On Friday December 29th, ISA started commercial operation of its 500kV Primavera (Cimitarra, Santander) – Bacata (Tenjo, Cundinamarca) electric interconnection line and ancillary works, thus completing the first of an ambitious two-stage, high-voltage electric corridor nearing 1,000 kilometers and joining the country's central region to its Atlantic Coast.

It is part of an electric corridor linking the Bogota and Mid Magdalena River regions.

- This US$102-million work benefits the country's Central region.

This new work, with an approximate investment of US$102 million, is ISA's major growth opportunity nationwide in the coming years, assuring the Corporation market positioning as Colombia's main power carrier.

With 307 kilometers of lines and two substations, this work traverses 15 municipalities of the Cundinamarca, Boyaca, Santander, and Antioquia provinces, and will both improve the country's electric interconnection and strengthen its regional integration.

This project was awarded to ISA on December 3rd 2003 upon public bidding conducted by the Mining and Energy Planning Unit (UPME), an entity of the Ministry of Mines and Energy.

ISA succeeded in designing, procuring, constructing, and making this project operational ten months ahead of the deadline foreseen by UPME. As of now, it will be in charge of its continuous operation and maintenance.

After its commissioning last Friday, the project will benefit the country in terms of service delivery quality and reliability, given its higher power transfer capacity in the country's Central region, and enhanced supply security in the presence of attacks to electric infrastructure.

The work

To effectively commission this work took cutting edge control and protection technology, including the highest towers ever put up in the country (190 meters), ISA's experience applied to design, invaluable support from engineering, and national suppliers who provided their expertise, together with 9400 tons of structure for lines, and 2930 kilometers of cables.

The project includes construction of: a single-circuit, 500kV transmission line between Primavera and Bacata; Bacata substation in Tenjo, (Cundinamarca); expansion of Primavera Substation in Cimitarra (Santander); two 500kV transmission lines connecting the Primavera substation to the existing San Carlos – Cerromatoso line in the outskirts of the municipality of Maceo (Antioquia), and two 230kV transmission lines connecting the Bacata Substation to the existing 230kV Torca - Northeast transmission line, in Bogota City.

Social and environmental management

Regarding the project's social and environmental management, ISA has materialized a series of investments that benefit the communities of the influence area, and preserve the natural resources of the regions crossed by the line. This investment nears $7,000 million.

For this purpose, actions like purchase of easements, hiring non-qualified labor, contribution to communal benefit projects, inventory and payment to owners of affected farmlands, topsoil handling, as well as archaeological recovery and monitoring, have been conducted.

As part of the commitments to the communities settling the project's influence area, 3,204 locals were hired as non-qualified work hand for construction of the new transmission line, for digging, concrete preparation, soil compaction, materials transport, and structure painting and classification activities.

Additionally, communal benefit projects, resettling of 41 families, and important forest compensation agreements with Corantioquia, Corpoboyaca, CAS, and CAR, have been implemented.

This project is licensed through Resolution 1166 served on August 18th 2005 of the Ministry of Environment, Housing, and Land Development

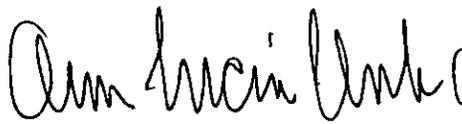

ISA expects completion of this project's supplementary work, a new transmission line joining the Mid Magdalena River region and the Colombian Caribbean, by the end of the first quarter of 2007.

INTERNEXA STARTS CONSTRUCTION OF NETWORK IN PERU

To carry on with the international expansion plans for the business of information transport, some companies of Grupo ISA have subscribed an agreement with CONSORCIO UNIELES for the procurement, installation and commissioning of a modern optic-fiber network stretching over more than 1200 kilometers between Lima and Tumbes in Northern Peru.

Procurement and assembly tasks, which started upon subscription of the agreement, will conclude during the second semester of 2007; the fiber-optic network will be exploited by INTERNEXA S.A, a Peruvian affiliate of Colombian INTERNEXA S.A E.S.P.

Services will be offered to the cities of Lima, Chimbote, Trujillo, Chiclayo, Piura and Tumbes, among others, substantially increasing availability of information transport facilities for telecommunications carriers in this Peruvian region. It also establishes an alternative international connection for Ecuador through integration of the network operated there by INTERNEXA S.A E.S.P. through its associated company TRANSNEXA EMA.

This network is part of INTERNEXA'S regional backbone. In 2007 it will permit, besides interconnection of Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru, access to the submarine cables landing in these countries. Expansion of infrastructure will continue in 2008 in order to provide coverage in Southern Peru and interconnection with Chile and Bolivia.

By constructing this latest-technology fiber-optic network, INTERNEXA is developing a true Latin American telecommunications culture by means of a system of supplementary networks of different technology that ensure coverage and quality according to customers' requirements.

Consorcio UNIELES is made up by the Peruvian company Siemens S.A.C and the Colombian firms Eléctricas de Medellín S.A and Unión Eléctrica Ltda.

Who is INTERNEXA?

INTERNEXA S.A E.S.P., the telecommunications company of Grupo ISA has its main offices in the city of Medellín, Colombia. As leading transport company in Colombia it provides services of local, national and international transport and access to Internet world networks for long-distance carriers, as well as value added, Internet, mobile communications and cable TV through its regional fiber-optic, microwave and satellite networks.

INTERNEXA, whose customers are mainly located in Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela and USA, is the only telecommunications company in the regional market exclusively engaged in the Carrier-of-Carrier business, a specialization that permits it to offer not only full coverage but also top availability and reliability indices, two fundamental conditions for such a market.
