MMC Norilsk Nickel's social efficiency is second to none

MMC Norilsk Nickel was named The Russian organization of high social efficiency – 2006. In the contest of the same name, this is the highest award for organizations continuously winning in its most important nominations.

The Diploma of Honor was handed to Olga Golodets, Deputy General Director of MMC Norilsk Nickel, by Alexander Zhukov, Chairman of the Steering Committee and Vice Chairman of the Russian government.

“Responsible social policy becomes today an inherent part of business for the majority of large Russian companies, and I am very pleased that the achievements of our company in this area were recognized at such a high level”, said Olga Golodets.

According to O. Golodets, MMC Norilsk Nickel is a regular participant in this contest. “Its idea emphasizes the importance of socially responsible business for the state and society, and this is a motivation for all companies to operate in compliance with the policy of social responsibility. The contest also helps to promulgate best experience and innovative technology in such extremely important fields of corporate performance as human relations and social policy”.

The contest has been organized every year at the behest of the government of the Russian Federation since 2000. Its Steering Committee and Jury are composed of representatives from federal ministries and departments, union of employers and associations of trade unions. The main goal is to direct attention of corporate managers to social problems, showing by the example of its winners how this work may be performed.

More than 900 organizations took part in this year's contest, including 64 large miners and metal producers.
