NOTE 1. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The following is a summary of the significant accounting policies of Lone Star Securities, Inc. (the Company).

NATURE OF BUSINESS

Lone Star Securities, Inc. sells direct participation programs in oil and gas ventures for Harbor Resources, L.L.C. (a related entity) and for other third-party issuers. Lone Star Securities, Inc. has a separate written agreement with each issuer, whereby the Company receives a percentage of the subscriptions sold. Lone Star Securities, Inc. markets the oil and gas programs of the issuers to qualified investors. Lone Star Securities, Inc. does not hold customer funds or securities.

METHOD OF ACCOUNTING

The Company prepares its financial statements on the accrual method of accounting, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Under the accrual method, revenues are recognized when earned and expenses are recognized when incurred. The Company prepares its tax returns on the cash method of accounting. Under the cash method, revenues are recognized when collected and expenses are recognized when paid. If an expenditure results in an asset having an estimated useful life that extends substantially beyond the year of acquisition, the expenditure is capitalized, and depreciation is recognized as a charge to expense over the estimated useful life of the asset.

CASH AND CASH EQUIVALENTS

For purposes of the statement of cash flows, the Company considers demand deposits and certificates of deposit with maturity of twelve months or less to be cash equivalents.

PROPERTY, PLANT AND EQUIPMENT

The Company follows the practice of capitalizing at cost, all expenditures in excess of $500 that are determined to be acquisitions of property or equipment or improvements to existing property or equipment. Depreciation is provided on the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the assets. Buildings and leasehold improvements are estimated to have lives of 39 years. Equipment, furniture and fixtures, and vehicles are estimated to have lives of 5 to 10 years.

INCOME TAXES

The Company has recorded a deferred tax liability of $5,025 related to the use of different accounting methods for financial reporting and income tax return reporting. The Company uses the accrual method of accounting for financial reporting purposes and the cash method of accounting for income tax return purposes. The Company has recorded a current tax liability of $1,622.

NOTE 1. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES - CONTINUED

USE OF ESTIMATES

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that effect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

NOTE 2. CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT

Lone Star Securities, Inc. has a certificate of deposit with First National Bank Baird in the amount of $6,683. The certificate was renewed on July 19, 2006 and matures January 17, 2007. Rand, Wave Energy, Inc., Joe Ireland and Lone Star Securities, Inc.* The NASD Regulation, Inc. in Dallas, Texas will arbitrate the dispute. The Statement of Claim by Mr. Scheerer asserts that the sales of the securities were unregistered and procured by fraudulent misrepresentations or omissions. Gentlemen:

In planning and performing our audit of the financial statements of Lone Star Securities, Inc. for the year ended September 30, 2006, we considered its internal control structure, including procedures for safeguarding securities, in order to determine our auditing procedures for the purpose of expressing our opinion on the financial statements and not to provide assurance on the internal control structure.

Also, as required by Rule 17a-5(g)(1) of the Securities and Exchange Commission, we have made a study of the practices and procedures (including tests of compliance with such practices and procedures) followed by Lone Star Securities, Inc. that we considered relevant to the objectives stated in Rule 17a-5(g)(1), in making the periodic computations of aggregate indebtedness and net capital under Rule 17a-3(11). We did not review the practices and procedures followed by the company in making the quarterly securities examinations, counts, verifications and comparisons, and the recordation of differences required by Rule 17a-13 or in complying with the requirements for prompt payment for securities under Sec. 8 of Regulation T of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, because the company does not carry security accounts for customers or perform custodial functions relating to customer securities.

The management of the company is responsible for establishing and maintaining an internal control structure and the practices and procedures referred to in the preceding paragraph. In fulfilling this responsibility, estimates and judgments by management are required to assess the expected benefits and related costs of internal control structure policies and procedures and of the practices and procedures referred to in the preceding paragraph and to assess whether those practices and procedures can be expected to achieve the Commission's above-mentioned objectives. Two of the objectives of an internal control structure and the practices and procedures are to provide management with reasonable, but not absolute, assurance that assets for which the company has responsibility are safeguarded against loss from unauthorized use or disposition and that transactions are executed in accordance with management's authorization and recorded properly to permit preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Rule 17a-5(g) lists additional objectives of the practices and procedures listed in the preceding paragraph.

Because of inherent limitations in any internal control structure or the practices and procedures referred to above, errors or irregularities may occur and not be detected. Also, projection of any evaluation of them to future periods is subject to the risk that they may become inadequate because of changes in conditions or that the effectiveness of their design and operation may deteriorate.

Our consideration of the internal control structure would not necessarily disclose all matters in the internal control structure that might be material weaknesses under standards established by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. A material weakness is a condition in which the design or operation of the specific internal control structure elements does not reduce to a relatively low level the risk that errors or irregularities in amounts that would be material in relation to the financial statements being audited may occur and not be detected within a timely period by employees in the normal course of performing their assigned functions. However, our study and evaluation disclosed that a lack of segregation of functions exists. Although this condition may be considered to be a material weakness in internal control, it is a common condition in entities of this size. This condition was considered in determining the nature, timing and extent of the procedures to be performed in our audit of the financial statements of Lone Star Securities, Inc. for the year ended September 30, 2006, and this report does not affect our report thereon dated November 17, 2006. In addition, no facts came to our attention which would indicate the company was not in compliance with its type k(2)(i) exemption from the requirements of SEC Rule 15c3-3. However, it should be noted that our examination was not directed primarily toward obtaining knowledge of such noncompliance.

We understand that practices and procedures that accomplish the objectives referred to in the second paragraph of this report are considered by the Commission to be adequate for its purpose in accordance with the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and related regulations, and that practices and procedures that do not accomplish such objectives in all material respects indicate a material inadequacy for such purposes. Based on this understanding and on our study, we believe that the company's practices and procedures were adequate at September 30, 2006 to meet the Commission's objectives.

This report is intended solely for the use of management, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. and other regulatory agencies which rely on Rule 17a-5(g) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and should not be used for any other purposes.
