June 2005, the Company is one of the defendants in a lawsuit pending in the San Francisco Superior Court filed by Environmental World Watch Inc. ("EWW"). The complaint alleges that the Company and certain other commercial airlines operating in California have violated the California Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act (Health and Safety Code Section 25249.5). EWW alleges that the Company and these other airlines caused environmental exposure and occupational exposure from aircraft emissions without providing warnings required by the statue. Up to the date of this announcement, the Company has not been served with the complaint by EWW and, therefore, has not been required to appear in the court to defend against the allegation. The status of the proceedings is still preliminary and, therefore, the directors are of the view that it is not possible to estimate the eventual outcome of the claim with reasonable certainty at this stage. The directors are of the opinion that, based on advice from the Company's lawyers in the United States, even if the Company is served with the complaint and is therefore required to appear in the court, it would appear to have valid defense against this litigation and, accordingly, the directors consider that no provision for this complaint is needed.

Save as disclosed above, there have been no material adverse changes in the contingent liabilities of the Group since 31 December 2004.

MATERIAL EVENTS

On 7 January 2005, the International Underwriters exercised in full the over-allotment options referred to in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004, involving the over-allocation of shares (equivalent to approximately 15% of the H shares of the Company (the "H Shares") initially offered under the global offering of the H Shares) solely for satisfying the over-allocation in the international offering. The Company issued and allotted, and CNAHC and China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG") offered, 382,592,727, 29,749,686 and 8,509,587 over-allotment shares respectively, in each case at HK$2.98 per H Share (being the offer price per H Share under the international offering, exclusive of brokerage, SFC transaction levy, investor compensation levy and Stock Exchange trading fee). The net proceeds of approximately HK$1.1 billion (net of various costs, which mainly comprise underwriting commission, Stock Exchange trading fee, SFC transaction levy and investor compensation levy) from the issue of 382,592,727 over-allotment shares will be used by the Company for the acquisition of various aircraft and repayment of liabilities due within one year.

On 25 May 2005, the Company obtained confirmation from the People's Bank of China regarding a proposed issue of short-term commercial papers. The Company issued short-term commercial papers totalling RMB2 billion, which were listed and traded on the inter-bank debenture markets. The proceeds from the issue of short-term commercial papers will be applied as working capital.

On 30 May 2005, at the Annual General Meeting for the year ended 31 December 2004, Mr. David Muir Turnbull was elected a director of the Company.

POST BALANCE SHEET EVENTS

Subsequent to 30 June 2005, domestic airlines within China, including the Company, were permitted to levy fuel surcharges for domestic routes (excluding routes between Mainland China and Hong Kong and Macau) to partially offset the rise in jet fuel costs. For the period between 1 August 2005 to 31 December 2005, domestic airlines are permitted to levy fuel surcharges of RMB20 and RMB40 per person for passengers travelling a flight distance of below and over 800 km respectively.

Since 5 July 2005, Mr. Zheng Baoan has been appointed in place of Mr. Fan Cheng as a new joint company secretary of the Company. This change of joint company secretary has been approved by the Board of the Company and was disclosed in an announcement dated 11 July 2005.

On 8 August 2005, the Company and the Boeing Company entered into an agreement in respect of the purchase of 15 Boeing 787 aircraft, which has been disclosed in a public announcement. The transaction has been approved by the Board and CNAHC, the controlling shareholder of the Company. A circular in this regard has been despatched to the shareholders on 30 August 2005.

On 21 July 2005, the People's Bank of China announced the introduction of a regulated, managed floating exchange rate system in the PRC based on market supply and demand and with reference to a basket of currencies. On 21 July 2005, the exchange rate between the US dollar and Renminbi was adjusted to US$1 to RMB8.11. The Board of the Company believes that such appreciation of RMB will not have any adverse effect on the operating results and financial positions of the Group.

Notes:

1. Group reorganisation and basis of presentation

The Company was incorporated on 30 September 2004 in Beijing, the People's Republic of China (the "PRC"), as a joint stock limited company as part of the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of China National Aviation Holding Company ("CNAHC"), a state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "Hong Kong Stock Exchange") and the UK Listing Authority on 15 December 2004.

Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(a) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to the business of the provision of airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(b) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally carry on the business of the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the Company entered into a restructuring agreement with CNAHC and China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG" and which is a Hong Kong incorporated company wholly owned by CNAHC) on 20 November 2004 (the "Restructuring Agreement"), pursuant to which CNAHC and CNACG agreed to undergo a restructuring and establish the Company. In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNAHC transferred to the Company, among other things, the following:

(a) all of the airline and airline-related businesses operated by Air China International Corporation (中國國際航空公司), the Company's immediate predecessor;

(b) all related assets, including aircraft and other property, plant and equipment of Air China International Corporation;

(c) all related liabilities, including Air China International Corporation's bank loans; and

(d) the equity interests in various investees in airline and airline-related businesses owned by Air China International Corporation, including equity interests in Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo"), Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering Corporation, and Shenzhen Airlines Co., Ltd.

In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNACG transferred its approximately 69% equity interests in China National Aviation Company Limited ("CNAC") to the Company by way of a capital contribution.

The effective date of the Restructuring was 30 September 2004. Further details of the restructuring are set out in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004 issued in respect of the listing of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the UK Listing Authority.

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the Group's consolidated income statement include the Group's results of operations as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2003. The Company's Directors are of the opinion that the consolidated income statement prepared on this basis present fairly the consolidated results of the Group as a whole. Therefore, the net profit for the year ended 31 December 2004 includes the consolidated results before the Restructuring.

3. Air traffic revenue

Air traffic revenues comprise revenues from the airline business and are stated net of business tax and contributions to the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China ("CAAC") Infrastructure Development Fund. The CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, which was deducted from gross air traffic revenues for the year ended 31 December 2003, was included in other flight operation expenses for the year ended 31 December 2004 to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government. 	30,834,822	23,422,660

(a) Pursuant to various PRC business tax rules and regulations, the Group is required to pay business tax to the local tax bureaus at the following rates:

Type of revenue	Applicable business tax rate
Air traffic revenues	3% of air traffic revenues. All inbound international and Hong Kong and Macau regional flights are exempted from business tax.
Other revenues	3% of commission income and ground services income, and 3% to 5% of other revenues.

PRC business tax incurred for the two years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004, deducted from air traffic revenues, amounted to approximately RMB240 million and RMB711 million, respectively.

For the period from 1 May 2003 to 31 December 2003, PRC business tax for all domestic, international and regional passenger traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome ("SARS") in the region.

(b) In addition, the Group was required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund which was calculated at the rates of 5% and 2% on the domestic and international/Hong Kong and Macau regional air traffic revenues, respectively, for the year ended 31 December 2003.

For the period from 1 May 2003 to 31 December 2003, CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund for all domestic, international and regional passenger, cargo and mail traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of SARS in the region.

For the period from 1 January 2004 to 31 March 2004, the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was suspended by the PRC government. As such, no CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was charged to the income statement of the Group for the three-month period ended 31 March 2004. Effective from 1 April 2004, the Group is required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund calculated on the basis of the usage of domestic routes and domestic segments of international routes, geographic area and length of routes and aircraft weight.

(a) Pursuant to the Restructuring, the air cargo business and relevant air cargo assets and liabilities (the "Air Cargo Business") were solely operated and owned solely by the Group as if it had been directly held by the Group as of 1 January 2003 in accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to this income statement. In 2004, the entire Air Cargo Business was transferred to Air China Cargo, a 51% owned joint venture of the Company, for a total consideration of approximately RMB1,795 million. Subsequent to the transfer of Air Cargo Business to Air China Cargo, the Group's effective interest in Air Cargo Business was diluted from 100% to 51% and, accordingly, a gain on dilution of investment in Air Cargo Business of approximately RMB330 million arose.

(b) In accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to this income statement, 60% shareholding interest in BACL and 75% shareholding interest in SWACL were deemed to be held by the Group as of 1 January 2003

During 2004, the Group transferred its entire 60% shareholding interest in BACL and 60% shareholding interest in SWACL to Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, for a consideration of RMB294 million and RMB67 million, respectively.

In addition to the above, the Group also transferred its remaining 15% shareholding interest in SWACL to Hongkong Southwest Air Catering Limited ("HKSACL"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million.

Subsequent to the completion of the above transactions, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively, and accordingly, gains on dilution of investments in BACL and SWACL aggregating approximately RMB80 million arose.

8. Tax

According to the PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law, the Company, its subsidiaries and joint ventures established in the PRC are subject to the enterprise income tax at a rate of 33% (2003: 33%) on their taxable income.

Hong Kong profits tax has been provided at the rate of 17.5% (2003: 17.5%) on the estimated assessable profits arising in Hong Kong during the year.

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant

Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on 30 September 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation was calculated at the applicable tax rate on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to domestic enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to shareholders for the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) will be calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau.

Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company will settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureaus.

The determination of current and deferred income tax was based on enacted tax rates. Major components of income tax charge are as follows:

(i) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in BACL ("BACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB294 million; and

(ii) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in SWACL ("SWACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB67 million.

On 20 April 2004, Air China International Corporation entered into a stock transfer agreement with HKSACL ("HKSACL Agreement"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, pursuant to which, Air China International Corporation disposed of 15% of the equity interest in SWACL to HKSACL for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million. On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of HKSACL Agreement were completed and this agreement was effective on that date accordingly.

Immediately after the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively.

As a result of the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Company made a payment of approximately RMB378 million to CNAHC, representing the total consideration payable by CNAC and HKSACL for the acquisitions of the entire shareholding interests held by the Group in BACL and SWACL pursuant to the Restructuring as set out in note 1 to this income statement. This payment has been made to CNAHC and accounted for as a special distribution to CNAHC by the Company.

(b) In accordance with the (財政部關於印發《企業公司制改建有關國有資本管理與財務處理的暫行規定》的通知) "Provisional Regulation Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance (the English title is a direct translation of the Chinese title of the notice), which became effective from 27 August 2002, and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the accounting principles and the financial regulations applicable in the PRC ("PRC GAAP"), generated, during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC after giving effect to relevant necessary adjustments. The net profit attributable to shareholders mentioned above for the said period is calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC of approximately RMB191,721,000 which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau as detailed in note 8 to this income statement.

In addition, in accordance with (財政部關於印發《企業公司制改建有關國有資本管理與財務處理的暫行規定》的通知處理的暫行規定》的通知) "Provisional Regulation Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated, during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG.

(c) The profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company represent the net assets which have been carved-out and treated as deemed distributions pursuant to the Restructuring set out in note 1 to this income statement and dividends paid during that period.

The rates of dividend and the number of shares ranking for dividends are not presented in this footnote for those profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company as such information is not considered meaningful.

Cash dividends to shareholders in Hong Kong will be paid in Hong Kong dollars.

Following the incorporation of the Company, under the PRC Company Law and the Company's Articles of Association, net profit after tax as reported in the PRC statutory financial statements can only be distributed as dividends after allowance has been made for the following:

(i) Making up prior years' cumulative losses, if any;

(ii) Allocations to the statutory common reserve fund of at least 10% of after-tax profit, until the fund aggregates 50% of the Company's registered capital. For the purpose of calculating the transfer to reserves, the profit after tax shall be the amount determined under the PRC GAAP. The transfer to this reserve must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

The statutory common reserve fund can be used to offset previous years' losses, if any, and part of the statutory common reserve fund can be capitalized as the Company's share capital provided that the amount of such reserve remaining after the capitalisation shall not be less than 25% of the share capital of the Company;

(iii) Allocations of 5% to 10% of after-tax profit, as determined under PRC GAAP, to the Company's statutory public welfare fund, which will be established for the purpose of providing for the Company's employees collective welfare benefits such as the construction of dormitories, canteens and other staff welfare facilities. The fund forms part of the shareholders' equity as only individual employees can use these facilities, while the title of such facilities is held by the Company. The transfer to this fund must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders; and

(iv) Allocations to the discretionary common reserve if approved by the shareholders.

The above reserves cannot be used for purposes other than those for which they are created and are not distributable as cash dividends.

In accordance with the articles of association of the Company, the net profit after tax of the Company for the purpose of profit distribution is based on the lesser of (i) the net profit determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and (ii) the net profit determined in accordance with IFRS.

Prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, no profit appropriations to the aforesaid reserve funds were required.

REPORT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS

BUSINESS REVIEW OF 2004

The Group is the national flag carrier and a leading provider of air passenger, air cargo and airline related services in China. Taking advantage of its balanced network of extensive and complementary domestic and international routes as well as its dominant role in Beijing, the Company offers non-stop and transit services to its passengers from overseas, mainland China and Hong Kong and Macau. As at 31 December 2004, we operated an overall of 183,693 flights serving 72 domestic and 36 international and regional destinations. We offered an average of 3,426 scheduled passenger flights and 367 scheduled cargo flights weekly. We operated a fleet of 151 aircraft (excluding the aircraft operated by CNAC), including 124 Boeing aircraft, 26 Airbus aircraft, and 1 business jet, the average age of our fleet was 8.1 years.

During the past year, Chinese and global economy continued to improve, thereby bringing about a rapid surge of market demand for airline services in China, which in turn eliminated the adverse effects of the outbreak of SARS in 2003. Meanwhile, the Group also faced certain challenges due to the soaring price of international jet fuel and intensified market competition. Against this background, the Group captured the market opportunity by adopting a series of effective measures, resulting in a great improvement in financial results as well as keeping the Company's leading position in China aviation market. In 2004, we were appointed as the exclusive airline partner of 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, which significantly promoted the Company's brand recognition. In addition, the successful listing of the Company's H shares on Hong Kong and London stock markets laid a solid foundation for the Group's future development.

The Group operated certain airline business through its subsidiaries and operating results of each subsidiary have already been calculated into the consolidated financial statement. The Company's largest subsidiary, CNAC (Stock Code: 1110) is listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. CNAC is the controlling shareholder of Air Macau and the single largest shareholder of Dragonair. In 2003 and 2004, the operating revenues of CNAC accounted for 5.7% and 6.0% of the operating revenues of the Group in these years respectively.

In 2004, Air China Cargo Co., Ltd ("Air China Cargo"), a former branch of the Company, became a joint venture in which the Group held 51% of its equity. In 2004, the Group completed acquisitions of 48% shares in Shandong Aviation Group and 22.8% shares in Shandong Airlines.

The Group's business, its financial position and operating results as well as the comparison of the Group's financial results over the corresponding periods in previous years were mainly affected by such external factors as the development of Chinese economy and international trade, regulation of aviation industry, price of jet fuel, special events, the seasonal nature of airline business, performance of associates, financing costs and etc, which were beyond the control of the Group to a certain extent.

Cathay Pacific Airways Limited ("Cathay Pacific") acquired 10% equity of the Company as a strategic investor upon our listing. This not only provides a platform for cooperation between the companies in many business and operation sectors, but also creates opportunities for our network connection between Hong Kong and Beijing. Moreover, such a relationship helps to improve the operation efficiency as well as the management level of the Company. In addition, the Company holds indirect interest in Dragonair and Air Macau through CNAC and enjoys cooperation with Dragonair under the code share arrangement on some routes between Hong Kong and the mainland. The Company also has a similar cooperation arrangement with Air Macau through which the Company expects to realize better profitability.

As at 31 December 2004, the Group had a total of 29,133 employees (including total head count of joint ventures and associates), most of whom work in China. The employees' compensation is primarily composed of the basic salary and performance-based bonus. The Group did not experience a material loss of employees or encounter any difficulties in recruiting new employees.

Operating Revenues

Our operating revenues principally included air traffic revenues and other operating revenues. Most of our operating revenues were from air traffic revenues, representing 92.0% of operation revenues in 2004, while the other operating revenues representing 8.0% of operating revenues. Among air traffic revenues in 2004, 89.7% was generated from passenger services and 10.3% was from cargo and mail services.

Operating revenue increased 36.0% to RMB33,521 million in 2004 from RMB24,641 million in 2003, mainly due to revenue growth from passenger services. Revenue from passenger services increased 45.4% to RMB27,665 million in 2004 from RMB19,030 million in 2003. The capacity of passenger traffic in available seat kilometers ("ASKs") increased 27.9% to 64,894 million kilometres in 2004 from 50,733 million kilometres in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 71.9% in 2004 from 66.0% in 2003. Income in each RPK increased 3.7% to RMB0.56 in 2004 from RMB0.54 in 2003. In 2004, the daily utilization of aircraft averaged at 10.2 hours, increased 1.5 hours compared to 2003.

Revenue generated from international passenger services accounted for 39.2% of the total revenue from passenger services of the Group in 2004, representing an increase of 62.6% to RMB10,835 million in 2004 from RMB6,663 million in 2003, and the main reason behind this growth was an apparent recovery of the demand for international airlines services in 2004 from the SARS outbreak in 2003 and an increased input of transport capacity in international routes by the Group. The passenger transport capacity (in ASKs) of international routes of the Group increased 41.5% to 27,897 million kilometres in 2004 from 19,709 million kilometres in 2003. The passenger load factor increased to 70.4% in 2004 from 64.8% in 2003. Level of passenger yield from international routes increased to RMB0.51 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.47 per RPK in 2003.

Revenue generated from domestic passenger services accounted for 55.4% of the Group's total revenue from passenger services in 2004, increasing 38.3% to RMB15,340 million in 2004 from RMB11,093 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of passenger load factor of domestic airlines and level of yielding. The passenger transport capacity (at ASKs) of domestic airlines of the Group increased 19.5% to 34,627 million kilometres in 2004 from 28,983 million kilometres in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 73.6% in 2004 from 67.4% in 2003. Level of yield from passenger services in domestic airlines increased to RMB0.60 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.57 per RPK in 2003.

Passenger transport revenue from Hong Kong and Macau accounted for 5.4% of the Group's passenger transport revenue of in 2004, increasing 16.9% to RMB1,490 million in 2004 from RMB1,274 million in 2003, primarily due to the uprising of passenger load factor in Hong Kong and Macau airlines. The passenger transport capacity (in ASKs) of Hong Kong and Macau airlines of the Group increased 16.1% to 2,371 million kilometres in 2004 from 2,042 million kilometres in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 64.5% in 2004 from 58.1% in 2003. Level of passenger yield from Hong Kong and Macau airlines decreased to RMB0.67 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.68 per RPK in 2003.

Revenue from cargo and mail operations decreased 27.8% to RMB3,170 million in 2004 from RMB4,392 million in 2003, primarily due to the fact that Air China Cargo Co., Ltd, which is engaged in cargo operations, was transformed from a previous branch of the Company into a joint venture in 2004, which resulted in proportionate consolidation in the accounts. The cargo transport capacity (in AFTKs) increased 20.2% to 4,843 million tonne kilometres in 2004 from 4,028 million tonne kilometres in 2003. The overall carrying ratio of cargo transport decreased to 53.5% in 2004 from 54.8% in 2003. The overall cargo yield rate increased to RMB2.03 for each yield tonne kilometre in 2004 from RMB1.87 for each yield tonne kilometre in 2003.

Other operating revenue increased 120.4% to RMB2,686 million in 2004 from RMB1,219 million in 2003, primarily due to the income generated from leasing bellyhold of passenger aircraft to Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. by the Company.

Operating Expenses

Operating expenses increased 29.9% to RMB29,036 million in 2004 from RMB22,357 million in 2003, primarily due to increases in jet fuel costs, take-off, landing and depot charges and aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses, and employee compensation costs. Operating expenses as a percentage of operating revenues decreased to 86.6% in 2004 from 90.7% in 2003.

Jet fuel expenses increased 54% to RMB8,354 million in 2004 from RMB5,425 million in 2003, primarily due to the increased consumption of jet fuel as a result of the increased number of flights operated and higher domestic and international jet fuel prices. Our weighted average jet fuel cost for each barrel increased 25.7% to RMB474 in 2004 from RMB377 in 2003.

Take-off, landing and depot charges increased 22.6% to RMB4,230 million in 2004 from RMB3,450 million in 2003, primarily due to the increased number of flights operated.

Depreciation expenses increased 2.5% to RMB3,463 million in 2004 from RMB3,377 million in 2003, primarily due to the acquisition of eleven aircraft from August to September in 2004.

Aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses increased 32.0% to RMB2,836 million in 2004 from RMB2,149 million in 2003, primarily due to increased line maintenance requirements as a result of increased block hours.

Employee compensation costs increased 22.8% to RMB2,921 million in 2004 from RMB2,379 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of flight hours.

Air catering charges increased 39.0% to RMB1,172 million in 2004 from RMB843 million in 2003, primarily due to an increase in the number of passengers carried.

Aircraft and jet engines operating lease expenses increased 17.7% to RMB1,071 million in 2004 from RMB910 million in 2003, primarily due to the net addition of nine aircraft acquired through operating leases.

Other operating lease expenses increased 2.7% to RMB187 million in 2004 from RMB182 million in 2003, primarily due to higher rental rates for our terminal stations and sales offices as compared to the lower rental rates for the same negotiated after the SARS outbreak.

Other flight operation expenses increased 27.7% to RMB2,698 million in 2004 from RMB2,112 million in 2003, primarily due to a change in the accounting method of the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, whereby it is no longer offset by revenues but is released to costs directly.

Selling and marketing expenses increased 31.1% to RMB1,387 million in 2004 from RMB1,058 million in 2003, primarily due to higher sales commissions as a result of increased ticket sales.

General and administrative expenses increased 51.8% to RMB715 million in 2004 from RMB471 million in 2003, primarily due to higher traveling expenses resulting from increased business volume and higher expenditures for Olympics aids and fixed assets retirement.

Income Tax

The Company is subject to the PRC income tax at a rate of 33%. The income tax increased to RMB1,108 million in 2004 from RMB90 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of the profit before tax in 2004.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

We finance our working capital needs through cash flows from operating activities and bank loans. As at 31 December 2003 and 2004, the total amount of cash and cash equivalents of the Group were RMB2,620 million and RMB9,734 million respectively. In 2003 and 2004, the Group generated net cash from operating activities of RMB5,425 million and RMB6,151 million respectively, whilst the Group's net cash outflow from investing activities in the same period reached RMB4,360 million and RMB5,009 million respectively, primarily due to the amounts utilized for purchase and improvement of aircraft and aviation equipment. In 2004, the Group generated cash inflow of RMB5,620 million from financing activities, primarily due to the new issue of shares by the Company at the end of the year, while in 2003, the Group recorded cash outflow from financing activities of RMB2,207 million, primarily due to the repayment of certain bank loans.

Similar to other Chinese airlines, we have been operating with a net current liabilities position. As at 31 December 2003 and 2004, the net current liabilities of the Group were RMB12,384 million and RMB6,860 million respectively. The decrease of net current liabilities was primarily due to the increase of the current assets as a result of the new issue of H shares by the Company.

As at 31 December 2003 and 2004, the short-term bank and other borrowings of the Group were RMB9,237 million and RMB8,806 million respectively, while the long-term bank and other borrowings were RMB12,820 million and RMB12,897 million respectively in the same period. As at 31 December 2004, the equity attributable to shareholders of the Group was RMB16,548 million, representing an increase of RMB9,655 million from RMB6,893 million in the previous year, primarily due to the public issue of 2,805,680,000 H shares with a par value of RMB1.00 each at an issue price of HKD2.98 per share in Hong Kong.

Financial Risk Management Policy

The Group is exposed to the fluctuations in jet fuel price during its ordinary operations. International jet fuel prices have been historically, and will in the future continue to be, subject to price volatility and fluctuations in supply and demand. Our strategy for managing our jet fuel price risk aims to provide us with protection against sudden and significant price increases. To meet these objectives, we will continue to use instruments such as swaps, options and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits. The Group recorded a gain of RMB170 million and RMB41 million from the derivative instruments from jet fuel used by us in 2003 and 2004, respectively.

A substantial portion of the Group's debt, part of its operating revenues and expenses and capital expenditures are denominated in certain major foreign currencies and consequently subject to fluctuations in exchange rates. The Group recorded exchange losses of RMB297 million and RMB55 million in 2003 and 2004, respectively. In order to reduce our foreign currency risk, we have pursued a strategy of reducing, for certain major foreign currencies, the mismatch between our revenues and payments denominated in such currencies. We are also currently evaluating proposals to hedge our foreign currency exposure by entering into hedge transactions.

Such forward-looking statements are subject to some uncertainties and risks.

Looking forward, as the economic globalization proliferates, we are fully aware of the challenges and opportunities lying ahead. The greatest opportunity is that Chinese economy is now in a prime strategic opportunity period of growth. In the coming three years, the demand for air transport will keep growing at an anticipated rate of 13% to 15%. The international market will grow faster than the domestic market while the cargo sector will grow faster than passenger sector. However, influenced by international political and economic situation, the cost of jet fuel may stay high and the competition can be more severe. Interest rate, exchange rate and capital market are all undergoing frequent changes. All these have brought new challenges to the Company's financial risks control capability.

Where there is a challenge, opportunity stands aside, go head in. The Company is now facing a good opportunity for development and reform. By completing airline integration and the restructuring and listing the Company accomplished some milestone achievements. We have set our mission statement as: to be the favored airline for mainstream passengers; to be the most valuable and profitable airline in China and to be an airline with international competitiveness.

In light of the market environment and our current operations, we plan to implement the following strategies in order to enhance our competitiveness in 2005:

1. Through functional integration, transform and streamline our organizational structure to enhance our operational efficiency. To tighten internal risk control and prevent operational risk exposure.
2. Solidify our hub position while build up a more rational market reach. Continue to focus on Beijing, Chengdu and East China markets, give appropriate attention to the South China market, and realize more synergy by working closely with our Hong Kong and Macao counterparts.
3. Strengthen our competitiveness in a balanced international and domestic networks.
4. Deploy more air cargo capacity. Optimize cargo transportation network, improve cargo transportation product development and design.
5. Continue our efforts in providing safe, convenient, comfortable and customerised services. Improve the quality of our services, and further develop brand name by leveraging the opportunities created by our partnership with the Olympic Games.

Air China Limited (the "Company") is a joint stock limited company with limited liability incorporated in the PRC under the laws of the PRC on September 30, 2004. The Company has an extensive operating history in China through its predecessors and has historically been the principal Chinese airline providing international, domestic and regional airline services. Our original predecessor was the Beijing Administrative Bureau of Civil Aviation Administration of China which is now known as the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China ("CAAC"), which began providing air services since 1955. Our immediate predecessor was established in 1988 as Air China International Corporation to assume the operations of the CAAC's Beijing Administrative Bureau.

Our parent company, China National Aviation Holding Company ("CNAHC"), was formed in October 2002 to hold certain airline and airline-related assets, including the equity interest of Air China International Corporation. Air China International Corporation also merged with China National Aviation Corporation ("CNAC (PRC)"), which owned Zhejiang Airlines, and China Southwest Airlines in October 2002. In 2003, China Southwest Airlines and CNAC Zhejiang Airlines were dissolved as legal entities and their respective airline operations, assets and liabilities, and employees were integrated with Air China International Corporation.

We were established by restructuring for the purpose of initial public offering in 2004. By way of restructuring, we assumed all the airline and airline-related business operated by Air China International Corporation, together with its related assets and liabilities, including its aircraft and related equipment and the equity interests in various investees. In addition, we assumed from China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG") a controlling interest of approximately 69% in China National Aviation Company Limited ("CNAC"), a company listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange that provides passenger and cargo air transportation and other airline-related services through its subsidiaries and affiliates. CNAC in turn owns approximately 43.3% of Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited ("Dragonair") and 51.0% of Air Macau Company Limited ("Air Macau"). We have also acquired 48.0% of the equity interest of Shandong Aviation Group and 22.8% of the equity interest of Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd. whose B Shares are listed on Shenzhen Stock Exchange.

Our business scope mainly covers: international and domestic scheduled and non-scheduled passenger, cargo, mail and luggage transportation, domestic and international business jet service, aircraft custody, aircraft maintenance, agency service between airlines; other businesses related to above core business include ground service and aviation courier service (except mail and objects of the same nature as mail) and in-flight duty free items. We provide above airline-related services in Beijing, Chengdu, Hong Kong and other locations through our own business units and joint ventures with prominent companies, including Deutsche Lufthansa AG ("Lufthansa") and Hong Kong Jardine Matheson Ltd.

As of December 31, 2004, the Company, including Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo"), operated a fleet of 151 aircraft, mainly including B747, B737, B767, B777, B757, A319, A320, A340 and one business jet (Gulfstream IV).

On December 15, 2004, our Company had its H Shares, namely overseas listed foreign invested shares, successfully listed in Hong Kong and London.

Dear shareholders,

On behalf of the board of directors of Air China Limited, I wish to express our sincere appreciation for your support to the Group (including Air China Limited, its subsidiaries and joint ventures).

In 2004, the Group achieved a great-leap-forward development. By seizing the market opportunities, we focused our efforts on corporate restructuring and listing preparation, flight safety maintenance as well as on internal operation coordination enhancement. Despite the fact that the global aviation industry experienced a recession for three consecutive years, our H Shares were successfully listed on both Hong Kong and London stock exchanges on December 15, 2004, achieving gross proceeds of approximately USD1,120 million or approximately RMB9,300 million in equivalent (taking into account of proceeds from subsequent exercise of over-allotment option). We topped the list of all initial public offerings among the airlines over the past seventeen years. With a premium of 101% of share issue price over net asset value per share at June 30, 2004, the shareholders' equity of the Company amounts to RMB16,548 million and the liabilities to assets ratio reduced to approximately 72.97%. As a result, the capital structure of the Company has been optimized, with our brand value significantly enhanced and our corporate governance structure further improved.

In 2004, the Group achieved the best performance ever in its history for major performance indicators and consolidated profit before tax reached RMB3,657 million. Air traffic revenue and other operating revenue reached RMB30,835 million and RMB2,686 million respectively, representing increases of 31.6% and 120.4% over 2003. According to CAAC's statistics, our total profit accounted for over 50% of the total profit of the whole mainland China airlines.

To improve our services, the Group established an efficient internal service management system while at the same time adopted measures to maintain and upkeep customer relationship, resulting in a decrease of about 17% in customer complaints compared to the previous year. Last year, the Company was appointed as the only airline partner of 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, which greatly boosted the brand name of the Company. In 2004, according to a travellers' satisfaction survey, the Company obtained two awards, namely Excellence Award for Travellers' Satisfaction and Excellence Award for Service Brand categorized for airlines carrying over 15 million passengers. Our successful listing in Hong Kong and London make our brand the focus among the media and the investors, thereby significantly enhancing our intangible asset value.

Cathay Pacific Airways Limited ("Cathay Pacific"), as a strategic investor, acquired 10% share capital of the Company upon its listing. This not only provides a platform for cooperation between the two companies in many business and operation sectors, but also creates opportunities for network connection between Hong Kong and Beijing. Such a relationship helps to improve the operation efficiency as well as the management capability of the Company. In addition, the Company holds indirect interest in Dragonair and Air Macau through CNAC and enjoyed cooperation with Dragonair under codeshare arrangements on certain routes between Hong Kong and the mainland China. We also have a similar cooperation arrangement with Air Macau through which we expect to realize better profitability.

Looking forward, as the economic globalization proliferates, we are fully aware of the challenges and opportunities lying ahead. The greatest opportunity is that the Chinese economy is now in a prime period of strategic growth. In the coming three years, the demand for air traffic will keep going at an anticipated growth rate of 13% to 15%. The international market will grow faster than the domestic market while the cargo sector will grow faster than the passenger sector. However, affected by international political and economic environment, the cost of jet fuel may stay high and the competition can be more severe. Interest rate, exchange rate and capital market are also undergoing frequent changes. All these will present new challenges to the Group's financial risks control capability.

Where there is challenge, there is opportunity. The Group is now facing an opportunity for development and transformation. By completing airline integration and listing, the Group achieved significant milestones. Our fleet is expanding rapidly and, when the fleet of all the Company's subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates are taken into account, the fleet comprises over 250 aircraft, which could enable us to enjoy economies of scale. Our development focus on hub and network, whereby strengthening our dominance over the market. We have already built up our competitive edge within the sector and re-secured our leading position. All these have laid a solid foundation for a rapid, healthy and balanced development of the Group in the future. Our goal is to maximise the value of the Company and to establish the Company as the favored airline for mainstream passengers, the most valuable and profitable airline in China and an airline with international competitiveness.

In 2005, without prejudice to safety operation, the Company will further enhance our core competitiveness and brand recognition to create a sound development environment featured by safety, high efficiency and sustaining profitability. Thus the Company will take the following measures:

1. Through functional integration, transform and streamline our organizational structure to enhance our operational efficiency. To tighten internal risk control and prevent operational risk exposure.

2. Solidify our hub position while building up a more rational market reach. Continue to focus on Beijing, Chengdu and East China markets, give appropriate attention to the South China market, and realize more synergy by working closely with our Hong Kong and Macau counterparts.

3. Strengthen our competitiveness in a balanced international and domestic network.

4. Deploy more air cargo capacity. Optimize cargo transportation network.

5. Continue our efforts in providing safe, convenient, comfortable and customerised services. Improve the quality of our services, and further enhance our brand name recognition by leveraging our status as the only airline partner of the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games.

Looking back, in 2004, the Company well exceeded the profit forecast made at the time of its initial public offering, thus affirming its commitment to its shareholders. I would like, on behalf of the board of directors, to express my appreciation to the management team and staff of the Group for their professionalism and dedication. Last but not the least, I, on behalf of the board of directors, would like to thank our shareholders for their trust and support.

We are the national flag carrier of China and a leading provider of air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services in China. We are primarily based in Beijing, the capital and a major hub for domestic and international air transportation. We have the largest share of air transportation business at Beijing Capital International Airport, China's busiest airport. With our operational centre in Beijing and extensive route network serving major Chinese cities and international destinations, we believe we are well positioned to capture the growing demand for airline services in greater China.

Our leading position in the Chinese air transportation market is primarily attributed to our status as:

China's largest commercial airline, accounting for approximately 29.2% of the total RTKs flown by all Chinese airlines in 2004, according to CAAC statistics;

China's largest air cargo services provider, accounting for approximately 36.0% of the total RFTKs flown by all Chinese airlines in 2004, according to CAAC statistics;

the Chinese airline with the highest brand value, according to World Brand Lab, which ranked "Air China" the 32nd most valuable brand name in China, the highest ranked Chinese airline brand.

We believe that by operating a well-balanced route network with complementary domestic and international routes, we can provide our passengers with convenient direct flights and transfer services. Our investments in Air Macau, Dragonair, Shenzhen Airline and Shandong Airline allow us to benefit from the growth in other aviation markets. We have formed business partnerships with various leading international and regional airlines, which we believe will assist us in broadening our scope of service, expanding our international customer base and providing additional customized customer services.

As of December 31, 2004, the Company (including Air China Cargo) operated a fleet of 151 aircraft, serving 72 domestic and 36 international and regional destinations. For the 12 months ended December 31, 2004, we carried approximately 24.50 million passengers and approximately 665,253 tonnes of cargo, with passenger traffic of approximately 46,640 million RPKs and cargo traffic of approximately 2,580 million RFTKs. Passenger load factor and cargo and mail load factor for scheduled flights was 71.9% and 63.4% respectively.

In 2001, 2002, 2003 and 2004, our combined revenues totaled RMB22,736.5 million, RMB24,983.7 million, RMB24,641.4 million and RMB33,520.8 million, respectively, and our net profit attributable to shareholders totaled RMB948.3 million, RMB499.6 million, RMB159.6 million and RMB2,386.0 million, respectively.

The Group is the national flag carrier and a leading provider of air passenger, air cargo and airline related services in China. Taking advantage of its balanced network of extensive and complementary domestic and international routes as well as its dominant position in Beijing, the Group offers non-stop and transit services to its passengers from overseas, mainland China, Hong Kong and Macau. As at December 31, 2004, we operated an overall of 183,693 flights serving 72 domestic and 36 international and regional destinations. We offered an average of 3,426 scheduled passenger flights and 367 scheduled cargo flights weekly. We operated a fleet of 151 aircraft, including 124 Boeing aircraft, 26 Airbus aircraft, 1 business jet, the average age of our fleet was 8.1 years.

During the year, Chinese and global economy continued to improve, thereby bringing about a rapid surge of market demand for airline services in China, which greatly mitigated the adverse effects of the outbreak of SARS in 2003. Meanwhile, the Group also faced certain challenges due to the soaring price of international jet fuel and intensified competition. Against this background, the Group seized the market opportunity by adopting a series of effective measures, resulting in great improvement in financial results and a more secured leading position in China aviation market. In 2004, we were appointed as the exclusive airline partner of 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, which significantly promoted the Company's brand recognition. In addition, the successful listing of our shares on Hong Kong and London stock exchanges laid a solid foundation for the Group's future development.

The Group operated certain airline business through its subsidiaries and operating results of each subsidiary have already been calculated into the consolidated financial statements. CNAC is the largest subsidiary of the Company and is listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. CNAC is the controlling shareholder of Air Macau and the single largest shareholder of Dragonair. In 2003 and 2004, the operating revenues of CNAC accounted for 5.7% and 6.0% of the operating revenues of the Group in these years respectively.

In 2004, Air China Cargo, a branch of the Company in 2003, was transformed into a joint venture in which the Group holds 51% equity interest, and its operating results has been included in the consolidated financial statements prepared in accordance with proportionate consolidation method under IFRS. In 2004, the Group accomplished acquisition of 48% of the equity interest of Shandong Aviation Group and 22.8% of the equity interest of Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd..

The Group's business, its financial position and operating results are mainly affected by such external factors as the development of Chinese economy and international trade, regulations of aviation industry, jet fuel price, special events, the seasonal nature of airline operation, performance of associates, financing costs, which were not within the control of the Group to a certain extent.

Among air traffic revenues in 2004, 89.7% was generated from passenger services and 10.3% was from cargo and mail services.

Operating revenue increased by 36.0% to RMB33,521 million in 2004 from RMB24,641 million in 2003, mainly due to revenue growth from passenger services. Revenue from passenger services increased by 45.4% to RMB27,665 million in 2004 from RMB19,030 million in 2003. The capacity of passenger traffic in ASKs increased by 27.9% to 64,894 million ASKs in 2004 from 50,733 million ASKs in 2003. Passenger load factor increased to 71.9% in 2004 from 66.0% in 2003. Income per RPK increased by 3.7% to RMB0.56 in 2004 from RMB0.54 in 2003. In 2004, the daily utilization of aircraft averaged at 10.2 hours, increased by 1.5 hours when compared to 2003.

Revenue generated from international passenger services accounted for 39.7% of the total revenue from passenger services of the Group in 2004, representing an increase of 62.6% to RMB10,835 million in 2004 from RMB6,663 million in 2003, and the main reason was an apparent recovery of the demand for international airline services in 2004 from the SARS outbreak in 2003 and the increased input of capacity in international routes by the Group. The passenger traffic capacity (in ASKs) of international routes of the Group increased by 41.5% to RMB27,897 million kilometers in 2004 from RMB19,709 million kilometers in 2003. The passenger load factor increased to 70.4% in 2004 from 64.8% in 2003. Level of passenger yield from international routes increased to RMB0.51 per RPK in 2004 from RMB0.47 per RPK in 2003.

Revenue from cargo and mail operations decreased by 27.8% to RMB3,170 million in 2004 from RMB4,392 million in 2003, primarily due to the fact that Air China Cargo, which is engaged in cargo operations, had changed into a joint venture in 2004 of proportionally consolidation from a branch of the Company. The cargo traffic capacity (in AFTKs) increased by 20.2% to RMB4,843 million kilometers in 2004 from RMB4,028 million kilometers in 2003.The overall load factor of cargo traffic decreased to 53.3% in 2004 from 54.8% in 2003. Operating Expenses#

Operating expenses increased by 29.9% to RMB29,036 million in 2004 from RMB22,357 million in 2003, primarily due to increases in jet fuel costs, take-off, landing and depot charges and aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses, and employee compensation costs. Operating expenses as a percentage of operating revenues decreased to 86.6% in 2004 from 90.7% in 2003.

Jet fuel expenses increased by 54.0% to RMB8,354 million in 2004 from RMB5,425 million in 2003, primarily due to the increased consumption of jet fuel as a result of the increased number of flights operated and higher domestic and international jet fuel prices. Our weighted average jet fuel cost for each barrel increased by 25.7% to RMB474 in 2004 from RMB377 in 2003.

Take-off, landing and depot charges increased by 22.6% to RMB4,230 million in 2004 from RMB3,450 million in 2003, primarily due to the increased number of flights operated.

Depreciation expenses increased by 2.5% to RMB3,463 million in 2004 from RMB3,377 million in 2003, primarily due to the acquisition of eleven aircraft from August to September in 2004.

Aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul expenses increased by 32.0% to RMB2,836 million in 2004 from RMB2,149 million in 2003, primarily due to increased line maintenance requirements as a result of increased block hours.

Aircraft and jet engines operating lease expenses increased by 17.7% to RMB1,071 million in 2004 from RMB910 million in 2003, primarily due to the addition of nine aircraft acquired through operating leases.

Other operating lease expenses increased by 2.7% to RMB187 million in 2004 from RMB182 million in 2003, primarily due to higher rental rates for our terminal stations and sales offices as compared to the lower rental rates for the same negotiated after the SARS outbreak.

Other flight operation expenses increased by 27.7% to RMB2,698 million in 2004 from RMB2,112 million in 2003, primarily due to a change in the accounting method of the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, whereby it is no longer offset by revenues but is released to costs directly in 2004.

Selling and marketing expenses increased by 31.1% to RMB1,387 million in 2004 from RMB1,058 million in 2003, primarily due to higher sales commissions as a result of increased ticket sales.

General and administrative expenses increased by 51.8% to RMB715 million in 2004 from RMB471 million in 2003, primarily due to higher travelling expenses resulting from increased business volume and donation for Olympic Games and loss on property, plant and equipment retirement.

Share of Profits Less Losses from Associates#

Income Tax#

The Company is subject to the PRC income tax at a rate of 33%. The income tax of the Group increased to RMB1,108 million in 2004 from RMB90 million in 2003, primarily due to the increase of the profit before taxation in 2004.

As at December 31, 2003 and 2004, the net current liabilities of the Group were RMB12,384 million and RMB6,860 million respectively. Some capital expenditures projects of the Company are generally subject to Chinese government approval, and are subject to adjustments depending on approval time, the prevailing market conditions, financing and other relevant factors.

Financial Risk Management Policy#

The Group is exposed to the fluctuations in jet fuel price during its ordinary operations. International jet fuel prices have been historically, and will in the future continue to be, subject to price volatility and fluctuations in supply and demand. Our strategy for managing our jet fuel price risk aims to provide us with protection against sudden and significant price increases. To meet these objectives, we will continue to use instruments such as swaps, options and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits. The Group recorded a gain of RMB170 million and RMB41 million from the derivative instruments from jet fuel used by us in 2003 and 2004, respectively.

A substantial portion of the Group's debt, part of its operating revenues and expenses and capital expenditures are denominated in certain major foreign currencies and consequently subject to fluctuations in exchange rates. The Group recorded exchange losses of RMB297 million and RMB55 million in 2003 and 2004, respectively. In order to reduce our foreign currency risk, we have pursued a strategy for certain major foreign currencies, to make the match between our revenues and payments denominated in such currencies. We are also currently evaluating proposals to hedge our foreign currency exposure by entering into hedge transactions.

1. GROUP REORGANISATION, PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS#

Air China Limited (the "Company") was incorporated on 30 September 2004 in Beijing, the People's Republic of China (the "PRC"), as a joint stock limited company as part of the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of CNAHC, a PRC state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "Hong Kong Stock Exchange") and the London Stock Exchange as described below.

Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(a) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to the business of the provision of airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(b) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally carry on the business of the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the Company entered into a restructuring agreement with CNAHC and CNACG on 20 November 2004 (the "Restructuring Agreement"). In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNAHC transferred to the Company, among other things, the following:

(a) all of the airline and airline-related businesses operated by Air China International Corporation (\raster (70%,p)="c40"), the Company's immediate predecessor;

(b) all related assets, including aircraft and other property, plant and equipment of Air China International Corporation;

(c) all related liabilities, including Air China International Corporation's bank loans; and

(d) the equity interests in various investees in airline and airline-related businesses owned by Air China International Corporation, including equity interests in Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo"), Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering Corporation, Beijing ("AMECO") and Shenzhen Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shenzhen Airlines").

In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNACG transferred its approximately 69% equity interests in China National Aviation Company Limited ("CNAC") to the Company by way of a capital contribution.

The effective date of the Restructuring was 30 September 2004, after which date the Company assumed the rights and obligations of the businesses, assets and liabilities transferred to the Company by CNAHC and CNACG.

1. GROUP REORGANISATION, PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

As at the date of approval of these financial statements, the Group is in the process of applying to the relevant government authorities to obtain the title certificates of certain of the above-mentioned assets, primarily buildings and land use rights, with an aggregate carrying value of approximately RMB3,098 million, and to register the already transferred equity interests in certain investees, including equity interests in Air China Cargo, AMECO and Shenzhen Airlines, from Air China International Corporation into the Company's name. The Directors of the Company are of the view that the Group is entitled to lawfully and validly occupy and use the above-mentioned assets and own the aforesaid equity interests. The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the aforesaid matter will not have any significant impact on the Group's financial position as at 31 December 2004.

In consideration for CNAHC and CNACG transferring the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies to the Company, the Company issued 5,054,276,915 domestic shares (in the form of State legal person shares) and 1,445,723,085 non-H Foreign Shares with a par value of RMB1.00 each to CNAHC and CNACG, respectively (note 37 (a)). The shares issued to CNAHC and CNACG represented the then entire registered and issued share capital of the Company upon its incorporation.

Prior to the incorporation of the Company, the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies were held by two subsidiaries of CNAHC, namely, Air China International Corporation and CNAC, a Hong Kong incorporated company with its shares publicly traded on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. Air China International Corporation is a state-owned enterprise established in the PRC on 1 July 1988 and was subject to the supervision and regulation of the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China, formerly known as the Civil Aviation Administration of China ("CAAC"), a regulatory authority of the civil aviation industry in the PRC. Pursuant to the documents issued by the State Council and the Ministry of Finance dated 14 July 2002 and 9 August 2002, respectively, the PRC government approved the formation of CNAHC, a state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, which then held, inter alia, a 100% direct interest in Air China International Corporation, a 100% direct interest in China Southwest Airlines ("CSWA"), a 100% direct interest in China National Aviation Corporation ("CNAC (PRC)"), which owned 100% interest in CNAC Zhejiang Airlines ("ZJA") and approximately a 69% indirect interest in CNAC. In 2003, CNAHC undertook further reorganisation measures to merge the business operations of CSWA and ZJA into Air China International Corporation, following which CSWA and ZJA became branches of Air China International Corporation.

The Group's principal activities are airline and airline-related services, including aircraft engineering services, air catering services and airport ground handling services conducted mainly in the PRC, Hong Kong and Macau.

The registered office of the Company is located at 9th Floor, Blue Sky Mansion, 28 Tianzhu Road, Zone A, Tianzhu Airport Industrial Zone, Shunyi District, Beijing 101312, the PRC.

In the opinion of the Directors, the Company's ultimate holding company is CNAHC.

Further details of the Restructuring are set out in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004 issued in respect of the listing of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange.

1. GROUP REORGANISATION, PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

On 15 December 2004, 2,805,680,000 new H shares in the Company, details of which are set out in note 37 (b) to these financial statements, were listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange. On 11 January 2005, an additional 420,852,000 new H shares in the Company, details of which are set out in note 47 (a) to these financial statements, were issued and listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange upon the exercise of the over-allotment option.

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the consolidated financial statements of the Group for the years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004 have been prepared as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests. Accordingly, the assets and liabilities of the Company are stated at historical amounts, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

The consolidated balance sheets as at 31 December 2003 and 2004 present the Group's assets and liabilities as if the Restructuring had been completed at 1 January 2003. The consolidated results and consolidated cash flows include the Group's results of operations and cash flows as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2003. The Company's Directors are of the opinion that the consolidated financial statements prepared on this basis present fairly the consolidated financial position, consolidated results and consolidated cash flows of the Group as a whole. Therefore, the net profit for the year ended 31 December 2004 includes the consolidated results before the Restructuring.

As the Company was only incorporated on 30 September 2004, there are no comparative figures as at 31 December 2003 in the Company's balance sheet.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Basis of preparation

The consolidated financial statements have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

Basis of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements comprise the financial statements of the Company and all its subsidiaries. The financial statements of the subsidiaries are prepared for the same reporting period as the parent company using consistent accounting policies. Adjustments are made to bring into line any dissimilar accounting policies that may exist.

Subsidiaries are consolidated from the date on which control is transferred to the Group and cease to be consolidated from the date on which control is transferred out of the Group. This control is normally evidenced when the Group owns, either directly or indirectly, more than 50% of the voting rights of a company's share or registered capital, is able to govern the financial and operating policies of an enterprise so as to benefit from its activities. All significant inter-company transactions and balances within the Group are eliminated on consolidation.

Minority interests represent the interests of outside shareholders in the results and net assets of the Company's subsidiaries, not held by the Group and are presented in the consolidated balance sheet within equity, separately from the shareholders' equity.

Foreign currency transactions are recorded at the applicable exchange rates ruling at the transaction dates as quoted by the People's Bank of China. Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies at the balance sheet date are translated into RMB at the applicable exchange rates ruling at that date as quoted by the People's Bank of China. All exchange differences are dealt with in the income statement.

On consolidation, the financial statements of overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB. The income statements of these subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year, and the balance sheets are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the balance sheet date. The resulting translation differences are included in the exchange fluctuation reserve.

For the purpose of the consolidated cash flow statement, the cash flows of the overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the dates of the cash flows. Frequently recurring cash flows of overseas subsidiaries, which arise throughout the year, are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Subsidiaries

A subsidiary is a company whose financial and operating policies the Company controls, directly or indirectly, so as to obtain benefits from its activities. A subsidiary is consolidated from the date the Company obtains control until such time as control ceases.

The results of subsidiaries are included in the Company's income statement to the extent of dividends received and receivable. In the Company's balance sheet, the Company's interests in subsidiaries are stated at cost less any impairment losses.

Interests in joint ventures

The Group's interests in its joint ventures are accounted for by proportionate consolidation, which involves recognising a proportionate share of the joint venture's assets, liabilities, income and expenses with similar items in the consolidated financial statements on a line-by-line basis.

Interests in associates

The Group's investments in its associates are accounted for under the equity method of accounting. An associate is an entity in which the Group has significant influence and which is neither a subsidiary nor a joint venture of the Group. The investments in associates are carried in the balance sheet at cost plus post-acquisition changes in the Group's share of net assets of the associates, less any impairment in value. The income statement reflects the Group's share of the results of operations of the associates. The Group's investments in its associates include goodwill (net of accumulated amortisation and impairment) on acquisition, which is treated in accordance with the accounting policy for goodwill stated below. When the Group's share of losses in an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Group does not recognise further losses, unless the Group has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associates.

In the Company's balance sheet, the investments in associates are stated at cost less any impairment losses. The results of associates are accounted for by the Company on the basis of dividends received and receivable.

Property, plant and equipment

Property, plant and equipment, other than construction in progress ("CIP"), are stated at cost less accumulated depreciation and any impairment in value.

The cost of an asset comprises its purchase price and any directly attributable costs of bringing the asset to its working condition and location for its intended use. Expenditure incurred after the assets have been put into operation, such as repairs and maintenance, is normally charged to the income statement in the period in which it is incurred. In situations where it can be clearly demonstrated that the expenditure has resulted in an increase in the future economic benefits expected to be obtained from the use of the asset, the expenditure is capitalised as an additional cost of that asset.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Property, plant and equipment

Depreciation is calculated on the straight-line basis over the expected useful life of the asset, after taking into account its estimated residual value, as follows:

	Depreciation life	Residual value
Aircraft and flight equipment	10 to 20 years	Nil–5%
Buildings	15 to 35 years	5%
Machinery, transportation equipment and office equipment	4 to 20 years	5%

The gain or loss on disposal or retirement of a property, plant and equipment recognised in the income statement is the difference between the net sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the relevant asset at the time of disposal.

CIP represents office buildings and various infrastructure projects under construction and equipment pending installation in the aircraft and is stated at cost less any impairment losses, and is not depreciated. Cost comprises the direct costs of construction, the cost of equipment as well as finance charges from borrowings used to finance these assets during the construction or installation period. CIP is reclassified to the appropriate categories of property, plant and equipment when completed and ready for use.

The carrying values of property, plant and equipment are reviewed for impairment when events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying values may not be recoverable. If any such indication exists and where the carrying values exceed the estimated recoverable amounts, the assets or cash-generating units are written down to their recoverable amounts. The recoverable amount of property, plant and equipment is the greater of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. For an asset that does not generate largely independent cash inflows, the recoverable amount is determined for the cash-generating unit to which the asset belongs. Impairment losses are recognised in the income statement.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Goodwill

Goodwill represents the excess of cost over the fair value of the identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities of acquired businesses. The Group early adopted IFRS 3, Business Combinations, and applied the requirements of IFRS 3 to goodwill existing at or acquired after, and to business combinations occurring from 1 January 2001. In accordance with IFRS 3, the Group ceased amortising goodwill as of 1 January 2001.

On disposal of subsidiaries, associates or joint ventures, the gain or loss on disposal is calculated by reference to the net assets at the date of disposal, including the attributable amount of goodwill which remains unamortised and any relevant reserves, as appropriate.

IAS 36 (amended 2004) requires that goodwill be tested for impairment at the cash-generating units on an annual basis and whenever there is an indication that a unit may be impaired, by comparing the carrying amount of the unit, including the goodwill, with the recoverable amount of the unit. An impairment loss shall be recognised for a cash-generating unit if the recoverable amount of the unit is less than the carrying amount of the unit. The impairment loss shall be allocated to reduce the carrying amount of the assets of the unit (group of units) in the following order: (i) first, to reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to the cash-generating unit (group of units); and (ii) then, to the other assets of the unit pro-rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the unit. In allocating an impairment loss, the Group shall not reduce the carrying amount of an asset below the highest of: (i) its fair value less costs to sell (if determinable); (ii) its value in use (if determinable); and (iii) zero.

Advance payments for aircraft and related equipment

Advance contract payments to aircraft manufacturers to secure deliveries of aircraft and related equipment in future years, including attributable finance costs, are included in assets. The advances are accounted for as part of the cost of property, plant and equipment upon delivery of the aircraft.

Investments

All investments are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration given and including acquisition charges associated with the investments.

After initial recognition, investments, except those investments which do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured, are classified as available-for-sale and measured at fair value through profit or loss. Gains or losses on available-for-sale investments are recognised in the income statement. Investments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured are stated at cost less impairment.

Leases

Finance leases which transfer to the Group substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the leased item are capitalised at the inception of the lease at the fair value of the leased properties or, if lower, at the present value of the minimum lease payments. Lease payments are apportioned between the finance charges and reduction of the lease liability so as to achieve a constant rate of interest on the remaining balance of the liability. Finance charges are charged directly against income. Capitalised leased assets are depreciated over the estimated economic useful lives of the assets.

Leases where the lessor retains substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the asset are classified as operating leases. Where the Group is the lessor, assets leased by the Group under operating leases are included in non-current assets and rentals receivables under the operating leases are credited to the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms. Where the Group is the lessee, rentals payable under the operating leases are charged to the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms.

Inventories

Inventories, which consist primarily of expendable spare parts and supplies, are stated at cost less any provision for obsolescence, and are expensed when consumed in operations. Cost is determined on the weighted average basis.

Work in progress represents material cost, labour cost and overhead cost capitalised for the provision of aircraft engineering services and is stated at the lower of cost, calculated on a weighted average basis, and net realisable value. Net realisable value is determined on the basis of anticipated sales proceeds less estimated costs to be incurred to completion and disposal.

Cash and cash equivalents

For the purpose of the consolidated cash flow statement, cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand and demand deposits, and short term highly liquid investments which are readily convertible into known amounts of cash and which are subject to an insignificant risk of changes in value, and have a short maturity of generally within three months when acquired, less bank overdrafts which are repayable on demand and form an integral part of the Group's cash management.

For the purpose of the balance sheet, cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand and at banks and other financial institutions, including term deposits, which are not restricted as to use.

Manufacturers' credits

In connection with the acquisition of certain aircraft and related equipment, the Group receives various credits from the manufacturers. Such credits are deferred until the aircraft and related equipment are delivered, at which time they are applied as a reduction of the cost of acquiring the aircraft and related equipment.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Employee benefits

(a) Pension obligations

The full-time employees of the Group are covered by various government-sponsored pension plans under which the employees are entitled to a monthly pension based on certain formulae. Certain government agencies are responsible for the pension liability to these retired employees. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these pension plans. Under these plans, the Group has no legal or constructive obligation for retirement benefits beyond the contributions made. Contributions to these plans are expensed as incurred.

(b) Termination and early retirement benefits

Termination benefits are payable whenever an employee's employment is voluntarily terminated before the normal retirement date or whenever an employee accepts voluntary redundancy in exchange for these benefits. The Group recognises termination benefits when it is demonstrably committed to either terminating the employment of current employees according to a detailed formal plan without possibility of withdrawal or to providing termination benefits as a result of an offer made to encourage voluntary redundancy.

(c) Housing benefits

In prior periods, the Group sold staff quarters to its employees, subject to a number of eligibility requirements, at below market prices. When staff quarters are identified as being subject to sale under these arrangements, the carrying value of the staff quarters is written down to the net recoverable amount. Upon sale, any difference between sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the staff quarters is charged to the income statement. The above staff quarters' allocation scheme was phased out before the incorporation of the Company in accordance with the policies of the PRC government.

In 1998, the State Council of the PRC issued a circular, which stipulated that the sale of quarters to employees at preferential prices should be withdrawn. In 2000, the State Council further issued a circular stating that cash subsidies should be made to the employees following the withdrawal of allocation of staff quarters. However, the specific timetable and procedures to implement these policies were to be determined by the individual provincial or municipal government based on the particular situation of the province or municipality.

Based on the relevant detailed local government regulations promulgated, certain entities within the Group have adopted cash housing subsidy plans, whereby, for those eligible employees who have not been allocated with any quarters or who have not been allocated with quarters up to the prescribed standards before the staff quarters' allocation scheme was terminated, the Group will pay them one-off cash housing subsidies based on their years of service, position and other criteria. These cash housing subsidies are charged to the income statement in the year in which it was determined that the payment of such subsidies is probable and the amounts can be reasonably estimated.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Employee benefits

(c) Housing benefits

In addition, all full-time employees of the Group are entitled to participate in various government-sponsored housing funds. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these funds based on certain percentages of the salaries of the employees. The Group's liability in respect of these funds is limited to the contributions payable in each period.

Provisions

Provisions are recognised when the Group has a present obligation (legal or constructive) as a result of a past event and it is probable that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation provided that reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation. If the effect of the time value of money is material, provisions are determined by discounting the expected future cash flows at a pre-tax rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and, where appropriate, the risks specific to the liability. Where discounting is used, the increase in the provision due to the passage of time is recognised as an interest expense.

Maintenance and overhaul costs

In respect of aircraft and engines under operating leases, the Group has the responsibility to fulfil certain return conditions under the relevant operating leases. In order to fulfil these return conditions, major overhauls are required to be conducted on a regular basis. Accordingly, estimated costs of major overhauls for aircraft and engines under operating leases are accrued and charged to the income statement over the estimated period between overhauls using the ratios of actual flying hours/cycles and estimated flying hours/cycles between overhauls. The costs of major overhauls comprise mainly labour and materials. Differences between the estimated costs and the actual costs of overhauls are included in the income statement in the period of overhaul.

In respect of aircraft and engines owned by the Group or held under finance leases, costs of major overhauls are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

All other routine repair and maintenance costs incurred in restoring such property, plant and equipment to their normal working condition are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Revenue recognition

Revenue is recognised when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Group and the revenue can be reliably measured on the following bases:

(a) Provision of airline and airline-related services

Passenger revenue is recognised either when transportation is provided or when a ticket expires unused rather than when a ticket is sold. Unused tickets generally expire one year from the date the ticket was sold, or for partially used tickets, the date of first flight. Ticket sales for transportation not yet provided are included in current liabilities as air traffic liabilities. In addition, the Group has code-sharing agreements with other airlines under which a carrier's flights can be marketed under the two-letter airline designator code of another carrier. Revenues earned under these arrangements are allocated between the code share partners based on existing contractual agreements and airline industry standard pro-ratio formulae and are recognised as passenger revenue when the transportation is provided.

Cargo and mail revenues are recognised when the transportation is provided.

Revenue from airline-related services is recognised when services are rendered.

Revenue was stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund prior to 1 January 2004. From 2004, contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund are included in other flight operation expenses to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government.

(b) Sale of goods

Revenue is recognised when the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the buyer, provided that the Group maintains neither managerial involvement to the degree usually associated with ownership, nor effective control over the goods sold.

(c) Trading of investments

Revenue is recognised on a trade date basis.

(d) Interest income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis taking into account the principal outstanding and the effective rate of interest applicable.

(e) Dividends

Revenue is recognised when the owners' right to receive the payment has been established.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Revenue recognition

(f) Rental income and aircraft and related equipment lease income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis over the terms of the respective leases.

Frequent flyer programme

For Air China Companion Club member accounts that have sufficient mileage credits to claim the lowest level of free travel, the Group records a liability for the estimated incremental costs associated with providing travel awards that are expected to be redeemed. Incremental costs include the cost of incremental fuel, meals and insurance but do not include any cost for aircraft ownership, maintenance, labour or overhead allocation. The liability is adjusted periodically based on awards earned, awards redeemed, changes in the incremental costs and changes in the Air China Companion Club programme, and is included in the balance sheet as a current liability.

Government grants

Government grants are recognised at their fair values when it is probable that the grant will be received and all attaching conditions will be complied with. When the grant relates to an expense item, it is recognised as income over the periods necessary to match the grant on a systematic basis to the costs that it is intended to compensate. Where the grant relates to an asset, the fair value is credited to a deferred income account and is released to the income statement over the expected useful life of the relevant asset by equal annual instalments.

Borrowing costs

Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition of aircraft, construction or production of qualifying assets, i.e. assets that necessarily take a substantial period of time to get ready for their intended use, are capitalised as part of the costs of those assets. The capitalisation of aircraft borrowing costs ceases when the aircraft is placed into revenue earning services and the capitalisation of other assets' borrowing costs ceases when the assets are substantially ready for their intended use or sale.

Where funds have been borrowed generally, and used for the purpose of obtaining qualifying assets, a capitalisation rate ranging between 5.58% and 5.76% has been applied to the expenditure on the individual asset.

All other borrowing costs are charged to the income statement in the period in which they are incurred.

Income tax

Income tax comprises current and deferred income tax. Income tax is recognised in the income statement, or in equity if it relates to items that are recognised in the same or a different period directly in equity.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Income tax

Deferred income tax is provided, using the liability method, on all temporary differences at the balance sheet date between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and their carrying amounts for financial reporting purposes. Deferred income tax liabilities are recognised for all taxable temporary differences:

- except where the deferred income tax liability arises from goodwill amortisation or the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, except where the timing of the reversal of the temporary differences can be controlled and it is probable that the temporary differences will not reverse in the foreseeable future.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised for all deductible temporary differences, carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses, to the extent that it is probable that taxable profit will be available against which the deductible temporary differences, and the carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses can be utilised:

- except where the deferred income tax asset relating to the deductible temporary difference arises from the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of deductible temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, deferred tax assets are only recognised to the extent that it is probable that the temporary differences will be reversed in the foreseeable future and taxable profit will be available against which the temporary differences can be utilised.

The carrying amount of deferred income tax assets is reviewed at each balance sheet date and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable profit will be available to allow all or part of the deferred income tax asset to be utilised. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply to the period when the asset is realised or the liability is settled based on tax rates (and tax laws) that have been enacted or substantively enacted at the balance sheet date.

Derivative financial instruments

The Group uses derivative financial instruments to hedge its exposure to fuel prices. In accordance with IAS 39, such derivative financial instruments are carried in the balance sheet at fair value as financial assets or financial liabilities.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Derivative financial instruments

For the purposes of hedge accounting, hedges are classified as either fair value hedges where they hedge the exposure to changes in the fair value of a recognised asset or liability; or cash flow hedges where they hedge exposure to variability in cash flows that is either attributable to a particular risk associated with a recognised asset or liability or a forecasted transaction.

Changes in the fair value of derivatives that are designated and qualify as fair value hedges and that are highly effective are recorded in the income statement, along with any changes in the fair value of the hedged assets or liabilities that are attributable to the hedged risk. In relation to fair value hedges (interest rate swaps) which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, any gain or loss from remeasuring the hedging instrument at fair value is recognised immediately in the income statement. Any gain or loss on the hedged item attributable to the hedged risk is adjusted against the carrying amount of the hedged item and recognised in the income statement. Where the adjustment is to the carrying amount of a hedged interest-bearing financial instrument, the adjustment is amortised to the income statement such that it is fully amortised by maturity. In relation to cash flow hedges (forward foreign currency contracts) to hedge firm commitments which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, the portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognised directly in equity and the ineffective portion is recognised in the income statement.

When the hedged firm commitment results in the recognition of an asset or a liability, then, at the time the asset or liability is recognised, the associated gains or losses that had previously been recognised in equity are included in the initial measurement of the acquisition cost or other carrying amount of the asset or liability.

For all other cash flow hedges, the gains or losses that are recognised in equity are transferred to the income statement in the same year in which the hedged firm commitment affects the income statement, for example when the future sale actually occurs.

For derivatives that do not qualify for special hedge accounting, any gains or losses arising from changes in fair value are taken directly to the income statement for the year. Hedge accounting is discontinued when the hedging instrument expires or is sold, terminated or exercised, or no longer qualifies for special hedge accounting. At that point in time, any cumulative gain or loss on the hedging instrument recognised in equity is kept in equity until the forecasted transaction occurs. If a hedged transaction is no longer expected to occur, the net cumulative gain or loss recognised in equity is transferred to the income statement for the year.

Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements of the Group in accordance with IFRS requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Related parties

Parties are considered to be related if one party has the ability, directly or indirectly, to control the other party or exercise significant influence over the other party in making financial and operating decisions. Parties are also considered to be related if they are subject to common control or common significant influence. Related parties may be individuals or corporate entities.

Recoverable amount of non-current assets

At each reporting date, the Group assesses whether there is any indication that an asset may be impaired. Where an indicator of impairment exists, the Group makes a formal estimate of the recoverable amount. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. Recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's or cash-generating unit's fair value less costs to sell and its value in use and is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets.

Trade and other receivables

Trade receivables, which generally have 30 to 90 day terms, are recognised and carried at original invoice amount less an allowance for any uncollectible amounts. An estimate for doubtful debts is made when collection of the full amount is no longer probable. Bad debts are written off when identified.

Other receivables are recognised and carried at cost less allowances for any uncollectible amounts.

Interest-bearing loans and borrowings

All loans and borrowings are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration received net of issue costs associated with the borrowings.

After initial recognition, interest-bearing loans and borrowings are subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest rate method. Amortised cost is calculated by taking into account any issue costs, and any discount or premium on settlement.

Gains and losses are recognised in the income statement when the liabilities are derecognised or impaired, as well as through the amortisation process.

Derecognition of financial instruments

The derecognition of a financial instrument takes place when the Group no longer controls the contractual rights that comprise the financial instrument, which is normally the case when the instrument is sold, or all the cash flows attributable to the instrument are passed through to an independent third party.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IFRS 2, Share-based Payment, is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005 and requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the entity. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 will apply for grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested at the beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The Group does not expect IFRS 2 to have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 16 (amended 2004), Property, Plant and Equipment, replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998), Property, Plant and Equipment, and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. These include that the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Further, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. In addition, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. Also, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive in the future on the asset's actual retirement date. The Group does not expect the adoption of new policies arising from the amended standard, when implemented, will have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IAS 24 (revised 2003), Related Party Disclosures, replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994) and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definitions and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

3. SEGMENT INFORMATION#

Segment information is presented by way of two segment formats: (i) on a primary segment reporting basis, by business segment; and (ii) on a secondary segment reporting basis, by geographical segment.

The Group's operating businesses are structured and managed separately, according to the nature of their operations and the services they provide. Each of the Group's business segments represents a strategic business unit that offers services which are subject to risks and returns that are different from those of the other business segments.

Currently, the Group's business segment information is divided into four business segments — airline operations, engineering services, airport terminal services and other businesses ("others"). Segment net profit represents revenues less expenses directly attributable to a segment and the relevant portion of enterprise revenues less expenses that can be allocated on a reasonable basis to a segment, whether from external transactions or from transactions with other segments of the Group.

Segment assets and liabilities mainly comprise those operating assets and liabilities that are directly attributable to the segment or can be allocated to the segment on a reasonable basis.

In determining the Group's geographical segments, revenues are attributed to the segments based on origin and destination of each flight segment. Assets, which consist principally of flight and ground equipment, supporting the entire worldwide transportation system, are mainly located in the PRC. An analysis of assets and capital expenditure of the Group by geographical distribution has therefore not been included.

Intersegment sales and transfers are transacted with reference to the selling prices used for sales made to third parties at the then prevailing market prices.

In 2004, the entire Air Cargo Business was transferred to Air China Cargo, a 51% owned joint venture of the Company, in the form of the Company's capital contribution and advance to Air China Cargo. Subsequent to the transfer of Air Cargo Business to Air China Cargo, the Group's effective interest in the Air Cargo Business was diluted from 100% to 51% and, accordingly, a gain on dilution of investment in Air Cargo Business of approximately RMB330 million arose.

9. DILUTION GAINS ON INVESTMENTS

(b) In accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to these financial statements, 60% shareholding interest in Beijing Air Catering Co., Ltd. ("BACL") and 75% shareholding interest in Southwest Air Catering Company Limited ("SWACL") were deemed to be held by the Group as of 1 January 2003.

During 2004, the Group transferred its entire 60% shareholding interest in BACL and 60% shareholding interest in SWACL to Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, for a consideration of RMB294 million and RMB67 million, respectively.

In addition to the above, the Group also transferred its remaining 15% shareholding interest in SWACL to Hongkong Southwest Air Catering Limited ("HKSACL"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million.

Subsequent to the completion of the above transactions, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively and, accordingly, gains on dilution of investments in BACL and SWACL aggregating approximately RMB80 million arose.

11. RETIREMENT BENEFITS#

All of the Group's full-time employees in the PRC are covered by a government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme, and are entitled to an annual pension determined by their basic salaries upon their retirement. The PRC government is responsible for the pension liabilities to these retired employees. The Group is required to make annual contributions to the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme at rates ranging from 15% to 20% of the employees' basic salaries during the year and has no further obligation for post-retirement benefits in respect of the above. This defined contribution plan continues to be available to the Group's employees after the Restructuring. The related pension costs are expensed as incurred.

Prior to the Restructuring, the Group also paid certain supplementary pension benefits (the "Supplementary Pension Benefits") to its employees who retired before the formation of the Company. Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to assume past payments and future liabilities in respect of the Supplementary Pension Benefits for those employees who retired before the formation of the Company for nil consideration. The pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits borne by CNAHC was approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) (note 46). The Group's employees who retire after the formation of the Company are not entitled to the Supplementary Pension Benefits. CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group against losses from any claims for the Supplementary Pension Benefits.

Further, the Group implemented an early retirement plan for certain employees in addition to the benefits under the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the Supplementary Pension Benefits described above. The benefits of the early retirement plan are calculated based on factors including the remaining number of years of services from date of early retirement to normal retirement date and the salary amount on the date of early retirement of the employees. The costs of early retirement benefits were recognised in the period when employees opted for early retirement. Where the effect of discounting is material, the amount recognised for early retirement benefits is the present value at the balance sheet date of the future cash flows expected to be required to settle the obligation. The increase in the discounted present value amount arising from the passage of time is included in finance costs in the income statement.

11. RETIREMENT BENEFITS

The expenses attributed to the PRC government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the early retirement benefits are as follows:

Hong Kong profits tax has been provided at the rate of 17.5% (2003: 17.5%) on the estimated assessable profits arising in Hong Kong during the year.

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on 30 September 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation was calculated at the applicable tax rate on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to domestic enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to CNAHC for the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) referred to in note 14 (b) to these financial statements will be calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau.

Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company will settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureaus.

(i) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in BACL ("BACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB294 million; and

(ii) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in SWACL ("SWACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB67 million.

On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of BACL Agreement and SWACL Agreement were completed and these two acquisition agreements were effective on that date accordingly.

14. APPROPRIATIONS #

On 20 April 2004, Air China International Corporation entered into a stock transfer agreement with HKSACL ("HKSACL Agreement"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, pursuant to which, Air China International Corporation disposed of 15% of the equity interest in SWACL to HKSACL for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million. On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of HKSACL Agreement were completed and this agreement was effective on that date accordingly.

Immediately after the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively.

This payment has been made to CNAHC and accounted for as a special distribution to CNAHC by the Company.

(b) In accordance with the (\raster(70%,p)="c04") "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance (the English title is a direct translation of the Chinese title of the notice), which became effective from 27 August 2002, and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on the audited accounts prepared in accordance with the accounting principles and the financial regulations applicable in the PRC (the "PRC GAAP"), generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC after giving effect to relevant necessary adjustments. In addition, in accordance with (\raster(70%,p)="c04") "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG.

(c) The profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company represent the net assets which have been carved-out and treated as deemed distributions pursuant to the Restructuring set out in note 1 to these financial statements and dividends paid during that period.

The rates of dividend and the number of shares ranking for dividends are not presented in this footnote for those profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company as such information is not considered meaningful.

Cash dividends to shareholders in Hong Kong will be paid in Hong Kong dollars.

Following the incorporation of the Company, under the PRC Company Law and the Company's articles of association, net profit after tax as reported in the PRC statutory financial statements can only be distributed as dividends after allowance has been made for the following:

(i) Making up prior years' cumulative losses, if any;

(ii) Allocations to the statutory common reserve fund of at least 10% of after-tax profit, until the fund aggregates 50% of the Company's registered capital. For the purpose of calculating the transfer to reserves, the profit after tax shall be the amount determined under the PRC GAAP. The transfer to this reserve must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

The statutory common reserve fund can be used to offset previous years' losses, if any, and part of the statutory common reserve fund can be capitalised as the Company's share capital provided that the amount of such reserve remaining after the capitalisation shall not be less than 25% of the share capital of the Company;

(iii) Allocations of 5% to 10% of after-tax profit, as determined under PRC GAAP, to the Company's statutory public welfare fund, which will be established for the purpose of providing for the Company's employees collective welfare benefits such as the construction of dormitories, canteens and other staff welfare facilities. The fund forms part of the shareholders' equity as only individual employees can use these facilities, while the title of such facilities is held by the Company. The transfer to this fund must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders; and

(iv) Allocations to the discretionary common reserve if approved by the shareholders.

The above reserves cannot be used for purposes other than those for which they are created and are not distributable as cash dividends.

19. INTERESTS IN ASSOCIATES

Notes:

(a) The goodwill brought forward from 2003 related to the acquisition of shareholding interests of 35.86% and 7.43% in Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited ("Dragonair") by CNACG and its then wholly-owned subsidiary, CNAC, in June 1996 and October 1997, respectively. The aggregate goodwill arising from these two acquisitions was approximately RMB2,130 million and subsequently reduced to approximately RMB1,205 million through deemed disposal upon the initial public offering of CNAC and the accumulated amortisation on the straight-line basis over a period of 20 years until 1 January 2001 (the date of adoption of IFRS 3 by the Group).

(b) The goodwill arose in the current year related to the acquisitions of effective shareholding interests of 48.0% in Shandong Aviation Group Corporation ("Shandong Aviation"), 22.8% in Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shandong Airlines") and 13.9% in LSG Lufthansa Service Hong Kong Limited ("LSGHK") by the Group, resulting in an aggregate goodwill amount of approximately RMB200 million.

Impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair

Goodwill acquired through the business combination in relation to the acquisition of shareholding interest in Dragonair has been allocated to the cash-generating unit, Dragonair, within the airline operations segment.

The recoverable amount of Dragonair has been determined based on a value in use calculation. To calculate this, cash flow projections are based on financial budgets approved by management covering a one-year period. The discount rate applied to the cash flow projections beyond the one-year period is 5.0%. No growth has been projected beyond the one-year period.

Key assumptions used in the value in use calculation of Dragonair

The following describes each key assumption on which management has based its cash flow projections when undertaking the impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair:

Passenger revenues — the bases used to determine the value assigned to the budgeted passenger revenues are available seat kilometers, passenger traffic, passenger load factor and passenger yield. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Operating expenses — the bases used to determine the values assigned are staff headcount, scheduled flight hours, passenger traffic and jet fuel consumption. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

The maximum number of unexercised SARs permitted to be granted under the Plan is, upon their exercise, limited to 2% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to eligible participants under the Plan within any 12-month period is, upon their exercise, limited to 0.4% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to any eligible participant is limited to 10% of the total number of unexercised SARs in issue at any time during each year. Any further grant of SARs in excess of the above limits is subject to shareholders' approval in general meetings.

The exercise period of all SARs commences after a vesting period and ends on a date which is not later than five years from the date of grant of the SARs. As of each of the last day of the second, third and fourth anniversary of the date of grant, the total number of SARs exercisable will not exceed 30%, 70% and 100%, respectively, of the total SARs granted to the respective eligible participants.

39. LONG-TERM COMPENSATION PLAN #

The exercise price of SARs will be equal to the average closing price of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange for the five consecutive trading days immediately preceding the date of the grant.

As of 31 December 2004, no SARs had been issued under the Plan.

40. DISTRIBUTABLE RESERVES#

As at 31 December 2004, in accordance with the PRC Company Law, an amount of approximately RMB7,703.5 million standing to the credit of the Company's capital reserve account, and an amount of approximately RMB51.9 million standing to the credit of the Company's statutory reserve funds, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP, were available for distribution by way of future capitalisation issue. In addition, the Company had retained profits of approximately RMB207.6 million, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and being the lesser amount of the retained profits determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and IFRS, available for distribution as dividend.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES#

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the following legal matters and litigation set out in items (a) to (c) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As of 31 December 2004, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(a) Pursuant to the agreement for the Restructuring entered into by the Company with CNAHC and CNACG, except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(b) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities including 121 passengers and 8 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of these financial statements. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 31 December 2004, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of RMB190 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB190 million is an amount of RMB173 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The Directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES #

(c) Air China International Corporation is one of the defendants in a civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) (the "Litigation"). United Aero-Supplies System of China Limited ("UASSC") had entered into an agreement with the defendants for the exclusive purchase of aviation equipment consigned to UASSC for sale and, that as the defendants failed to perform the agreement, UASSC has the right to compensation. Since UASSC is in the course of its winding up proceedings, all the rights and benefits of UASSC in connection with the claim have been transferred to New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC"). Air China International Corporation, as one of the defendants to the Litigation, was claimed by NLC for compensation of HK$60,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB63,600,000) for failing to perform the above agreement. Air China International Corporation has filed an objection in respect of the jurisdiction of the court, and has requested the court to transfer the case to Mainland China for trial. Air China International Corporation received an order in respect of this application on 3 May 2004. The judge granted the application and ordered that the action against Air China International Corporation be dismissed. Subsequent to this order, NLC has filed an appeal. The date of hearing for the appeal has been fixed on 28 July 2005. After considering the aforesaid order granted by the judge and consulting the legal counsel, the Directors of the Company consider that Air China International Corporation has a reasonable chance of success in its defence to the claim. Accordingly, the Directors of the Company consider that a provision for such claim and/or the associated legal costs is not required.

43. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS#

Financial assets of the Group and the Company mainly include cash and cash equivalents, pledged assets, trade receivables, other investments, deposits and other receivables. Financial liabilities of the Group and the Company mainly include bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, trade payables, other payables, bills payable and air traffic liabilities.

The carrying amounts of the Group's and the Company's financial instruments approximated their fair value as at the balance sheet date. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time and based on relevant market information about the financial instruments. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgement and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect the estimates.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK#

(a) Financial risk management objectives and policies

The Group operates globally and generates revenues in various currencies. The Group's airline operations are exposed to business risk, liquidity risk, jet fuel price risk, foreign currency risk, interest rate risk and credit risk. The Group's overall risk management approach is to moderate the effects of such volatility on its financial performance.

Financial risk management policies are periodically reviewed and approved by the Board of Directors.

(b) Business risk

The operations of the air transportation industry are substantially influenced by global political and economic development. Factors such as accidents and wars may have a material impact on the Group's operations or the industry as a whole. In addition, the Group primarily conducts its principal operations in the PRC and accordingly is subject to special consideration and significant risks not typically associated with companies in the United States of America and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among other things, the political, economic and legal environment, competition and influence of the CAAC in the Chinese civil aviation industry.

(c) Liquidity risk

The Group's net current liabilities amounted to approximately RMB6,860 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB12,384 million). The Group recorded a net cash inflow from operating activities of approximately RMB6,151 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB5,425 million). For the same period, the Group had a net cash outflow from investing activities of approximately RMB4,974 million (2003: RMB4,360 million). The Group also recorded a net cash inflow from financing activities of approximately RMB5,620 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 and a net cash outflow from financing activities of approximately RMB2,207 million for the year ended 31 December 2003. The Group has recorded an increase in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB6,824 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 but a decrease in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB1,057 million for the year ended 31 December 2003.

With regards to 2005 and thereafter, the liquidity of the Group is primarily dependent on its ability to maintain adequate cash inflow from operations to meet its debt obligations as they fall due, and on its ability to obtain external financing to meet its committed future capital expenditures. With regards to its future capital commitments and other financing requirements, the Company has already obtained several banking facilities with several PRC banks of up to an amount of RMB71,700 million as at 31 December 2004, of which an amount of approximately RMB40,183 million was utilised.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

(c) Liquidity risk

The Directors of the Company have carried out a detailed review of the cash flow forecast of the Group for the year ending 31 December 2005. Based on such forecast, the Directors have determined that adequate liquidity exists to finance the working capital and capital expenditure requirements of the Group during 2005. In preparing the cash flow forecast, the Directors have considered historical cash requirements of the Group as well as other key factors, including the availability of the above-mentioned loans financing which may impact the operations of the Group prior to the end of 2005. The Directors are of the opinion that the assumptions and sensitivities which are included in the cash flow forecast are reasonable. However, as with all assumptions in regard to future events, these are subject to inherent limitations and uncertainties and some or all of these assumptions may not be realised.

(d) Jet fuel price risk

The Group's strategy for managing the risk on jet fuel price aims to provide the Group with protection against sudden and significant increases in prices. In meeting these objectives, the Group allows for the judicious use of approved derivative instruments such as swaps and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits.

Moreover, counter-party credit risk is generally restricted to any gains on changes in fair value from time to time, and not the principal amount of the instrument. Therefore, the possibility of material loss arising in the event of non-performance by a counter-party is considered to be unlikely.

The fair values of derivative instruments of the Group and the Company at the balance sheet date are as follows:

	Group and Company		Group
	2004	2004	2003	2003
	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000
Swaps and collars expiring:
Within 6 months	—	—	8,000	(2,400)
Over 6 months to 21 months	—	—	26,000	(3,600)
	—	—	34,000	(6,000)

Fair values of derivative instruments, denominated in United States dollars, are obtained from quoted market prices, dealer price quotations, discounted cash flow models and option pricing models, which consider current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as time value of money, yield curve and volatility of the underlying instruments.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

(e) Foreign currency risk

The Group's finance lease obligations as well as certain bank and other loans are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen, and certain expenses of the Group are denominated in currencies other than RMB. The Group generates foreign currency revenues from ticket sales made in overseas offices and would normally generate sufficient foreign currencies after payment of foreign currency expenses, to meet its foreign currency liabilities repayable within one year. RMB against United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars have been comparatively stable in the past. However, RMB against Japanese yen had experienced a significant level of fluctuation over 2004 which is the major reason for the significant exchange difference recognised by the Group for 2004.

(f) Interest rate risk

The Group's earnings are also affected by changes in interest rates due to the impact of such changes on interest income and expense from short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities. A significant portion of the Group's interest-bearing financial liabilities with maturities above one year have predominately fixed rates of interest and are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen.

The Group's short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities are predominately denominated in RMB, United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars.

(g) Credit risk

The Group's cash and cash equivalents are deposited with PRC banks, overseas banks and an associate. The Group has policies in place to limit the exposure to any one financial institution.

A significant portion of the Group's air tickets are sold by agents participating in the Billing and Settlements Plan ("BSP"), a clearing system between airlines and sales agents organised by the International Air Transportation Association. The balance due from BSP agents amounted to approximately RMB531 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB342 million).

Except for the above, the Group has no significant concentration of credit risk, with exposure spread over a number of counter-parties.

45. CONSOLIDATED CASH FLOW STATEMENT#

(ii) Upon incorporation of the Company, CNAHC effected the transfer of certain land use rights in an aggregate amount of approximately RMB885,626,000 to the Company.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS#

The Group is part of a larger group of companies under CNAHC and has extensive transactions and relationships with members of CNAHC. As such, it is possible that the terms of these transactions are not the same as those that would result from transactions among wholly unrelated parties. Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or significant influence. The transactions were made at prices and terms mutually agreed between the parties.

In addition to the Restructuring, further details of which are set out in note 1 to these financial statements, and transactions and balances detailed elsewhere in these financial statements, the Group had the following significant recurring transactions carried out in the ordinary course of business between the Group and (i) CNAHC, its subsidiaries (other than the Group), joint ventures and associates (collectively known as "CNAHC Group"); (ii) its joint ventures; and (iii) its associates:

of CNAHC. These licence agreements supersede the licence agreement entered into between CNAC (PRC) and CNAC on 18 October 1997.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

(b) Pursuant to certain of the Company's aircraft leasing arrangements and bank loan arrangements, the overseas lessors and lenders require guarantees to be given by some major PRC state-owned banks. In giving such guarantees, the PRC state-owned banks in turn require CNAHC and CNAF to provide counter-guarantees in favour of the banks. As at the balance sheet date, the amounts of such counter-guarantees provided by CNAHC and CNAF were as follows:

	Group

* Subsequent to 31 December 2004, these counter-guarantees provided by CNAF amounting to RMB4,737 million in favour of the banks have been fully released.

Certain of the Group's bank loans from the PRC banks are guaranteed by Air China International Corporation and other related parties, further details of which are set out in note 34 to these financial statements.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

(d) On 19 August 2004, Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, entered into the following acquisition agreements:

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Employee benefits

(c) Housing benefits

In addition, all full-time employees of the Group are entitled to participate in various government-sponsored housing funds. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these funds based on certain percentages of the salaries of the employees. The Group's liability in respect of these funds is limited to the contributions payable in each period.

Provisions

Provisions are recognised when the Group has a present obligation (legal or constructive) as a result of a past event and it is probable that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation provided that reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation. If the effect of the time value of money is material, provisions are determined by discounting the expected future cash flows at a pre-tax rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and, where appropriate, the risks specific to the liability. Where discounting is used, the increase in the provision due to the passage of time is recognised as an interest expense.

Maintenance and overhaul costs

In respect of aircraft and engines under operating leases, the Group has the responsibility to fulfil certain return conditions under the relevant operating leases. In order to fulfil these return conditions, major overhauls are required to be conducted on a regular basis. Accordingly, estimated costs of major overhauls for aircraft and engines under operating leases are accrued and charged to the income statement over the estimated period between overhauls using the ratios of actual flying hours/cycles and estimated flying hours/cycles between overhauls. The costs of major overhauls comprise mainly labour and materials. Differences between the estimated costs and the actual costs of overhauls are included in the income statement in the period of overhaul.

In respect of aircraft and engines owned by the Group or held under finance leases, costs of major overhauls are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

All other routine repair and maintenance costs incurred in restoring such property, plant and equipment to their normal working condition are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Revenue recognition

Revenue is recognised when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Group and the revenue can be reliably measured on the following bases:

(a) Provision of airline and airline-related services

Passenger revenue is recognised either when transportation is provided or when a ticket expires unused rather than when a ticket is sold. Unused tickets generally expire one year from the date the ticket was sold, or for partially used tickets, the date of first flight. Ticket sales for transportation not yet provided are included in current liabilities as air traffic liabilities. In addition, the Group has code-sharing agreements with other airlines under which a carrier's flights can be marketed under the two-letter airline designator code of another carrier. Revenues earned under these arrangements are allocated between the code share partners based on existing contractual agreements and airline industry standard pro-ratio formulae and are recognised as passenger revenue when the transportation is provided.

Cargo and mail revenues are recognised when the transportation is provided.

Revenue from airline-related services is recognised when services are rendered.

Revenue was stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund prior to 1 January 2004. From 2004, contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund are included in other flight operation expenses to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government.

(b) Sale of goods

Revenue is recognised when the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the buyer, provided that the Group maintains neither managerial involvement to the degree usually associated with ownership, nor effective control over the goods sold.

(c) Trading of investments

Revenue is recognised on a trade date basis.

(d) Interest income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis taking into account the principal outstanding and the effective rate of interest applicable.

(e) Dividends

Revenue is recognised when the owners' right to receive the payment has been established.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Revenue recognition

(f) Rental income and aircraft and related equipment lease income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis over the terms of the respective leases.

Frequent flyer programme

For Air China Companion Club member accounts that have sufficient mileage credits to claim the lowest level of free travel, the Group records a liability for the estimated incremental costs associated with providing travel awards that are expected to be redeemed. Incremental costs include the cost of incremental fuel, meals and insurance but do not include any cost for aircraft ownership, maintenance, labour or overhead allocation. The liability is adjusted periodically based on awards earned, awards redeemed, changes in the incremental costs and changes in the Air China Companion Club programme, and is included in the balance sheet as a current liability.

Government grants

Government grants are recognised at their fair values when it is probable that the grant will be received and all attaching conditions will be complied with. When the grant relates to an expense item, it is recognised as income over the periods necessary to match the grant on a systematic basis to the costs that it is intended to compensate. Where the grant relates to an asset, the fair value is credited to a deferred income account and is released to the income statement over the expected useful life of the relevant asset by equal annual instalments.

Borrowing costs

Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition of aircraft, construction or production of qualifying assets, i.e. assets that necessarily take a substantial period of time to get ready for their intended use, are capitalised as part of the costs of those assets. The capitalisation of aircraft borrowing costs ceases when the aircraft is placed into revenue earning services and the capitalisation of other assets' borrowing costs ceases when the assets are substantially ready for their intended use or sale.

Where funds have been borrowed generally, and used for the purpose of obtaining qualifying assets, a capitalisation rate ranging between 5.58% and 5.76% has been applied to the expenditure on the individual asset.

All other borrowing costs are charged to the income statement in the period in which they are incurred.

Income tax

Income tax comprises current and deferred income tax. Income tax is recognised in the income statement, or in equity if it relates to items that are recognised in the same or a different period directly in equity.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Income tax

Deferred income tax is provided, using the liability method, on all temporary differences at the balance sheet date between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and their carrying amounts for financial reporting purposes. Deferred income tax liabilities are recognised for all taxable temporary differences:

. except where the deferred income tax liability arises from goodwill amortisation or the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

. in respect of taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, except where the timing of the reversal of the temporary differences can be controlled and it is probable that the temporary differences will not reverse in the foreseeable future.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised for all deductible temporary differences, carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses, to the extent that it is probable that taxable profit will be available against which the deductible temporary differences, and the carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses can be utilised:

. except where the deferred income tax asset relating to the deductible temporary difference arises from the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

. in respect of deductible temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, deferred tax assets are only recognised to the extent that it is probable that the temporary differences will be reversed in the foreseeable future and taxable profit will be available against which the temporary differences can be utilised.

The carrying amount of deferred income tax assets is reviewed at each balance sheet date and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable profit will be available to allow all or part of the deferred income tax asset to be utilised. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply to the period when the asset is realised or the liability is settled based on tax rates (and tax laws) that have been enacted or substantively enacted at the balance sheet date.

Derivative financial instruments

The Group uses derivative financial instruments to hedge its exposure to fuel prices. In accordance with IAS 39, such derivative financial instruments are carried in the balance sheet at fair value as financial assets or financial liabilities.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Derivative financial instruments

For the purposes of hedge accounting, hedges are classified as either fair value hedges where they hedge the exposure to changes in the fair value of a recognised asset or liability; or cash flow hedges where they hedge exposure to variability in cash flows that is either attributable to a particular risk associated with a recognised asset or liability or a forecasted transaction.

Changes in the fair value of derivatives that are designated and qualify as fair value hedges and that are highly effective are recorded in the income statement, along with any changes in the fair value of the hedged assets or liabilities that are attributable to the hedged risk. In relation to fair value hedges (interest rate swaps) which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, any gain or loss from remeasuring the hedging instrument at fair value is recognised immediately in the income statement. Any gain or loss on the hedged item attributable to the hedged risk is adjusted against the carrying amount of the hedged item and recognised in the income statement. Where the adjustment is to the carrying amount of a hedged interest-bearing financial instrument, the adjustment is amortised to the income statement such that it is fully amortised by maturity. In relation to cash flow hedges (forward foreign currency contracts) to hedge firm commitments which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, the portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognised directly in equity and the ineffective portion is recognised in the income statement.

When the hedged firm commitment results in the recognition of an asset or a liability, then, at the time the asset or liability is recognised, the associated gains or losses that had previously been recognised in equity are included in the initial measurement of the acquisition cost or other carrying amount of the asset or liability.

For all other cash flow hedges, the gains or losses that are recognised in equity are transferred to the income statement in the same year in which the hedged firm commitment affects the income statement, for example when the future sale actually occurs.

For derivatives that do not qualify for special hedge accounting, any gains or losses arising from changes in fair value are taken directly to the income statement for the year. Hedge accounting is discontinued when the hedging instrument expires or is sold, terminated or exercised, or no longer qualifies for special hedge accounting. At that point in time, any cumulative gain or loss on the hedging instrument recognised in equity is kept in equity until the forecasted transaction occurs. If a hedged transaction is no longer expected to occur, the net cumulative gain or loss recognised in equity is transferred to the income statement for the year.

Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements of the Group in accordance with IFRS requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Related parties

Parties are considered to be related if one party has the ability, directly or indirectly, to control the other party or exercise significant influence over the other party in making financial and operating decisions. Parties are also considered to be related if they are subject to common control or common significant influence. Related parties may be individuals or corporate entities.

Recoverable amount of non-current assets

At each reporting date, the Group assesses whether there is any indication that an asset may be impaired. Where an indicator of impairment exists, the Group makes a formal estimate of the recoverable amount. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. Recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's or cash-generating unit's fair value less costs to sell and its value in use and is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets.

Trade and other receivables

Trade receivables, which generally have 30 to 90 day terms, are recognised and carried at original invoice amount less an allowance for any uncollectible amounts. An estimate for doubtful debts is made when collection of the full amount is no longer probable. Bad debts are written off when identified.

Other receivables are recognised and carried at cost less allowances for any uncollectible amounts.

Interest-bearing loans and borrowings

All loans and borrowings are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration received net of issue costs associated with the borrowings.

After initial recognition, interest-bearing loans and borrowings are subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest rate method. Amortised cost is calculated by taking into account any issue costs, and any discount or premium on settlement.

Gains and losses are recognised in the income statement when the liabilities are derecognised or impaired, as well as through the amortisation process.

Derecognition of financial instruments

The derecognition of a financial instrument takes place when the Group no longer controls the contractual rights that comprise the financial instrument, which is normally the case when the instrument is sold, or all the cash flows attributable to the instrument are passed through to an independent third party.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IFRS 2, Share-based Payment, is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005 and requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the entity. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 will apply for grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested at the beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The Group does not expect IFRS 2 to have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 16 (amended 2004), Property, Plant and Equipment, replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998), Property, Plant and Equipment, and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. These include that the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Further, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. In addition, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. Also, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive in the future on the asset's actual retirement date. The Group does not expect the adoption of new policies arising from the amended standard, when implemented, will have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES #

Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IAS 24 (revised 2003), Related Party Disclosures, replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994) and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definitions and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

3. SEGMENT INFORMATION#

Segment information is presented by way of two segment formats: (i) on a primary segment reporting basis, by business segment; and (ii) on a secondary segment reporting basis, by geographical segment.

The Group's operating businesses are structured and managed separately, according to the nature of their operations and the services they provide. Each of the Group's business segments represents a strategic business unit that offers services which are subject to risks and returns that are different from those of the other business segments.

Currently, the Group's business segment information is divided into four business segments - airline operations, engineering services, airport terminal services and other businesses ("others"). Segment net profit represents revenues less expenses directly attributable to a segment and the relevant portion of enterprise revenues less expenses that can be allocated on a reasonable basis to a segment, whether from external transactions or from transactions with other segments of the Group.

Segment assets and liabilities mainly comprise those operating assets and liabilities that are directly attributable to the segment or can be allocated to the segment on a reasonable basis.

In determining the Group's geographical segments, revenues are attributed to the segments based on origin and destination of each flight segment. Assets, which consist principally of flight and ground equipment, supporting the entire worldwide transportation system, are mainly located in the PRC. An analysis of assets and capital expenditure of the Group by geographical distribution has therefore not been included.

Intersegment sales and transfers are transacted with reference to the selling prices used for sales made to third parties at the then prevailing market prices.

Air traffic revenues comprise revenues from the airline business and is stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund. The CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, which was netted against gross air traffic revenues for the year ended 31 December 2003, was included in other flight operation expenses for the year ended 31 December 2004 to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government. An analysis of air traffic revenues is as follows:

	Group

4. AIR TRAFFIC REVENUES #

(a) Pursuant to various PRC business tax rules and regulations, the Group is required to pay business tax to the local tax bureaus at the following rates:

Type of revenue	Applicable business tax rate
Air traffic revenues	3% of air traffic revenues. All inbound international and Ho exempted from business tax.
Other revenues	3% of commission income and ground services income, and 3% t

PRC business tax incurred for the two years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004, netted against air traffic revenues, amounted to approximately RMB240 million and RMB711 million, respectively.

For the period from 1 May 2003 to 31 December 2003, PRC business tax for all domestic, international and regional passenger traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome ("SARS") in the region.

(b) In addition, the Group was required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund which was calculated at the rates of 5% and 2% on the domestic and internaticnal/Hcng Kong and Macau regional air traffic revenues, respectively, for the year ended 31 December 2003.

For the period from 1 May 2003 to 31 December 2003, CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund for all domestic, international and regional passenger, cargo and mail traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of SARS in the region.

For the period from 1 January 2004 to 31 March 2004, the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was suspended by the PRC government. As such, no CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was charged to the income statement of the Group for the three-month period ended 31 March 2004. Effective from 1 April 2004, the Group is required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund calculated on the basis of the usage of domestic routes and domestic segments of international routes, geographic area and length of routes and aircraft weight.

Contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund payable by the Group

9. DILUTION GAINS ON INVESTMENTS#

Dilution gain on investment in Air Cargo Business (note 9 (a))
Dilution gains on investments in BACL and SWACL (note 9 (b))

Notes:

(a) Pursuant to the Restructuring, the air cargo business and relevant air cargo assets and liabilities (the "Air Cargo Business") were operated and owned solely by the Group as if it had been directly held by the Group as of 1 January 2003 in accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to these financial statements. In 2004, the entire Air Cargo Business was transferred to Air China Cargo, a 51% owned joint venture of the Company, in the form of the Company's capital contribution and advance to Air China Cargo. Subsequent to the transfer of Air Cargo Business to Air China Cargo, the Group's effective interest in the Air Cargo Business was diluted from 100% to 51% and, accordingly, a gain on dilution of investment in Air Cargo Business of approximately RMB330 million arose.

9. DILUTION GAINS ON INVESTMENTS #

(b) In accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to these financial statements, 60% shareholding interest in Beijing Air Catering Co., Ltd. ("BACL") and 75% shareholding interest in Southwest Air Catering Company Limited ("SWACL") were deemed to be held by the Group as of 1 January 2003.

During 2004, the Group transferred its entire 60% shareholding interest in BACL and 60% shareholding interest in SWACL to Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, for a consideration of RMB294 million and RMB67 million, respectively.

In addition to the above, the Group also transferred its remaining 15% shareholding interest in SWACL to Hongkong Southwest Air Catering Limited (" HKSACL"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million.

Subsequent to the completion of the above transactions, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively and, accordingly, gains on dilution of investments in BACL and SWACL aggregating approximately RMB80 million arose.

11. RETIREMENT BENEFITS#

All of the Group's full-time employees in the PRC are covered by a government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme, and are entitled to an annual pension determined by their basic salaries upon their retirement. The PRC government is responsible for the pension liabilities to these retired employees. The Group is required to make annual contributions to the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme at rates ranging from 15% to 20% of the employees' basic salaries during the year and has no further obligation for post-retirement benefits in respect of the above. This defined contribution plan continues to be available to the Group's employees after the Restructuring. The related pension costs are expensed as incurred.

Prior to the Restructuring, the Group also paid certain supplementary pension benefits (the "Supplementary Pension Benefits") to its employees who retired before the formation of the Company. Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to assume past payments and future liabilities in respect of the Supplementary Pension Benefits for those employees who retired before the formation of the Company for nil consideration. The pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits borne by CNAHC was approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) (note 46). The Group's employees who retire after the formation of the Company are not entitled to the Supplementary Pension Benefits. CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group against losses from any claims for the Supplementary Pension Benefits.

Further, the Group implemented an early retirement plan for certain employees in addition to the benefits under the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the Supplementary Pension Benefits described above. The benefits of the early retirement plan are calculated based on factors including the remaining number of years of services from date of early retirement to normal retirement date and the salary amount on the date of early retirement of the employees. The costs of early retirement benefits were recognised in the period when employees opted for early retirement. Where the effect of discounting is material, the amount recognised for early retirement benefits is the present value at the balance sheet date of the future cash flows expected to be required to settle the obligation. The increase in the discounted present value amount arising from the passage of time is included in finance costs in the income statement.

11. RETIREMENT BENEFITS #

The expenses attributed to the PRC government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the early retirement benefits are as follows:

Contributions to PRC government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme
Early retirement benefits

Total (note 7)

Forfeited contribution totaling RMB1,579,000 (2003: RMB983,000) was utilised during the year. At 31 December 2004, the Group had no forfeited contributions available to reduce its contributions to the pension scheme in future years (2003: RMB54,000).

12. TAX#

According to the PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law, the Company, its subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates established in the PRC are subject to the enterprise income tax at a rate of 33% (2003: 33%) on their taxable income.

Hong Kong profits tax has been provided at the rate of 17.5% (2003: 17.5%) on the estimated assessable profits arising in Hong Kong during the year.

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on 30 September 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation was calculated at the applicable tax rate on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to domestic enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to CNAHC for the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) referred to in note 14 (b) to these financial statements will be calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau.

Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company will settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureaus.

12. TAX #

The determination of current and deferred income tax was based on enacted tax rates. Major components of income tax charge are as follows:

Current income tax
Current income tax charge

effective income tax rate, and a reconciliation of the applicable rates (i.e., the statutory tax rates) to the effective tax rates, are as follows:

Profit before income tax

At statutory income tax rate of 33%
Lower income tax rates of other territories
Income not subject to tax
Expenses not deductible for tax purposes
Effect on opening deferred income tax of increase in other territories' income ta rates

12. TAX #

At 31 December 2004, there was no significant unrecognised deferred tax liability (2003: Nil) for taxes that would be payable on the un-remitted earnings of certain of the Group's subsidiaries and joint ventures, as the Directors of the Company do not have intention to remit any significant amount of earnings to the Company in the foreseeable future.

There are no income tax consequences attaching to the payment of dividends by the Company to its shareholders.

Total

(a) On 21 April 2004, Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, entered into the following acquisition agreements which were supplemented on 26 April 2004:

(i) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in BACL ("BACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB294 million; and

(ii) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in SWACL ("SWACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB67 million.

On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of BACL Agreement and SWACL Agreement were completed and these two acquisition agreements were effective on that date accordingly.

14. APPROPRIATIONS #

On 20 April 2004, Air China International Corporation entered into a stock transfer agreement with HKSACL ("HKSACL Agreement"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, pursuant to which, Air China International Corporation disposed of 15% of the equity interest in SWACL to HKSACL for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million. On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of HKSACL Agreement were completed and this agreement was effective on that date accordingly.

Immediately after the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively.

As a result of the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group made a payment of approximately RMB378 million to CNAHC, representing the total consideration payable by CNAC and HKSACL for the acquisitions of the entire shareholding interests held by the Group in BACL and SWACL pursuant to the Restructuring as set out in note 1 to these financial statements. This payment has been made to CNAHC and accounted for as a special distribution to CNAHC by the Company.

(b) In accordance with the (/raster(70%,p)="c04") "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance (the English title is a direct translation of the Chinese title of the notice), which became effective from 27 August 2002, and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on the audited accounts prepared in accordance with the accounting principles and the financial regulations applicable in the PRC (the "PRC GAAP"), generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC after giving effect to relevant necessary adjustments. The net profit attributable to shareholders mentioned above for the said period is calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC of approximately RMB191,721,000 which in turn will settle the tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau as detailed in note 12 to these financial statements.

In addition, in accordance with (/raster(70%,p)="c04") "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG.

(c) The profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company represent the net assets which have been carved-out and treated as deemed distributions pursuant to the Restructuring set out in note 1 to these financial statements and dividends paid during that period.

The rates of dividend and the number of shares ranking for dividends are not presented in this footnote for those profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company as such information is not considered meaningful.

Cash dividends to shareholders in Hong Kong will be paid in Hong Kong dollars.

Following the incorporation of the Company, under the PRC Company Law and the Company's articles of association, net profit after tax as reported in the PRC statutory financial statements can only be distributed as dividends after allowance has been made for the following:

(i) Making up prior years' cumulative losses, if any;

(ii) Allocations to the statutory common reserve fund of at least 10% of after-tax profit, until the fund aggregates 50% of the Company's registered capital. For the purpose of calculating the transfer to reserves, the profit after tax shall be the amount determined under the PRC GAAP. The transfer to this reserve must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

The statutory common reserve fund can be used to offset previous years' losses, if any, and part of the statutory common reserve fund can be capitalised as the Company's share capital provided that the amount of such reserve remaining after the capitalisation shall not be less than 25% of the share capital of the Company;

(iii) Allocations of 5% to 10% of after-tax profit, as determined under PRC GAAP, to the Company's statutory public welfare fund, which will be established for the purpose of providing for the Company's employees collective welfare benefits such as the construction of dormitories, canteens and other staff welfare facilities. The fund forms part of the shareholders' equity as only individual employees can use these facilities, while the title of such facilities is held by the Company. The transfer to this fund must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders; and

(iv) Allocations to the discretionary common reserve if approved by the shareholders.

The above reserves cannot be used for purposes other than those for which they are created and are not distributable as cash dividends.

In accordance with the articles of association of the Company, the net profit after tax of the Company for the purpose of dividends payment is based on the lesser of (i) the net profit determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP; and (ii) the net profit determined in accordance with IFRS.

14. APPROPRIATIONS #

Prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, no profit appropriation to the aforesaid reserve funds was required.

15. EARNINGS PER SHARE#

The calculation of basic earnings per share for the year ended 31 December 2004 is based on the net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent for the year ended 31 December 2004 of approximately RMB2,385,964,000, and the weighted average of approximately 6,618,795,915 shares in issue during the year on the assumption that the 6,500,000,000 shares issued as at 30 September 2004 had been in issue throughout the year ended 31 December 2004, and as adjusted to reflect the new issue of 2,550,618,182 shares by way of placing and public offering in connection with the public listing of the Company's H shares on 15 December 2004.

The calculation of basic earnings per share for the year ended 31 December 2003 is based on the net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent for the year ended 31 December 2003 of approximately RMB159,604,000, and the number of shares in issue during 2003 on the assumption that the 6,500,000,000 shares issued as at 30 September 2004 had been in issue throughout the year ended 31 December 2003.

The calculation of diluted earnings per share is based on the net profit attributable to equity holders of the parent for the year ended 31 December 2004 of approximately RMB2,385,964,000. The weighted average number of ordinary shares used in the calculation is the 6,618,795,915 shares in issue during the year, as used in the basic earnings per share calculation and the weighted average of 556,132 ordinary shares assumed to have been issued at no consideration on the deemed exercise of all over-allotment options granted to international underwriters to subscribe for the H shares of the Company during the year.

Goodwill at beginning of the year (note 19 (a))

19. INTERESTS IN ASSOCIATES #

Notes:

(a) The goodwill brought forward from 2003 related to the acquisition of shareholding interests of 35.86% and 7.43% in Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited ("Dragonair") by CNACG and its then wholly-owned subsidiary, CNAC, in June 1996 and October 1997, respectively. The aggregate goodwill arising from these two acquisitions was approximately RMB2,130 million and subsequently reduced to approximately RMB1,205 million through deemed disposal upon the initial public offering of CNAC and the accumulated amortisation on the straight-line basis over a period of 20 years until 1 January 2001 (the date of adoption of IFRS 3 by the Group).

(b) The goodwill arose in the current year related to the acquisitions of effective shareholding interests of 48.0% in Shandong Aviation Group Corporation ("Shandong Aviation"), 22.8% in Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shandong Airlines ") and 13.9% in LSG Lufthansa Service Hong Kong Limited ("LSGHK") by the Group, resulting in an aggregate goodwill amount of approximately RMB200 million.

Impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair

Goodwill acquired through the business combination in relation to the acquisition of shareholding interest in Dragonair has been allocated to the cash-generating unit, Dragonair, within the airline operations segment.

The recoverable amount of Dragonair has been determined based on a value in use calculation. To calculate this, cash flow projections are based on financial budgets approved by management covering a one-year period. The discount rate applied to the cash flow projections beyond the one-year period is 5.0%. No growth has been projected beyond the one-year period.

Key assumptions used in the value in use calculation of Dragonair

The following describes each key assumption on which management has based its cash flow projections when undertaking the impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair:

Passenger revenues - the bases used to determine the value assigned to the budgeted passenger revenues are available seat kilometers, passenger traffic, passenger load factor and passenger yield. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Operating expenses - the bases used to determine the values assigned are staff headcount, scheduled flight hours, passenger traffic and jet fuel consumption. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Under the Plan, the holders of SARs are entitled the rights to receive an amount in respect of the appreciation in market value of the Company's H shares from the date of grant of SARs and the date of exercise. No shares will be issued under the Plan and therefore the Company's equity interests will not be diluted as a result of the issuance of SARs. The maximum number of unexercised SARs permitted to be granted under the Plan is, upon their exercise, limited to 2% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to eligible participants under the Plan within any 12-month period is, upon their exercise, limited to 0.4% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to any eligible participant is limited to 10% of the total number of unexercised SARs in issue at any time during each year. Any further grant of SARs in excess of the above limits is subject to shareholders' approval in general meetings.

The exercise period of all SARs commences after a vesting period and ends on a date which is not later than five years from the date of grant of the SARs. As of each of the last day of the second, third and fourth anniversary of the date of grant, the total number of SARs exercisable will not exceed 30%, 70% and 100%, respectively, of the total SARs granted to the respective eligible participants.

39. LONG-TERM COMPENSATION PLAN #

The exercise price of SARs will be equal to the average closing price of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange for the five consecutive trading days immediately preceding the date of the grant.

As of 31 December 2004, no SARs had been issued under the Plan.

In addition, the Company had retained profits of approximately RMB207.6 million, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and being the lesser amount of the retained profits determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and IFRS, available for distribution as dividend.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES#

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the following legal matters and litigation set out in items (a) to (c) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As of 31 December 2004, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(a) Pursuant to the agreement for the Restructuring entered into by the Company with CNAHC and CNACG, except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(b) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities including 121 passengers and 8 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of these financial statements. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 31 December 2004, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of RMB190 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB190 million is an amount of RMB173 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The Directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES #

(c) Air China International Corporation is one of the defendants in a civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) (the " Litigation"). United Aero-Supplies System of China Limited ("UASSC") had entered into an agreement with the defendants for the exclusive purchase of aviation equipment consigned to UASSC for sale and, that as the defendants failed to perform the agreement, UASSC has the right to compensation. Since UASSC is in the course of its winding up proceedings, all the rights and benefits of UASSC in connection with the claim have been transferred to New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC"). Air China International Corporation, as one of the defendants to the Litigation, was claimed by NLC for compensation of HK$60,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB63,600,000) for failing to perform the above agreement. Air China International Corporation has filed an objection in respect of the jurisdiction of the court, and has requested the court to transfer the case to Mainland China for trial. Air China International Corporation received an order in respect of this application on 3 May 2004. The judge granted the application and ordered that the action against Air China International Corporation be dismissed. Subsequent to this order, NLC has filed an appeal. The date of hearing for the appeal has been fixed on 28 July 2005. After considering the aforesaid order granted by the judge and consulting the legal counsel, the Directors of the Company consider that Air China International Corporation has a reasonable chance of success in its defence to the claim. Accordingly, the Directors of the Company consider that a provision for such claim and/or the associated legal costs is not required.

Within one year	1,14

43. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS#

Financial assets of the Group and the Company mainly include cash and cash equivalents, pledged assets, trade receivables, other investments, deposits and other receivables. Financial liabilities of the Group and the Company mainly include bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, trade payables, other payables, bills payable and air traffic liabilities.

The carrying amounts of the Group's and the Company's financial instruments approximated their fair value as at the balance sheet date. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time and based on relevant market information about the financial instruments. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgement and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect the estimates.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK#

(a) Financial risk management objectives and policies

The Group operates globally and generates revenues in various currencies. The Group's airline operations are exposed to business risk, liquidity risk, jet fuel price risk, foreign currency risk, interest rate risk and credit risk. The Group's overall risk management approach is to moderate the effects of such volatility on its financial performance.

Financial risk management policies are periodically reviewed and approved by the Board of Directors.

(b) Business risk

The operations of the air transportation industry are substantially influenced by global political and economic development. Factors such as accidents and wars may have a material impact on the Group's operations or the industry as a whole. In addition, the Group primarily conducts its principal operations in the PRC and accordingly is subject to special consideration and significant risks not typically associated with companies in the United States of America and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among other things, the political, economic and legal environment, competition and influence of the CAAC in the Chinese civil aviation industry.

(c) Liquidity risk

The Group's net current liabilities amounted to approximately RMB6,860 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB12,384 million). The Group recorded a net cash inflow from operating activities of approximately RMB6,151 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB5,425 million). For the same period, the Group had a net cash outflow from investing activities of approximately RMB4,974 million (2003: RMB4,360 million). The Group also recorded a net cash inflow from financing activities of approximately RMB5,620 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 and a net cash outflow from financing activities of approximately RMB2,207 million for the year ended 31 December 2003. The Group has recorded an increase in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB6,824 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 but a decrease in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB1,057 million for the year ended 31 December 2003.

With regards to 2005 and thereafter, the liquidity of the Group is primarily dependent on its ability to maintain adequate cash inflow from operations to meet its debt obligations as they fall due, and on its ability to obtain external financing to meet its committed future capital expenditures. With regards to its future capital commitments and other financing requirements, the Company has already obtained several banking facilities with several PRC banks of up to an amount of RMB71,700 million as at 31 December 2004, of which an amount of approximately RMB40,183 million was utilised.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK #

(c) Liquidity risk

The Directors of the Company have carried out a detailed review of the cash flow forecast of the Group for the year ending 31 December 2005. Based on such forecast, the Directors have determined that adequate liquidity exists to finance the working capital and capital expenditure requirements of the Group during 2005. In preparing the cash flow forecast, the Directors have considered historical cash requirements of the Group as well as other key factors, including the availability of the above-mentioned loans financing which may impact the operations of the Group prior to the end of 2005. The Directors are of the opinion that the assumptions and sensitivities which are included in the cash flow forecast are reasonable. However, as with all assumptions in regard to future events, these are subject to inherent limitations and uncertainties and some or all of these assumptions may not be realised.

(d) Jet fuel price risk

The Group's strategy for managing the risk on jet fuel price aims to provide the Group with protection against sudden and significant increases in prices. In meeting these objectives, the Group allows for the judicious use of approved derivative instruments such as swaps and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits.

Moreover, counter-party credit risk is generally restricted to any gains on changes in fair value from time to time, and not the principal amount of the instrument. Therefore, the possibility of material loss arising in the event of non-performance by a counter-party is considered to be unlikely.

The fair values of derivative instruments of the Group and the Company at the balance sheet date are as follows:

	Group and Company 2004
	Assets	Lia
	RMB'000
Swaps and collars expiring:
Within 6 months	-
Over 6 months to 21 months	-

Fair values of derivative instruments, denominated in United States dollars, are obtained from quoted market prices, dealer price quotations, discounted cash flow models and option pricing models, which consider current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as time value of money, yield curve and volatility of the underlying instruments.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK #

(e) Foreign currency risk

The Group's finance lease obligations as well as certain bank and other loans are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen, and certain expenses of the Group are denominated in currencies other than RMB. The Group generates foreign currency revenues from ticket sales made in overseas offices and would normally generate sufficient foreign currencies after payment of foreign currency expenses, to meet its foreign currency liabilities repayable within one year. RMB against United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars have been comparatively stable in the past. However, RMB against Japanese yen had experienced a significant level of fluctuation over 2004 which is the major reason for the significant exchange difference recognised by the Group for 2004.

(f) Interest rate risk

The Group's earnings are also affected by changes in interest rates due to the impact of such changes on interest income and expense from short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities. A significant portion of the Group's interest-bearing financial liabilities with maturities above one year have predominately fixed rates of interest and are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen.

The Group's short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities are predominately denominated in RMB, United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars.

(g) Credit risk

The Group's cash and cash equivalents are deposited with PRC banks, overseas banks and an associate. The Group has policies in place to limit the exposure to any one financial institution.

A significant portion of the Group's air tickets are sold by agents participating in the Billing and Settlements Plan ("BSP"), a clearing system between airlines and sales agents organised by the International Air Transportation Association. The balance due from BSP agents amounted to approximately RMB531 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB342 million).

Except for the above, the Group has no significant concentration of credit risk, with exposure spread over a number of counter-parties.

45. CONSOLIDATED CASH FLOW STATEMENT#

(a) Analysis of balances of cash and cash equivalents is as follows:

Cash and cash equivalents for balance sheet (note 26)

Less: Non-pledged time deposits with original maturity of more than three months

Cash and cash equivalents for consolidated cash flow statement

(b) Establishment of a joint venture

The establishment of a joint venture has been shown in the consolidated cash flow statement as a single item. The cash flow effect can be analysed as follows:

Cash and bank balances
Trade receivables
Other receivables

Property, plant and equipment (note 16)
Inventories
Trade payables
Other payables and accruals
Air traffic liabilities

Net assets attributable to the joint venture partners
Dilution gain on investment (note 9)

Cash contribution from the joint venture partners
Less: Cash attributable to the joint venture partners

Cash flow on establishment of a joint venture, net of cash attributable to the joint venture partners

45. CONSOLIDATED CASH FLOW STATEMENT #

(c) Major non-cash transactions

(i) During the year, the Group received an aircraft injected by the PRC government amounting to RMB304,787,000 (note 36). This amount has been recorded in property, plant and equipment.

(ii) Upon incorporation of the Company, CNAHC effected the transfer of certain land use rights in an aggregate amount of approximately RMB885,626,000 to the Company.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS#

The Group is part of a larger group of companies under CNAHC and has extensive transactions and relationships with members of CNAHC. As such, it is possible that the terms of these transactions are not the same as those that would result from transactions among wholly unrelated parties. Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or significant influence. The transactions were made at prices and terms mutually agreed between the parties.

In addition to the Restructuring, further details of which are set out in note 1 to these financial statements, and transactions and balances detailed elsewhere in these financial statements, the Group had the following significant recurring transactions carried out in the ordinary course of business between the Group and (i) CNAHC, its subsidiaries (other than the Group), joint ventures and associates (collectively known as "CNAHC Group"); (ii) its joint ventures; and (iii) its associates:

(a) In addition to the above, on 18 October 1997, CNAC entered into a licence agreement with CNAC (PRC) pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) had agreed to grant a licence to CNAC, free of royalty, for the right to use certain trademarks in Hong Kong, the Taiwan region and Macau so long as CNAC is a subsidiary of CNACG. No royalty charge was levied in respect for the use of these trademarks during each of the two years ended 31 December 2004.

On 25 August 2004, CNAC (PRC) entered into two assignment agreements with CNACG pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) has agreed to assign, free of royalty, the above-mentioned trademarks to CNACG for use in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively. On 25 August 2004, CNACG entered into two licence agreements with CNAC pursuant to which CNACG has agreed to grant licences to CNAC, free of royalty, for the rights to use those trademarks in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively, so long as CNAC is a direct or indirect subsidiary of CNAHC. These licence agreements supersede the licence agreement entered into between CNAC (PRC) and CNAC on 18 October 1997.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS #

(b) Pursuant to certain of the Company's aircraft leasing arrangements and bank loan arrangements, the overseas lessors and lenders require guarantees to be given by some major PRC state-owned banks. In giving such guarantees, the PRC state-owned banks in turn require CNAHC and CNAF to provide counter-guarantees in favour of the banks. As at the balance sheet date, the amounts of such counter-guarantees provided by CNAHC and CNAF were as follows:

CNAHC:
Finance leases (note 33)
Operating leases
Bank loans (note 34) 1

CNAF:
Finance leases (note 33) 3

* Subsequent to 31 December 2004, these counter-guarantees provided by CNAF amounting to RMB4,737 million in favour of the banks have been fully released.

Certain of the Group's bank loans from the PRC banks are guaranteed by Air China International Corporation and other related parties, further details of which are set out in note 34 to these financial statements.

(c) In connection with the Restructuring, the Company entered into several agreements with CNAHC which govern the use of trademarks granted by the Company to CNAHC, the provision of financial services by CNAF, the provision of construction project management services by China National Aviation Construction and Development Company, the subcontracting of charter-flight services to CNAHC, the leasing of properties from and to CNAHC, the provision of air ticketing and cargo services, media and advertising services arrangement to China National Aviation Media and Advertising Co., Ltd., the tourism services co-operation agreement with CNAHC, the comprehensive services agreement with CNAHC, and the provision of maintenance and other ground services by China Aircraft Services Limited.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS #

(d) On 19 August 2004, Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, entered into the following acquisition agreements:

(i) a sale and purchase agreement with CNACG in relation to the acquisition of approximately 16% of the issued share capital of LSGHK, a company incorporated in Hong Kong with limited liability ("CNACG Agreement"); and

(ii) a sale and purchase agreement with Hong Kong International Air Catering Limited ("HKIAC"), a company incorporated in Hong Kong with limited liability and in which Air China International Corporation has a 25% equity interest, in relation to the acquisition of approximately 4.2% of the issued share capital of LSGHK ("HKIAC Agreement").

The total consideration of the above acquisitions is approximately RMB122 million. Immediately after the completion of the CNACG Agreement and HKIAC Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in LSGHK is approximately 14%.

(e) All pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits of approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) were borne by CNAHC (note 11).

The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the above transactions with related parties were conducted in the usual course of business.

47. EVENTS AFTER THE BALANCE SHEET DATE #

(a) On 11 January 2005, upon the exercise of the over-allotment option, the Company issued to the public by way of placement of 420,852,000 H Shares, consisting of 382,592,727 new shares and 29,749,686 State legal person shares and 8,509,587 non-H Foreign Shares, with a par value of RMB1.00 each at HK2.98 (equivalent to approximately RMB3.17072) per share. After deducting net proceeds of approximately RMB117 million received from the sale of these State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares, the amount of which should be remitted to the Social Security Fund, and share issue expenses of approximately RMB47 million (before deducting share issue expenses of approximately RMB4 million borne by the Social Security Fund as mentioned above), the Company raised net proceeds of approximately RMB1,170 million, of which paid-up share capital amounted to approximately RMB383 million and capital reserve amounted to approximately RMB787 million. The above H shares rank pari passu, in all material respects, with the State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares of the Company.

47. EVENTS AFTER THE BALANCE SHEET DATE #

(b) On 26 January 2005, the Company and AIE entered into an agreement with Airbus S.A.S. ("Airbus"), pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 20 A330-200 aircraft (the "Airbus Aircraft") from Airbus for an aggregate consideration of approximately US$2.86 billion (equivalent to approximately RMB23.68 billion). The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Airbus

Aircraft is payable in cash by instalments. The Airbus Aircraft are scheduled to be delivered in stages to the Company from mid-2006 to end of 2008. Pursuant to the relevant Chinese regulations, the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is conditional upon the PRC government's approval. As of the date of approval of these financial statements, the said government approval has not been obtained by the Company.

(c) On 28 January 2005, the Company, other contracting Chinese airlines, China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation ("CASGC") and Boeing Company entered into an agreement (the "Framework Agreement"), pursuant to which CASGC agreed to purchase (as an agent of the Company and other contracting Chinese airlines) 60 Boeing 7E7 aircraft. The aggregate catalog price of the aircraft is approximately US$7.3 billion (equivalent to approximately RMB60.42 billion). Pursuant to the Framework Agreement, the Company expects to enter into a specific purchase agreement with CASGC and Boeing Company in respect of the purchase of 15 Boeing 7E7 aircraft (the "Boeing Aircraft"). The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of the Boeing Aircraft is expected to be lower than the catalog price. The delivery of the Boeing Aircraft is expected to take place in stages from mid-2008. The specific purchase agreement has not been finalised as at the date of approval of these financial statements.

B. PROPOSED A SHARE ISSUE

1. General

Subject to Shareholders' approval at the EGM and the separate Class Meetings, the Company will apply to the relevant authorities in the PRC for regulatory approval for the allotment and issue of not more than 2.7 billion A Shares to institutional and public investors in the PRC and for the listing of such A Shares on the Shanghai Stock Exchange. It is expected that such investors will not include connected persons (as defined under the Listing Rules) of the Company. If any of such investors includes any connected persons of the Company, the Company will take steps to comply with the relevant connected transaction requirements under the Listing Rules. At present, the Company has its H Shares listed on the main board of the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and are admitted for trading on the market for listed securities on the London Stock Exchange.

The proposed A Share Issue and the listing application are subject to approval by the Shareholders at the EGM and the separate Class Meetings to be held on 28 March 2006. As at the date of this circular, no application has been made by the Company to any PRC authorities in relation to the A Share Issue. It is expected that the listing application will be made around the end of March 2006.

2. Structure of the A Share Issue

Type of securities to be issued:	RMB denominated ordinary shares (i.e. A Shares).
Number of A Shares to be issued:	Not more than 2.7 billion A Shares, representing approximately 28.62% of the existing issued share capital of the Company and approximately 22.25% of the enlarged issued share capital of the Company immediately after completion of the proposed A Share Issue, assuming no other changes to the share capital of the Company.
Nominal value:	RMB1.00 each.
Rights attached to A Share:	The A Shares to be issued are listed Domestic Shares and, except as otherwise provided for in the Articles, will rank pari passu with the existing Domestic Shares, H Shares and Non-H Foreign Shares in all respects.
Target subscribers:	Qualified institutional investors as approved by CSRC and the placees through online offering based on market share value (詢價對象及網上市值配售對象), and subscribers allowed by the regulatory bodies and by the applicable laws and regulations at the time of A Shares Issue.
Basis for determining the issue price:	The issue price will not be lower than 90% of the average closing price of the Company's H Shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange during the Price Consultation Period of the A Share Issue. The issue price for the proposed A Share Issue will be determined based on the PRC securities market conditions at the time when the A Share Issue takes place and in accordance with the applicable CSRC regulations. Thus the amount to be raised from the A Share Issue cannot be ascertained as at the date of this circular.

Use of proceeds:	It is intended that the net proceeds from the A Share Issue would be used to part finance the purchase of 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft, 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft and Air China's project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport ("Proposed Projects"). It will be proposed to the Shareholders at the EGM that the Company be authorised to apply the proceeds from the A Share Issue to any payment due in relation to the Proposed Projects or to repay any outstanding bank loan in relation to the Proposed Projects that occurred before the completion of the A Share Issue; after above prescribed use of the proceeds, any balance of it shall be applied to the working capital of the Company.

3. Information on the Proposed Projects

Investment amount

It is intended the net proceeds from A Share Issue will be used to part finance the Company's purchase of 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft, 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft and Air China's project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport. The total purchase amount for these aircraft will be less than the aggregate catalog price of US$5.68 billion, and the total investment amount for the project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities will be approximately RMB600 million.

Benefit for the Proposed Projects

Pursuant to a purchase agreement dated 26 January 2005 between the Company, Air China Group Import and Export Trading Co., and Airbus S.A.S, the Company has agreed to purchase 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft from Airbus S.A.S.. The Company also entered into a purchase agreement with Boeing Company on 8 August 2005 and 17 January 2006, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft, respectively. Further information on the purchases of the 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft, the 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and the 10 Boeing B737-800 aircraft is set out in the announcements made by the Company dated 26 January 2005, 8 August 2005 and 10 February 2006, respectively.

The purchases of aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and the aircraft from the purchases will principally serve the routes to international destinations in Europe, Australia, North America and certain key domestic destinations such as Lhasa. The aircraft from the purchases are expected to replace certain aircraft in the existing fleet of the Company. The purchase of the Boeing 737-800 aircraft will also reinforce Beijing's position as a transportation hub and increase frequency of flights, departing originally from Beijing, of a number of key domestic flight courses. The purchases of aircraft will enable the Company to provide more cost-efficient and comfortable services to the passengers.

The Company obtained approval from the National Development and Reform Commission of the People's Republic of China in September 2005 to commence a project relating to the expansion of the existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport. The total investment amount of the project is approximately RMB600 million. The project involves the expansion of various operating support facilities including the acquisition of a piece of land with an area of approximately 1 million square metres and the expansion of ground services facilities and other facilities.

4. Shareholders' approval and other approvals

The Class Meetings and the EGM will be held on 28 March 2006 to consider and, if thought fit, approve, among other things, the A Share Issue. It should be noted that the A Share Issue, upon the approval by the Shareholders at the separate Class Meetings and the EGM, is still subject to the approval by the CSRC and other PRC government authorities, if necessary. In addition, the approval by the Shanghai Stock Exchange as to the listing of and dealings in the A Shares on the Shanghai Stock Exchange is also required. Upon obtaining the requisite Shareholders' approval at the Class Meetings and the EGM, it is expected that the listing application will be made around the end of March 2006.

5. Reasons for and benefits of the A Share Issue

The Company believes that the A Share Issue will establish a new financing platform for the Company and will broaden the Company's access to different securities markets. This will enable the Company to enhance the development of its operations and to further improve its competitiveness. The Company believes that the A Share Issue will provide the financial resources required to part finance the development of the Proposed Projects. The Company expects that after the completion of the Proposed Projects, the carrying capacity of the Group will be further enhanced. Furthermore, the Company also believes that the capital raised from the A Share Issue will result in improvements in its debt-to-equity ratio and accordingly, will lower its operating risks.

The Directors believe that the A Share Issue will benefit the Company and the Shareholders as a whole.

6. Effect of the A Share Issue on the Company's shareholding structure

Set out below is the shareholding structure of the Company as at the date of this circular and immediately upon completion of the A Share Issue assuming that an aggregate of 2.7 billion new A Shares will be issued under the A Share Issue and no other changes to the share capital of the Company:

		As at the Date of this circular		Immediately after completion of the A Share Issue

As advised by the Company's PRC counsel, Haiwen & Partners ("Haiwen"), the Company is not required to implement the share conversion reform in the PRC as it is not an existing A Share company that is currently listed on the Shanghai Stock Exchange. As set out in the table above, the shareholding structure of the Company immediately after the completion of the A Share Issue under existing laws and regulations is currently expected to comprise non-listed Domestic Shares, non-H Foreign Shares, H Shares and A Shares, although certain new developments as set out below are expected.

According to the Guidelines on Share Conversion Reform of Listed Companies issued by the CSRC and other relevant authorities and committees in 2005, companies seeking an A Share listing in the PRC will no longer have both tradeable shares and non-tradeable shares. As the laws and regulations relating to the conversion of non-tradeable shares into tradable shares upon listing (the "New Rules") have not been promulgated, the CSRC has temporarily suspended giving final approvals for A Share offerings.

It is expected that CSRC will only approve new A Share listing after the New Rules have been promulgated. Although the conversion procedures under the New Rules are still uncertain at this stage, it is expected that under the New Rules, the existing non-listed Domestic Shares may be converted into tradeable shares eligible for listing and thus become A Shares, which will carry the same rights as the other A Shares issued by the Company. It is expected that the conversion of non-listed Domestic Shares into A Shares (if approved) will not involve any payment of compensation by the holders of the non-listed Domestic Shares to the holders of A Shares and will also not require approval by Shareholders at separate Class Meetings.

C. PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO ARTICLES

To accommodate the A Share Issue, the Company will, when proceeding with the A Share Issue, make proposed amendments to the Articles in compliance with all relevant and applicable PRC legal and regulatory requirements. Such amendments are proposed in accordance with laws and regulations prescribed by the relevant PRC authorities including the CSRC, stipulating provisions mandatory or recommended for inclusion in articles of association of PRC listed companies. The proposed amended Articles will be adopted for use by the Company after completion of the A Share Issue.

The proposed amendments to be made to the Articles primarily aimed to enhance the corporate governance of the Company and, in accordance with the relevant PRC laws and regulations, deal with matters relating to different areas such as protection of public shareholders' rights, shareholders' meetings, independent directors and certain other related matters. Further details of those proposed amendments are set out in Appendix I to this circular.

Such amendments are made on the basis of the existing Articles. The amended Articles will comply with the relevant laws and regulations applicable to companies with listed H Shares and A Shares and will safeguard the interest of both the holders of H Shares and holders of A Shares.

The proposed amendments to the Articles are subject to approval by way of a special resolution by the Shareholders at the EGM, and are conditional upon obtaining any approval, endorsement or registration as may be necessary from the relevant PRC authorities.

D. RULES AND PROCEDURES OF MEETINGS AND OTHER SYSTEMS

Under the listing requirements of the PRC, the Company has to lay down certain rules and procedures of meetings as well as other decision systems, some of which require Shareholders' approval at the EGM. Special resolutions to consider, approve and adopt the following rules and procedures will be proposed at the EGM: (a) the Rules and Procedures for Shareholders' General Meetings; (b) the Rules and Procedures for Board Meetings; and (c) the Rules and Procedures for Meetings of Supervisors. Ordinary resolution to consider, approve and adopt the Connected Transaction Decision Making System will be proposed at the EGM. The unofficial English translations of each of the above rules and procedures and systems are set out in Appendices II, III, IV and V to this circular.

E. APPOINTMENT OF NEW INDEPENDENT NON-EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

In order to comply with the requirement of the relevant PRC laws and regulations in respect of corporate governance of listed issuers in the PRC, at the board meeting held on 5 September 2005, the Board resolved to propose that Mr. Jia Kang be appointed as an additional independent non-executive Director. An announcement was made by the Company on 6 September 2005. An ordinary resolution to consider and approve the appointment of Mr. Jia will be proposed at the EGM.

Mr. Jia Kang, aged 52, is the head of Fiscal Science Research Institute of Ministry of Finance (財政部財政科學研究所). Mr. Jia holds a Doctor's Degree of Economic and works as vice chairman of China Public Finance Society (中國財政學會) and a director of China Tax Association (中國税務學會) and National Debt Association of China (中國國債協會). Mr. Jia is also the visiting professor of China Renmin University (中國人民大學), National Institute of Administration (國家行政學院) and Xiamen University (廈門大學). Mr. Jia has participated in the researches relating to state economic planning and is the author of a large number of economic publications.

Mr. Jia does not have any relationship with any other Directors, senior management, substantial shareholders (as defined in the Listing Rules), or controlling shareholders (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

Mr. Jia does not have any interests in shares of the Company within the meaning of Part XV of the SFO.

The director's fee of Mr. Jia, if any, will be determined subsequent to the EGM by reference to the current emoluments of other independent non-executive Directors. Announcement will be made by the Company in due course when the director's fee or other emolument of Mr. Jia is determined. The term of his office shall commence on the date of approval of the amendments to Article 93 relating to the number of directors by the relevant government authorities and shall end on the expiry of the term of the current session of the Board.

F. INCREASE IN NUMBER OF DIRECTORS

In light of the appointment of Mr. Jia Kang, the total number of the Directors shall be increased from eleven to twelve members. An announcement was made by the Company on 6 September 2005. A special resolution to consider and approve the amendment of the Article so that the number of Directors be increased from eleven to twelve members will also be proposed in the EGM. The appointment of Mr. Jia Kang will become effective when that special resolution is passed at the EGM and approval of the same by PRC government authorities is obtained.

G. CLASS MEETINGS AND THE EGM

Special resolutions to approve, among other matters, the proposed A Share Issue and the proposed amendments to the Articles will be proposed at the EGM. Ordinary resolutions to approve, among other matters, the appointment of the new independent non-executive Director and the adoption of the Connected Transaction Decision Making System will also be proposed at the EGM.

In addition, special resolution to approve the A Share Issue will be proposed at the Domestic Shareholders Class Meeting and the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting. At the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting, the votes of all holders of Foreign Shares and the holders of overseas listed foreign shares, that is, holders of H Shares, in respect of the special resolution to be proposed at the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting will be counted separately. The Company will treat the special resolution of the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting to be passed if it attains a two-thirds majority of the voting rights of holders of Foreign Shares and that of holders of H Shares attending the meeting. As advised by Haiwen, this arrangement does not contravene any PRC laws, and the special resolution, if passed, would be valid. As advised by Haiwen, the separate counting of the votes of the holders of H Shares is valid.

No Shareholder is required to abstain from voting in connection with the matters to be resolved at the separate Class Meetings and the EGM.

Notices convening Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting (if applicable) and the EGM, together with the notice of attendance and form of proxy are enclosed in this circular.

Whether or not you intend to attend the Class Meetings or the EGM, you are requested to complete and return the form of proxy in accordance with the instruction printed thereon. If you intend to attend the respective meetings, you are required to complete and return the notice of attendance to Computershare Hong Kong Investor Services Limited for holders of H Shares at Rooms 1712-1716, Hopewell Centre, 183 Queen's Road East, Wanchai, Hong Kong or to the address of the Company's Board Secretariat for holders of Domestic Shares and Non-H Foreign Shares on or before 8 March 2006. For holders of H Shares, the proxy form should be returned to Computershare Hong Kong Investor Services Limited and for holders of Domestic Shares and Non-H Foreign Shares, the proxy form should be returned to the address of the Company's Board Secretariat not less than 24 hours before the time appointed for the holding of the meetings or any adjourned meetings thereof.

Completion and return of the form(s) of proxy will not preclude you from attending and voting in person at the meetings or at any adjourned meetings should you so wish and completion and return of the notice of attendance do not affect the right of a Shareholder to attend the respective meeting. However, a failure to return the notice of attendance may result in an adjournment of the respective meeting, if the number of Shares carrying the right to vote represented by the Shareholders proposing to attend the relevant meeting by the notice of attendance does not reach more than half of the total number of Shares of the Company carrying the right to vote at the relevant meeting.

H. PROCEDURES FOR DEMANDING A POLL

Pursuant to Article 72 of the existing Articles, at any general meeting, a resolution put to the vote of the meeting shall be decided on a show of hands unless a poll is (before or after any vote by the show of hands) demanded:

(i) by the chairman of the meeting;

(ii) by at least two shareholders present in person or by proxy for the time being entitled to vote at the meeting; or

(iii) by any shareholder or shareholders (including proxy) holding individually or holding in aggregate of 10% or more of the shares carrying the right to vote at the meeting.

I. RECOMMENDATION

The Directors consider that the A Share Issue, the proposed amendments to the Articles, the proposed appointment of the additional independent non-executive Director and the increase in number of the Directors are in the best interests of the Company and its Shareholders.

Accordingly, the Directors recommend the Shareholders to vote in favour of the resolutions which will be proposed at the Class Meetings and the EGM.

Yours faithfully,

30 August 2005

To the Shareholders

Dear Sir or Madam,

MAJOR TRANSACTION

1. INTRODUCTION

On 8 August 2005 the Company announced that on the same date the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 15 Boeing 787 (which was formerly known as Boeing 7E7) aircraft from Boeing Company.

The Transaction constitutes a major transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules.

2. THE BOEING AIRCRAFT PURCHASE AGREEMENT

(1) Date of the Transaction

8 August 2005

(2) Parties to the Transaction

(i) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(ii) AIE, as the import agent for the Company; and

(iii) Boeing Company, as the vendor, one of whose principal business activity is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief having made all reasonable enquiry, Boeing Company and each of the ultimate beneficial owner of Boeing Company are independent third parties and not connected persons (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

(3) Aircraft to be acquired

Boeing Aircraft, i.e.15 Boeing 787 aircraft

As at the Latest Practicable Date, the Company operated a fleet of 167 aircraft, including 160 passenger aircraft, 5 freighters and two corporate jets.

(4) Consideration

According to the information provided to the Company by Boeing Company, the catalog price of the Boeing Aircraft in aggregate is approximately US$2.16 billion. The aggregate consideration payable for the Boeing Aircraft, which is determined after arm's length negotiation between the parties, is lower than such catalog price.

As the relevant percentage ratio under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules for the Transaction is above 25% but less than 100%, the Transaction constitutes a major transaction and is therefore subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

(5) Payment and delivery terms

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Boeing Aircraft is payable by cash in eight instalments, with the first seven instalments to be paid prior to delivery of each Boeing Aircraft and the remaining balance, being a substantial portion of the consideration, to be paid upon delivery of each Boeing Aircraft. The Company is expecting to take delivery of the Boeing Aircraft in stages from mid 2008 to end 2010.

(6) Source of funding

The Transaction will be funded through cash generated from the Company's business operations, commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company. No proceeds from the Company's global offering in December 2004 will be used to finance the Transaction.

(7) Reasons for and benefits of the Transaction

The Boeing Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and they will principally serve long distance international destinations in North America, Europe and Australia. The Company expects the Boeing Aircraft will deliver more cost-efficient performance and provide more comfortable services to passengers. The Transaction is consistent with the aircraft procurement policy of the Company. Further details of the aircraft procurement and disposal policy of the Company were set out in the section headed "Business — Fleet" in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004.

The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

(8) Shareholders' approval

As the relevant percentage ratio for the Transaction as calculated under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules is above 25%, but less than 100%, the Transaction constitutes a major transaction and is therefore subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

CNAHC currently directly owns approximately 51.16% of the total issued share capital of the Company. Each of CNAHC and its associates (as defined in the Listing Rules) does not have any interest in the Transaction other than as a shareholder of the Company (where applicable). No shareholder of the Company is required to abstain from voting if the Company was to convene a general meeting for the approval of the Transaction. CNAHC has approved the Transaction by way of a written approval pursuant to Rule 14.44 of the Listing Rules and therefore the Company will not be convening a shareholders' meeting to approve the Transaction.

3. EFFECT OF TRANSACTION

Based on the technical specifications of the Boeing Aircraft, the Company expects the Boeing Aircraft to operate with a higher utilization rate, more efficient jet fuel consumption and relatively low maintenance cost. This will enable the Company to operate on a cost-efficient basis and would potentially have a positive effect on the earnings of the Company.

As mentioned above, the Transaction will be partly financed by commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company. The Transaction will therefore increase the Group's fixed assets and liabilities. The Transaction may also result in an increase in the Group's debt-to-equity ratio. The total cash outflow of the Company in 2005 in respect of the Transaction is approximately RMB182 million. However, the Company does not expect the Transaction to have any material negative impact on its cash-flow position or its business operations.

Save as described above, the Transaction is not expected to have any material impact on earnings, assets and liabilities of the Group.

4. FINANCIAL AND OPERATIONAL PROSPECTS

As disclosed in the 2004 annual report of the Company dated 12 April 2005, for the financial year ended 31 December 2004, air traffic revenue and other operating revenue reached RMB30,835 million and RMB2,686 million respectively, representing increases of 31.6% and 120.4% over 2003. The Directors believe that rising aviation fuel prices and increasing competition in the airline business will present new challenges for the Group in 2005. However, the Directors view the future prospects during the current financial year of the Company with confidence and believe that the Group is well placed to continue to develop its business in line with its strategy.

5. WORKING CAPITAL

Taking into account the net proceeds to the Company from its global offering in December 2004, cash generated from the Group's operations, the issuance of commercial papers of RMB2 billion in May 2005 by the Company and the available bank facilities, the Directors are of the opinion that the Group will have sufficient working capital for the next 12 months following the date of this circular.

6. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Your attention is drawn to the additional information set out in the appendices to this circular.

By Order of the Board

Notes to Financial Statements

1. GROUP REORGANISATION, PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Air China Limited (the "Company") was incorporated on 30 September 2004 in Beijing, the People's Republic of China (the "PRC"), as a joint stock limited company as part of the restructuring (the "Restructuring") of CNAHC, a PRC state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (the "Hong Kong Stock Exchange") and the London Stock Exchange as described below.

Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC and through its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the following to the Company upon its incorporation:

(a) the assets, liabilities and undertakings which principally relate to the business of the provision of airline operations (the "Relevant Businesses"); and

(b) the shareholding interests in certain subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates which principally carry on the business of the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses (the "Relevant Companies").

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the Company entered into a restructuring agreement with CNAHC and CNACG on 20 November 2004 (the "Restructuring Agreement"). In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNAHC transferred to the Company, among other things, the following:

(a) all of the airline and airline-related businesses operated by Air China International Corporation (中國國際航空公司), the Company's immediate predecessor;

(b) all related assets, including aircraft and other property, plant and equipment of Air China International Corporation;

(c) all related liabilities, including Air China International Corporation's bank loans; and

(d) the equity interests in various investees in airline and airline-related businesses owned by Air China International Corporation, including equity interests in Air China Cargo Co., Ltd. ("Air China Cargo"), Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering Corporation, Beijing ("AMECO") and Shenzhen Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shenzhen Airlines").

In accordance with the Restructuring Agreement, CNACG transferred its approximately 69% equity interests in China National Aviation Company Limited ("CNAC") to the Company by way of a capital contribution.

The effective date of the Restructuring was 30 September 2004, after which date the Company assumed the rights and obligations of the businesses, assets and liabilities transferred to the Company by CNAHC and CNACG.

As at the date of approval of these financial statements, the Group is in the process of applying to the relevant government authorities to obtain the title certificates of certain of the above-mentioned assets, primarily buildings and land use rights, with an aggregate carrying value of approximately RMB3,098 million, and to register the already transferred equity interests in certain investees, including equity interests in Air China Cargo, AMECO and Shenzhen Airlines, from Air China International Corporation into the Company's name. The Directors of the Company are of the view that the Group is entitled to lawfully and validly occupy and use the above-mentioned assets and own the aforesaid equity interests. The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the aforesaid matter will not have any significant impact on the Group's financial position as at 31 December 2004.

In consideration for CNAHC and CNACG transferring the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies to the Company, the Company issued 5,054,276,915 domestic shares (in the form of State legal person shares) and 1,445,723,085 non-H Foreign Shares with a par value of RMB1.00 each to CNAHC and CNACG, respectively (note 37 (a)). The shares issued to CNAHC and CNACG represented the then entire registered and issued share capital of the Company upon its incorporation.

Prior to the incorporation of the Company, the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies were held by two subsidiaries of CNAHC, namely, Air China International Corporation and CNAC, a Hong Kong incorporated company with its shares publicly traded on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. Air China International Corporation is a state-owned enterprise established in the PRC on 1 July 1988 and was subject to the supervision and regulation of the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China, formerly known as the Civil Aviation Administration of China ("CAAC"), a regulatory authority of the civil aviation industry in the PRC. Pursuant to the documents issued by the State Council and the Ministry of Finance dated 14 July 2002 and 9 August 2002, respectively, the PRC government approved the formation of CNAHC, a state-owned enterprise under the supervision of the State Council, which then held, inter alia, a 100% direct interest in Air China International Corporation, a 100% direct interest in China Southwest Airlines ("CSWA"), a 100% direct interest in China National Aviation Corporation ("CNAC (PRC)"), which owned 100% interest in CNAC Zhejiang Airlines ("ZJA") and approximately a 69% indirect interest in CNAC. In 2003, CNAHC undertook further reorganisation measures to merge the business operations of CSWA and ZJA into Air China International Corporation, following which CSWA and ZJA became branches of Air China International Corporation.

The Group's principal activities are airline and airline-related services, including aircraft engineering services, air catering services and airport ground handling services conducted mainly in the PRC, Hong Kong and Macau.

The registered office of the Company is located at 9th Floor, Blue Sky Mansion, 28 Tianzhu Road, Zone A, Tianzhu Airport Industrial Zone, Shunyi District, Beijing 101312, the PRC.

In the opinion of the Directors, the Company's ultimate holding company is CNAHC.

Further details of the Restructuring are set out in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004 issued in respect of the listing of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange.

On 15 December 2004, 2,805,680,000 new H shares in the Company, details of which are set out in note 37 (b) to these financial statements, were listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange. On 11 January 2005, an additional 420,852,000 new H shares in the Company, details of which are set out in note 47 (a) to these financial statements, were issued and listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange upon the exercise of the over-allotment option.

As CNAHC controlled the Relevant Businesses and Relevant Companies before the Restructuring and continues to control the Company after the Restructuring, the consolidated financial statements of the Group for the years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004 have been prepared as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests. Accordingly, the assets and liabilities of the Company are stated at historical amounts, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

The consolidated balance sheets as at 31 December 2003 and 2004 present the Group's assets and liabilities as if the Restructuring had been completed at 1 January 2003. The consolidated results and consolidated cash flows include the Group's results of operations and cash flows as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at 1 January 2003. The Company's Directors are of the opinion that the consolidated financial statements prepared on this basis present fairly the consolidated financial position, consolidated results and consolidated cash flows of the Group as a whole. Therefore, the net profit for the year ended 31 December 2004 includes the consolidated results before the Restructuring.

As the Company was only incorporated on 30 September 2004, there are no comparative figures as at 31 December 2003 in the Company's balance sheet.

The consolidated financial statements have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

Basis of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements comprise the financial statements of the Company and all its subsidiaries. The financial statements of the subsidiaries are prepared for the same reporting period as the parent company using consistent accounting policies. Adjustments are made to bring into line any dissimilar accounting policies that may exist.

Subsidiaries are consolidated from the date on which control is transferred to the Group and cease to be consolidated from the date on which control is transferred out of the Group. This control is normally evidenced when the Group owns, either directly or indirectly, more than 50% of the voting rights of a company's share or registered capital, is able to govern the financial and operating policies of an enterprise so as to benefit from its activities. All significant inter-company transactions and balances within the Group are eliminated on consolidation.

Minority interests represent the interests of outside shareholders in the results and net assets of the Company's subsidiaries, not held by the Group and are presented in the consolidated balance sheet within equity, separately from the shareholders' equity.

Foreign currency transactions are recorded at the applicable exchange rates ruling at the transaction dates as quoted by the People's Bank of China. Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies at the balance sheet date are translated into RMB at the applicable exchange rates ruling at that date as quoted by the People's Bank of China. All exchange differences are dealt with in the income statement.

On consolidation, the financial statements of overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB. The income statements of these subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year, and the balance sheets are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the balance sheet date. The resulting translation differences are included in the exchange fluctuation reserve.

For the purpose of the consolidated cash flow statement, the cash flows of the overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the dates of the cash flows. Frequently recurring cash flows of overseas subsidiaries, which arise throughout the year, are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year.

Subsidiaries

A subsidiary is a company whose financial and operating policies the Company controls, directly or indirectly, so as to obtain benefits from its activities. A subsidiary is consolidated from the date the Company obtains control until such time as control ceases.

The results of subsidiaries are included in the Company's income statement to the extent of dividends received and receivable. In the Company's balance sheet, the Company's interests in subsidiaries are stated at cost less any impairment losses.

Interests in joint ventures

The Group's interests in its joint ventures are accounted for by proportionate consolidation, which involves recognising a proportionate share of the joint venture's assets, liabilities, income and expenses with similar items in the consolidated financial statements on a line-by-line basis.

Interests in associates

The Group's investments in its associates are accounted for under the equity method of accounting. An associate is an entity in which the Group has significant influence and which is neither a subsidiary nor a joint venture of the Group. The investments in associates are carried in the balance sheet at cost plus post-acquisition changes in the Group's share of net assets of the associates, less any impairment in value. The income statement reflects the Group's share of the results of operations of the associates. The Group's investments in its associates include goodwill (net of accumulated amortisation and impairment) on acquisition, which is treated in accordance with the accounting policy for goodwill stated below. When the Group's share of losses in an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Group does not recognise further losses, unless the Group has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associates.

In the Company's balance sheet, the investments in associates are stated at cost less any impairment losses. The results of associates are accounted for by the Company on the basis of dividends received and receivable.

Property, plant and equipment

Property, plant and equipment, other than construction in progress ("CIP"), are stated at cost less accumulated depreciation and any impairment in value.

The cost of an asset comprises its purchase price and any directly attributable costs of bringing the asset to its working condition and location for its intended use. Expenditure incurred after the assets have been put into operation, such as repairs and maintenance, is normally charged to the income statement in the period in which it is incurred. In situations where it can be clearly demonstrated that the expenditure has resulted in an increase in the future economic benefits expected to be obtained from the use of the asset, the expenditure is capitalised as an additional cost of that asset.

Depreciation is calculated on the straight-line basis over the expected useful life of the asset, after taking into account its estimated residual value, as follows:

	Depreciation life	Residual value
Aircraft and flight equipment	10 to 20 years	Nil–5%
Buildings	15 to 35 years	5%
Machinery, transportation equipment and office equipment	4 to 20 years	5%

The gain or loss on disposal or retirement of a property, plant and equipment recognised in the income statement is the difference between the net sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the relevant asset at the time of disposal.

CIP represents office buildings and various infrastructure projects under construction and equipment pending installation in the aircraft and is stated at cost less any impairment losses, and is not depreciated. Cost comprises the direct costs of construction, the cost of equipment as well as finance charges from borrowings used to finance these assets during the construction or installation period. CIP is reclassified to the appropriate categories of property, plant and equipment when completed and ready for use.

The carrying values of property, plant and equipment are reviewed for impairment when events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying values may not be recoverable. If any such indication exists and where the carrying values exceed the estimated recoverable amounts, the assets or cash-generating units are written down to their recoverable amounts. The recoverable amount of property, plant and equipment is the greater of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. For an asset that does not generate largely independent cash inflows, the recoverable amount is determined for the cash-generating unit to which the asset belongs. Impairment losses are recognised in the income statement.

Lease prepayments

Goodwill

Goodwill represents the excess of cost over the fair value of the identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities of acquired businesses. The Group early adopted IFRS 3, Business Combinations, and applied the requirements of IFRS 3 to goodwill existing at or acquired after, and to business combinations occurring from 1 January 2001. In accordance with IFRS 3, the Group ceased amortising goodwill as of 1 January 2001.

On disposal of subsidiaries, associates or joint ventures, the gain or loss on disposal is calculated by reference to the net assets at the date of disposal, including the attributable amount of goodwill which remains unamortised and any relevant reserves, as appropriate.

IAS 36 (amended 2004) requires that goodwill be tested for impairment at the cash-generating units on an annual basis and whenever there is an indication that a unit may be impaired, by comparing the carrying amount of the unit, including the goodwill, with the recoverable amount of the unit. An impairment loss shall be recognised for a cash-generating unit if the recoverable amount of the unit is less than the carrying amount of the unit. The impairment loss shall be allocated to reduce the carrying amount of the assets of the unit (group of units) in the following order: (i) first, to reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to the cash-generating unit (group of units); and (ii) then, to the other assets of the unit pro-rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the unit. In allocating an impairment loss, the Group shall not reduce the carrying amount of an asset below the highest of: (i) its fair value less costs to sell (if determinable); (ii) its value in use (if determinable); and (iii) zero.

Advance payments for aircraft and related equipment

Advance contract payments to aircraft manufacturers to secure deliveries of aircraft and related equipment in future years, including attributable finance costs, are included in assets. The advances are accounted for as part of the cost of property, plant and equipment upon delivery of the aircraft.

Investments

All investments are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration given and including acquisition charges associated with the investments.

After initial recognition, investments, except those investments which do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured, are classified as available-for-sale and measured at fair value through profit or loss. Gains or losses on available-for-sale investments are recognised in the income statement. Investments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured are stated at cost less impairment.

Leases

Finance leases which transfer to the Group substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the leased item are capitalised at the inception of the lease at the fair value of the leased properties or, if lower, at the present value of the minimum lease payments. Lease payments are apportioned between the finance charges and reduction of the lease liability so as to achieve a constant rate of interest on the remaining balance of the liability. Finance charges are charged directly against income. Capitalised leased assets are depreciated over the estimated economic useful lives of the assets.

Leases where the lessor retains substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the asset are classified as operating leases. Where the Group is the lessor, assets leased by the Group under operating leases are included in non-current assets and rentals receivables under the operating leases are credited to the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms. Where the Group is the lessee, rentals payable under the operating leases are charged to the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms.

Inventories

Inventories, which consist primarily of expendable spare parts and supplies, are stated at cost less any provision for obsolescence, and are expensed when consumed in operations. Cost is determined on the weighted average basis.

Work in progress represents material cost, labour cost and overhead cost capitalised for the provision of aircraft engineering services and is stated at the lower of cost, calculated on a weighted average basis, and net realisable value. Net realisable value is determined on the basis of anticipated sales proceeds less estimated costs to be incurred to completion and disposal.

Cash and cash equivalents

For the purpose of the consolidated cash flow statement, cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand and demand deposits, and short term highly liquid investments which are readily convertible into known amounts of cash and which are subject to an insignificant risk of changes in value, and have a short maturity of generally within three months when acquired, less bank overdrafts which are repayable on demand and form an integral part of the Group's cash management.

For the purpose of the balance sheet, cash and cash equivalents comprise cash on hand and at banks and other financial institutions, including term deposits, which are not restricted as to use.

Manufacturers' credits

In connection with the acquisition of certain aircraft and related equipment, the Group receives various credits from the manufacturers. Such credits are deferred until the aircraft and related equipment are delivered, at which time they are applied as a reduction of the cost of acquiring the aircraft and related equipment.

Employee benefits

(a) Pension obligations

The full-time employees of the Group are covered by various government-sponsored pension plans under which the employees are entitled to a monthly pension based on certain formulae. Certain government agencies are responsible for the pension liability to these retired employees. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these pension plans. Under these plans, the Group has no legal or constructive obligation for retirement benefits beyond the contributions made. Contributions to these plans are expensed as incurred.

(b) Termination and early retirement benefits

Termination benefits are payable whenever an employee's employment is voluntarily terminated before the normal retirement date or whenever an employee accepts voluntary redundancy in exchange for these benefits. The Group recognises termination benefits when it is demonstrably committed to either terminating the employment of current employees according to a detailed formal plan without possibility of withdrawal or to providing termination benefits as a result of an offer made to encourage voluntary redundancy.

(c) Housing benefits

In prior periods, the Group sold staff quarters to its employees, subject to a number of eligibility requirements, at below market prices. When staff quarters are identified as being subject to sale under these arrangements, the carrying value of the staff quarters is written down to the net recoverable amount. Upon sale, any difference between sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the staff quarters is charged to the income statement. The above staff quarters' allocation scheme was phased out before the incorporation of the Company in accordance with the policies of the PRC government.

In 1998, the State Council of the PRC issued a circular, which stipulated that the sale of quarters to employees at preferential prices should be withdrawn. In 2000, the State Council further issued a circular stating that cash subsidies should be made to the employees following the withdrawal of allocation of staff quarters. However, the specific timetable and procedures to implement these policies were to be determined by the individual provincial or municipal government based on the particular situation of the province or municipality.

Based on the relevant detailed local government regulations promulgated, certain entities within the Group have adopted cash housing subsidy plans, whereby, for those eligible employees who have not been allocated with any quarters or who have not been allocated with quarters up to the prescribed standards before the staff quarters' allocation scheme was terminated, the Group will pay them one-off cash housing subsidies based on their years of service, position and other criteria. These cash housing subsidies are charged to the income statement in the year in which it was determined that the payment of such subsidies is probable and the amounts can be reasonably estimated.

In addition, all full-time employees of the Group are entitled to participate in various government-sponsored housing funds. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these funds based on certain percentages of the salaries of the employees. The Group's liability in respect of these funds is limited to the contributions payable in each period.

Provisions

Provisions are recognised when the Group has a present obligation (legal or constructive) as a result of a past event and it is probable that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation provided that reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation. If the effect of the time value of money is material, provisions are determined by discounting the expected future cash flows at a pre-tax rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and, where appropriate, the risks specific to the liability. Where discounting is used, the increase in the provision due to the passage of time is recognised as an interest expense.

Maintenance and overhaul costs

In respect of aircraft and engines under operating leases, the Group has the responsibility to fulfil certain return conditions under the relevant operating leases. In order to fulfil these return conditions, major overhauls are required to be conducted on a regular basis. Accordingly, estimated costs of major overhauls for aircraft and engines under operating leases are accrued and charged to the income statement over the estimated period between overhauls using the ratios of actual flying hours/cycles and estimated flying hours/cycles between overhauls. The costs of major overhauls comprise mainly labour and materials. Differences between the estimated costs and the actual costs of overhauls are included in the income statement in the period of overhaul.

In respect of aircraft and engines owned by the Group or held under finance leases, costs of major overhauls are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

All other routine repair and maintenance costs incurred in restoring such property, plant and equipment to their normal working condition are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

Revenue recognition

Revenue is recognised when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Group and the revenue can be reliably measured on the following bases:

(a) Provision of airline and airline-related services

Passenger revenue is recognised either when transportation is provided or when a ticket expires unused rather than when a ticket is sold. Unused tickets generally expire one year from the date the ticket was sold, or for partially used tickets, the date of first flight. Ticket sales for transportation not yet provided are included in current liabilities as air traffic liabilities. In addition, the Group has code-sharing agreements with other airlines under which a carrier's flights can be marketed under the two-letter airline designator code of another carrier. Revenues earned under these arrangements are allocated between the code share partners based on existing contractual agreements and airline industry standard pro-ratio formulae and are recognised as passenger revenue when the transportation is provided.

Cargo and mail revenues are recognised when the transportation is provided.

Revenue from airline-related services is recognised when services are rendered.

Revenue was stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund prior to 1 January 2004. From 2004, contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund are included in other flight operation expenses to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government.

(b) Sale of goods

Revenue is recognised when the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the buyer, provided that the Group maintains neither managerial involvement to the degree usually associated with ownership, nor effective control over the goods sold.

(c) Trading of investments

Revenue is recognised on a trade date basis.

(d) Interest income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis taking into account the principal outstanding and the effective rate of interest applicable.

(e) Dividends

Revenue is recognised when the owners' right to receive the payment has been established.

(f) Rental income and aircraft and related equipment lease income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis over the terms of the respective leases.

Frequent flyer programme

For Air China Companion Club member accounts that have sufficient mileage credits to claim the lowest level of free travel, the Group records a liability for the estimated incremental costs associated with providing travel awards that are expected to be redeemed. Incremental costs include the cost of incremental fuel, meals and insurance but do not include any cost for aircraft ownership, maintenance, labour or overhead allocation. The liability is adjusted periodically based on awards earned, awards redeemed, changes in the incremental costs and changes in the Air China Companion Club programme, and is included in the balance sheet as a current liability.

Government grants

Government grants are recognised at their fair values when it is probable that the grant will be received and all attaching conditions will be complied with. When the grant relates to an expense item, it is recognised as income over the periods necessary to match the grant on a systematic basis to the costs that it is intended to compensate. Where the grant relates to an asset, the fair value is credited to a deferred income account and is released to the income statement over the expected useful life of the relevant asset by equal annual instalments.

Borrowing costs

Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition of aircraft, construction or production of qualifying assets, i.e. assets that necessarily take a substantial period of time to get ready for their intended use, are capitalised as part of the costs of those assets. The capitalisation of aircraft borrowing costs ceases when the aircraft is placed into revenue earning services and the capitalisation of other assets' borrowing costs ceases when the assets are substantially ready for their intended use or sale.

Where funds have been borrowed generally, and used for the purpose of obtaining qualifying assets, a capitalisation rate ranging between 5.58% and 5.76% has been applied to the expenditure on the individual asset.

All other borrowing costs are charged to the income statement in the period in which they are incurred.

Income tax

Income tax comprises current and deferred income tax. Income tax is recognised in the income statement, or in equity if it relates to items that are recognised in the same or a different period directly in equity.

Deferred income tax is provided, using the liability method, on all temporary differences at the balance sheet date between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and their carrying amounts for financial reporting purposes. Deferred income tax liabilities are recognised for all taxable temporary differences:

- except where the deferred income tax liability arises from goodwill amortisation or the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, except where the timing of the reversal of the temporary differences can be controlled and it is probable that the temporary differences will not reverse in the foreseeable future.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised for all deductible temporary differences, carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses, to the extent that it is probable that taxable profit will be available against which the deductible temporary differences, and the carry-forward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses can be utilised:

- except where the deferred income tax asset relating to the deductible temporary difference arises from the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of deductible temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, deferred tax assets are only recognised to the extent that it is probable that the temporary differences will be reversed in the foreseeable future and taxable profit will be available against which the temporary differences can be utilised.

The carrying amount of deferred income tax assets is reviewed at each balance sheet date and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable profit will be available to allow all or part of the deferred income tax asset to be utilised. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply to the period when the asset is realised or the liability is settled based on tax rates (and tax laws) that have been enacted or substantively enacted at the balance sheet date.

Derivative financial instruments

The Group uses derivative financial instruments to hedge its exposure to fuel prices. In accordance with IAS 39, such derivative financial instruments are carried in the balance sheet at fair value as financial assets or financial liabilities.

For the purposes of hedge accounting, hedges are classified as either fair value hedges where they hedge the exposure to changes in the fair value of a recognised asset or liability; or cash flow hedges where they hedge exposure to variability in cash flows that is either attributable to a particular risk associated with a recognised asset or liability or a forecasted transaction.

Changes in the fair value of derivatives that are designated and qualify as fair value hedges and that are highly effective are recorded in the income statement, along with any changes in the fair value of the hedged assets or liabilities that are attributable to the hedged risk. In relation to fair value hedges (interest rate swaps) which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, any gain or loss from remeasuring the hedging instrument at fair value is recognised immediately in the income statement. Any gain or loss on the hedged item attributable to the hedged risk is adjusted against the carrying amount of the hedged item and recognised in the income statement. Where the adjustment is to the carrying amount of a hedged interest-bearing financial instrument, the adjustment is amortised to the income statement such that it is fully amortised by maturity. In relation to cash flow hedges (forward foreign currency contracts) to hedge firm commitments which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, the portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognised directly in equity and the ineffective portion is recognised in the income statement.

When the hedged firm commitment results in the recognition of an asset or a liability, then, at the time the asset or liability is recognised, the associated gains or losses that had previously been recognised in equity are included in the initial measurement of the acquisition cost or other carrying amount of the asset or liability.

For all other cash flow hedges, the gains or losses that are recognised in equity are transferred to the income statement in the same year in which the hedged firm commitment affects the income statement, for example when the future sale actually occurs.

For derivatives that do not qualify for special hedge accounting, any gains or losses arising from changes in fair value are taken directly to the income statement for the year. Hedge accounting is discontinued when the hedging instrument expires or is sold, terminated or exercised, or no longer qualifies for special hedge accounting. At that point in time, any cumulative gain or loss on the hedging instrument recognised in equity is kept in equity until the forecasted transaction occurs. If a hedged transaction is no longer expected to occur, the net cumulative gain or loss recognised in equity is transferred to the income statement for the year.

Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements of the Group in accordance with IFRS requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Related parties

Parties are considered to be related if one party has the ability, directly or indirectly, to control the other party or exercise significant influence over the other party in making financial and operating decisions. Parties are also considered to be related if they are subject to common control or common significant influence. Related parties may be individuals or corporate entities.

Recoverable amount of non-current assets

At each reporting date, the Group assesses whether there is any indication that an asset may be impaired. Where an indicator of impairment exists, the Group makes a formal estimate of the recoverable amount. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. Recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's or cash-generating unit's fair value less costs to sell and its value in use and is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets.

Trade and other receivables

Trade receivables, which generally have 30 to 90 day terms, are recognised and carried at original invoice amount less an allowance for any uncollectible amounts. An estimate for doubtful debts is made when collection of the full amount is no longer probable. Bad debts are written off when identified.

Other receivables are recognised and carried at cost less allowances for any uncollectible amounts.

Interest-bearing loans and borrowings

All loans and borrowings are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration received net of issue costs associated with the borrowings.

After initial recognition, interest-bearing loans and borrowings are subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest rate method. Amortised cost is calculated by taking into account any issue costs, and any discount or premium on settlement.

Gains and losses are recognised in the income statement when the liabilities are derecognised or impaired, as well as through the amortisation process.

Derecognition of financial instruments

The derecognition of a financial instrument takes place when the Group no longer controls the contractual rights that comprise the financial instrument, which is normally the case when the instrument is sold, or all the cash flows attributable to the instrument are passed through to an independent third party.

Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IFRS 2, Share-based Payment, is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005 and requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the entity. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to re-measure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in the income statement for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 will apply for grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after 7 November 2002 and had not yet vested at the beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The Group does not expect IFRS 2 to have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 16 (amended 2004), Property, Plant and Equipment, replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998), Property, Plant and Equipment, and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. These include that the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Further, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. In addition, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. Also, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive in the future on the asset's actual retirement date. The Group does not expect the adoption of new policies arising from the amended standard, when implemented, will have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 24 (revised 2003), Related Party Disclosures, replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994) and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2005. The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24 for the definitions and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

3. SEGMENT INFORMATION

Segment information is presented by way of two segment formats: (i) on a primary segment reporting basis, by business segment; and (ii) on a secondary segment reporting basis, by geographical segment.

The Group's operating businesses are structured and managed separately, according to the nature of their operations and the services they provide. Each of the Group's business segments represents a strategic business unit that offers services which are subject to risks and returns that are different from those of the other business segments.

Currently, the Group's business segment information is divided into four business segments — airline operations, engineering services, airport terminal services and other businesses ("others"). Segment net profit represents revenues less expenses directly attributable to a segment and the relevant portion of enterprise revenues less expenses that can be allocated on a reasonable basis to a segment, whether from external transactions or from transactions with other segments of the Group.

Segment assets and liabilities mainly comprise those operating assets and liabilities that are directly attributable to the segment or can be allocated to the segment on a reasonable basis.

In determining the Group's geographical segments, revenues are attributed to the segments based on origin and destination of each flight segment. Assets, which consist principally of flight and ground equipment, supporting the entire worldwide transportation system, are mainly located in the PRC. An analysis of assets and capital expenditure of the Group by geographical distribution has therefore not been included.

Intersegment sales and transfers are transacted with reference to the selling prices used for sales made to third parties at the then prevailing market prices.

4. AIR TRAFFIC REVENUES

Air traffic revenues comprise revenues from the airline business and is stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund. The CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, which was netted against gross air traffic revenues for the year ended 31 December 2003, was included in other flight operation expenses for the year ended 31 December 2004 to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government. An analysis of air traffic revenues is as follows:

	Group
	RMB'000	RMB'000
Passenger	27,665,018	19,030,187
Cargo and mail	3,169,804	4,392,473
	30,834,822	23,422,660

(a) Pursuant to various PRC business tax rules and regulations, the Group is required to pay business tax to the local tax bureaus at the following rates:

Type of revenue	Applicable business tax rate
Air traffic revenues	3% of air traffic revenues. All inbound international and Hong Kong and Macau regional flights are exempted from business tax.
Other revenues	3% of commission income and ground services income, and 3% to 5% of other revenues.

PRC business tax incurred for the two years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004, netted against air traffic revenues, amounted to approximately RMB240 million and RMB711 million, respectively.

For the period from 1 May 2003 to 31 December 2003, PRC business tax for all domestic, international and regional passenger traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome ("SARS") in the region.

(b) In addition, the Group was required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund which was calculated at the rates of 5% and 2% on the domestic and international/Hong Kong and Macau regional air traffic revenues, respectively, for the year ended 31 December 2003.

For the period from 1 May 2003 to 31 December 2003, CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund for all domestic, international and regional passenger, cargo and mail traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of SARS in the region.

For the period from 1 January 2004 to 31 March 2004, the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was suspended by the PRC government. As such, no CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was charged to the income statement of the Group for the three-month period ended 31 March 2004. Effective from 1 April 2004, the Group is required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund calculated on the basis of the usage of domestic routes and domestic segments of international routes, geographic area and length of routes and aircraft weight.

Contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund payable by the Group for the two years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004 amounted to approximately RMB247 million and RMB353 million, respectively.

Notes:

(a) Pursuant to the Restructuring, the air cargo business and relevant air cargo assets and liabilities (the "Air Cargo Business") were operated and owned solely by the Group as if it had been directly held by the Group as of 1 January 2003 in accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to these financial statements. In 2004, the entire Air Cargo Business was transferred to Air China Cargo, a 51% owned joint venture of the Company, in the form of the Company's capital contribution and advance to Air China Cargo. Subsequent to the transfer of Air Cargo Business to Air China Cargo, the Group's effective interest in the Air Cargo Business was diluted from 100% to 51% and, accordingly, a gain on dilution of investment in Air Cargo Business of approximately RMB330 million arose.

(b) In accordance with the basis of presentation as set out in note 1 to these financial statements, 60% shareholding interest in Beijing Air Catering Co., Ltd. ("BACL") and 75% shareholding interest in Southwest Air Catering Company Limited ("SWACL") were deemed to be held by the Group as of 1 January 2003.

During 2004, the Group transferred its entire 60% shareholding interest in BACL and 60% shareholding interest in SWACL to Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, for a consideration of RMB294 million and RMB67 million, respectively.

In addition to the above, the Group also transferred its remaining 15% shareholding interest in SWACL to Hongkong Southwest Air Catering Limited ("HKSACL"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million.

Subsequent to the completion of the above transactions, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively and, accordingly, gains on dilution of investments in BACL and SWACL aggregating approximately RMB80 million arose.

11. RETIREMENT BENEFITS

All of the Group's full-time employees in the PRC are covered by a government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme, and are entitled to an annual pension determined by their basic salaries upon their retirement. The PRC government is responsible for the pension liabilities to these retired employees. The Group is required to make annual contributions to the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme at rates ranging from 15% to 20% of the employees' basic salaries during the year and has no further obligation for post-retirement benefits in respect of the above. This defined contribution plan continues to be available to the Group's employees after the Restructuring. The related pension costs are expensed as incurred.

Prior to the Restructuring, the Group also paid certain supplementary pension benefits (the "Supplementary Pension Benefits") to its employees who retired before the formation of the Company. Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to assume past payments and future liabilities in respect of the Supplementary Pension Benefits for those employees who retired before the formation of the Company for nil consideration. The pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits borne by CNAHC was approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) (note 46). The Group's employees who retire after the formation of the Company are not entitled to the Supplementary Pension Benefits. CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group against losses from any claims for the Supplementary Pension Benefits.

Further, the Group implemented an early retirement plan for certain employees in addition to the benefits under the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the Supplementary Pension Benefits described above. The benefits of the early retirement plan are calculated based on factors including the remaining number of years of services from date of early retirement to normal retirement date and the salary amount on the date of early retirement of the employees. The costs of early retirement benefits were recognised in the period when employees opted for early retirement. Where the effect of discounting is material, the amount recognised for early retirement benefits is the present value at the balance sheet date of the future cash flows expected to be required to settle the obligation. The increase in the discounted present value amount arising from the passage of time is included in finance costs in the income statement.

	Group
	RMB'000	RMB'000
Contributions to PRC government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme	179,740	154,728
Early retirement benefits	8,655	23,458
Total (note 7)	188,395	178,186

Forfeited contribution totaling RMB1,579,000 (2003: RMB983,000) was utilised during the year. At 31 December 2004, the Group had no forfeited contributions available to reduce its contributions to the pension scheme in future years (2003: RMB54,000).

12. TAX

According to the PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law, the Company, its subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates established in the PRC are subject to the enterprise income tax at a rate of 33% (2003: 33%) on their taxable income.

Hong Kong profits tax has been provided at the rate of 17.5% (2003: 17.5%) on the estimated assessable profits arising in Hong Kong during the year.

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on 30 September 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation was calculated at the applicable tax rate on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to domestic enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to CNAHC for the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) referred to in note 14 (b) to these financial statements will be calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau.

Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company will settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureaus.

The determination of current and deferred income tax was based on enacted tax rates. Major components of income tax charge are as follows:

	Group
	RMB'000	RMB'000
Current income tax

A reconciliation of income tax expense applicable to profit before income tax at the statutory income tax rate in the PRC to income tax expense at the Group's effective income tax rate, and a reconciliation of the applicable rates (i.e., the statutory tax rates) to the effective tax rates, are as follows:

Tax charge at Group's effective income tax rate	1,107,838	30.3	89,781	50.5

At 31 December 2004, there was no significant unrecognised deferred tax liability (2003: Nil) for taxes that would be payable on the un-remitted earnings of certain of the Group's subsidiaries and joint ventures, as the Directors of the Company do not have intention to remit any significant amount of earnings to the Company in the foreseeable future.

There are no income tax consequences attaching to the payment of dividends by the Company to its shareholders.

(a) On 21 April 2004, Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, entered into the following acquisition agreements which were supplemented on 26 April 2004:

(i) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in BACL ("BACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB294 million; and

(ii) a share purchase agreement with Air China International Corporation in relation to the acquisition of 60% of the equity interest in SWACL ("SWACL Agreement") for a consideration of RMB67 million.

On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of BACL Agreement and SWACL Agreement were completed and these two acquisition agreements were effective on that date accordingly.

On 20 April 2004, Air China International Corporation entered into a stock transfer agreement with HKSACL ("HKSACL Agreement"), the minority shareholder of SWACL, pursuant to which, Air China International Corporation disposed of 15% of the equity interest in SWACL to HKSACL for a consideration of approximately RMB17 million. On 12 November 2004, all the pre-completion undertakings of HKSACL Agreement were completed and this agreement was effective on that date accordingly.

Immediately after the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in BACL and SWACL were diluted from 60% and 75% to approximately 41% and 41%, respectively.

As a result of the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement, the Group made a payment of approximately RMB378 million to CNAHC, representing the total consideration payable by CNAC and HKSACL for the acquisitions of the entire shareholding interests held by the Group in BACL and SWACL pursuant to the Restructuring as set out in note 1 to these financial statements. This payment has been made to CNAHC and accounted for as a special distribution to CNAHC by the Company.

(b) In accordance with the (財政部關於印發《企業公司制改建有關國有資本管理與財務處理的暫行規定》的通知) "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance (the English title is a direct translation of the Chinese title of the notice), which became effective from 27 August 2002, and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on the audited accounts prepared in accordance with the accounting principles and the financial regulations applicable in the PRC (the "PRC GAAP"), generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC after giving effect to relevant necessary adjustments. The net profit attributable to shareholders mentioned above for the said period is calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC of approximately RMB191,721,000 which in turn will settle the tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau as detailed in note 12 to these financial statements.

In addition, in accordance with (財政部關於印發《企業公司制改建有關國有資本管理與財務處理的暫行規定》的通知) "Provisional Regulations Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment" notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Company is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated during the period from 1 January 2004 to 30 September 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG.

(c) The profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company represent the net assets which have been carved-out and treated as deemed distributions pursuant to the Restructuring set out in note 1 to these financial statements and dividends paid during that period.

The rates of dividend and the number of shares ranking for dividends are not presented in this footnote for those profit distributions made prior to the incorporation of the Company as such information is not considered meaningful.

Cash dividends to shareholders in Hong Kong will be paid in Hong Kong dollars.

Following the incorporation of the Company, under the PRC Company Law and the Company's articles of association, net profit after tax as reported in the PRC statutory financial statements can only be distributed as dividends after allowance has been made for the following:

(i) Making up prior years' cumulative losses, if any;

(ii) Allocations to the statutory common reserve fund of at least 10% of after-tax profit, until the fund aggregates 50% of the Company's registered capital. For the purpose of calculating the transfer to reserves, the profit after tax shall be the amount determined under the PRC GAAP. The transfer to this reserve must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

The statutory common reserve fund can be used to offset previous years' losses, if any, and part of the statutory common reserve fund can be capitalised as the Company's share capital provided that the amount of such reserve remaining after the capitalisation shall not be less than 25% of the share capital of the Company;

(iii) Allocations of 5% to 10% of after-tax profit, as determined under PRC GAAP, to the Company's statutory public welfare fund, which will be established for the purpose of providing for the Company's employees collective welfare benefits such as the construction of dormitories, canteens and other staff welfare facilities. The fund forms part of the shareholders' equity as only individual employees can use these facilities, while the title of such facilities is held by the Company. The transfer to this fund must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders; and

(iv) Allocations to the discretionary common reserve if approved by the shareholders.

The above reserves cannot be used for purposes other than those for which they are created and are not distributable as cash dividends.

In accordance with the articles of association of the Company, the net profit after tax of the Company for the purpose of dividends payment is based on the lesser of (i) the net profit determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP; and (ii) the net profit determined in accordance with IFRS.

Prior to the incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, no profit appropriation to the aforesaid reserve funds was required.

Notes:

(a) The goodwill brought forward from 2003 related to the acquisition of shareholding interests of 35.86% and 7.43% in Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited ("Dragonair") by CNACG and its then wholly-owned subsidiary, CNAC, in June 1996 and October 1997, respectively. The aggregate goodwill arising from these two acquisitions was approximately RMB2,130 million and subsequently reduced to approximately RMB1,205 million through deemed disposal upon the initial public offering of CNAC and the accumulated amortisation on the straight-line basis over a period of 20 years until 1 January 2001 (the date of adoption of IFRS 3 by the Group).

(b) The goodwill arose in the current year related to the acquisitions of effective shareholding interests of 48.0% in Shandong Aviation Group Corporation ("Shandong Aviation"), 22.8% in Shandong Airlines Co., Ltd. ("Shandong Airlines") and 13.9% in LSG Lufthansa Service Hong Kong Limited ("LSGHK") by the Group, resulting in an aggregate goodwill amount of approximately RMB200 million.

Impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair

Goodwill acquired through the business combination in relation to the acquisition of shareholding interest in Dragonair has been allocated to the cash-generating unit, Dragonair, within the airline operations segment.

The recoverable amount of Dragonair has been determined based on a value in use calculation. To calculate this, cash flow projections are based on financial budgets approved by management covering a one-year period. The discount rate applied to the cash flow projections beyond the one-year period is 5.0%. No growth has been projected beyond the one-year period.

Key assumptions used in the value in use calculation of Dragonair

The following describes each key assumption on which management has based its cash flow projections when undertaking the impairment testing of goodwill attributable to Dragonair:

Passenger revenues — the bases used to determine the value assigned to the budgeted passenger revenues are available seat kilometers, passenger traffic, passenger load factor and passenger yield. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Operating expenses — the bases used to determine the values assigned are staff headcount, scheduled flight hours, passenger traffic and jet fuel consumption. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Certain lease financing arrangements comprised finance leases between the Company and certain of its subsidiaries, and corresponding borrowings between such subsidiaries and the banks. The Company has guaranteed the subsidiaries' obligations under the bank borrowings and, accordingly, the relevant assets as mentioned aforesaid and obligations are recorded in the balance sheets to reflect the substance of the transactions. The future payments under these leases have therefore been presented by the Company and the Group in amounts that reflect the payments under the bank borrowings between the subsidiaries and the banks.

At 31 December 2004, there were 23 aircraft under finance lease agreements. Under the terms of the leases, the Company has the option to purchase, at the end of or during the lease terms, certain aircraft at fair market value and others at either fair market value or at the price as stipulated in the finance lease agreements. For the current year, the effective borrowing rate ranged from 1.64% to 9.13% (2003: 1.64% to 9.13%).

The Group's and the Company's finance leases were secured by:

(a) mortgages over certain of the Group's and the Company's aircraft, which had an aggregate carrying value of approximately RMB11,999 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB13,310 million) (note 16);

(b) the pledge of certain of the Group's and the Company's bank deposits amounting to approximately RMB16 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB42 million) (note 26); and

(c) guarantees by certain commercial banks in an aggregate amount of approximately RMB14,785 million (2003: RMB18,949 million).

As at 31 December 2004, certain PRC state-owned banks have provided counter-guarantees in an aggregate amount of RMB3,074 million (2003: RMB4,753 million) in respect of the commercial bank guarantee arrangements set out in note 33 (c) above. CNAHC and CNAF have, in turn, provided counter-guarantees to certain of these PRC state-owned banks in the amounts of RMB921 million (2003: RMB5,355 million) and RMB3,976 million (2003: RMB4,506 million) (note 46), respectively.

In 2000, the Group acquired an aircraft which was funded by the PRC government, and a further aircraft was injected into the Group by the PRC government during 2004. As such, the government subsidies in relation to the aforesaid aircraft purchased in 2000 and the aircraft received in 2004 are recorded in deferred income of the Group in 2000 and 2004, respectively. Notes:

(a) As described in note 1 to these financial statements, the financial statements of the Group for the years ended 31 December 2003 and 2004 have been prepared as if the Group had been in existence throughout the period and as if the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies were transferred to the Company at 1 January 2003. Upon incorporation of the Company on 30 September 2004, the historical net asset value of the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies transferred to the Company were converted into the Company's registered capital as described in note 37 (a) to these financial statements with all the then existing reserves eliminated and the resulting difference dealt with in the capital reserve and retained profits. Accordingly, the aggregate of the capital reserve and retained profits amounts, being the difference between the amount of share capital issued and the historical net asset value of the Relevant Businesses and the interests in the Relevant Companies transferred to the Company as at 30 September 2004, were presented in the reserves of both the Group and the Company.

Retained profits of the Company and the Group upon incorporation of the Company represent the amounts set aside for distributions, details of which are set out in note 14 to these financial statements. Therefore, these amounts were not capitalised by the Company and the Group upon the Company's incorporation.

(b) Details of the distributions are set out in note 14 to these financial statements.

39. LONG-TERM COMPENSATION PLAN

The Company has adopted a long-term compensation plan (the "Plan") which was approved by the shareholders on 18 October 2004 for the purpose of motivating its employees. The Plan provides for the grant of share appreciation rights ("SARs") to eligible participants, including the Company's Directors (excluding independent non-executive Directors), supervisors (excluding independent supervisors), president, vice presidents, heads of key departments in the Company's headquarters, general managers and general deputy managers of principal branches and subsidiaries as well as selected senior professionals and key specialists. In any event, SARs will be granted to no more than 200 individuals. The Plan will remain in force unless otherwise cancelled or amended.

Under the Plan, the holders of SARs are entitled the rights to receive an amount in respect of the appreciation in market value of the Company's H shares from the date of grant of SARs and the date of exercise. No shares will be issued under the Plan and therefore the Company's equity interests will not be diluted as a result of the issuance of SARs. The maximum number of unexercised SARs permitted to be granted under the Plan is, upon their exercise, limited to 2% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to eligible participants under the Plan within any 12-month period is, upon their exercise, limited to 0.4% of the Company's H shares in issue at any time during each year. The maximum number of SARs granted to any eligible participant is limited to 10% of the total number of unexercised SARs in issue at any time during each year. Any further grant of SARs in excess of the above limits is subject to shareholders' approval in general meetings.

The exercise period of all SARs commences after a vesting period and ends on a date which is not later than five years from the date of grant of the SARs. As of each of the last day of the second, third and fourth anniversary of the date of grant, the total number of SARs exercisable will not exceed 30%, 70% and 100%, respectively, of the total SARs granted to the respective eligible participants.

The exercise price of SARs will be equal to the average closing price of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange for the five consecutive trading days immediately preceding the date of the grant.

As of 31 December 2004, no SARs had been issued under the Plan.

40. DISTRIBUTABLE RESERVES

As at 31 December 2004, in accordance with the PRC Company Law, an amount of approximately RMB7,703.5 million standing to the credit of the Company's capital reserve account, and an amount of approximately RMB51.9 million standing to the credit of the Company's statutory reserve funds, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP, were available for distribution by way of future capitalisation issue. In addition, the Company had retained profits of approximately RMB207.6 million, as determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and being the lesser amount of the retained profits determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and IFRS, available for distribution as dividend.

41. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES

Pursuant to the Restructuring, the following legal matters and litigation set out in items (a) to (c) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As of 31 December 2004, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(a) Pursuant to the agreement for the Restructuring entered into by the Company with CNAHC and CNACG, except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(b) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities including 121 passengers and 8 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of these financial statements. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 31 December 2004, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of RMB190 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB190 million is an amount of RMB173 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The Directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

(c) Air China International Corporation is one of the defendants in a civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) (the "Litigation"). United Aero-Supplies System of China Limited ("UASSC") had entered into an agreement with the defendants for the exclusive purchase of aviation equipment consigned to UASSC for sale and, that as the defendants failed to perform the agreement, UASSC has the right to compensation. Since UASSC is in the course of its winding up proceedings, all the rights and benefits of UASSC in connection with the claim have been transferred to New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC"). Air China International Corporation, as one of the defendants to the Litigation, was claimed by NLC for compensation of HK$60,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB63,600,000) for failing to perform the above agreement. Air China International Corporation has filed an objection in respect of the jurisdiction of the court, and has requested the court to transfer the case to Mainland China for trial. Air China International Corporation received an order in respect of this application on 3 May 2004. The judge granted the application and ordered that the action against Air China International Corporation be dismissed. Subsequent to this order, NLC has filed an appeal. The date of hearing for the appeal has been fixed on 28 July 2005. After considering the aforesaid order granted by the judge and consulting the legal counsel, the Directors of the Company consider that Air China International Corporation has a reasonable chance of success in its defence to the claim. Accordingly, the Directors of the Company consider that a provision for such claim and/or the associated legal costs is not required.

(d) The Group and the Company have issued guarantees to banks in respect of the bank loans granted to the following parties:

43. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

Financial assets of the Group and the Company mainly include cash and cash equivalents, pledged assets, trade receivables, other investments, deposits and other receivables. Financial liabilities of the Group and the Company mainly include bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, trade payables, other payables, bills payable and air traffic liabilities.

The carrying amounts of the Group's and the Company's financial instruments approximated their fair value as at the balance sheet date. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time and based on relevant market information about the financial instruments. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgement and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect the estimates.

44. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

(a) Financial risk management objectives and policies

The Group operates globally and generates revenues in various currencies. The Group's airline operations are exposed to business risk, liquidity risk, jet fuel price risk, foreign currency risk, interest rate risk and credit risk. The Group's overall risk management approach is to moderate the effects of such volatility on its financial performance.

Financial risk management policies are periodically reviewed and approved by the Board of Directors.

(b) Business risk

The operations of the air transportation industry are substantially influenced by global political and economic development. Factors such as accidents and wars may have a material impact on the Group's operations or the industry as a whole. In addition, the Group primarily conducts its principal operations in the PRC and accordingly is subject to special consideration and significant risks not typically associated with companies in the United States of America and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among other things, the political, economic and legal environment, competition and influence of the CAAC in the Chinese civil aviation industry.

(c) Liquidity risk

The Group's net current liabilities amounted to approximately RMB6,860 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB12,384 million). The Group recorded a net cash inflow from operating activities of approximately RMB6,151 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB5,425 million). For the same period, the Group had a net cash outflow from investing activities of approximately RMB4,974 million (2003: RMB4,360 million). The Group also recorded a net cash inflow from financing activities of approximately RMB5,620 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 and a net cash outflow from financing activities of approximately RMB2,207 million for the year ended 31 December 2003. The Group has recorded an increase in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB6,824 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 but a decrease in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB1,057 million for the year ended 31 December 2003.

With regards to 2005 and thereafter, the liquidity of the Group is primarily dependent on its ability to maintain adequate cash inflow from operations to meet its debt obligations as they fall due, and on its ability to obtain external financing to meet its committed future capital expenditures. With regards to its future capital commitments and other financing requirements, the Company has already obtained several banking facilities with several PRC banks of up to an amount of RMB71,700 million as at 31 December 2004, of which an amount of approximately RMB40,183 million was utilised.

The Directors of the Company have carried out a detailed review of the cash flow forecast of the Group for the year ending 31 December 2005. Based on such forecast, the Directors have determined that adequate liquidity exists to finance the working capital and capital expenditure requirements of the Group during 2005. In preparing the cash flow forecast, the Directors have considered historical cash requirements of the Group as well as other key factors, including the availability of the above-mentioned loans financing which may impact the operations of the Group prior to the end of 2005. The Directors are of the opinion that the assumptions and sensitivities which are included in the cash flow forecast are reasonable. However, as with all assumptions in regard to future events, these are subject to inherent limitations and uncertainties and some or all of these assumptions may not be realised.

(d) Jet fuel price risk

The Group's strategy for managing the risk on jet fuel price aims to provide the Group with protection against sudden and significant increases in prices. In meeting these objectives, the Group allows for the judicious use of approved derivative instruments such as swaps and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits.

Moreover, counter-party credit risk is generally restricted to any gains on changes in fair value from time to time, and not the principal amount of the instrument. Therefore, the possibility of material loss arising in the event of non-performance by a counter-party is considered to be unlikely.

The fair values of derivative instruments of the Group and the Company at the balance sheet date are as follows:

	Group and Company		Group
	2004	2004	2003	2003
	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000
Swaps and collars expiring:
Within 6 months	—	—	8,000	(2,400)
Over 6 months to 21 months	—	—	26,000	(3,600)
	—	—	34,000	(6,000)

Fair values of derivative instruments, denominated in United States dollars, are obtained from quoted market prices, dealer price quotations, discounted cash flow models and option pricing models, which consider current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as time value of money, yield curve and volatility of the underlying instruments.

(e) Foreign currency risk

The Group's finance lease obligations as well as certain bank and other loans are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen, and certain expenses of the Group are denominated in currencies other than RMB. The Group generates foreign currency revenues from ticket sales made in overseas offices and would normally generate sufficient foreign currencies after payment of foreign currency expenses, to meet its foreign currency liabilities repayable within one year. RMB against United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars have been comparatively stable in the past. However, RMB against Japanese yen had experienced a significant level of fluctuation over 2004 which is the major reason for the significant exchange difference recognised by the Group for 2004.

(f) Interest rate risk

The Group's earnings are also affected by changes in interest rates due to the impact of such changes on interest income and expense from short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities. A significant portion of the Group's interest-bearing financial liabilities with maturities above one year have predominately fixed rates of interest and are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen.

The Group's short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities are predominately denominated in RMB, United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars.

(g) Credit risk

The Group's cash and cash equivalents are deposited with PRC banks, overseas banks and an associate. The Group has policies in place to limit the exposure to any one financial institution.

A significant portion of the Group's air tickets are sold by agents participating in the Billing and Settlements Plan ("BSP"), a clearing system between airlines and sales agents organised by the International Air Transportation Association. The balance due from BSP agents amounted to approximately RMB531 million as at 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB342 million).

Except for the above, the Group has no significant concentration of credit risk, with exposure spread over a number of counter-parties.

46. RELATED PARTY TRANSACTIONS

The Group is part of a larger group of companies under CNAHC and has extensive transactions and relationships with members of CNAHC. As such, it is possible that the terms of these transactions are not the same as those that would result from transactions among wholly unrelated parties. Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or significant influence. The transactions were made at prices and terms mutually agreed between the parties.

In addition to the Restructuring, further details of which are set out in note 1 to these financial statements, and transactions and balances detailed elsewhere in these financial statements, the Group had the following significant recurring transactions carried out in the ordinary course of business between the Group and (i) CNAHC, its subsidiaries (other than the Group), joint ventures and associates (collectively known as "CNAHC Group"); (ii) its joint ventures; and (iii) its associates:

(a) In addition to the above, on 18 October 1997, CNAC entered into a licence agreement with CNAC (PRC) pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) had agreed to grant a licence to CNAC, free of royalty, for the right to use certain trademarks in Hong Kong, the Taiwan region and Macau so long as CNAC is a subsidiary of CNACG. No royalty charge was levied in respect for the use of these trademarks during each of the two years ended 31 December 2004.

On 25 August 2004, CNAC (PRC) entered into two assignment agreements with CNACG pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) has agreed to assign, free of royalty, the above-mentioned trademarks to CNACG for use in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively. On 25 August 2004, CNACG entered into two licence agreements with CNAC pursuant to which CNACG has agreed to grant licences to CNAC, free of royalty, for the rights to use those trademarks in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively, so long as CNAC is a direct or indirect subsidiary of CNAHC. These licence agreements supersede the licence agreement entered into between CNAC (PRC) and CNAC on 18 October 1997.

(b) Pursuant to certain of the Company's aircraft leasing arrangements and bank loan arrangements, the overseas lessors and lenders require guarantees to be given by some major PRC state-owned banks. In giving such guarantees, the PRC state-owned banks in turn require CNAHC and CNAF to provide counter-guarantees in favour of the banks. As at the balance sheet date, the amounts of such counter-guarantees provided by CNAHC and CNAF were as follows:

	Group
	RMB'000	RMB'000
CNAHC:
Finance leases (note 33)	921,000	5,355,000

* Subsequent to 31 December 2004, these counter-guarantees provided by CNAF amounting to RMB4,737 million in favour of the banks have been fully released.

Certain of the Group's bank loans from the PRC banks are guaranteed by Air China International Corporation and other related parties, further details of which are set out in note 34 to these financial statements.

(c) In connection with the Restructuring, the Company entered into several agreements with CNAHC which govern the use of trademarks granted by the Company to CNAHC, the provision of financial services by CNAF, the provision of construction project management services by China National Aviation Construction and Development Company, the subcontracting of charter-flight services to CNAHC, the leasing of properties from and to CNAHC, the provision of air ticketing and cargo services, media and advertising services arrangement to China National Aviation Media and Advertising Co., Ltd., the tourism services co-operation agreement with CNAHC, the comprehensive services agreement with CNAHC, and the provision of maintenance and other ground services by China Aircraft Services Limited.

(d) On 19 August 2004, Fly Top Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of CNAC, entered into the following acquisition agreements:

(i) a sale and purchase agreement with CNACG in relation to the acquisition of approximately 16% of the issued share capital of LSGHK, a company incorporated in Hong Kong with limited liability ("CNACG Agreement"); and

(ii) a sale and purchase agreement with Hong Kong International Air Catering Limited ("HKIAC"), a company incorporated in Hong Kong with limited liability and in which Air China International Corporation has a 25% equity interest, in relation to the acquisition of approximately 4.2% of the issued share capital of LSGHK ("HKIAC Agreement").

The total consideration of the above acquisitions is approximately RMB122 million. Immediately after the completion of the CNACG Agreement and HKIAC Agreement, the Group's effective shareholding interests in LSGHK is approximately 14%.

(e) All pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits of approximately RMB39 million for the year ended 31 December 2004 (2003: RMB54 million) were borne by CNAHC (note 11).

The Directors of the Company are of the opinion that the above transactions with related parties were conducted in the usual course of business.

47. EVENTS AFTER THE BALANCE SHEET DATE

(a) On 11 January 2005, upon the exercise of the over-allotment option, the Company issued to the public by way of placement of 420,852,000 H Shares, consisting of 382,592,727 new shares and 29,749,686 State legal person shares and 8,509,587 non-H Foreign Shares, with a par value of RMB1.00 each at HK2.98 (equivalent to approximately RMB3.17072) per share. After deducting net proceeds of approximately RMB117 million received from the sale of these State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares, the amount of which should be remitted to the Social Security Fund, and share issue expenses of approximately RMB47 million (before deducting share issue expenses of approximately RMB4 million borne by the Social Security Fund as mentioned above), the Company raised net proceeds of approximately RMB1,170 million, of which paid-up share capital amounted to approximately RMB383 million and capital reserve amounted to approximately RMB787 million. The above H shares rank pari passu, in all material respects, with the State legal person shares and non-H Foreign Shares of the Company.

(b) On 26 January 2005, the Company and AIE entered into an agreement with Airbus S.A.S. ("Airbus"), pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 20 A330-200 aircraft (the "Airbus Aircraft") from Airbus for an aggregate consideration of approximately US$2.86 billion (equivalent to approximately RMB23.68 billion). The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is payable in cash by instalments. The Airbus Aircraft are scheduled to be delivered in stages to the Company from mid-2006 to end of 2008. Pursuant to the relevant Chinese regulations, the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is conditional upon the PRC government's approval. As of the date of approval of these financial statements, the said government approval has not been obtained by the Company.

(c) On 28 January 2005, the Company, other contracting Chinese airlines, China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation ("CASGC") and Boeing Company entered into an agreement (the "Framework Agreement"), pursuant to which CASGC agreed to purchase (as an agent of the Company and other contracting Chinese airlines) 60 Boeing 7E7 aircraft. The aggregate catalog price of the aircraft is approximately US$7.3 billion (equivalent to approximately RMB60.42 billion). Pursuant to the Framework Agreement, the Company expects to enter into a specific purchase agreement with CASGC and Boeing Company in respect of the purchase of 15 Boeing 7E7 aircraft (the "Boeing Aircraft"). The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of the Boeing Aircraft is expected to be lower than the catalog price. The delivery of the Boeing Aircraft is expected to take place in stages from mid-2008. The specific purchase agreement has not been finalised as at the date of approval of these financial statements.

48. APPROVAL OF THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Pursuant to the restructuring of China National Aviation Holding Company ("CNAHC") for the listing of the Company's H shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the London Stock Exchange (the "Restructuring"), the legal matter and litigation set out in items (i) and (ii) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As at 30 June 2005, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(i) Pursuant to the agreement for the Restructuring (the "Restructuring Agreement") entered into by the Company with CNAHC and China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG"), except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(ii) On 15 April 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities among 166 passengers and crew members aboard the Boeing 767 aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of this circular. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Up to 30 June 2005, the Company, Air China International Corporation and the Company's insurer had paid an aggregate amount of RMB190 million in respect of passenger liability and other auxiliary costs. Included in the RMB190 million is an amount of RMB173 million borne by the Company's insurer. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to 30 September 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

(iii) The Company is one of the defendants in a lawsuit pending in the San Francisco Superior Court filed by Environmental World Watch Inc. ("EWW"). The complaint alleges that the Company and certain other commercial airlines operating in California have violated the California Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act (Health and Safety Code Section 25249.5). EWW alleges that the Company and these other airlines caused environmental exposure and occupational exposure from aircraft emissions without providing warnings required by the statue. Up to the date of this circular, the Company has not been served with the complaint by EWW and, therefore, has not been required to appear in the court to defend against the allegation. The status of the proceedings is still preliminary and, therefore, the directors are of the view that it is not possible to estimate the eventual outcome of the claim with reasonable certainty at this stage. The directors are of the opinion that, based on advice from the Company's lawyers in the United States, even if the Company is served with the complaint and is therefore required to appear in the court, it would appear to have valid defence against this litigation and accordingly, the directors consider that no provision for this complaint is needed.

(iv) The Group has issued guarantees to banks in respect of the bank loans granted to the following parties:

	As at 30 June 2005 RMB (in millions)
Joint venture	115
Associates	179
Total	294

Except as disclosed above, as at 30 June 2005, the Group did not have any outstanding mortgages, charges, pledges, debentures, loan capital, bank loans and overdrafts, debt securities or other similar indebtedness, finance leases or hire purchase commitments, acceptance liabilities or acceptance credits, any guarantees or other material contingent liabilities.

Except for as disclosed above, the directors have confirmed that there has been no material change in the indebtedness and guarantees of the Group since 30 June 2005.

1. RESPONSIBILITY STATEMENT

This circular includes particulars given in compliance with the Listing Rules for the purpose of giving information with regard to the Group. To the Shareholders

Dear Sir or Madam,

DISCLOSEABLE TRANSACTION

1. INTRODUCTION

On 10 February 2006, the Company announced that on 17 January 2006 the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft from Boeing Company.

The Transaction constitutes a discloseable transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules.

2. THE BOEING AIRCRAFT PURCHASE AGREEMENT

(1) Date of the Transaction

17 January 2006

(2) Parties to the Transaction

(i) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(ii) AIE, as the import agent for the Company; and

(iii) Boeing Company, as the vendor, one of whose principal business activity is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief having made all reasonable enquiry, Boeing Company and each of the ultimate beneficial owner of Boeing Company are independent third parties and not connected persons (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

(3) Aircraft to be acquired

Boeing Aircraft, i.e.10 Boeing 737 aircraft

As at the Latest Practicable Date, the Company operated a fleet of 180 aircraft, including 172 passenger aircraft, 6 freighters and two corporate jets.

(4) Consideration

The aircraft basic price comprises the airframe price, optional features prices and engine price. The aircraft basic price of the Boeing Aircraft in aggregate is US$655.2 million. The airframe price is subject to price escalation by applying a formula. Boeing has granted to the Company significant price concessions with regard to the Boeing Aircraft. These will take the form of credit memoranda which may be used by the Company towards the purchase of the Boeing Aircraft or spare parts, goods and services or may be used towards the final delivery invoice payment of the Boeing Aircraft. Such credit memoranda were determined after arm's length negotiations between the parties and as a result, the actual consideration for the Boeing Aircraft is lower than the aircraft basic price mentioned above. The Transaction was negotiated and entered into in accordance with customary business practice. Taking into account all the factors relating to the purchase of aircraft by the Company, including the market condition, the type, number and delivery schedule of aircraft being purchased, and the terms of the umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation in November 2005 (the Umbrella Agreement), the extent of the price concessions granted to the Company in the Transaction is comparable with the price concessions that the Company had obtained in the previous aircraft purchase transaction entered into between the Company and Boeing Company on 8 August 2005 (the 2005 Aircraft Purchase). The Company believes that there is no material difference between the effect of the price concessions obtained in the Transaction and the 2005 Aircraft Purchase on the Company's operating costs taken as a whole.

The Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement was signed pursuant to the Umbrella Agreement. The 2005 Aircraft Purchase was signed pursuant to an umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the airline companies including the Company in January 2005. The purchase of the Boeing Aircraft was not in contemplation at the time of the 2005 Aircraft Purchase. Accordingly, the Transaction and the 2005 Aircraft Purchase are not part of the same series of transactions and are not treated as if they were one transaction and these transactions are not required to be aggregated for the relevant classification of the Transaction pursuant to Rule 14.22. As the relevant percentage ratio under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules for the Transaction is more than 5% but less than 25%, the Transaction on its own constitutes a discloseable transaction, and is therefore not subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

(5) Payment and delivery terms

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Boeing Aircraft is payable by cash in eight instalments, with first seven instalments to be paid prior to delivery of each Boeing Aircraft and the remaining balance, being a substantial portion of the consideration, to be paid upon delivery of each Boeing Aircraft. The Company is expecting to take delivery of the Boeing Aircraft in stages from end 2007 to end 2008.

(6) Source of funding

The Transaction will be funded through cash generated from the Company's business operations, commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company and subject to the completion of the proposed A share issue as set out in the announcement by the Company dated 9 February 2006, the proceeds from the A share issue.

(7) Reasons for and benefits of the Transaction

The Boeing Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and will principally reinforce Beijing's position as a transportation hub and increase frequency of flights, departing originally from Beijing, of a number of key domestic flight courses. The Company expects the Boeing Aircraft will deliver more cost-efficient performance and provide more comfortable services to passengers.

Although the Boeing Aircraft was purchased with other aircrafts under a package acquisition plan, which is coordinated by the NDRC, the decision to purchase the Boeing Aircraft was made independently by the Company. The negotiations under the acquisition plan were done as a package to increase bargaining power.

The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

3. EFFECT OF THE TRANSACTION

Based on the technical specifications of the Boeing Aircraft, the Company expects the Boeing Aircraft to operate with a higher utilization rate, more efficient jet fuel consumption and relatively low maintenance cost. This will enable the Company to operate on a cost-efficient basis and would potentially have a positive effect on the earnings of the Company.

As mentioned above, the Transaction will be partly financed by commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company. The Transaction will therefore increase the Group's fixed assets and liabilities. The Transaction may also result in an increase in the Group's debt-to-equity ratio. The total cash outflow of the Company in 2006 in respect of the Transaction is approximately RMB873 million. However, the Company does not expect the Transaction to have any material negative impact on its cash-flow position or its business operations.

Save as described above, the Transaction is not expected to have any material impact on earnings, assets and liabilities of the Group.

4. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Your attention is drawn to the additional information set out in the appendix to this circular.

By Order of the Board
Li Jiaxiang
Chairman

Beijing, the PRC

To the Shareholders

Dear Sir or Madam,

PURCHASE OF 20 AIRBUS A330-200 AIRCRAFT MAJOR TRANSACTION

1. INTRODUCTION

On 26 January 2005, the Board announced that on the same date, the Company and AIE entered into the A330-200 Purchase Agreement with Airbus for the purpose of acquiring 20 A330-200 aircraft from Airbus. The Transaction was approved by the Board on the same date. Pursuant to relevant PRC laws and regulations the Transactions is conditional upon PRC government approval, which has not been obtained yet.

The Transaction constitutes a major transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules.

2. THE A330-200 PURCHASE AGREEMENT

(1) Date

26 January 2005

(2) Parties to the Transaction

(a) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(b) AIE, as the import agent of the Company; and

(c) Airbus, as the vendor, the principal business activity of which is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief after having made all reasonable enquiries, each of Airbus and its beneficial owners is an independent third party and not a connected person (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

(3) Aircraft to be acquired

20 A330-200 aircraft.

As of 31 December 2004, the Company operated a fleet of 150 aircraft, including 144 passenger aircraft, five freighters and one corporate jet aircraft.

(4) Consideration

According to the information provided by Airbus, the aggregate market price of the Airbus Aircraft, as calculated in accordance with the catalog provided to the Company by Airbus, is US$2.86 billion. However, the aggregate consideration payable by the Company for the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft, which was determined after arm's length negotiation between the parties, is lower than the market price as calculated in accordance with such Airbus catalog.

As the relevant percentage ratio for the Transaction with regard to the consideration test as calculated under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules is above 25%, but less than 100%, the Transaction constitutes a major transaction for the Company and is therefore subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

(5) Payment and delivery terms

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is payable in cash by instalments. The Airbus Aircraft are expected to be delivered in stages to the Company from mid 2006 to end 2008.

(6) Source of funding

The Transaction will be funded through cashflow from the Company's operation and commercial bank loans. No proceeds from the Company's recent global offering will be used to finance the Transaction.

(7) Reasons for the Transaction

The Airbus Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and they will principally serve the routes to international destinations in Europe, Australia, North America and certain key domestic destinations such as Lhasa. The Airbus Aircraft are expected to replace certain aircraft in the existing fleet of the Company and will enable the Company to provide more comfortable services to the passengers. The Transaction is consistent with the aircraft procurement policy of the Company. More details of the aircraft procurement and disposal policy of the Company were set out in the section headed "Business – Fleet" in the Company's prospectus dated 3 December 2004.

The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and are in the interest of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

(8) Implications under the Listing Rules

As the relevant percentage ratio for the Transaction with regard to the consideration test as calculated under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules is above 25%, but less than 100%, the Transaction constitutes a major transaction and is therefore subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

CNAHC currently directly owns approximately 51.16% of the total issued share capital of the Company. None of CNAHC or its associates (as defined in the Listing Rules) has any interest in the Transaction other than as a shareholder of the Company (where applicable). Therefore, no shareholder of the Company will be required to abstain from voting if the Company were to convene a general meeting for the approval of the Transaction. CNAHC has approved the Transaction by way of a written approval pursuant to Rule 14.11 of the Listing Rules, and therefore the Company will not be convening a shareholders' meeting to approve the Transaction.

3. FINANCIAL AND TRADING PROSPECTS

As disclosed in the prospectus of the Company dated 3 December 2004, since 30 June 2004, the Company's sales have been higher than previous months due to the seasonal nature of the airline business and in line with Directors' expectations. In addition, load factors and yields for this period are both higher than those experienced during the same period of 2003. The Directors view the future prospects during the current financial year of the Company with confidence and believe that the Group is well placed to continue to develop its business in line with its strategy.

4. WORKING CAPITAL

Taking into account the net proceeds to the Company from its recent global offering and the available bank facilities, the Directors are of the opinion that the Group will have sufficient working capital for the next 12 months following the date of this circular.

5. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Your attention is drawn to the financial and general information set out in the prospectus of the Company dated 3 December 2004 and appendices to this circular.

By Order of the Board
Li Jiaxiang

I. SUMMARY OF FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The following is a summary of the audited combined results of the Group for each of the three years ended December 31, 2001, 2002 and 2003 and the six-month period ended June 30, 2004 (the "Relevant Periods") and the audited combined balance sheets of the Group as at December 31, 2001, 2002, 2003 and June 30, 2004 together with the relevant notes ("Accountants' Report"), as extracted from Appendix I to the Company's prospectus dated December 3, 2004.

1. RESTRUCTURING

As a result of a group restructuring of CNAHC in preparation for the listing of the Company's H Shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the Official List of the UK Listing Authority, the Company was incorporated on September 30, 2004. Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC, together with its wholly-owned subsidiaries, effected the transfer of the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies to the Company upon its incorporation and 5,054,276,915 Domestic Shares (in the form of State legal person shares) and 1,445,723,085 non-H Foreign Shares with a par value of RMB1.00 each were issued by the Company to CNAHC and China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG" and which is a Hong Kong incorporated company wholly owned by CNAHC) in exchange for the transfer of the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies to the Company. In the opinion of the directors, the Company is wholly owned by CNAHC which is the Company's ultimate holding company.

Prior to the Restructuring, CNAHC was indirectly engaged in the Relevant Businesses through its subsidiaries and the Relevant Companies. As a result of the Restructuring, the Group and its associates become the only entities through which CNAHC conducts the respective airline operations, aircraft engineering services, airport ground handling services, air catering services and other airline-related businesses.

The Company was incorporated in Beijing, the PRC, on September 30, 2004 as a joint stock limited company and, pursuant to the Restructuring, the Company became the holding company of the following principal subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates. In addition, except for the interests in Hong Kong Dragon Airlines Limited ("Dragonair"), which were acquired from independent third parties in 1996 and 1997, all of the entities in the Group were owned by CNAHC or companies now comprising the CNAHC group upon their incorporation/establishment:

2. BASIS OF PRESENTATION

As discussed in Section 1 above, the Relevant Businesses were operated by subsidiaries of CNAHC and interests in the Relevant Companies were owned directly or indirectly by CNAHC prior to the Restructuring. Accordingly, the Restructuring has been accounted for as a reorganisation of companies under common control in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests. As a result, the accompanying combined balance sheets have been prepared to present the Group's assets and liabilities as if the Restructuring had been completed as at the beginning of the Relevant Periods. The accompanying combined results and combined cash flows include the Group's results of operations and cash flows as if the Relevant Businesses and interests in the Relevant Companies had been transferred to the Group at the beginning of the Relevant Periods.

The combined results in Section 4 and combined balance sheets in Section 5 have been prepared in accordance with IFRS, which comprise standards and interpretations approved by the IASB, and International Accounting Standards ("IAS") and Standing Interpretations Committee interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Committee that remain in effect.

The Group is principally engaged in the provision of airline operations, aircraft engineering services, air catering services, airport ground handling services and other airline-related businesses.

3. PRINCIPAL ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The combined financial statements of the Group have been prepared in accordance with IFRS, which comprise standards and interpretations approved by the IASB, and International Accounting Standards and Standing Interpretations Committee interpretations approved by the International Accounting Standards Committee that remain in effect, except for the following standards that have been early adopted as at the beginning of the Relevant Periods:

- IAS 39 (amended 2004), Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement.

Except for the audited financial statements of Air Macau, Menzies and the audited combined financial statements of the Group for the Relevant Periods, the above basis of accounting differs from that used in the audited financial statements and management accounts of other companies comprising the Group, which were prepared in accordance with the accounting principles and the financial regulations applicable to State-owned enterprises or Sino-foreign or domestic joint ventures established in the PRC ("PRC GAAP") or generally accepted accounting principles in Hong Kong ("HK GAAP").

The combined financial statements have been prepared on a historical cost basis, except for the measurement at fair value of financial instruments in accordance with IAS 39 (amended 2004).

(a) Basis of consolidation

The Group's combined financial statements incorporate the financial statements of the Company and its subsidiaries after elimination of intercompany transactions.

Subsidiaries are consolidated from the date on which control is transferred to the Group and cease to be consolidated from the date on which control is transferred out of the Group. This control is normally evidenced when the Group owns, either directly or indirectly, more than 50% of the voting rights of a company's share or registered capital, is able to govern the financial and operating policies of an enterprise so as to benefit from its activities, and when there is no evidence that control is intended to be temporary.

Minority interests represent the interests in the Company's subsidiaries, not held by the Group and are presented in the combined balance sheet within equity, separately from the parent shareholders' equity.

(b) Foreign currencies

The Group's functional and reporting currency is Renminbi ("RMB"), except for overseas subsidiaries, which use their local currencies.

Foreign currency transactions are recorded at the applicable exchange rates ruling at the transaction dates as quoted by the People's Bank of China. Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies at the balance sheet date are translated at the applicable exchange rates ruling at that date as quoted by the People's Bank of China. All exchange differences are dealt with in the income statement.

On consolidation, the financial statements of overseas subsidiaries are translated into RMB. The income statements of the subsidiaries are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year, and the balance sheets are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the balance sheet date. The resulting translation differences are included in the exchange fluctuation reserve.

For the purpose of the combined cash flow statement, the cash flows of the overseas subsidiary are translated into RMB at the exchange rates ruling at the dates of the cash flows. Frequently recurring cash flows of overseas subsidiaries, which arise throughout the year, are translated into RMB at the weighted average exchange rates for the year.

(c) Interests in joint ventures

The Group's interests in its joint ventures are accounted for by proportionate consolidation, which involves recognising a proportionate share of the joint venture's assets, liabilities, income and expenses with similar items in the combined financial statements on a line-by-line basis.

(d) Investments in associates

The Group's investments in its associates are accounted for under the equity method of accounting. An associate is an entity in which the Group has significant influence and which is neither a subsidiary nor a joint venture of the Group. The investments in associates are carried in the balance sheet at cost plus post-acquisition changes in the Group's share of net assets of the associates, less any impairment in value. The income statement reflects the Group's share of the results of operations of the associates. The Group's investments in its associates include goodwill (net of accumulated amortisation and impairment) on acquisition, which is treated in accordance with the accounting policy for goodwill stated below.

(e) Property, plant and equipment

Property, plant and equipment, other than construction in progress ("CIP"), are stated at cost less accumulated depreciation and provision for any impairment in value.

The cost of an asset comprises its purchase price and any directly attributable costs of bringing the asset to its working condition and location for its intended use. Expenditure incurred after assets have been put into operation, such as repairs and maintenance, is normally charged to the income statement in the period in which it is incurred. In situations where it can be clearly demonstrated that the expenditure has resulted in an increase in the future economic benefits expected to be obtained from the use of the asset, the expenditure is capitalised as an additional cost of that asset.

Depreciation is calculated on the straight-line basis over the expected useful life of the asset, after taking into account its estimated residual value, as follows:

	Depreciation life	Residual value
Aircraft and flight equipment	10 to 20 years	Nil – 5%
Buildings	15 to 35 years	5%
Machinery, transportation equipment and office equipment	4 to 20 years	5%

CIP represents office buildings and various infrastructure projects under construction and equipment pending installation in the aircraft and is stated at cost less any impairment loss, and is not depreciated. Cost comprises the direct costs of construction, the cost of equipment as well as finance charges from borrowings used to finance these assets during the construction or installation period. CIP is reclassified to the appropriate categories of property, plant and equipment when completed and ready for use.

The carrying values of property, plant and equipment are reviewed for impairment when events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying values may not be recoverable. If any such indication exists and where the carrying values exceed the estimated recoverable amounts, the assets or cash-generating units are written down to their recoverable amounts. The recoverable amount of property, plant and equipment is the greater of net selling price and value in use. In assessing value in use, the estimated future cash flows are discounted to their present value using a pre-tax discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the asset. For an asset that does not generate largely independent cash inflows, the recoverable amount is determined for the cash-generating unit to which the asset belongs. Impairment losses are recognised in the income statement.

(f) Lease prepayments

Lease prepayments represent acquisition costs of land use rights less accumulated amortisation and impairment losses.

(g) Goodwill

Goodwill represents the excess of cost over the fair value of net tangible and identifiable intangible assets of acquired businesses. The Group early adopted IFRS 3, Business Combinations, and applied the requirements of IFRS 3 to goodwill existing at or acquired after, and to business combinations occurring from, the beginning of the Relevant Periods. In accordance with IFRS 3, the Group ceased amortising goodwill as of January 1, 2001.

IAS 36 (amended 2004) requires that goodwill be tested for impairment at the cash-generating units on an annual basis and whenever there is an indication that a unit may be impaired, by comparing the carrying amount of the unit, including the goodwill, with the recoverable amount of the unit. An impairment loss shall be recognised for a cash-generating unit if the recoverable amount of the unit is less than the carrying amount of the unit. The impairment loss shall be allocated to reduce the carrying amount of the assets of the unit (group of units) in the following order: (i) first, to reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to the cash-generating unit (group of units); and (ii) then, to the other assets of the unit pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the unit. In allocating an impairment loss, the Group shall not reduce the carrying amount of an asset below the highest of: (i) its fair value less costs to sell (if determinable); (ii) its value in use (if determinable); and (iii) zero.

(h) Advance payments for aircraft and related equipment

Advance contract payments to aircraft manufacturers to secure deliveries of aircraft and related equipment in future years, including attributable finance costs, are included in assets. The advances are accounted for as part of the cost of property, plant and equipment upon delivery of the aircraft.

(i) Investments

All investments are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration given and including acquisition charges associated with the investments.

After initial recognition, investments, except those investments which do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured, are classified as held for trading and available-for-sale and measured at fair value. Gains or losses on investments held for trading and available-for-sale are recognised in the income statement. Investments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured are stated at cost less impairment.

(j) Leases

Finance leases which transfer to the Group substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the leased item are capitalised at the inception of the lease at the fair value of the leased properties or, if lower, at the present value of the minimum lease payments. Lease payments are apportioned between the finance charges and reduction of the lease liability so as to achieve a constant rate of interest on the remaining balance of the liability. Finance charges are charged directly against income. Capitalised leased assets are depreciated over the estimated economic useful lives of the assets.

Leases where the lessor retains substantially all the risks and benefits of ownership of the asset are classified as operating leases. Operating lease payments are recognised as an expense in the income statement on the straight-line basis over the lease terms.

(k) Inventories

Inventories, which consist primarily of expendable spare parts and supplies, are stated at cost less any provision for obsolescence, and are expensed when consumed in operations. Cost is determined on the weighted average basis.

Work in progress represents material cost, labour cost and overhead cost capitalised for the provision of aircraft engineering services and is stated at the lower of cost, calculated on a weighted average basis, and net realisable value. Net realisable value is determined on the basis of anticipated sales proceeds less estimated selling expenses.

(l) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents comprise cash at bank and in hand and short-term deposits, which are not restricted as to use. For the purpose of the combined cash flow statement, cash and cash equivalents consist of cash at bank and in hand and short-term deposits with an original maturity of three months or less, net of outstanding bank overdrafts.

(m) Manufacturers' credits

In connection with the acquisition of certain aircraft and related equipment, the Group receives various credits from the manufacturers. Such credits are deferred until the aircraft and related equipment are delivered, at which time they are applied as a reduction of the cost of acquiring the aircraft and related equipment.

(n) Employee benefits

(i) Pension obligations

The full-time employees of the Group are covered by various government-sponsored pension plans under which the employees are entitled to a monthly pension based on certain formulae. Certain government agencies are responsible for the pension liability to these retired employees. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these pension plans. Under these plans, the Group has no legal or constructive obligation for retirement benefits beyond the contributions made. Contributions to these plans are expensed as incurred.

(ii) Termination and early retirement benefits

Termination benefits are payable whenever an employee's employment is voluntary terminated before the normal retirement date or whenever an employee accepts voluntary redundancy in exchange for these benefits. The Group recognises termination benefits when it is demonstrably committed to either terminating the employment of current employees according to a detailed formal plan without possibility of withdrawal or to providing termination benefits as a result of an offer made to encourage voluntary redundancy.

(iii) Housing benefits

In prior periods, the Group sold staff quarters to its employees, subject to a number of eligibility requirements, at below market prices. When staff quarters are identified as being subject to sale under these arrangements, the carrying value of the staff quarters is written down to the net recoverable amount. Upon sale, any difference between sales proceeds and the carrying amount of the staff quarters is charged to the income statement. The above staff quarters' allocation scheme was phased out during the Relevant Periods in accordance with the policies of the PRC government. In 1998, the State Council of the PRC issued a circular, which stipulated that the sale of quarters to employees at preferential prices should be withdrawn. In 2000, the State Council further issued a circular stating that cash subsidies should be made to the employees following the withdrawal of allocation of staff quarters. However, the specific timetable and procedures to implement these policies were to be determined by the individual provincial or municipal government based on the particular situation of the province or municipality.

Based on the relevant detailed local government regulations promulgated, certain entities within the Group have adopted cash housing subsidy plans, whereby, for those eligible employees who have not been allocated with any quarter or who have not been allocated with quarters up to the prescribed standards before the staff quarters' allocation scheme was terminated, the Group will pay them one-off cash housing subsidies based on their years of service, positions and other criteria. These cash housing subsidies are charged to the income statement in the year in which it was determined that the payment of such subsidies is probable and the amounts can be reasonably estimated.

In addition, all full-time employees of the Group are entitled to participate in various government-sponsored housing funds. The Group contributes on a monthly basis to these funds based on certain percentages of the salaries of the employees. The Group's liability in respect of these funds is limited to the contributions payable in each period.

(o) Provisions

Provisions are recognised when the Group has a present obligation (legal or constructive) as a result of a past event and it is probable that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation provided that reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation. If the effect of the time value of money is material, provisions are determined by discounting the expected future cash flows at a pre-tax rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and, where appropriate, the risks specific to the liability. Where discounting is used, the increase in the provision due to the passage of time is recognised as an interest expense.

(p) Maintenance and overhaul costs

In respect of aircraft and engines under operating leases, the Group has the responsibility to fulfil certain return conditions under the relevant operating leases. In order to fulfil these return conditions, major overhauls are required to be conducted on a regular basis. Accordingly, estimated costs of major overhauls for aircraft and engines under operating leases are accrued and charged to the income statement over the estimated period between overhauls using the ratios of actual flying hours/cycles and estimated flying hours/cycles between overhauls. The costs of major overhauls comprise mainly labour and materials. Differences between the estimated costs and the actual costs of overhauls are included in the income statement in the period of overhaul.

In respect of aircraft and engines owned by the Group or held under finance lease, costs of major overhauls are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

All other routine repair and maintenance costs incurred in restoring such property, plant and equipment to their normal working condition are charged to the income statement as and when incurred.

(q) Revenue recognition

Revenue is recognised when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Group and the revenue can be reliably measured on the following bases:

(i) Provision of airline and airline-related services

Passenger revenue is recognised either when transportation is provided or when a ticket expires unused rather than when a ticket is sold. Unused tickets generally expire one year from the date the ticket was sold, or for partially used tickets, the date of first flight. Ticket sales for transportation not yet provided are included in current liabilities as air traffic liabilities. In addition, the Group has code-sharing agreements with other airlines under which a carrier's flights can be marketed under the two-letter airline designator code of another carrier. Revenues earned under these arrangements are allocated between the code share partners based on existing contractual agreements and airline industry standard pro-ratio formulae and are recognised as passenger revenue when the transportation is provided.

Cargo and mail revenues are recognised when the transportation is provided.

Revenue from airline-related services is recognised when services are rendered.

Revenue was stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund prior to January 1, 2004. From 2004, contributions to the CAAC

Infrastructure Development Fund is included in other flight operation expenses to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government.

(ii) Sale of goods

Revenue is recognised when the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the buyer, provided that the Group maintains neither managerial involvement to the degree usually associated with ownership, nor effective control over the goods sold.

(iii) Trading of investments

Revenue is recognised on a trade date basis.

(iv) Interest income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis taking into account the principal outstanding and the effective rate of interest applicable.

(v) Dividends

Revenue is recognised when the owners' right to receive the payment has been established.

(vi) Rental income and aircraft and related equipment lease income

Revenue is recognised on a time proportion basis over the terms of the respective leases.

(r) Frequent flyer programme

For Air China Companion Club member accounts that have sufficient mileage credits to claim the lowest level of free travel, the Group records a liability for the estimated incremental costs associated with providing travel awards that are expected to be redeemed. Incremental costs include the cost of incremental fuel, meals and insurance but do not include any cost for aircraft ownership, maintenance, labour or overhead allocation. The liability is adjusted periodically based on awards earned, awards redeemed, changes in the incremental costs and changes in the Air China Companion Club programme, and is included on the balance sheet as a current liability.

(s) Government grants

Government grants are recognised at their fair values when it is probable that the grant will be received and all attaching conditions will be complied with. When the grant relates to an expense item, it is recognised as income over the periods necessary to match the grant on a systematic basis to the costs that it is intended to compensate. Where the grant relates to an asset, the fair value is credited to a deferred income account and is released to the income statement over the expected useful life of the relevant asset by equal annual instalments.

(t) Borrowing costs

Borrowing costs directly attributable to the acquisition of aircraft, construction or production of qualifying assets, i.e. assets that necessarily take a substantial period of time to get ready for their intended use, are capitalised as part of the costs of those assets. The capitalisation of aircraft borrowing costs ceases when the aircraft is placed into revenue earning services and the capitalisation of other assets' borrowing costs ceases when the assets are substantially ready for their intended use or sale.

Where funds have been borrowed generally, and used for the purpose of obtaining qualifying assets, a capitalisation rate ranging between 5.58% and 6.54% has been applied to the expenditure on the individual asset.

All other borrowing costs are charged to the income statement in the period in which they are incurred.

(u) Income tax

Deferred income tax is provided, using the liability method, on all temporary differences at the balance sheet date between the tax bases of assets and liabilities and their carrying amounts for financial reporting purposes. Deferred income tax liabilities are recognised for all taxable temporary differences:

- except where the deferred income tax liability arises from the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, except where the timing of the reversal of the temporary difference can be controlled and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future.

Deferred income tax assets are recognised for all deductible temporary differences, carryforward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses, to the extent that it is probable that taxable profit will be available against which the deductible temporary differences, carryforward of unused tax assets and unused tax losses can be utilised:

- except where the deferred income tax asset relating to the deductible temporary difference arises from the initial recognition of an asset or liability in a transaction that is not a business combination and, at the time of the transaction, affects neither the accounting profit nor taxable profit or loss; and

- in respect of deductible temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries, associates and interests in joint ventures, deferred tax assets are only recognised to the extent that it is probable that the temporary differences will be reversed in the foreseeable future and taxable profit will be available against which the temporary difference can be utilised.

The carrying amount of deferred income tax assets is reviewed at each balance sheet date and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable profit will be available to allow all or part of the deferred income tax asset to be utilised. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply to the period when the asset is realised or the liability is settled, based on tax rates (and tax laws) that have been enacted or substantively enacted at the balance sheet date.

(v) Derivative financial instruments

The Group uses derivative financial instruments to hedge its exposure to fuel prices. In accordance with IAS 39, such derivative financial instruments are carried in the balance sheet at fair value as financial assets or financial liabilities.

For the purposes of hedge accounting, hedges are classified as either fair value hedges where they hedge the exposure to changes in the fair value of a recognised asset or liability; or cash flow hedges where they hedge exposure to variability in cash flows that is either attributable to a particular risk associated with a recognised asset or liability or a forecasted transaction.

Changes in the fair value of derivatives that are designated and qualify as fair value hedges and that are highly effective are recorded in the income statement, along with any changes in the fair value of the hedge assets or liabilities that are attributable to the hedged risk. In relation to fair value hedges (interest rate swaps) which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, any gain or loss from remeasuring the hedging instrument at fair value is recognised immediately in the income statement. Any gain or loss on the hedged item attributable to the hedged risk is adjusted against the carrying amount of the hedged item and recognised in the income statement. Where the adjustment is to the carrying amount of a hedged interest-bearing financial instrument, the adjustment is amortised to the profit and loss such that it is fully amortised by maturity. In relation to cash flow hedges (forward foreign currency contracts) to hedge firm commitments which meet the conditions for special hedge accounting, the portion of the gain or loss on the hedging instrument that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognised directly in equity and the ineffective portion is recognised in profit or loss.

When the hedged firm commitment results in the recognition of an asset or a liability, then, at the time the asset or liability is recognised, the associated gains or losses that had previously been recognised in equity are included in the initial measurement of the acquisition cost or other carrying amount of the asset or liability.

For all other cash flow hedges, the gains or losses that are recognised in equity are transferred to the income statement in the same period in which the hedged firm commitment affects the profit and loss, for example when the future sale actually occurs.

For derivatives that do not qualify for special hedge accounting, any gains or losses arising from changes in fair value are taken directly to the income statement for the period. Hedge accounting is discontinued when the hedging instrument expires or is sold, terminated or exercised, or no longer qualifies for special hedge accounting. At that point in time, any cumulative gain or loss on the hedging instrument recognised in equity is kept in equity until the forecasted transaction occurs. If a hedged transaction is no longer expected to occur, the net cumulative gain or loss recognised in equity is transferred to the income statement for the period.

(w) Use of estimates

The preparation of the financial statements of the Group in accordance with IFRS requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

(x) Related parties

Parties are considered to be related if one party has the ability, directly or indirectly, to control the other party or exercise significant influence over the other party in making financial and operating decisions. Parties are also considered to be related if they are subject to common control or common significant influence. Related parties may be individuals or corporate entities.

(y) Recoverable amount of non-current assets

At each reporting date, the Group assesses whether there is any indication that an asset may be impaired. Where an indicator of impairment exists, the Group makes a formal estimate of the recoverable amount. Where the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its recoverable amount, the asset is considered impaired and is written down to its recoverable amount. Recoverable amount is the higher of an asset's or cash-generating unit's fair value less costs to sell and its value in use and is determined for an individual asset, unless the asset does not generate cash inflows that are largely independent of those from other assets or groups of assets.

(z) Trade and other receivables

Trade receivables, which generally have 30 to 90 day terms, are recognised and carried at original invoice amount less an allowance for any uncollectible amounts. An estimate for doubtful debts is made when collection of the full amount is no longer probable. Bad debts are written off when identified.

(aa) Interest-bearing loans and borrowings

All loans and borrowings are initially recognised at cost, being the fair value of the consideration received net of issue costs associated with the borrowing.

(bb) Derecognition of financial instruments

The derecognition of a financial instrument takes place when the Group no longer controls the contractual rights that comprise the financial instrument, which is normally the case when the instrument is sold, or all the cash flows attributable to the instrument are passed through to an independent third party.

(cc) Impact of recently issued accounting standards

IFRS 2, Share-based payment, is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after January 1, 2005 and requires the Group to recognise share-based payment transactions in its financial statements, including transactions with employees or other parties to be settled in cash, other assets, or equity instruments of the entity. For equity-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services received, and the corresponding increase in equity, directly, at the fair value of the goods or services received, unless that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the Group cannot estimate reliably the fair value of the goods or services received, the Group is required to measure their value, and the corresponding increase in equity, indirectly, by reference to the fair value of the equity instruments granted. For cash-settled share-based payment transactions, IFRS 2 requires an entity to measure the goods or services acquired and the liability incurred at the fair value of the liability. Until the liability is settled, the Group is required to remeasure the fair value of the liability at each reporting date and at the date of settlement, with any changes in value recognised in profit or loss for the period. For share-based payment transactions in which the terms of the arrangement provide either the Group or the supplier of goods or services with a choice of whether the Group settles the transaction in cash or by issuing equity instruments, the Group is required to account for that transaction, or the components of that transaction, as a cash-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, the Group has incurred a liability to settle in cash (or other assets), or as an equity-settled share-based payment transaction if, and to the extent that, no such liability has been incurred. The provisions of IFRS 2 will apply for grants of shares, share options or other equity instruments that were granted after November 7, 2002 and had not yet vested at the beginning on or after January 1, 2005. The Group does not expect IFRS 2 to have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 16 (amended 2004), Property, plant and equipment, replaces IAS 16 (revised 1998), Property, plant and equipment, and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after January 1, 2005. There are a number of differences between the amended standard and the previous version. These include that the amended standard requires an entity to evaluate under the general recognition principle all property, plant and equipment costs at the time they are incurred. Those costs include costs incurred initially to acquire or construct an item of property, plant and equipment and costs incurred subsequently to add to, replace part of, or service an item. The previous version of IAS 16 contained specific recognition principles for accounting for subsequent costs. Further, the amended standard requires that the cost of an item of property, plant and equipment includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of installing the item. Its cost also includes the costs of its dismantlement, removal or restoration, and the obligation for which an entity incurs as a consequence of using the item during a particular period for purposes other than to produce inventories during that period. The previous version included within its scope only the costs incurred as a consequence of installing the item. In addition, under the amended standard an entity is required to determine the depreciation charge separately for each significant part of an item of property, plant and equipment, a requirement which was not clearly set out in the previous version. Also, under the amended standard, an entity is required to measure the residual value of an item of property, plant and equipment as the amount that it estimates it would currently receive for the asset if the asset was already of the age and in the condition expected at the end of its useful life. The previous version of IAS 16 did not specify whether the residual value was to be this amount or the amount, inclusive of the effects of inflation, that an entity expected to receive in the future on the asset's actual retirement date. The Group does not expect the adoption of new policies arising from the amended standard, when implemented, will have a material effect on its results of operations and financial position.

IAS 24 (revised 2003), Related Party Disclosures, replaces IAS 24 Related Party Disclosures (reformatted in 1994) and is applicable for accounting periods beginning on or after January 1, 2005. The main objective of such revision was to provide additional guidance and clarity in the scope of IAS 24, for the definitions and the disclosures for related parties. The wording of IAS 24's objective was amended to clarify that the Group's financial statements should contain the disclosures necessary to draw attention to the possibility that the financial position and the income statement may have been affected by the existence of related parties and by transactions and outstanding balances with them. Since IAS 24 is a standard for disclosure requirements only, there is no material effect on the Group's results of operations and financial position upon adoption.

Notes:

(a) Air traffic revenues

Air traffic revenues comprise revenues from the airline business and is stated net of business tax and contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund ("CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund"). The CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund, which was netted against gross air traffic revenues for the three years ended December 31, 2003, was included in other flight operation expenses for the six-month period ended June 30, 2004 to reflect the change in the levy basis in accordance with the related new policy promulgated by the PRC government. An analysis of air traffic revenues is as follows:

	Year ended December 31,			Six-month period ended June 30,
	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000 (Unaudited)	RMB'000
Passenger	18,049,930	19,815,177	19,030,187	6,809,949	12,151,881
Cargo and mail	3,298,327	4,031,535	4,392,473	1,882,354	2,546,423
	21,348,257	23,846,712	23,422,660	8,692,303	14,698,304

(i) Pursuant to various PRC business tax rules and regulations, the Group is required to pay business tax to the local tax bureaus at the following rates:

Type of revenues	Applicable business tax rates
Air traffic revenues	3% of air traffic revenues. All inbound international and Hong Kong and Macau regional flights are exempt from business tax.
Other revenues	3% of commission income and ground services income, and 3% to 5% of other revenues.

PRC business tax incurred for each of the three years ended December 31, 2001, 2002 and 2003, and for the six-month periods ended June 30, 2003 and 2004, netted against revenues, amounted to approximately RMB501 million, RMB543 million, RMB240 million, RMB173 million (unaudited) and RMB375 million, respectively.

For the period from May 1, 2003 to December 31, 2003, PRC business tax for all domestic, international and regional passenger traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome ("SARS") in the region.

(ii) In addition, the Group was required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund which was calculated at the rates of 5% and 2% on the domestic and international/Hong Kong and Macau regional air traffic revenues, respectively, for each of the three years ended December 31, 2003.

For the period from May 1, 2003 to December 31, 2003, CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund for all domestic, international and regional passenger, cargo and mail traffic revenues of the Group was waived by the PRC government in order to subsidise for the airlines' loss of revenue due to the outbreak of SARS in the region.

For the period from January 1, 2004 to March 31, 2004, the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was suspended by the PRC government. As such, no CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund was charged to the income statement of the Group for the three-month period ended March 31, 2004. Effective April 1, 2004, the Group is required to pay contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund calculated on the basis of the usage of domestic routes and domestic segments of international routes, geographic area and length of routes and aircraft weight.

Contributions to the CAAC Infrastructure Development Fund payable by the Group for each of the three years ended December 31, 2003, and for the six-month periods ended June 30, 2003 and 2004 amounted to approximately RMB761 million, RMB813 million, RMB247 million, RMB247 million (unaudited) and RMB112 million, respectively.

(b) Other operating revenues

	Year ended December 31,			Six-month period ended June 30,

(f) Dilution gain on investment in a subsidiary

In 2002, CNACG transferred its entire 51% shareholding interest in Air Macau (the shareholding interest of Air Macau is considered as if it had been directly held by the Company as of January 1, 2001 in accordance with the basis set out in Section 2 of this report) to CNAC, which was then a 70% owned subsidiary of CNACG, for an aggregate consideration of HK$665,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB704,900,000) (the "Disposal"). Subsequent to the Disposal, the Group's effective shareholding interest in Air Macau was reduced from 51% to approximately 35% and, accordingly, a gain on deemed disposal of approximately RMB106,040,000 arose.

(h) Retirement benefits

All of the Group's full-time employees in the PRC are covered by a government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme, and are entitled to an annual pension determined by their basic salaries upon their retirement. The PRC government is responsible for the pension liabilities to these retired employees. The Group is required to make annual contributions to the government- regulated defined contribution retirement scheme at rates ranging from 15% to 20% of the employees' basic salaries during the Relevant Periods and has no further obligation for post-retirement benefits in respect of the above. This defined contribution plan continues to be available to the Group's employees after the Restructuring. The related pension costs are expensed as incurred.

Prior to the Restructuring, the Group also paid certain supplementary pension benefits (the "Supplementary Pension Benefits") to its employees who retired before the formation of the Company. Pursuant to the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to assume past payments and future liabilities in respect of the Supplementary Pension Benefits for those employees who retired before the formation of the Company for nil consideration. The Group's employees who retire after the formation of the Company are not entitled to the Supplementary Pension Benefits. CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group against losses from any claims for the Supplementary Pension Benefits.

As described above, during the Relevant Periods, all pension payments relating to the Supplementary Pension Benefits were borne by CNAHC. Had the Supplementary Pension Benefits borne by CNAHC as described above been borne by the Group itself, the Group would have incurred additional pension benefits payments as detailed below:

	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000

Notional Supplementary Pension benefits payments	28,914	40,652	53,928	26,964	26,398

The aforesaid notional amounts are disclosed for information purposes only and have not been recorded in the Group's audited combined financial statements and the financial information included in this report.

Further, the Group implemented an early retirement plan for certain employees in addition to the benefits under the government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the Supplementary Pension Benefits described above. The benefits of the early retirement plan are calculated based on factors including the remaining number of years of services from date of early retirement to normal retirement date and the salary amount on the date of early retirement of the employees. The costs of early retirement benefits were recognised in the period when employees opted for early retirement. Where the effect of discounting is material, the amount recognised for early retirement benefits is the present value at the balance sheet date of the future cash flows expected to be required to settle the obligation. The increase in the discounted present value amount arising from the passage of time is included in finance cost in the income statement.

The expenses attributed to the PRC government-regulated defined contribution retirement scheme and the early retirement benefits for each of the Relevant Periods are as follows:

(i) Tax

The Group is subject to income tax on an entity basis on profits arising in or derived from the jurisdictions in which members of the Group are domiciled and operate. In accordance with an approval document issued by the relevant tax authorities, the filing of tax returns of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company prior to its incorporation on September 30, 2004 was handled by CNAHC on a consolidated group basis. The share of the income tax liability of the Relevant Businesses and all wholly-owned PRC-established subsidiaries of the Company was calculated at the applicable tax rate on their profits determined in accordance with PRC accounting principles and after the relevant adjustments made under the prevailing PRC Enterprise Income Tax Law as applicable to State-owned enterprises. Such tax was payable to CNAHC which in turn would settle the tax liability with the relevant tax bureau. Similarly, the net profit attributable to shareholders referred to in Section 4(j) for the period from January 1, 2004 to September 30, 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) will be calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC, which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau. Following the incorporation of the Company, the Company is subject to enterprise income tax at the rate of 33% and the Company will settle its tax liability by itself with the respective tax bureaus.

The determination of current and deferred income tax was based on enacted tax rates. Major components of income tax charge/(credit) for each of the Relevant Periods are:

(j) Distributions

The profit distributions disclosed during the Relevant Periods and for the six-month period ended June 30, 2003 represent the net assets which have been carved-out and treated as deemed distributions pursuant to the Restructuring set out in Section 2 of this report and dividends paid during the Relevant Periods and for the six-month period ended June 30, 2003.

Set out below are the details of distributions made:

The rates of dividend and the number of shares ranking for dividends are not presented for those profit distributions as such information is not considered meaningful.

As a result of the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement (details of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement are set out in Section 11 of this report), the Group will make a payment of approximately RMB378 million to CNAHC, representing the total consideration payable by CNAC and HKSACL for the acquisitions of the entire shareholding interests held by the Group in BACL and SWACL pursuant to the Restructuring as set out in Section 1 above. This payment to be made to CNAHC will be accounted for as a special distribution to CNAHC by the Group.

In accordance with the Provisional Regulation Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment notice issued by the Ministry of Finance (English title is a direct translation of Chinese title of the notice), which became effective from August 27, 2002, and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Group is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated, during the period from January 1, 2004 to September 30, 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC (see also Section 6(c)). The net profit attributable to shareholders mentioned above for the said period is calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau as detailed in Section 4(i).

In addition, in accordance with the Provisional Regulation Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Group is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated, during the period from January 1, 2004 to September 30, 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG.

Following the Restructuring, the payment of future dividends will be determined by the Company's board of directors. The payment of dividends will depend upon, inter alia, the future earnings, capital requirements and financial condition and general business conditions of the Company. As the controlling shareholder, CNAHC will be able to influence the Company's dividend policy.

Cash dividends to shareholders in Hong Kong will be paid in Hong Kong dollars.

Following the incorporation of the Company, under the PRC Company Law and the Company's articles of association, net profit after tax as reported in the PRC statutory financial statements can only be distributed as dividends after allowance has been made for the following:

(i) Making up prior years' cumulative losses, if any.

(ii) Allocations to the statutory common reserve fund of at least 10% of after-tax profit, until the fund aggregates 50% of the Company's registered capital. For the purpose of calculating the transfer to reserves, the profit after tax shall be the amount determined under the PRC GAAP. The transfer to this reserve must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

The statutory common reserve fund can be used to offset previous years' losses, if any, and part of the statutory common reserve fund can be capitalised as the Company's share capital provided that the amount of such reserve remaining after the capitalisation shall not be less than 25% of the share capital of the Company.

(iii) Allocations of 5% to 10% of after-tax profit, as determined under PRC GAAP, to the Company's statutory public welfare fund, which will be established for the purpose of providing for the Company's employees collective welfare benefits such as the construction of dormitories, canteens and other staff welfare facilities. The fund forms part of the shareholders' equity as only individual employees can use these facilities, while the title of such facilities is held by the Company. The transfer to this fund must be made before any distribution of dividends to shareholders.

(iv) Allocations to the discretionary common reserve if approved by the shareholders.

The above reserves cannot be used for purposes other than those for which they are created and are not distributable as cash dividends.

In accordance with the articles of association of the Company, the net profit after tax of the Company for the purpose of profit distribution will be deemed to be the lesser of (i) the net profit determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and (ii) the net profit determined in accordance with IFRS.

Prior to the incorporation of the Company on September 30, 2004, no profit appropriations to the aforesaid reserve funds were required.

(k) Related party transactions

The Group is part of a larger group of companies under CNAHC and has extensive transactions and relationships with members of CNAHC. As such, it is possible that the terms of these transactions are not the same as those that would result from transactions among wholly unrelated parties. Related parties refer to corporations in which CNAHC is a shareholder and is able to exercise control or significant influence. The transactions were made on terms agreed between the parties.

The following is a summary of significant recurring transactions carried out in the ordinary course of business between the Group and (i) CNAHC, its subsidiaries (other than the Group), joint ventures and associates (collectively known as "CNAHC Group"), (ii) its joint ventures and (iii) its associates:

In addition to the above, on October 18, 1997, CNAC entered into a licence agreement with China National Aviation Corporation ("CNAC (PRC)") pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) has agreed to grant a licence to CNAC, free of royalty, for the right to use certain trademarks in Hong Kong, the Taiwan region and Macau so long as CNAC is a subsidiary of CNACG. No royalty charge was levied in respect of the use of these trademarks during each of the Relevant Periods.

On August 25, 2004, CNAC (PRC) entered into two assignment agreements with CNACG pursuant to which CNAC (PRC) has agreed to assign, free of royalty, the above-mentioned trademarks to CNACG for use in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively. On August 25, 2004, CNACG entered into two licence agreements with CNAC pursuant to which CNACG has agreed to grant licences to CNAC, free of royalty, for the rights to use those trademarks in Hong Kong and Macau, respectively, so long as CNAC is a direct or indirect subsidiary of CNAHC. These licence agreements supersede the licence agreement entered into between CNAC (PRC) and CNAC on October 18, 1997.

Pursuant to certain of the Company's aircraft finance lease arrangements and operating lease arrangements, the overseas lessors require guarantees to be given by some major PRC state-owned banks. In giving such guarantees, the PRC state-owned banks in turn would require CNAHC to provide counter-guarantees in favour of the banks. As at December 31, 2001, 2002 and 2003 and June 30, 2004, the amounts of such counter-guarantees provided by CNAHC were approximately nil, nil, RMB9,246 million and RMB8,886 million, respectively.

Certain of the Group's bank loans from PRC banks are guaranteed by Air China International Corporation and other related parties, further details of which are set out in Section 5(o).

In the opinion of the directors, the above transactions were conducted in the ordinary course of business and will continue after the listing of the H shares of the Company on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the Official List of the UK Listing Authority.

In connection with the Restructuring, the Company entered into several agreements with CNAHC which govern the use of trademarks granted by the Company to CNAHC, the provision for financial services by CNAF, the provision of construction project management services by China National Aviation Construction and Development Company, the subcontracting of charter-flight services to CNAHC, the leasing of properties from and to CNAHC, the provision of air ticketing and cargo services, media and advertising services arrangement to China National Aviation Media and Advertising Co., Ltd., the tourism services co-operation agreement with CNAHC, the comprehensive services agreement with CNAHC, and the provision of maintenance and other ground services by China Aircraft Services Limited. Further details of such agreements are set out in the section headed "Connected Transactions" in the Prospectus.

Discontinued transaction

In 2003, CNAHC charged a non-recurring management fee to Air China International Corporation amounting to RMB26,317,000. The directors are of the opinion that such transaction will not continue after the listing of the H shares of the Company on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and the Official List of the UK Listing Authority.

(l) Earnings/(loss) per share

The calculation of basic earnings per share for each of the Relevant Periods and loss per share for the six-month period ended June 30, 2003 is based on the net profit attributable to shareholders for each of the Relevant Periods and net loss attributable to shareholders (unaudited) for the six-month period ended June 30, 2003 and on the number of shares in issue during the Relevant Periods on the assumption that the 6,500,000,000 shares in issue as at the date of this report had been in issue throughout the Relevant Periods.

No diluted earnings/(loss) per share amounts have been presented as the Company did not have any dilutive potential ordinary shares during the Relevant Periods.

5. COMBINED BALANCE SHEETS

A summary of the combined balance sheets of the Group as at the end of each of the Relevant Periods prepared on the basis set out in Section 2 above is set out below:

The above goodwill related to the acquisition of shareholding interests of 35.86% and 7.43% in Dragonair by CNACG and its then wholly-owned subsidiary, CNAC, in June 1996 and October 1997, respectively. The aggregate goodwill arising from these two acquisitions was approximately RMB2,130 million and subsequently reduced to approximately RMB1,205 million through deemed disposal upon the initial public offering of CNAC and the accumulated amortisation on a straight-line basis over a period of 20 years until December 31, 2000 (the date of adoption of IFRS 3 by the Group). Since then, there were no changes in the amount of the unamortised goodwill.

Goodwill acquired through the business combinations detailed above has been allocated to the cash-generating unit, Dragonair, within the airline operations segment.

The recoverable amount of Dragonair has been determined based on a value in use calculation. To calculate this, cash flow projections are based on financial budgets approved by management covering a one-year period. The discount rate applied to the cash flow projections beyond the one-year period is 5.0%. No growth has been projected beyond the one-year period.

Key assumptions used in the value in use calculation of Dragonair

The following describes each key assumption on which management has based its cash flow projections when undertaking the impairment testing of goodwill:

Passenger revenues — the bases used to determine the value assigned to the budgeted passenger revenues are available seat kilometres, passenger traffic, passenger load factor and passenger yield. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

Operating expenses — the bases used to determine the values assigned are staff headcount, scheduled flight hours, passenger traffic and jet fuel consumption. Values assigned to the key assumptions reflect past experience and are consistent with external information sources.

(q) Deferred income

In 2000, the Company acquired an aircraft which was funded by the PRC government, and a further aircraft was injected into the Group by the PRC government during the six-month period ended June 30, 2004. (r) Contingent liabilities

(i) Pursuant to the agreement for the Restructuring entered into by the Company with CNAHC and CNACG, except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. CNAHC and CNACG have also undertaken to indemnify the Company in respect of any loss or damage incurred relating to the Relevant Businesses and the Relevant Companies prior to their transfer by CNAHC and CNACG to the Company in the Restructuring except for the litigation set out in item (iii) below, any loss or damage suffered or incurred by the Company in relation to the novation of relevant contracts from CNAHC to the Company and as a result of any breach by CNAHC Group and CNACG of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(ii) On April 15, 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities among 166 passengers and crew members aboard the Boeing 767 aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of this report. Injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. As at June 30, 2004, the aggregate amount of the claims brought under these lawsuits totaled approximately KPW271,383 million, equivalent to approximately RMB1,945 million. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Although the outcome of the outstanding and possible future litigation cannot be ascertained as at the date of this report, it is anticipated that the costs of settling the above-mentioned claims and other incidental costs incurred will be covered by the master policy underwritten by an insurance company maintained by the CAAC on behalf of Air China International Corporation. Up to June 30, 2004, approximately RMB31 million and approximately RMB59 million of the passenger liability claimed and the auxiliary costs incurred, respectively, have been prepaid by Air China International Corporation, of which approximately RMB74 million has been recovered from the Company's insurer as at the date of this report. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to September 30, 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

(iii) Air China International Corporation is one of the defendants in a civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) ("Litigation"). United Aero-Supplies System of China Limited ("UASSC") had entered into an agreement with the defendants for the exclusive purchase of aviation equipment consigned to UASSC for sale and, that as the defendants failed to perform the agreement, UASSC has the right to compensation. Since UASSC is in the course of its winding up proceedings, all the rights and benefits of UASSC in connection with the claim have been transferred to New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC"). Air China International Corporation, as one of the defendants to the Litigation, has been claimed by NLC for compensation of HK$60,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB63,600,000) for failing to perform the above agreement. Air China International Corporation has filed an objection in respect of the jurisdiction of the court, and has requested the court to transfer the case to Mainland China for trial. Air China International Corporation received an order in respect of this application on May 3, 2004. The judge granted the application and ordered that the action against Air China International Corporation be dismissed. Subsequent to this order, NLC has filed an appeal. The date for hearing of the appeal has been fixed on July 28, 2005. After considering the aforesaid order granted by the judge and consulting the legal counsel, the directors of the Company consider that Air China International Corporation has a reasonable chance of success in its defence to the claim. Accordingly, the directors of the Company consider that a provision for such claim and/or the associated legal costs is not required.

Financial assets of the Group mainly include cash and cash equivalents, pledged assets, trade receivables, other investments, deposits and other receivables. Financial liabilities of the Group mainly include bank and other loans, obligations under finance leases, trade payables, other payables, bills payable and air traffic liabilities.

The carrying amounts of the Group's financial instruments approximated their fair value as at balance sheet date. Fair value estimates are made at a specific point in time and based on relevant market information about the financial instruments. These estimates are subjective in nature and involve uncertainties and matters of significant judgement and therefore cannot be determined with precision. Changes in assumptions could significantly affect the estimates.

(v) Concentration of risk

(i) Financial risk management objectives and policies

The Group operates globally and generates revenues in various currencies. The Group's airline operations are exposed to business risk, liquidity risk, jet fuel price risk, foreign currency risk, interest rate risk and credit risk. The Group's overall risk management approach is to moderate the effects of such volatility on its financial performance.

Financial risk management policies are periodically reviewed and approved by the board of directors.

(ii) Business risk

The operations of the air transportation industry are substantially influenced by global political and economic development. Factors such as accidents and wars may have a material impact on the Group's operations or the industry as a whole. In addition, the Group primarily conducts its principal operations in the PRC and accordingly is subject to special consideration and significant risks not typically associated with companies in the United States of America and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among other things, the political, economic and legal environment, competition and influence of the CAAC in the Chinese civil aviation industry.

(iii) Liquidity risk

The Group's net current liabilities amounted to approximately RMB11,142 million, RMB11,621 million, RMB12,384 million and RMB11,732 million as at December 31, 2001, 2002 and 2003 and June 30, 2004, respectively. The Group recorded a net cash inflow from operating activities of approximately RMB5,538 million, RMB4,069 million, RMB5,511 million, RMB80 million (unaudited) and RMB2,032 million for the three years ended December 31, 2003 and for the six-month periods ended June 30, 2003 and 2004, respectively. For the same periods, the Group had a net cash outflow from investment activities of approximately RMB1,719 million, RMB2,076 million, RMB4,360 million, RMB1,884 million (unaudited) and RMB1,206 million, respectively. The Group also recorded a net cash outflow from financing activities of approximately RMB2,463 million, RMB2,316 million, RMB2,207 million, RMB409 million (unaudited) and RMB703 million for the three years ended December 31, 2003 and for the six-month periods ended June 30, 2003 and 2004, respectively. The Group had the increase in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB1,356 million in 2001 and RMB123 million for the six-month period ended June 30, 2004 but the decrease in cash and cash equivalents of approximately RMB323 million, RMB1,057 million and RMB2,214 million (unaudited) for the two years ended December 31, 2003 and for the six-month period ended June 30, 2003, respectively.

With regard to 2004 and thereafter, the liquidity of the Group is primarily dependent on its ability to maintain adequate cash inflow from operations to meet its debt obligations as they fall due, and on its ability to obtain external financing, to meet its committed future capital expenditures. With regard to its future capital commitments and other financing requirements, the Company has already obtained several banking facilities with several PRC banks of up to an amount of RMB71,700 million during 2004 and thereafter. As of October 31, 2004, the Company had a total amount of banking facilities of RMB71,700 million, of which an amount of approximately RMB44,427 million was utilised.

The directors of the Company have carried out a detailed review of the cash flow forecast of the Group for the period ending December 31, 2005. Based on such forecast, the directors have determined that adequate liquidity exists to finance the working capital and capital expenditure requirements of the Group during that period. In preparing the cash flow forecast, the directors have considered historical cash requirements of the Group as well as other key factors, including the availability of the above-mentioned loan finance which may impact the operations of the Group prior to the end of 2005. The directors are of the opinion that the assumptions and sensitivities which are included in the cash flow forecast are reasonable. However, as with all assumptions in regard to future events, these are subject to inherent limitations and uncertainties and some or all of these assumptions may not be realised.

(iv) Jet fuel price risk

The Group's strategy for managing the risk on jet fuel price aims to provide the Group with protection against sudden and significant increases in prices. In meeting these objectives, the Group allows for the judicious use of approved derivative instruments such as swaps and collars with approved counter-parties and within approved limits.

Moreover, counter-party credit risk is generally restricted to any gains on changes in fair value from time to time, and not the principal amount of the instrument. Therefore, the possibility of material loss arising in the event of non-performance by a counter-party is considered to be unlikely.

The fair values of derivative instruments at the end of each of the Relevant Periods are as follows:

	As at December 31,						As at June 30,
	2001		2002		2003		2004
	Assets	Liabilities	Assets	Liabilities	Assets	Liabilities	Assets	Liabilities
	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000	RMB'000
Swaps and collars expiring:
Within 6 months	5,000	(55,000)	51,000	(28,000)	8,000	(2,400)	60,000	(200)
Over 6 months to 21 months	5,000	(43,000)	18,000	(82,000)	26,000	(3,600)	17,000	(800)
	10,000	(98,000)	69,000	(110,000)	34,000	(6,000)	77,000	(1,000)

Fair values of derivative instruments, denominated in United States dollars, are obtained from quoted market prices, dealer price quotations, discounted cash flow models and option pricing models, which consider current market and contractual prices for the underlying instruments, as well as time value of money, yield curve and volatility of the underlying instruments.

(v) Foreign currency risk

The Group's finance lease obligations as well as certain bank and other loans are denominated in United States dollars, Hong Kong dollars and Japanese yen, and certain expenses of the Group are denominated in currencies other than RMB. The Group generates foreign currency revenues from ticket sales made in overseas offices and would normally generate sufficient foreign currencies after payment of foreign currency expenses, to meet its foreign currency liabilities repayable within one year. RMB against United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars have been comparatively stable in the past. However, RMB against Japanese yen had experienced a significant level of fluctuation over the Relevant Periods which is the major reason for the significant exchange differences recognised by the Group for the Relevant Periods.

As at December 31, 2002, the Group had a contractual amount of US$3 million (equivalent to approximately RMB25 million) in forward exchange contracts in Taiwanese currency to purchase foreign currencies.

(vi) Interest rate risk

The Group's earnings are also affected by changes in interest rates due to the impact of such changes on interest income and expense from short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities. A significant portion of the Group's interest-bearing financial liabilities with maturities above one year have predominately fixed rates of interest and are denominated in United States dollars and Japanese yen.

The Group's short-term deposits and other interest-bearing financial assets and liabilities are predominately denominated in RMB, United States dollars and Hong Kong dollars.

(vii) Credit risk

The Group's cash and cash equivalents are deposited with PRC banks, overseas banks and an associate. The Group has policies in place to limit the exposure to any one financial institution.

A significant portion of the Group's air tickets are sold by agents participating in the Billing and Settlements Plan ("BSP"), a clearing system between airlines and sales agents organised by the International Air Transportation Association. The balance due from BSP agents amounted to approximately RMB387 million, RMB321 million, RMB342 million and RMB749 million as at December 31, 2001, 2002, 2003 and June 30, 2004, respectively.

Except for the above, the Group has no significant concentration of credit risk, with exposure spread over a number of counterparties.

(w) Interests in joint ventures

As at the end of each of the Relevant Periods and for the years/period then ended, the Group's proportionate share of the assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses of the joint ventures are as follows:

Notes:

(a) As further described in Section 2, the combined results, combined balance sheets and combined cash flow statements of the Group have been prepared as if the Group had been in existence throughout the Relevant Periods. Upon the incorporation of the Company on September 30, 2004, the historical net value of the assets, liabilities and interests transferred to the Company were converted into the Company's share capital of RMB6,500 million of RMB1.00 each with all the then existing reserves eliminated and the resulting difference dealt with in the capital reserve. Accordingly, a capital reserve, being the difference between the amount of share capital issued and the historical net value of the assets, liabilities and interests transferred to the Company as at September 30, 2004, was presented in the reserves of both the Group and the Company. Separate classes of reserves, including retained profits of the Group prior to the incorporation of the Company (save for the amount as disclosed in note (c) below), were not separately disclosed as all of these reserves (save for the amounts as disclosed in notes (b) and (c) below) had been capitalised and incorporated in the capital reserve of the Group and the Company pursuant to the Restructuring.

(b) As a result of the completion of BACL Agreement, SWACL Agreement and HKSACL Agreement (see Section 11(j) for details), the Group will make a payment of approximately RMB378 million to CNAHC. Therefore, this amount was not capitalised by the Group and the Company upon incorporation of the Company.

(c) In accordance with the Provisional Regulation Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Group is required to make a distribution to CNAHC, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated, during the period from January 1, 2004 to September 30, 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those of CNAC) contributed to the Group by CNAHC (see Section 4(j)). The net profit attributable to shareholders mentioned above for the said period is calculated after deducting the amount of income tax payable to CNAHC which in turn will settle any tax liability on profit arisen during that period with the relevant tax bureau as detailed in Section 4(i). Pursuant to the Restructuring, such undistributed profits of the Group for the above period are attributable to CNAHC and the Company agreed to pay such amount to CNAHC by way of a distribution (see Section 4(j)). Therefore, this amount was not capitalised by the Group and the Company upon incorporation of the Company.

In addition, in accordance with the Provisional Regulation Relating to Corporate Reorganisation of Enterprises and Related Management of State-owned Capital and Financial Treatment notice issued by the Ministry of Finance and pursuant to the Restructuring, after the Company's incorporation, the Group is required to make a distribution to CNACG, which represents an amount equal to the net profit attributable to shareholders, as determined based on audited accounts prepared in accordance with the PRC GAAP, generated, during the period from January 1, 2004 to September 30, 2004 (the date of incorporation of the Company) by the businesses and operations (excluding those directly contributed by CNAHC) contributed to the Group by the CNAC group, less the 2003 final dividend and 2004 interim dividend amounts already paid by CNAC to CNACG. Pursuant to the Restructuring, such undistributed profits of the Group for the above period are attributable to CNACG and the Company agreed to pay such amount to CNACG by way of a distribution (see Section 4(j)). Therefore, this amount was not capitalised by the Group and the Company upon incorporation of the Company.

(d) On September 9, 2004, CNAHC made a cash contribution of approximately RMB561 million to the Group.

(e) Upon incorporation of the Company, CNAHC effected the transfer of certain land use rights in an aggregate amount of approximately RMB886 million to the Company which forms part of the Company's paid-up capital of RMB6,500 million.

(f) Subsequent to the public listing of the Company's H Shares, in accordance with the relevant PRC regulations and articles of association of the Company, retained profits available for distribution by the Company will be deemed to be the lower of the amounts determined in accordance with the PRC GAAP and the amount determined in accordance with IFRS.

(c) Notes to cash flow statements

(i) In 2002, CNACG transferred its entire 51% shareholding interest in Air Macau (the shareholding interest of Air Macau is considered as if it had been directly held by the Company as of January 1, 2001 in accordance with the basis set out in Section 2 of this report) to CNAC, which was then a 70% owned subsidiary of CNACG, for an aggregate consideration of HK$665,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB704,900,000). Subsequent to the Disposal, the Group's effective shareholding interest in Air Macau was reduced from 51% to approximately 35% and, accordingly, a gain on deemed disposal of approximately RMB106,040,000 arose.

(ii) Certain share options previously granted by CNAC were exercised on April 4, 2002 for a gross proceed of HK$87,491,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB92,740,000). A gain arising from the deemed disposal of shareholding interests in CNAC of approximately RMB19,080,000 was resulted and recorded in other operating revenues.

8. SEGMENT INFORMATION

Segment information is presented by way of two segment formats: (i) on a primary segment reporting basis, by business segment; and (ii) on a secondary segment reporting basis, by geographical segment.

The Group's operating businesses are structured and managed separately, according to the nature of their operations and the services they provide. Each of the Group's business segments represents a strategic business unit that offers services which are subject to risks and returns that are different from those of the other business segments.

Currently the Group's business segment information is divided into four business segments — airline operations, engineering services, airport terminal services and other businesses ("others"). Segment net profit represents revenues less expenses directly attributable to a segment and the relevant portion of enterprise revenues less expenses that can be allocated on a reasonable basis to a segment, whether from external transactions or from transactions with other segments of the Group.

Segment assets and liabilities mainly comprise those operating assets and liabilities that are directly attributable to the segment or can be allocated to the segment on a reasonable basis.

In determining the Group's geographical segments, revenues are attributed to the segments based on origin and destination of each flight segment. Assets, which consist principally of flight and ground equipment, support the entire worldwide transportation system, are mainly located in the PRC. An analysis of assets and capital expenditure of the Group by geographical distribution has therefore not been included.

Intersegment sales and transfers are transacted with reference to the selling prices used for sales made to third parties at the then prevailing market prices.

Certain commercial banks have provided guarantees in the amount of approximately RMB14,785 million to which certain major PRC state-owned banks have provided counter-guarantees of RMB3,074 million.

As of December 31, 2004, CNAHC provided counter-guarantees for certain of the Group's finance lease obligations and bank loans in an aggregate amount of approximately RMB2,376 million. Contingent liabilities

Pursuant to the restructuring of CNAHC in preparation for the listing of the Company's H shares on The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited and the Official List of the UK Listing Authority, the following legal matters and litigation set out in items (i) to (iii) below were transferred to or assumed by the Company upon its incorporation. As of December 31, 2004, the Group had the following contingent liabilities:

(i) Pursuant to the agreement for the restructuring (the "Restructuring Agreement") entered into by the Company with CNAHC and China National Aviation Corporation (Group) Limited ("CNACG"), except for liabilities constituting or arising out of or relating to business undertaken by the Company after the Restructuring, no other liabilities were assumed by the Company and the Company is not liable, whether severally, or jointly and severally, for debts and obligations incurred prior to the Restructuring by CNAHC and CNACG. The Company has also undertaken to indemnify CNAHC and CNACG in respect of any damage suffered or incurred by CNAHC and CNACG as a result of any breach by the Company of any provision of the Restructuring Agreement.

(ii) On April 15, 2002, Flight CA129 crashed on approach to Gimhae International Airport, South Korea. There were 129 fatalities among 166 passengers and crew members aboard the Boeing 767 aircraft. An investigation was conducted by the Chinese and the Korean civil aviation authorities, but the cause of the accident has yet to be released at the date of this circular. Certain injured passengers and families of the deceased passengers have commenced proceedings in Korean courts seeking damages against Air China International Corporation. The Group cannot predict the timing of the courts' judgements or the possible outcome of the lawsuits nor any possible appeal actions. Although the outcome of the outstanding and possible future litigation cannot be ascertained as at the date of this circular, it is anticipated that the costs of settling the above-mentioned claims and other incidental costs incurred will be covered by the master policy underwritten by an insurance company maintained by the General Administration of Civil Aviation of China on behalf of Air China International Corporation. Up to December 31, 2004, approximately RMB31 million and approximately RMB64 million of the passenger liability claimed and the auxiliary costs incurred, respectively, have been prepaid by Air China International Corporation or the Company, of which approximately RMB74 million has been recovered from the Company's insurer as at the date of this circular. As part of the Restructuring, CNAHC has agreed to indemnify the Group for any liabilities relating to the crash of Flight CA129, excluding the compensation already paid up to September 30, 2004 (being the date of incorporation of the Company). The directors of the Company believe that there will not be any material adverse impact to the Group's financial position.

(iii) Air China International Corporation is one of the defendants in a civil litigation in the High Court of Hong Kong (Action No. 515 of 2001) ("Litigation"). United Aero-Supplies System of China Limited ("UASSC") had entered into an agreement with the defendants for the exclusive purchase of aviation equipment consigned to UASSC for sale and, that as the defendants failed to perform the agreement, UASSC has the right to compensation. Since UASSC is in the course of its winding up proceedings, all the rights and benefits of UASSC in connection with the claim have been transferred to New Link Consultants Limited ("NLC"). Air China International Corporation, as one of the defendants to the Litigation, has been claimed by NLC for compensation of HK$60,000,000 (equivalent to approximately RMB63,600,000) for failing to perform the above agreement. Air China International Corporation has filed an objection in respect of the jurisdiction of the court, and has requested the court to transfer the case to Mainland China for trial. Air China International Corporation received an order in respect of this application on May 3, 2004. The judge granted the application and ordered that the action against Air China International Corporation be dismissed. Subsequent to this order, NLC has filed an appeal. The date for hearing of the appeal has been fixed on July 28, 2005. After considering the aforesaid order granted by the judge and consulting the legal counsel, the directors of the Company consider that Air China International Corporation has a reasonable chance of success in its defence to the claim. Accordingly, the directors of the Company consider that a provision for such claim and/or the associated legal costs is not required.

(iv) The Group has issued guarantees to banks in respect of the bank loans granted to the following parties:

	As at December 31, 2004 RMB (in millions)
Associates	317

(v) In addition to the counter-guarantees provided by CNAF in respect of the Group's finance lease obligations and bank loans for RMB4,737 million as disclosed above, the Group's associates have issued guarantees to banks in respect of the bank loans granted to the following parties:

	As at December 31, 2004 RMB (in millions)
Related parties	106
Third parties	88
Total	194

Except for as disclosed above, the directors have confirmed that there has been no material change in the indebtedness and guarantees of the Group since December 31, 2004.

中國國際航空股份有限公司
AIR CHINA LIMITED

MAJOR TRANSACTION: PURCHASE OF 15 BOEING 737 AIRCRAFT

The Company hereby announces that on 19 April 2006, the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 15 Boeing 737 aircraft from Boeing Company.

CNAHC, which currently directly owns approximately 51.16% of the total issued share capital of the Company, has approved the Transaction. CNAHC does not have any interest in the Transaction other than as a shareholder of the Company.

The Transaction constitutes a major transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules. The Company shall, pursuant to the Listing Rules, dispatch a circular containing the information required under the Listing Rules in relation to the Transaction within 21 days after the publication of this announcement.

BOEING AIRCRAFT PURCHASE AGREEMENT

On 19 April 2006 the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 15 Boeing 737 aircraft from Boeing Company. The Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement was entered into pursuant to a framework agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation on 11 April 2006 (the 2006 Framework Agreement).

The details of the Transaction are summarized as follows:

Date of the Transaction:

19 April 2006

Parties to the Transaction:

(i) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(ii) AIE, as the import agent for the Company; and

(iii)Boeing Company, as the vendor, one of whose principal business activity is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief having made all reasonable enquiry, Boeing Company and each of the ultimate beneficial owner of Boeing Company are independent third parties and not connected persons (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

Aircraft to be acquired:

Consideration:

The aircraft basic price comprises the airframe price, optional features prices and engine price. The aircraft basic price of the Boeing Aircraft in aggregate is US$982.8 million (HK$7,626.5 million). The aircraft price is subject to price escalation by applying a formula. Boeing has granted to the Company significant price concessions with regard to the Boeing Aircraft. These will take the form of credit memoranda which may be used by the Company towards the purchase of the Boeing Aircraft or spare parts, goods and services or may be used towards the final delivery invoice payment of the Boeing Aircraft. Such credit memoranda were determined after arm's length negotiations between the parties and as a result, the actual consideration for the Boeing Aircraft is lower than the aircraft basic price mentioned above. The Transaction was negotiated and entered into in accordance with customary business practice. Taking into account all the factors relating to the purchase of aircraft by the Company, including the market condition, the type, number and delivery schedule of aircraft being purchased, and the terms of the 2006 Framework Agreement, the extent of the price concessions granted to the Company in the Transaction is comparable with the price concessions that the Company had obtained in the previous aircraft purchase entered into between the Company and Boeing Company on 8 August 2005 (the 2005 Aircraft Purchase). The Company believes that there is no material difference between the effect of the price concessions obtained in the Transaction and the 2005 Aircraft Purchase on the Company's operating costs taken as a whole. The Company has applied to the Stock Exchange for a waiver from strict compliance of Rule 14.58(4) of the Listing Rules in respect of disclosure of the actual consideration of the Boeing Aircraft.

The Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement was signed pursuant to the 2006 Framework Agreement. The 2005 Aircraft Purchase was entered into pursuant to an umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and airline companies including the Company in January 2005. The aircraft purchase agreement entered into between the Company, AIE and Boeing Company on 17 January 2006 (the 2006 Aircraft Purchase) was entered into pursuant to an umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation in November 2005. The purchase of the Boeing Aircraft was not in contemplation at the time of the 2005 Aircraft Purchase and 2006 Aircraft Purchase. Accordingly, the Transaction, the 2005 Aircraft Purchase and the 2006 Aircraft Purchase are not part of the same series of transactions and are not treated as if they were one transaction and these transactions are not required to be aggregated for the relevant classification of the Transaction pursuant to Rule 14.22. As the relevant percentage ratio under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules for the Transaction is above 25% but less than 100%, the Transaction constitutes a major transaction and is therefore subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

Payment and delivery terms:

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Boeing Aircraft is payable by cash in instalments. The Company is expecting to take delivery of the Boeing Aircraft in stages from early 2009 to 2010.

Source of funding:

The Transaction will be funded through cash generated from the Company's business operations, commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company.

REASONS FOR AND BENEFITS OF THE TRANSACTION

The Boeing Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and will principally reinforce Beijing's position as a transportation hub and increase frequency of flights, departing originally from Beijing, of a number of key domestic flight courses. The Company expects the Boeing Aircraft will deliver more cost-efficient performance and provide more comfortable services to passengers.

Although the Boeing Aircraft was purchased with other aircrafts under a package acquisition plan, which is coordinated by the NDRC, the decision to purchase the Boeing Aircraft was made independently by the Company. The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

To the Shareholders

Dear Sir or Madam,

DISCLOSEABLE TRANSACTION

1. INTRODUCTION

On 10 February 2006, the Company announced that on 17 January 2006 the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft from Boeing Company.

The Transaction constitutes a discloseable transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules.

2. THE BOEING AIRCRAFT PURCHASE AGREEMENT

(1) Date of the Transaction

17 January 2006

(2) Parties to the Transaction

(i) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(ii) AIE, as the import agent for the Company; and

(iii) Boeing Company, as the vendor, one of whose principal business activity is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief having made all reasonable enquiry, Boeing Company and each of the ultimate beneficial owner of Boeing Company are independent third parties and not connected persons (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

(3) Aircraft to be acquired

Boeing Aircraft, i.e.10 Boeing 737 aircraft

As at the Latest Practicable Date, the Company operated a fleet of 180 aircraft, including 172 passenger aircraft, 6 freighters and two corporate jets.

(4) Consideration

The aircraft basic price comprises the airframe price, optional features prices and engine price. The aircraft basic price of the Boeing Aircraft in aggregate is US$655.2 million. The airframe price is subject to price escalation by applying a formula. Boeing has granted to the Company significant price concessions with regard to the Boeing Aircraft. These will take the form of credit memoranda which may be used by the Company towards the purchase of the Boeing Aircraft or spare parts, goods and services or may be used towards the final delivery invoice payment of the Boeing Aircraft. Such credit memoranda were determined after arm's length negotiations between the parties and as a result, the actual consideration for the Boeing Aircraft is lower than the aircraft basic price mentioned above. The Transaction was negotiated and entered into in accordance with customary business practice. Taking into account all the factors relating to the purchase of aircraft by the Company, including the market condition, the type, number and delivery schedule of aircraft being purchased, and the terms of the umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation in November 2005 (the Umbrella Agreement), the extent of the price concessions granted to the Company in the Transaction is comparable with the price concessions that the Company had obtained in the previous aircraft purchase transaction entered into between the Company and Boeing Company on 8 August 2005 (the 2005 Aircraft Purchase). The Company believes that there is no material difference between the effect of the price concessions obtained in the Transaction and the 2005 Aircraft Purchase on the Company's operating costs taken as a whole.

The Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement was signed pursuant to the Umbrella Agreement. The 2005 Aircraft Purchase was signed pursuant to an umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the airline companies including the Company in January 2005. The purchase of the Boeing Aircraft was not in contemplation at the time of the 2005 Aircraft Purchase. Accordingly, the Transaction and the 2005 Aircraft Purchase are not part of the same series of transactions and are not treated as if they were one transaction and these transactions are not required to be aggregated for the relevant classification of the Transaction pursuant to Rule 14.22. As the relevant percentage ratio under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules for the Transaction is more than 5% but less than 25%, the Transaction on its own constitutes a discloseable transaction, and is therefore not subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

(5) Payment and delivery terms

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Boeing Aircraft is payable by cash in eight instalments, with first seven instalments to be paid prior to delivery of each Boeing Aircraft and the remaining balance, being a substantial portion of the consideration, to be paid upon delivery of each Boeing Aircraft. The Company is expecting to take delivery of the Boeing Aircraft in stages from end 2007 to end 2008.

(6) Source of funding

The Transaction will be funded through cash generated from the Company's business operations, commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company and subject to the completion of the proposed A share issue as set out in the announcement by the Company dated 9 February 2006, the proceeds from the A share issue.

(7) Reasons for and benefits of the Transaction

The Boeing Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and will principally reinforce Beijing's position as a transportation hub and increase frequency of flights, departing originally from Beijing, of a number of key domestic flight courses. The Company expects the Boeing Aircraft will deliver more cost-efficient performance and provide more comfortable services to passengers.

Although the Boeing Aircraft was purchased with other aircrafts under a package acquisition plan, which is coordinated by the NDRC, the decision to purchase the Boeing Aircraft was made independently by the Company. The negotiations under the acquisition plan were done as a package to increase bargaining power.

The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

3. EFFECT OF THE TRANSACTION

Based on the technical specifications of the Boeing Aircraft, the Company expects the Boeing Aircraft to operate with a higher utilization rate, more efficient jet fuel consumption and relatively low maintenance cost. This will enable the Company to operate on a cost-efficient basis and would potentially have a positive effect on the earnings of the Company.

As mentioned above, the Transaction will be partly financed by commercial bank loans and other debt instruments of the Company. The Transaction will therefore increase the Group's fixed assets and liabilities. The Transaction may also result in an increase in the Group's debt-to-equity ratio. The total cash outflow of the Company in 2006 in respect of the Transaction is approximately RMB873 million. However, the Company does not expect the Transaction to have any material negative impact on its cash-flow position or its business operations.

Save as described above, the Transaction is not expected to have any material impact on earnings, assets and liabilities of the Group.

4. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

By Order of the Board
Li Jiaxiang
Chairman

Beijing, the PRC

CONTINUING CONNECTED TRANSACTIONS

Further to the announcement of the Company dated 18 November 2005 and with reference to the CNAC Announcement dated 20 March 2006, the Company would like to announce further details on the Airport Fees Transactions, which are connected transactions entered into between Air Macau and associates of STDM.

Air Macau is a 51% indirectly-owned subsidiary of CNAC. CNAC is an approximately 68.4% directly-owned subsidiary of the Company, whose shares are listed on the Stock Exchange. Therefore, the Airport Fees Transactions also constitute continuing connected transactions for the Company under Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

As the applicable percentage ratios for each of the Airport Fees Transactions under the Listing Rules is less than 2.5%, each of the Airport Fees Transactions is only subject to the reporting, announcement and annual review requirements under Rules 14A.45 to 14A.47 and Rules 14A.37 to 14A.40 and is exempt from the independent shareholders' approval requirement of Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

Further to the announcement of the Company dated 18 November 2005 and with reference to the CNAC Announcement, the Company would like to set out below further details regarding the transactions between Air Macau and the associates of STDM that constitute continuing connected transactions of the Company for the purpose of the Listing Rules:

(A) AIRPORT FEES TRANSACTION

1. Airport Charges

In Air Macau's normal and ordinary course of business, it incurs a number of airport charges on a daily basis for the use of facilities and services at the Macau International Airport. These airport charges, which are approved and published by the Macau Government, include, inter alia, landing charge, loading charge, parking charge, airport charge, loading bridge charge, and other ancillary fees.

On 17 March 2006, Air Macau and ADA, being the authorized agent responsible for the global management and provision of operational services to MIAC, including the collection of Airport Charges, entered into a legally binding acknowledgement pursuant to which it was acknowledged by Air Macau and ADA that:

(a) MIAC provides certain facilities and services to Air Macau at a price by reference to the rates published by the Macau Government, namely, Portaria n.o 282/96/M of 11 November as revised by Portaria n.o 152/98/M, of 15 June, and, Ordem Executiva n.o 36/2004, as amended, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time (the "Macau Gazette"); and

(b) payment of all amounts of the Airport Charges are due from Air Macau to ADA in accordance to the provisions set out in the Macau Gazette.

The Airport Charges relates to payment of fees to ADA/ MIAC in Air Macau's ordinary course of business in compliance with the laws and regulations of Macau. Currently there is no regulatory mechanism which allows Air Macau to bind the Macau Government or ADA or MIAC to fix a duration for such transactions via commercial negotiation with the Macau Government or ADA or MIAC.

On or before a date expiring three years from the date of this announcement the Company will, if required under the Listing Rules, re-determine the annual cap for the Airport Charges for the forthcoming three financial years, publish an announcement and/or seek independent shareholders' approval of the Company in respect of the Airport Charges or otherwise comply with the then requirements under the Listing Rules.

2. Airport Fees

In respect of Air Macau's operation at the Macau International Airport, Air Macau entered into the Airport License on 9 September 2004 and 1 the Proposed Airport License with MIAC with a term of one year (which will be automatically renewed for another year unless it is terminated by either party by way of 90 days prior written notice) and one year respectively. The current term of the Airport License will expire on 7 September 2006 and the term of the Proposed Airport License will expire on 28 February 2007.

Pursuant to the Airport License and the Proposed Airport License, MIAC licensed certain floor space (including ticketing and check-in counters, operation/traffic service offices, and lounges) at the Macau International Airport to Air Macau. The current monthly license fee payable by Air Macau amounts to approximately MOP 600,000 (equivalent to approximately HK$583,000) per month (amounting to approximately MOP 7.2 million (equivalent to approximately HK$7 million) per annum).

The amounts payable as Airport Fees are calculated by reference to rates published by the Macau Government in the government gazette.

The Airport Charges and Airport Fees for each of the four years ended 31 December, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005 were HK$81,045,000, HK$51,927,000, HK$69,337,000 and HK$86,343,000 (unaudited figure) respectively. Such transaction amounts were within the relevant cap amount granted to CNAC for the relevant financial year.

Both the Airport Charges and the Airport Fees are invoiced and collected by ADA, a 51% owned subsidiary of CNACAL which in turn is wholly-owned subsidiary of CNACG, on behalf of MIAC, the developer and owner of Macau International Airport. Since CNAC and CNACAL are both subsidiaries of CNAH, ADA is a connected person of CNAC. Furthermore, STDM, which has a 14% shareholding interest in Air Macau, has an approximately 33% shareholding in MIAC and hence, MIAC is also a connected person of CNAC. As a result, the payment of the Airport Charges and the Airport Fees will constitute connected transactions for CNAC under the Listing Rules. As CNAC is a non-wholly owned subsidiary of the Company, the payment of the Airport Charges and the Airport Fees will also constitute connected transactions for the Company under Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules. Since ADA does not receive any benefit or additional fee from the Group in respect to the collection of the Airport Charges and Airport Fees on behalf of MIAC, ADA, CNACAL, CNACG, CNAH and their respective associates are not deemed to have a material interest in the Airport Fees Transaction.

The Board has considered and proposed that the cap for the annual volume of the Airport Charges and the Airport Fees for each of the three years ending 31 December, 2006, 2007 and 2008 shall be HK$130 million, HK$160 million and HK$200 million, respectively. Reference is also made to the corresponding cap proposed by the board of CNAC in the CNAC Announcement. As the aggregate annual Airport Charges and Airport Fees payable by Air Macau represents less than 2.5% of the applicable percentage ratios of the Company, the payment of the Airport Charges and the Airport Fees is, according to Rule 14.34(1), only subject to the reporting, announcement and annual review requirements set out in Listing Rules 14A45 to 14.47 and Rules 14A.37 to 14A.40 and are exempt from the independent shareholders' approval requirement of Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

The cap proposed for the Airport Fees Transaction is determined with reference to (a) the rates published by the Macau Government in the government gazette; (b) the previous transactions and figures which are published in CNAC's annual reports in 2002 to 2005; and (c) the growth in passenger uplift as projected by the management of Air Macau. Neither ADA nor MIAC has the ability to vary such rates without the prior approval of the Macau Government.

(B) REASONS FOR ENTERING INTO THE CONTINUING CONNECTED TRANSACTIONS

The Airport Fees Transaction relates to payment of fees to ADA/ MAIC in Macau is in CNAC and its subsidiaries' ordinary course of business in compliance with the laws and regulations of Macau. As Air Macau is an airliner based in Macau and Macau International Airport is the only airport in Macau, it is in the ordinary course of business of Air Macau the use the facilities and services and license certain floor space at the Macau International Airport. Air Macau entered into the Airport Fees Transaction for the purpose of operating its business.

The Board, including the independent non-executive directors of the Company, consider that the Airport Fees Transactions and the Airport Fees Transaction Annual Cap are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the Company and its shareholders taken as a whole, and have been negotiated on an arm's length basis in the usual and ordinary course of business on normal commercial terms and on terms no more favourable than would have been with independent third parties.

(C) BUSINESS OF THE GROUP

The Group is principally engaged in the provision of air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services.

(D) INFORMATION ON CONNECTED PERSONS

MIAC is the owner of the Macau International Airport.

CNAC is an investing holding company with investments principally engaged in the provision of air transportation services through Dragonair and Air Macau, airline catering services, airport ground handling services and logistics services.

CNACG is an investment holding company with investments principally engaged in travel services, air cargo terminals and other aviation related businesses.

中國國際航空股份有限公司
AIR CHINA LIMITED

DISCLOSEABLE TRANSACTION: PURCHASE OF 10 BOEING 737 AIRCRAFT

On 17 January 2006 the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft from Boeing Company.

The Transaction constitutes a discloseable transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules.

BOEING AIRCRAFT PURCHASE AGREEMENT

On 17 January 2006 the Company and AIE entered into the Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement with Boeing Company, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft from Boeing Company.

The details of the Transaction are summarized as follows:

Date of the Transaction:

17 January 2006

Parties to the Transaction:

(i) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(ii) AIE, as the import agent for the Company; and

(iii) Boeing Company, as the vendor, one of whose principal business activity is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief having made all reasonable enquiry, Boeing Company and each of the ultimate beneficial owner of Boeing Company are independent third parties and not connected persons (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

Aircraft to be acquired:

Consideration:

The aircraft basic price comprises the airframe price, optional features prices and engine price. The aircraft basic price of the Boeing Aircraft in aggregate is US$655.2 million. The airframe price is subject to price escalation by applying a formula. Boeing has granted to the Company price concessions with regard to the Boeing Aircraft. These will take the form of credit memoranda which may be used by the Company towards the purchase of the Boeing Aircraft or spare parts, goods and services or may be used towards the final delivery invoice payment of the Boeing Aircraft. Such credit memoranda were determined after arm's length negotiations between the parties and as a result, the actual consideration for the Boeing Aircraft is lower than the aircraft basic price mentioned above.

The Boeing Aircraft Purchase Agreement was signed pursuant to an umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the China Aviation Supplies Import and Export Group Corporation in November 2005. The aircraft acquisition agreement dated 8 August 2005 (the 2005 Aircraft Purchase) entered into between the Company and Boeing Company was signed pursuant to an umbrella agreement entered into between Boeing Company and the airline companies including the Company in January 2005. The purchase of the Boeing Aircraft was not in contemplation at the time of the 2005 Aircraft Purchase. Accordingly, the Transaction and the 2005 Aircraft Purchase are not part of the same series of transactions and are not treated as if they were one transaction and these transactions are not required to be aggregated for the relevant classification of the Transaction pursuant to Rule 14.22. As the relevant percentage ratio under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules for the Transaction is more than 5% but less than 25%, the Transaction on its own constitutes a discloseable transaction, and is therefore not subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

The current disclosure on the aggregate value of aircraft basic price is under review by the Company and the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. The Company may make further disclosure in respect of the disclosure of the consideration for the Boeing Aircraft by way of an announcement.

Payment and delivery terms:

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Boeing Aircraft is payable by cash in instalments. The Company is expecting to take delivery of the Boeing Aircraft in stages from end 2007 to end 2008.

Source of funding:

The Transaction will be funded through cash generated from the Company's business operations, commercial bank loans, other debt instruments of the Company and subject to the completion of the proposed A share issue as set out in the announcement by the Company dated 9 February 2006, the proceeds from the A share issue.

REASONS FOR AND BENEFITS OF THE TRANSACTION

The Boeing Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and will principally reinforce Beijing's position as a transportation hub and increase frequency of flights, departing originally from Beijing, of a number of key domestic flight courses. The Company expects the Boeing Aircraft will deliver more cost-efficient performance and provide more comfortable services to passengers.

Although the Boeing Aircraft was purchased with other aircrafts under a package acquisition plan, which is coordinated by the NDRC, the decision to purchase the Boeing Aircraft was made independently by the Company. The negotiations under the acquisition plan were done as a package to increase bargaining power.

The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

(1) PROPOSED A SHARE ISSUE
(2) PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION

PROPOSED A SHARE ISSUE

The Board is pleased to announce that at the Board meeting of the Company held on 8 February 2006, it was resolved that, subject to Shareholders' approval, the Company shall apply to the relevant authorities in the PRC for the allotment and issue of not more than 2.7 billion A Shares to qualified institutional investors as approved by CSRC and the placees through online offering based on market share value, and subscribers allowed by the regulatory bodies and by the applicable laws and regulations at the time of A Shares Issue in the PRC and shall apply to the Shanghai Stock Exchange for the listing of such A Shares.

The net proceeds from the A Share Issue are intended to be used to part finance the purchase of 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft, 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft and the project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport, details of which are set out below in this announcement.

The A Share Issue is subject to approvals from (a) Shareholders to be sought at separate Class Meetings and the EGM; and (b) the relevant PRC authorities.

2.7 billion A Shares represent approximately 28.62% of the existing issued share capital of the Company and approximately 22.25% of the enlarged issued share capital of the Company immediately after completion of the proposed A Share Issue.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION

In light of the A Share Issue and pursuant to the statutory requirements of the applicable PRC laws and regulations, certain amendments are proposed to be made to the Articles of Association.

Details regarding the proposed amendments to the Articles of Association will be set out in the circular and the notices of Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting and the EGM to the Shareholders.

A circular containing, among other things, details of the A Share Issue, amendments to the Articles of Association, and notices of the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting and the EGM will be dispatched to Shareholders as soon as practicable.

There is no assurance that the A Share Issue will proceed. Investors are advised to exercise caution in dealing in the H Shares. Further details about the A Share Issue will be disclosed by the Company in the newspapers in the PRC when the A Share Issue materialises and an extract of which will be disclosed by the Company in the newspapers in Hong Kong concurrently in accordance with the Listing Rules.

A. PROPOSED A SHARE ISSUE

1. General

At the Board meeting of the Company held on 8 February 2006, it was resolved that the Company shall apply to the relevant authorities in the PRC for the allotment and issue of not more than 2.7 billion A Shares to institutional and public investors in the PRC and such A Shares are proposed to be listed on the Shanghai Stock Exchange. It is expected that such investors will not include connected persons (as defined under the Listing Rules) of the Company. If any of such investors includes any connected persons of the Company, the Company will take steps to comply with the relevant connected transaction requirements under the Listing Rules. At present, the H Shares are listed on the main board of the Hong Kong Stock Exchange and are admitted for trading on the market for listed securities on the London Stock Exchange.

2. Structure of the A Share Issue

Type of securities to be issued:	RMB denominated ordinary shares
Number of A Shares to be issued:	Not more than 2.7 billion A Shares, representing approximately 28.62% of the existing issued share capital of the Company and approximately 22.25% of the enlarged issued share capital of the Company immediately after completion of the proposed A Share Issue
Nominal value:	RMB1.00 each
Rights attached to A Share:	The A Shares to be issued are listed Domestic Shares and, except as otherwise provided for in the Articles of Association, will rank pari passu with the existing Domestic Shares, H Shares and Non-H Foreign Shares in all respects.
Target subscribers:	Qualified institutional investors as approved by CSRC and the placees through online offering based on market share value, and subscribers allowed by the regulatory bodies and by the applicable laws and regulations at the time of A Shares Issue

Basis for determining the issue price:	The issue price will not be lower than 90% of the average closing price of the Company's H Shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange during the Price Consultation Period of the A Share Issue. The issue price for the proposed A Share Issue will be determined based on the PRC securities market conditions at the time when the A Share Issue takes place and in accordance with the applicable CSRC regulations. Thus the amount to be raised from the A Share Issue cannot be ascertained as at the date of this announcement.
Use of proceeds:	The net proceeds from the A Share Issue are intended to be used to part finance the following projects ("Proposed Projects"): (a) purchase of 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft; (b) purchase of 15 Boeing 787 aircraft; (c) purchase of 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft; and (d) Air China's project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport. It will be proposed to the Shareholders at the EGM that the Company be authorised to apply the proceeds from the A Share Issue to any payment due in relation to the Proposed Projects or to repay any outstanding bank loan in relation to the Proposed Projects that occurred before the completion of the A Share Issue; after above prescribed use of the proceeds, any balance of it shall be applied to the working capital of the Company.

3. Information on the Proposed Projects

Investment amount

It is intended the net proceeds from A Share Issue will be used to part finance the Company's purchase of 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft, 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft and Air China's project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport. The total purchase amount for these aircraft will be less than the aggregate catalog price of US$5.68 billion, and the total investment amount for the project relating to the expansion of existing operating support facilities will be approximately RMB600 million.

Benefit for the Proposed Projects

The Company entered into a purchase agreement with Air China Group Import and Export Trading Co., and Airbus S.A.S. on 26 January 2005, pursuant to which the Company agreed to purchase 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft from Airbus S.A.S.. The Company also entered into a purchase agreement with Boeing Company on 8 August 2005 and 17 January 2006, pursuant to which the Company agreed to purchase 15 Boeing 787 aircraft and 10 Boeing 737-800 aircraft, respectively. Further information on the purchases of the 20 Airbus A330-200 aircraft and 15 Boeing 787 aircraft is set out in the announcements made by the Company dated 26 January 2005 and 8 August 2005, respectively.

The purchases of aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and the aircraft from the purchases will principally serve the routes to international destinations in Europe, Australia, North America and certain key domestic destinations such as Lhasa. The aircraft from the purchases are expected to replace certain aircraft in the existing fleet of the Company. The purchase of the Boeing 737-800 aircraft will also reinforce Beijing's position as a transportation hub and increase frequency of flights, departing originally from Beijing, of a number of key domestic flight courses. The purchases of aircraft will enable the Company to provide more cost-efficient and comfortable services to the passengers.

The Company obtained approval from the National Development and Reform Commission of the People's Republic of China in September 2005 to commence a project relating to the expansion of the existing operating support facilities at the Beijing Capital International Airport. The total investment amount of the project is approximately RMB600 million. The project involves the expansion of various operating support facilities including the acquisition of a piece of land with an area of approximately 1 million square metres and the expansion of ground services facilities and other facilities.

4. Shareholders' approval and other approvals

The Class Meetings and the EGM will be held on or around 28 March 2006 to consider and, if thought fit, approve, among other things, the A Share Issue. At the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting, the votes of all holders of Foreign Shares and the holders of overseas listed foreign shares, that is, holders of H Shares, in respect of the special resolution to be proposed at the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting will be counted separately. As advised by the Company's PRC counsel, Haiwen & Partners ("Haiwen"), the separate counting of the votes of the holders of H Shares is valid. The Company will treat the special resolution of the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting to be passed if it attains a two-thirds majority of the voting rights of holders of Foreign Shares and that of holders of H Shares attending the meeting. As advised by Haiwen, this arrangement does not contravene any PRC laws, and the special resolution, if passed, would be valid. It should be noted that the A Share Issue, upon the approval of the Shareholders at the Class Meetings and the EGM, is still subject to the approval of the CSRC and other government authorities, if necessary. In addition, the approval of the Shanghai Stock Exchange as to the listing and dealings in the A Shares on the Shanghai Stock Exchange is also required. Upon obtaining the requisite Shareholders' approval at the Class Meetings and the EGM, it is expected that the listing application will be made around the end of March 2006.

5. Reasons for and benefits of the A Share Issue

The Company believes that the A Share Issue will establish a new financing platform for the Company and will broaden the Company's access to different securities markets. This will enable the Company to enhance the development of its operations and to further improve its competitiveness. The Company believes that the A Share Issue will provide the financial resources required to part finance the development of the Proposed Projects. The Company expects that after the Proposed Projects, carrying capacity of the Group will be further enhanced. Furthermore, the Company also believes that the capital raised from the A Share Issue will result in improvements in its debt-to-equity ratio and accordingly, will lower operating risks.

The Directors believe that the A Share Issue will benefit the Company and the Shareholders as a whole.

6. Effect of the A Share Issue on the Company's shareholding structure

Set out below is the shareholding structure of the Company as at the date of this announcement and immediately upon completion of the A Share Issue based on the assumption that an aggregate of 2.7 billion new A Shares will be issued under the A Share Issue:

	As at the date of this announcement		Immediately after completion of the A Share Issue
	Number of Shares	%	Number of Shares	%
(1) Non-Listed Domestic Shares	4,826,195,989	51.16	4,826,195,989	39.78
(2) Non-H Foreign Shares	1,380,482,920	14.64	1,380,482,920	11.38
(3) Listed Shares
–H Share	3,226,532,000	34.20	3,226,532,000	26.59
–A Share	–	–	2,700,000,000	22.25
Total number of Listed Shares	3,226,532,000	34.20	5,926,532,000	48.84
(4) Total number of Shares	9,433,210,909	100	12,133,210,909	100

As advised by Haiwen, the Company is not required to implement the share conversion reform in the PRC as it is not an existing A Share company that is currently listed on the Shanghai Stock Exchange. As set out in the table above, the shareholding structure of the Company immediately after the completion of the A Share Issue under existing laws and regulations is currently expected to comprise non-listed Domestic Shares, non-H Foreign Shares, H Shares and A Shares, although certain new developments as set out below are expected.

According to the Guidelines on Share Conversion Reform of Listed Companies issued by the CSRC and other relevant authorities and committees in 2005, companies seeking an A Share listing in the PRC will no longer have both tradeable shares and non-tradeable shares. As the laws and regulations relating to the conversion of non-tradeable shares into tradable shares upon listing (the "New Rules") have not been promulgated, the CSRC has temporarily suspended giving final approvals for A Share offerings.

It is expected that CSRC will only approve new A Share listing after the New Rules have been promulgated. Although the conversion procedures under the New Rules are still uncertain at this stage, it is expected that under the New Rules, the existing non-listed Domestic Shares may be converted into tradeable shares eligible for listing and thus become A Shares, which will carry the same rights as the other A Shares issued by the Company. It is expected that, if approved, the conversion of non-listed Domestic Shares into A Shares will not involve any payment of compensation by the holders of the non-listed Domestic Shares to the holders of A Shares and will also not require approval by Shareholders at separate Class Meetings.

B. PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION

In light of the A Share Issue and pursuant to the requirements of the applicable PRC laws and regulations, certain amendments are proposed to be made to the Articles of Association. Such proposed amendments to the Articles of Association are subject to Shareholders' approval at the EGM, and the obtaining of any approval, endorsement or registration (as applicable) from or with the relevant PRC authorities.

The proposed amendments deal with matters relating to a number of areas, including, among other things:

(a) alteration of the Company's registered capital and shareholding structure;

(b) regulations on the proceedings of general meetings;

(c) regulations on the election and appointment of Directors and supervisors;

(d) regulations on the rights and obligations of shareholders, Directors, supervisors and managers;

(e) provisions in relation to the rules and procedures of general meetings, Board meetings and Supervisory Committee meetings;

(f) procedures for approving connected transactions (in accordance with the requirements of CSRC); and

(g) other provisions as required by any applicable laws and regulations for companies with A Shares in issue.

Details regarding the proposed amendments to the Articles of Association will be set out in the circular and the notice to the Shareholders.

C. CIRCULAR

A circular containing, among other things, details of the A Share Issue, amendments to the Articles of Association, and the notices of the Foreign Shareholders Class Meeting and the EGM will be dispatched to the Shareholders as soon as practicable (the "Circular").

CONTINUING CONNECTED TRANSACTIONS

Reference is made to the CNAC Announcement dated 16 November 2005 relating to, inter alia, the Continuing Connected Transactions entered into between Air Macau and relevant associates of STDM.

Air Macau is a 51% indirectly-owned subsidiary of CNAC. CNAC is an approximately 68.4% directly-owned subsidiary of the Company, whose shares are listed on the Stock Exchange. Therefore, the Continuing Connected Transactions entered into between Air Macau and associates of STDM will also constitute continuing connected transactions for the Company under Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

As the applicable percentage ratios for each of the Continuing Connected Transactions under the Listing Rules is less than 2.5%, each of the Continuing Connected Transactions is only subject to the reporting, announcement and annual review requirements under Rules 14A.45 to 14A.47 and Rules 14A.37 to 14A.40 and is exempt from the independent shareholders' approval requirement of Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

Set out below are the transactions between Air Macau and associates of STDM that constitute continuing connected transactions of the Company for the purpose of the Listing Rules:

(A) AIRPORT FEES TRANSACTION

In Air Macau's normal and ordinary course of business, it incurs a number of airport charges on a daily basis for the use of facilities and services at the Macau International Airport. These airport charges, which are approved and published by the Macau Government, include, inter alia, landing charge, loading charge, parking charge, airport charge, loading bridge charge, and other ancillary fees.

Both the airport charges and the airport fees are invoiced and collected by ADA, a 51% owned subsidiary of CNACAL which in turn is wholly-owned subsidiary of CNACG, on behalf of MIAC, the developer and owner of Macau International Airport. Since CNAC and CNACAL are both subsidiaries of CNAH, ADA is a connected person of CNAC. Furthermore, STDM, which has a 14% shareholding interest in Air Macau, has an approximately 33% shareholding in MIAC and hence, MIAC is also a connected person of CNAC. As a result, the payment of the airport charges and the airport fees will constitute continuing connected transactions for CNAC under the Listing Rules. As CNAC is a non-wholly owned subsidiary of the Company, the payment of the airport charges and the airport fees will also constitute continuing connected transactions for the Company under Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

The Company will make further announcement in respect of the Airport Fees Transaction.

(B) CATERING SERVICES

For in-flight meals to its passengers, Air Macau entered into the Catering Services Agreement on 1 November 2001 with MCS.

Pursuant to the Catering Services Agreement, Air Macau purchased meals from MCS, an associate of STDM. Since STDM has a 14% shareholding interest in Air Macau and MCS is an associate of STDM, MCS is a connected person of CNAC and therefore a connected person of the Company. Since MCS is the only provider of in-flight meals in Macau, Air Macau has continued to purchase in-flight meals from MCS pursuant to the agreement on normal commercial terms which was determined on an arm's length basis.

The consideration of the catering services was determined by reference to the amounts payable for the purchase of in-flight meals by Air Macau from MCS in the past, the relevant amount for the three years ended 31 December, 2002, 2003 and 2004 were HK$43,965,000, HK$40,637,000 and HK$41,199,000, respectively. Such transaction amounts were within the relevant cap amount granted to CNAC for the relevant financial year.

The Catering Services Agreement continues to remain valid until 31 October 2006 unless otherwise terminated according to its terms and conditions.

The Board has considered and proposed that the cap for the annual volume of the transactions contemplated under the Catering Services Agreement for each of the three years ending 31 December, 2005, 2006 and 2007 shall be HK$65 million, HK$75 million and HK$95 million, respectively. Reference is also made to the corresponding cap proposed by the board of CNAC in the CNAC Announcement. As the aggregate annual consideration payable for the catering services by Air Macau represents less than 2.5% of the applicable percentage ratios of the Company, the Catering Services Agreement is, according to Rule 14A.34(1), only subject to the reporting, announcement and annual review requirements set out in Listing Rules 14A.45 to 14A.47 and Rules 14A.37 to 14A.40 and is exempt from the independent shareholders' approval requirement of Chapter 14A of the Listing Rules.

The Catering Services Annual Cap are determined by reference to previous transactions and figures which are published in CNAC's annual reports in 2002 to 2004 and the growth in passenger uplift as projected by the management of Air Macau.

REASONS FOR ENTERING INTO THE CONTINUING CONNECTED TRANSACTIONS

(A) Airport Charges and Airport Fees

The Airport Fees Transaction relates to payment of fees to ADA/MIAC in Macau and is in CNAC and its subsidiaries' ordinary course of business in compliance with the laws and regulations of Macau. As Air Macau is an airliner based in Macau and the Macau International Airport is the only airport in Macau, it is in the ordinary course of business of Air Macau to use the facilities and services and the license certain floor space at the Macau International Airport. Air Macau entered into the Airport Fees Transaction for the purpose of operating its business.

(B) Catering Services Agreement

Since MCS is the only provider of in-flight meals in Macau, Air Macau, in its ordinary course of business, is required to purchase in-flight meals from MCS. Air Macau entered into the Catering Services Agreement for the purpose of operating its business.

The Board, including the independent non-executive directors of the Company, consider that the transactions contemplated under the Catering Services Agreement and the Catering Services Annual Cap are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the Company and its shareholders taken as a whole, and have been negotiated on an arm's length basis in the usual and ordinary course of business on normal commercial terms and on terms no more favourable than would have been with independent third parties.

The Group is principally engaged in the provision of air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services.

The details of the Transaction are summarized as follows:

Each of CNAHC and its associates (as defined in the Listing Rules) does not have any interest in the Transaction other than as a shareholder of the Company (where applicable). AIR CHINA LIMITED AWARDS $800 MILLION CONTRACT TO ROLLS-ROYCE FOR TRENT 700 ENGINES AND LONG-TERM SERVICE AGREEMENT

Air China Limited has selected the Rolls-Royce Trent 700 to power its new fleet of 20 Airbus A330-200 widebody aircraft. Together with a long-term TotalCare services agreement for the engines, the total value of the contract is $800 million.

A spokesman for Air China Limited, said: "Air China is very pleased to have reached this agreement with Rolls-Royce. The Trent 700 engine offers outstanding reliability and performance. This order marks the beginning of a much closer relationship between Air China and Rolls-Royce."

Mike Terrett, President - Civil Aerospace, Rolls-Royce, said: "This is a significant decision by China's flag carrier. Not only does it mark the first appearance of the Trent engine in Air China's colours, it also strengthens our presence in the world's fastest growing aerospace market. As the most powerful engine on the A330, the Trent 700 will provide Air China with excellent performance from more demanding airports such as Lhasa. This order is a welcome expression of confidence in Rolls-Royce."

NOTE TO EDITORS

1. The Air China order takes the Trent 700's market share on the A330 to 42 per cent, with a total of 30 customers and operators.

2. TotalCare agreements, tailored for individual customers, offer a range of services extending to aspects of support such as provision of lease engines, as well as repair and overhaul. Rolls-Royce takes full responsibility for care of the engine fleet in return for payment by the customer of an agreed dollar rate per flying hour.

3. The A330-200, powered by two 72,000lb thrust Trent 700 engines, is capable of carrying 260 passengers up to 6,650 nautical miles.

UPDATE ON PROCESS OF REGISTRATION OF REAL PROPERTIES TITLE CERTIFICATES

Reference is made to the prospectus of the Company issued on 3 December 2004. The Company hereby announces that, in connection with the properties contributed by CNAHC to the Company as part of the Restructuring, the registration of the relevant land use right certificates and building ownership certificates under the Company's name has not been completed as of 31 March 2005. The Company is still in the process of completing relevant procedures and formalities and will notify its shareholders in the interim or annual report immediately following the completion of such process. Before completion, use of such Properties by the Company will not be affected.

Reference is made to the prospectus issued by the Company dated 3 December. As disclosed in the section headed "Business — Properties and Facilities" of the prospectus, most of the land and buildings (the "Properties") of the Company were registered under the name of the Company's immediate predecessor, Air China International Corporation, at the time of Restructuring. As the Company was incorporated on 30 September 2004, it is still in the process of applying to register, or changing the registration of such Properties into the Company's name as the registered land user or building owner, as the case may be. The Company had previously expected such process to be completed within six months of the Company's incorporation, i.e. 31 March 2005.

The Company hereby announces that in connection with the above Properties, although the Company has been trying its best endeavours, it has completed the registration procedures for none of these Properties as of 31 March 2005. Due to the large number of properties acquired by the Company and the fact that different local real property authorities have different local rules regarding the procedures and formalities of registering or changing the registered names of the Properties, the Company is still in the process of completing such procedures and formalities. Specifically, the Company is currently awaiting a certification document to be issued from State-owned Assets Supervision and Administration Commission of the State Council (國務院國有資產監督管理委員會) which is a precondition for the registration procedures for the Properties in certain local areas. The Company expects such certification document to be issued in the next few weeks.

The Company confirms that the use of and the conduct of relevant activities by the Group in the Properties are not affected by the fact that certain governmental procedures or formalities of changing the registered names to the Properties have not been completed. In the Company's opinion, such fact would not have any material impact on the Company's business operation. Once the new land use right certificates and building ownership certificates are issued under the Company's name, the Company will have the legal title and right to occupy, mortgage, sub-let and dispose of the Properties.

As disclosed in the prospectus, the Company will notify its shareholders in the interim or annual report immediately following the completion of the process in relation to the Properties.

JOINT CLARIFICATORY ANNOUNCEMENT

Air China and CNAC have noted media reports speculating about possible changes in the controlling shareholding interests of Air China, Cathay Pacific and Dragonair. Whilst the Air China Group and Cathay Pacific continue to explore opportunities to develop a closer cooperation in various business and operational areas, there is currently no agreement or arrangement between the parties which is discloseable under the Listing Rules. In particular, Air China has no intention to acquire a controlling equity interest in Cathay Pacific whilst CNAHC has informed Air China that it intends to remain as Air China's controlling shareholder.

(1) STRATEGIC COOPERATION BETWEEN THE AIR CHINA GROUP AND CATHAY PACIFIC

This clarificatory announcement is made at the request of The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

The boards of Air China and CNAC have noted various articles appearing in today's newspapers which speculate on Air China and Cathay Pacific being in discussion on a number of possible transactions, principally being that: (a) Air China may acquire a controlling equity interest in Cathay Pacific; (b) Swire Pacific may become the single largest shareholder of Air China; and (c) there may be further cooperation between Cathay Pacific and Dragonair which may or may not involve a change in the business operations of or shareholding interests in Dragonair.

As announced jointly by Air China and Cathay Pacific on 20 October 2004, Air China and Cathay Pacific agreed to develop a long-term strategic relationship, the key components of which involved an investment by Cathay Pacific in Air China pursuant to Air China's IPO as well as mutual cooperation between the two companies' aviation-related business in Hong Kong and mainland China.

Following completion of Air China's IPO in December 2004, in which Cathay Pacific took a 10% equity interest in Air China, the parties have explored further avenues of cooperation and to date the following initiatives have taken place:

- Cooperation on improving in-flight service;
- Joint research on financial risk control; and
- Co-ordination on engineering, ground handling and marketing.

The Air China Group and Cathay Pacific continue to explore opportunities to develop closer cooperation in various business and operational areas, including in relation to enhancing cooperation in the Hong Kong-China aviation market. The cooperation discussions, which are broad ranging and preliminary in nature, necessarily involved Dragonair. However, such discussions have not resulted in any definitive proposal. There is currently no agreement or arrangement between the Air China, CNAC and Cathay Pacific which is discloseable under the Listing Rules.

In particular, Air China has no intention to acquire a controlling equity interest in Cathay Pacific. Air China's controlling shareholder, CNAHC, has informed Air China that CNAHC intends to remain as Air China's controlling shareholder.

(2) EXCEPTIONAL MOVEMENTS IN THE PRICE AND TRADING VOLUME OF CNAC'S SHARES

The board of directors of CNAC note today's increase in the price and trading volume of the shares of CNAC and wish to state that, save as disclosed above, they are not aware of any reasons for such increase.

Save as disclosed in this announcement, the board of directors of CNAC also confirms that there are no negotiations or agreements relating to intended acquisitions or realisations which are discloseable under Rule 13.23; neither is the board of directors of CNAC aware of any matter discloseable under the general obligation imposed by Rule 13.09, which is or may be of a price-sensitive nature. The statements by CNAC herein are made by order of CNAC the board of which individually and jointly accept responsibility for their accuracy.

In the meantime, shareholders of and potential investors in Air China and CNAC are recommended to exercise caution when dealing in the shares of Air China and CNAC.

PURCHASE OF 20 A330-200 AIRCRAFT MAJOR TRANSACTION

The Company hereby announces that on 26 January 2005 the Company and AIE entered into an A330-200 Purchase Agreement with Airbus for the acquisition of 20 A330-200 aircraft from Airbus.

CNAHC, which currently directly owns approximately 51.16% of the total issued share capital of the Company, has approved the Transaction. CNAHC does not have any interest in the Transaction other than as a shareholder of the Company.

The Transaction constitutes a major transaction of the Company under the Listing Rules.

AIRCRAFT PURCHASE AGREEMENT

On 26 January 2005 the Company and AIE entered into an A330-200 Purchase Agreement with Airbus, pursuant to which the Company has agreed to purchase 20 A330-200 aircraft from Airbus. In addition, the Board of the Company on the same date has approved such acquisition. However, pursuant to Chinese regulations the Transaction is conditional upon Chinese government approval, which is not obtained yet.

The details of the Transaction are summarized as follows:

Date of the Transaction:

26 January 2005

Parties to the Transaction:

(i) the Company, as the purchaser, the principal business activity of which is air passenger, air cargo and airline-related services;

(ii) AIE, as the import agent; and

(iii) Airbus, as the vendor, the principal business activity of which is aircraft manufacturing.

The Company confirms that, to the best of the Directors' knowledge, information and belief having made all reasonable enquiry, Airbus and each of the ultimate beneficial owner of Airbus are independent third parties and not connected persons (as defined in the Listing Rules) of the Company.

Aircraft to be Acquired:

20 A330-200 aircraft

Consideration:

According to the information provided by Airbus, the market price, as contained in the catalog provided to the Company by Airbus, of the Airbus Aircraft in aggregation is around US$2.86 billion. The aggregate consideration for the Airbus Aircraft which is determined after arm's length negotiation between the parties, is lower than the market price as contained in that Airbus catalog.

As the relevant consideration percentage ratio under Rule 14.07 of the Listing Rules for the Transaction is above 25% but less than 100%, the Transaction constitutes a major transaction and is therefore subject to approval by the Company's shareholders under the Listing Rules.

Payment and Delivery Terms:

The aggregate consideration for the acquisition of Airbus Aircraft is payable by cash in instalments. The Airbus Aircraft are expected to be delivered in stages to the Company from mid 2006 to end 2008.

Source of Funding:

The Transaction will be funded through cash from the Company's operation and commercial bank loans. No proceeds from the Company's recent global offering will be used to finance this Transaction.

REASONS FOR AND BENEFITS OF THE TRANSACTION

The Airbus Aircraft will expand the fleet capacity of the Company and they will principally serve the routes to international destinations in Europe, Australia, North America and certain key domestic destinations such as Lhasa. The Airbus Aircraft are expected to replace certain aircraft in the existing fleet of the Company and will be able to provide more comfortable services to the passengers.

The Directors believe that the terms of the Transaction are fair and reasonable and in the interests of the shareholders of the Company as a whole.

FURTHER INFORMATION

CNAHC currently directly owns approximately 51.16% of the total issued share capital of the Company. Each of CNAHC and its associates (as defined in the Listing Rules) does not have any interest in the Transaction other than as a shareholder of the Company (where applicable). No shareholder of the Company is required to abstain from voting if the Company were to convene a general meeting for the approval of the Transaction. CNAHC has approved the Transaction by way of a written approval pursuant to Rule 14.44 of the Listing Rules. The Company shall, pursuant to the Listing Rules, send a circular containing the information required under the Listing Rules in relation to the Transaction within 21 days after the publication of this announcement.
