News Release

SingTel appoints new Group Chief Financial Officer

Singapore, 31 January 2007 - Singapore Telecommunications Limited (SingTel) today announced that Mr Francis Heng Hang Song will be joining the company as Group Chief Financial Officer. His appointment will take effect from 9 March 2007.

Francis, 47, will be responsible for the SingTel Group's financial functions, including corporate finance, treasury, tax, insurance and risk management and investor relations.

"We are pleased to welcome Francis to SingTel," said Mr Lee Hsien Yang, SingTel Group CEO. "Francis brings with him strong hands-on corporate and financial experience in various conglomerates. We look forward to his contribution as a valuable member of our leadership team."

Francis will take over the Group CFO role from Ms Chua Sock Koong, SingTel's Deputy Group CEO, who has been covering the position.

Francis is currently serving notice as the CFO of Singapore Technologies Engineering. Previously, he has worked for various leading international business conglomerates, banking and financial institutions locally and in New York, London, Switzerland and Hong Kong.

Francis graduated in 1984 with a Bachelor of Business Administration degree from the National University of Singapore. He is married with two children.

OPTUS ANNOUNCES BOLD EXPANSION OF ITS 3G MOBILE NETWORK ACROSS NATIONAL FOOTPRINT

Optus announces bold expansion of its 3G mobile network across national footprint

Optus announced today plans to build a new third generation mobile communications network with a wide national footprint – far beyond its existing 3G network – with services to commence by early 2008.

“Optus is taking a bold step to bring competitive third generation mobile communications technology to the vast majority of Australians,” Mr Paul O’Sullivan, Optus Chief Executive said.

The new network will reach 96 percent of the population, replicating the coverage of Optus’ existing national 2G mobile network which covers over 650,000 square kilometres of Australia’s landmass.

Optus’ move signals a new era of competition in 3G services nationally.

It means that people living anywhere in this extended footprint will be able to receive high speed mobile data services delivered over the Optus 3G network - and have a choice of carriers for third generation mobile.

“The incumbent thought that it could lock up regional Australia under a 3G monopoly. But Optus continues to build its business on bringing competition and improved products and services to customers,” Mr O’Sullivan said.

“Today, competition in rural and regional Australia is weak, with the incumbent having substantial excess market share.¹ With the investment Optus is announcing today, we are well positioned to grow share in non-metropolitan Australia.

“History shows that when we focus on a new market, with new offers and real alternatives for customers, we can achieve our natural market share.

“Today Optus’ customers are using our 3G network to enjoy improved data speeds, better content and innovative applications such as video calling and video download,” Mr O’Sullivan said.

Optus has introduced innovative applications like MyZooNow and Google search which use 3Gs higher bandwidth to make the mobile handset a powerful tool to help our customers live their lives – at work and play.
