Smiths Selected to Provide Engine Components on Trent 1000

SMITHS Aerospace, part of the global engineering business Smiths Group, has been awarded a long-term contract by Rolls-Royce, worth a potential of $20 million per year through 2012, for engine components on the Trent 1000 engine for the Boeing 787 Dreamliner. The engine components for the program will be manufactured by Smiths' facilities in North Carolina in the United States and in Birmingham, UK.

"We are very pleased to be associated with Rolls-Royce on their leading Trent 1000 program. Our engine components business maintains technological leadership in rings, machining, and fabrications," commented Dr. Peter Wright, President, Smiths Aerospace Components. "Components is a growing business for Smiths and we are investing in new programs and technologies."

As a result of this latest win, overall Smiths content on the Trent 1000 will be approximately $200,000 per engine or more than $400,000 per aircraft. Smiths will be providing various rotating and non-rotating engine components produced from forgings and flash-welded rings. The components include thin wall aero-engine parts such as retaining rings, front panels and sub-assemblies.
