Re: IDACORP, Inc.
Incoming letter dated October 26, 2007

Dear Ms. Powers:

This is in response to your letter dated October 26, 2007 concerning the shareholder proposal submitted to IDACORP by John Jennings Crapo. Our response is attached to the enclosed photocopy of your correspondence. By doing this, we avoid having to recite or summarize the facts set forth in the correspondence. Copies of all of the correspondence also will be provided to the proponent.

In connection with this matter, your attention is directed to the enclosure, which sets forth a brief discussion of the Division's informal procedures regarding shareholder proposals.

Sincerely,

Jonathan A. Ingram

Re: IDACORP, Inc. -- Shareholder Proposal

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We are writing on behalf of IDACORP, Inc., an Idaho corporation (the "Company"), with regard to a shareholder proposal (the "Proposal") and a supporting statement (the "Supporting Statement") submitted by Mr. John Jennings Crapo (the "Proponent") in connection with the annual meeting of the Company's shareholders to be held in May 2008. We believe that the Proposal and the Supporting Statement may be properly excluded from the Company's 2008 proxy statement, pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"). We respectfully request that the staff (the "Staff") of the Division of Corporation Finance of the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "Commission") confirm that it will not recommend any enforcement action against the Company based on the omission of the Proposal and the Supporting Statement.

Copies of the Proposal and Supporting Statement are enclosed as Exhibit A.

Enclosed for filing pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j) of the Exchange Act are six copies of this letter, the Proposal and the Supporting Statement. We are forwarding a copy of this letter to the Proponent as required.

I. Proposal and Supporting Statement

The Proposal and Supporting Statement, dated June 15, 2007, are as follows:

SHAREHOLDER PROPOSAL:

Shareholders request the IDACORP Board of Directors ("Board") provide us a complete report in the next following Proxy Statement of the process of submission, introduction, presentation, and approval and carrying out of shareholder proposals by IDACORP and it's predecessor corporations & other companies, and affiliates.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT

This proposal was submitted before here but the Commission upheld the Board insistence it be timely introduced by proponent who has submitted introduced and presented proposals at numerous national and regionally publicly held corporations and other registrants at his own expense and no expense to the Company.

These are lonely causes
Proponent fails to get cooperation

His broker one (01) time changed time without informing him of a stockholder meeting where he was to present his proposal - to have it same place where IDACORP was meeting. No way could he be in both places to carry out his law full duty

One time in a no-action response to IDACORP the Commission recommended proponent have an assistant to present shareholder proposal. Proponent proceeded to find one and got barred from the Pine Street Inn and consequently was subjected to intense harassment, including being robbed of his property. Being denied rest and his life endangered Proponent has lived in homeless shelters AND has to suffer the consequences of being in in jail and hospital for the criminally insane

Recently he was arrested when he attempted to report the trouble to the copy center. Numerous times he has sent reports to the copy center, to it's regional and national headquarters and was put in jail where he was recipient of inhumane and unlawful treatment.

at the homeless shelter he has attempted to find a co-presenter of shareholder proposal. One (01) was a man in a wheelchair who'd spent time disrupting his rest at night. The man has a familiar sounding first and last name and persons with those names he's noticed have been activists and known for courage and bravery. One time proponent told man briefly of a book about a girl with troubles who was helped by a new found friend

Proponent is brief but has been a shareholder long time. The value of his IDACORP investment is above the threshold of qualification to introduce a Shareholder proposal and proponent promises to continue to own his shares until thirteen (13) minutes have expired after meeting adjournment of stockholder meeting in question

Proponent has motioned the court that case be transferred to Federal Court for trial. He's accused of trespassing copy center is publicly held and my work is mostly based on violations of my constitutional rights. Population I'm with claim to be alcoholics, criminal offenders, drug addicts, nationals of other nations. I'm a veteran and a victim of long standing treatment by state of Massachusetts. This is a fine proposal and should pass.

II. The Proposal and the Supporting Statement May be Excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) as Relating to the Company's Ordinary Business Operations.

We believe that the Proposal and Supporting Statement may be properly omitted from the 2008 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7), because the subject matter of the Proposal deals with a matter relating to the ordinary business operations of the Company and does not fall within any of the exceptions to the exclusion.

As the Commission stated in its 1998 release, SEC Release No. 34-40018 (May 21, 1998), the policy underlying Rule 14a-8(i)(7) is to confine the resolution of ordinary business problems to management and the board of directors. This underlying policy rests on two considerations. The first consideration relates to the subject matter of the proposal and recognizes that certain tasks are so fundamental to management's ability to run a company on a day-to-day basis that these tasks could not, as a practical matter, be subject to direct shareholder oversight. However, proposals that relate to ordinary business matters but focus on sufficiently significant social policy issues generally would not be considered to be excludable, because the proposals would transcend the day-to-day business matters and raise policy issues so significant that it would be appropriate for a shareholder vote.

The second consideration relates to the degree to which the proposal seeks to micro-manage the company by probing too deeply into matters of a complex nature upon which shareholders would not be in a position to make an informed judgment.

A. Reporting Additional Information Beyond Legal Requirements Relating to the Company's Ordinary Business Operations Is Within the Scope of the Exclusion.

The Proposal requests that the Company report in its next proxy statement its processes for submitting, introducing, presenting, approving and carrying out shareholder proposals. Rule 14a-8(i)(7) allows a company to omit a proposal from its proxy materials "if the proposal deals with a matter relating to the company's ordinary business operations." When a proposal requests additional disclosure in a Commission-prescribed document, the Staff will consider whether the subject matter of the additional disclosure involves an ordinary business matter to determine if Rule 14a-8(i)(7) permits exclusion of the proposal. Johnson Controls, Inc. (October 26, 1999). We believe that the subject matter of the disclosure requested by the Proposal relates to the Company's ordinary business operations within the meaning of Rule 14a-8(i)(7).

The Company is subject to federal laws and regulations addressing specific requirements with respect to disclosure to shareholders, and compliance with these laws is part of the Company's day-to-day business. If implemented, the Proposal would impose a level of reporting on shareholder proposal procedures that is not mandated under any applicable law or regulation and that, in fact, expands the proxy statement disclosure of shareholder proposal information that is already required by Item 1 of Schedule 14A.

The Company's processes with respect to shareholder proposals are a fundamental part of the Company's day-to-day operations and involve a number of considerations. The design and effective oversight of these processes, from submission to implementation, involve basic decision-making on the part of the Company's management. In order to make these decisions, management of the Company must assess numerous factors, including, but not limited to, communications with the Company's shareholders, conduct of the annual meeting and compliance with federal and state law. A number of these decisions are strictly procedural. Moreover, the Proposal is not limited in scope to processes and decisions involving any particular type of shareholder proposal and fails to recognize the multiplicity of processes that may apply to shareholder proposals with different objectives. For example, implementation will differ for a proposal requesting the amendment of a company's charter or bylaws from a proposal seeking the preparation of a report.

In essence, the Proposal seeks information about the inner workings of the Company. It may be viewed as an attempt to second-guess the Company and to substitute the judgment of the shareholders for that of management and the board on the Company's decisions regarding its processing of shareholder proposals. The shareholders of the Company are not in the best position to dictate how the Company should process shareholder proposals or whether the Company should disclose that process. Thus, the Proposal constitutes an attempt to interfere with the day-to-day conduct of ordinary business. For these reasons, we believe that the Proposal seeks disclosure on matters that are best left to the Company's discretion in the conduct of the Company's ordinary business operations.

In the letters cited below, the Staff concurred that the shareholder proposals could be omitted pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because the subject matter of the additional disclosure requested by each proposal would, if implemented, require disclosure of matters involving ordinary business operations.

In Refac, the Staff agreed that, pursuant to the ordinary business exclusion, Refac could exclude a proposal to, among other things, improve its corporate disclosure practices and include other specified disclosure. This would have included requirements to report changes in officer and director employment and to supplement its disclosure by reporting the number of Refac's shareholders of record and the results of voting at the annual meeting, including the number of "broker routine" votes included in the voted shares. Refac stated that overseeing the disclosure process is a complex task, and shareholders are not in a position to make informed decisions on such matters. Refac (March 27, 2002).

In The Boeing Company, the Staff agreed that, pursuant to the ordinary business exclusion, Boeing could exclude a proposal to restate each shareholder proposal in full in "any additional request for shareholder votes," as well as to disclose solicitation expenses in quarterly and annual reports, because the Commission has determined what information it finds material regarding the state of a company's business and the requirements for proxy solicitations. If implemented, the proposal in The Boeing Company would have required the company to repeat disclosure of the full text of shareholder proposals in any subsequent voter reminder mailings to shareholders, a requirement that is clearly not included in the Commission's proxy solicitation regulations. Boeing submitted, and the Staff agreed, that the additional disclosure of shareholder proposals related to the company's ordinary business operations within the meaning of Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it imposed proxy solicitation disclosures not required by the Commission's proxy rules and, as to the solicitation expenses, pertained to the reporting of non-material financial information. The Boeing Company (February 20, 2001).

There are a number of other letters to the same effect. See, e.g., Weatherford International, Ltd. (February 25, 2005) (excluding a proposal to disclose the impact of reorganization from the United States to Bermuda); SBC Communications Inc. (February 4, 2005) (excluding a proposal seeking information on elimination of jobs within the company and offshore relocation activities); Newmont Mining Corporation (February 4, 2004) (excluding a proposal that requested a report on the risk posed by social and environmental liabilities to the company's operations, profitability and reputation); Allstate Corporation (February 16, 1999) (excluding a proposal seeking an investigation and a report on possible illegal activity by the company); International Business Machines (January 19, 1999) (allowing omission of a proposal because it would, if implemented, specify additional disclosures in the company's proxy statement about the company's relationships with its executive compensation consultants); LTV Corporation (November 25, 1998) (excluding a proposal to disclose certain financial information about its independent auditors in the company's annual report, with the Staff noting that "the proposal is directed at matters relating to the conduct of the Company's ordinary business operations"); Dow Jones & Company, Inc. (February 24, 1998) (excluding a proposal from the Proponent to include a list of dates and locations of all annual meetings held by public companies in the previous year in Dow Jones' next proxy statement). In each of the letters cited above, the subject matter of the additional disclosure sought by the proposals involved the ordinary business operations of the companies.

B. Exceptions to the "Ordinary Business" Exclusion

While proposals involving business matters that are routine or ordinary in nature generally may be excluded from a company's proxy materials based on Rule 14a-8(i)(7), there are certain exceptions to this exclusion. A company may not exclude, among other matters,

- proposals that raise social policy issues so significant that a shareholder vote on the matter is appropriate SEC Release No. 34-40018 (May 21, 1998); and
- proposals related to shareholder communications that limit the nature of their contemplated communications to "other than ordinary business matters" Pfizer, Inc. (January 7, 2004) (excluding a proposal to supply all information requested by shareholders).

1. The Proposal Does Not Raise a Significant Social Policy Issue Requiring Shareholder Consideration.

We do not believe, nor has the Staff indicated in the letters we have reviewed that it believes, that the process of submitting, introducing, presenting, approving and carrying out shareholder proposals involves a significant social policy issue. However, in the event that the Staff does not agree with us on the social significance of this issue, we believe that the Proposal is still excludable.

The standard with regard to exclusion of a proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) is not whether the proposal may be construed as tangentially relating to a significant social policy issue, but whether the proposal requests action in furtherance of a significant social policy issue.

Weatherford International Ltd. (February 25, 2005); SBC Communications Inc. (February 4, 2005); Washington Mutual, Inc. (March 6, 2002); The Mead Corporation (January 31, 2001). In Weatherford International Ltd., the Staff agreed that the company could omit a proposal to report on the impact of its reorganization from the United States to Bermuda pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7). The Staff concurred with Weatherford International's argument that social policy issues are not raised when a proposal requests an evaluation of essentially ordinary business activities. Weatherford International Ltd. (February 25, 2005). In SBC Communications Inc., the company was permitted to omit a proposal that sought information related to elimination of jobs within the company and offshore relocation activities. SBC Communications reasoned, and the Staff agreed, that the proposal was only tangentially related to a social policy issue because it requested information on corporate decision-making with respect to management of its workforce, which is an ordinary business matter. SBC Communications Inc. (February 4, 2005). In Washington Mutual, Inc., the company was permitted to exclude a proposal that requested, among other things, a report on the company's policy regarding "speculative real estate development." Washington Mutual commented that the proposal did not involve a request to institute a broad or fundamental corporate policy regarding a social policy issue, but simply sought a report evaluating the impact of undertaking real estate development projects on the company's performance. Washington Mutual, Inc. (March 6, 2002). In The Mead Corporation, the Staff permitted the company to exclude a proposal requiring a report on the company's liability projection methodology and an assessment of other major environmental risks, such as those created by climate change. The Mead Corporation noted that the proposal did not request the company to support any principles regarding protection of the environment, but simply requested a report evaluating the company's future environmental risks. The Mead Corporation (January 31, 2001).

Here, as in Weatherford International Ltd., SBC Communications Inc., Washington Mutual, Inc. and The Mead Corporation, the Proposal does not request any action in furtherance of a significant social policy issue, nor does it seek to transform the Company's practices with respect to shareholder proposals. Moreover, the Proponent does not request that the Company's report include strategies to improve its processing of shareholder proposals or otherwise adopt a broad or fundamental corporate policy regarding the processing of shareholder proposals or any other significant social policy issue. Rather, the Proposal seeks only a report describing these practices. As discussed earlier, we believe that the effective formulation and oversight of processes with respect to shareholder proposals involve a number of day-to-day matters that are best left to management and the board of directors. We do not believe that a report on the Company's decision-making and practices with respect to shareholder proposals raises any "sufficiently significant social policy issue"; accordingly, the Proposal is excludable pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7). SEC Release No. 34-40018 (May 21, 1998).

2. The Proposal Involves General Shareholder Communications and Does Not Limit the Nature of the Communications to Other than Ordinary Business Matters.

A proposal is excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when it does not limit the nature of the shareholder communications contemplated by the proposal to "other than ordinary business matters." Pfizer, Inc. (January 7, 2004) (excluding a proposal to supply all information requested by shareholders). The Staff explained this distinction in its report entitled "Review of the Proxy Process Regarding the Nomination and Election of Directors" (July 15, 2003) (the "Proxy Process Report").

In The Kroger Co. (April 11, 2003), the Staff denied a request to exclude a shareholder proposal seeking a bylaw amendment to require the board to constitute a shareholder committee to communicate with the Kroger board about the subject matter of shareholder proposals approved but not implemented. In a footnote to the Proxy Process Report, the Staff noted that "the Division did not grant a no-action position to Kroger regarding exclusion of the proposal under the ordinary business exclusion, as the proposal limited the nature of the communications to other than ordinary business matters." Proxy Process Report at note 53 (emphasis added).

In contrast, the Staff in PeopleSoft, Inc. (March 14, 2003) and Advanced Fibre Communications, Inc. (March 10, 2003) permitted the companies to exclude shareholder proposals requesting that their boards establish an Office of the Board of Directors to enable direct communications between non-management directors and shareholders. According to the Proxy Process Report, the Staff granted no-action relief to PeopleSoft and Advanced Fibre under the ordinary business exclusion because "the proposals did not limit the nature of the communications to other than ordinary business matters." Proxy Process Report at note 55 (emphasis added).

Here, the Proposal does not limit the nature of the requested report to other than ordinary business matters. On the contrary, the Proposal requires the Company's board and management to report on its processes relating to shareholder proposals. Unlike the proposal in The Kroger Co., where the Proposal was limited to shareholder proposals approved but not implemented, the Proposal would require the board and management to supply information about any number of day-to-day business decisions related to its processing of all shareholder proposals from the time they are submitted to the time they are carried out. Because the Proposal does not limit the nature of the communications to other than ordinary business matters, it is excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7).

Even if some portions of the Proposal should be deemed to be other than ordinary business matters, we believe that other components of the Proposal are intended to improve shareholder communications, which is part of the Company's ordinary business. Therefore, under PeopleSoft, Inc. and Advanced Fibre Communications, Inc., the entire proposal may be excluded.

There are a number of additional letters where the Staff has allowed the exclusion of proposals where only a portion of the proposal addressed ordinary business matters. In E*Trade Group, Inc., the Staff allowed the omission of a proposal, which recommended a number of potential mechanisms for increasing shareholder value, under the ordinary business exclusion. The Staff concluded that even though only two out of four of the mechanisms suggested by the proponent implicated ordinary business matters, the entire proposal could be omitted. The Staff expressly noted that "although the proposal appears to address matters outside the scope of ordinary business, subparts "c." and "d." relate to E*TRADE's ordinary business operations." E*Trade Group, Inc. (October 31, 2000). The Staff reached the same conclusion in Associated Estates Realty Corp., where it held that a proposal relating in part to executive officer compensation and the adoption of a business plan to increase shareholder value was excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) "because the proposal relates in part to ordinary business operations (e.g., the disposition of non-core businesses and assets)." Associated Estates Realty Corp. (March 23, 2000).

III. Conclusion

Based on the foregoing, we request that the Staff concur in our view that the Company may omit the Proposal and the Supporting Statement in their entirety from the 2008 proxy statement and that no enforcement action will be recommended to the Commission if the Proposal and the Supporting Statement are excluded.

The Company expects to file proxy materials with the Commission in early April, 2008.

Narrative

On the above date and time I responded to Kinkos Printing located at 1 Mifflin place and was met by the manager Jamal Yusuf. Who informed me that the a male(John Cropo) was inside the store and refused to leave and was being very loud and intimidating the customers. I went inside with the manager and asked the male to leave. He refused to leave stating that he had a letter from the Supreme Court stating that he had the right to be their. I asked the male again to leave and informed him that he was subject to arrest if he did not leave the store. Again the manager asked him several more time to please leave the business and he refused to leave. I again informed him that he would be arrested if he did not leave. The manager then again asked him to leave and he refused again. At this point he was placed under arrest for the above charge and the wagon was called. Mr. Crapo was placed into the wagon along with all of his belongings and transported to base to be processed.

Pine Street Inn graduates 146 from job training programs

BY LINDA RODRIGUEZ
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

It's not a sound people would typically associate with the Pine Street Inn, New England's largest homeless shelter, located on Harrison Avenue, but on Wednesday morning, the instantly recognizable tune of "Pomp and Circumstance" drowned out the noise of passing cars and trucks and helped set the scene for the Inn's annual graduation ceremony.

For some of the graduates, this was the first time that the old commencement standard was played for them and their first time donning the cap and gown. Beaming and wearing red or white carnations pinned to their gowns, the graduates of the organization's three job training and readiness programs filed into the large white tent set up on the Berkeley Street side of the property. Not all of the 146 individuals who graduated from the programs could make it back for commencement, but around half did.

"You're not here today because you've learned a new skill, though all of you have. You're here because you learned a new way to live," Lyndia Downie, executive director and president of Pine Street, told them.

It's not exactly a typical graduation class, with graduates varying widely in age, as well as ethnic backgrounds, but what they all had in common was that they had reached a place in their lives where they needed help. The graduates are all individuals who live in the Pine Street's shelters, whether it's the emergency men's or women's shelter, or the more long-term transitional housing, geared toward helping individuals cope with addiction or mental illness. And all have completed one and sometimes more of the three courses offered by the homeless advocacy agency: the STRIVE (Support and Training Result in Valuable Employees) program, a three-week job readiness and placement program; the Building Maintenance Training Program, a 14-week course that prepares participants for work in facilities maintenance; and the Food Service Training program, a 10-week course that trains participants in food safety, cooking methods, and more.

The purpose of the job readiness programs is to help get homeless people who have been out of the work force for a while back on their feet, and eventually back into housing. What it effectively does, however, is much more than that.

Student speaker Anthony Soldano, who graduated from the STRIVE program last year and came back to complete the Food Service Training Program, credited his caseworker and the Pine Street Inn with saving his life.

Soldano said that not long ago, a knee injury provided the gateway to an Oxycontin addiction. When he arrived at the Pine Street

Graduate and student speaker Anthony Soldano with Jeff Taylor, founder of Monster.com.

Inn in October 2005, he was a full-fledged addict, scared and skinny, he said. He eventually moved out to the Men's Transitional Housing Program on Long Island; only a few weeks into his stay there, however, Soldano blew out his knee again. It was the support of the Pine Street staff and the strength that they taught him, he said, that kept him from relapsing.

"I hope you're getting the picture here, I'm a lot of work," he said, eliciting laughs from the audience.

But while Soldano still stays with Pine Street, it might not be for too much longer — he's just gotten a job as a cook with the Boston Park Plaza Hotel.

"I'm on my way out, I've got one foot out the door," he said. "It blows my mind that I work in one of the classiest places in Boston ... I just wish I could go out there and say, 'Oh yeah, I live at Pine Street.'"

Congratulating his fellow graduates, he said, "Some people drive by here and they see the Pine Street and think of a dark, miserable place. And some times it is. But this is proof that it's not always."

This year's commencement speaker was Jeff Taylor, who is, fittingly, the founder of job-search Website, Monster.com. Taylor, whose engaging personality immediately had the crowd of graduates and their families smiling and laughing, also gave them some advice. "Prove to yourself how hard you can work ... Each of you is going to get a job because you're smart, but how hard you work dictates how well you do," he said. "The harder you work, the luckier you will be."

Reduce arthritis pain? It's not such a big stretch.

COPY

Studies show that 30 minutes of moderate physical activity three or more days a week can reduce arthritis pain and help you move more easily. So take a walk. Go dancing. Ride a bike. Go for a swim. Make it fun by inviting friends or family to join you. If 30 minutes is too much, try 10 or 15 minutes at a time. Stick with it, and in four to six weeks you could be hurting less and feeling more energetic.

Studies show that 30 minutes of moderate physical activity three or more days a week can reduce arthritis pain and help you move more easily. So take a walk. Go dancing. Ride a bike. Go for a swim. Make it fun by inviting friends or family to join you. If 30 minutes is too much, try 10 or 15 minutes at a time. Stick with it, and in four to six weeks you could be hurting less and feeling more energetic.

Physical Activity.

15 June 2007

Page two (02) - of two (02) pages, three (03) pages. Four (04) PALS.

We've been around a long time we like to think the legend we're in true. The Marquis La Fayette played an important role in US history. Mr. John Adams who represented the (US) Continental Congress according to one (01) reputed source was told if he learned French we as rebel colonies would get the help it need from His most Christian Majesty King Louis XVI to summarize it happened at Yorktown - the UK military a summer force was without food & ammunition and was expecting supply when a French fleet arrived and it's presence in the harbor made it too crowded ^{for} the UK fleet to enter. There was a strong storm so the UK fleet returned to it's New York Headquarters. UK ground commander had no choice but to surrender, et cetera ("ETC")

The story of Heidi was written over one hundred years ago. However, it is far from a period piece. In the Swiss Alps, where it is set, a hundred years is just the blinking of an eye, and the character of Heidi is no more fixed in time than Alice in Wonderland or Christopher Robin. She is a child of the centuries; we see in her the daughter that every mother dreams of having and every little girl dreams of being. Her presence makes us happy, and so her story has endured.

The story of Heidi is simple. A five-year-old orphan girl is brought to live with her reclusive and hostile grandfather on a remote mountain in the Alps. Her innocence and charm change him and others with whom she comes in contact. But her love for the mountains and her life is so complete that something must go wrong. It does: her greedy aunt takes her away to serve as a paid companion to a crippled child in Frankfurt. Heidi, loving and accepting by nature, endures her lot, but, pining away for her mountain home, becomes so ill that an understanding doctor recommends that she return. Not only does she go back but the crippled child also visits her and regains her health as well.

FOREWORD

COPY

What is harder to bear than paradise lost, and what is sweeter to experience than paradise regained? Heidi, truly innocent, is wrenched away abruptly from the complete freedom of the mountain life and from all that she holds dear and is thrust unprepared into a city world of ritual, "proper behavior," and dark rooms where she can never see the sun. The compassionate reader feels both pity for Heidi's predicament and envy when she regains what she has lost. It is a deeply moving and greatly satisfying experience for the reader.

Johanna Spyri wrote Heidi in 1880. She had lived all her life in the Swiss Alps, and her love of the mountains is an integral part of her writing. Heidi's consuming love of her mountain home, her love for her grandfather and grandmother, for the young goatherd Peter, and the goats, and her faith in God's wisdom are made so vibrant by Spyri's descriptions that they transport us from the smog and pollution many of us experience in our daily lives to the rarefied purity of the sweet, clean mountain air. The energy of her pen becomes the energy of little Heidi, rushing back and forth, back and forth, "first to the goat-shed, then to the fir trees, and then to the hut door," jumping over the water trough, delighting in the seasons, in her happiness, and in her home.

Heidi is a delight not only for the young child who is read to but also for the adult who reads it aloud and for older children who read it on their own. It is for anyone who appreciates nature and freedom—a story that expresses the author's love of beauty in nature and in people and expresses her belief that God is reflected in this beauty. Does this limit its appeal? Hardly—for Heidi has remained a favorite book for over one hundred years, and this beautiful edition should ensure another one hundred.

sketches, as apparently he was within his legal rights in doing. 'Rogers' was hardly the right word, though we may perhaps without violence to the family character concede that he was impetuous and demanding.

At Luxor, weakened by his disease but with a normal temperament, John, Jr., encamped, like the lion and the lizard in the poem, on top of a ruined palace, and devoted himself to assembling the largest collection of Egyptian antiquities ever up to that time collected by an American, perhaps by any individual for his own account. He wrote Cousin John, warning him to be prepared to respond to drafts up to fifty thousand dollars and authorized him to put one hundred thousand dollars into one of the cotton mills he was building in the new city of Lowell, provided he would manage it himself. It was in the ancient city of the Pharaohs that he completed the noble will by which he is long remembered, endowing the Lowell Institute.

The eighteen-twenties in Boston were the heyday of the lyceum and the improving lecture. John, Jr., interested in this new form of what we should now call adult education, had been a founding member of the Boston Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge, which in 1830, with Daniel Webster as president, had begun its career with a two-hour discourse by Edward Everett on the life of Benjamin Franklin. Before sailing for France, he had drafted a provisional testament directing that in the event of his death one half of his fortune should be employed in carrying on the work in perpetuity on a more comprehensive scale. At Luxor he completed the terms of the bequest and clarified its aims in a document remarkable for its thoughtful vision.

'For the more perfect demonstration of the truth of those moral and religious precepts, by which alone, as I believe, man can be secure of happiness in this world and that to come, I wish a course of lectures to be delivered on the historical and internal evidences in favor of Christianity. I wish all disputed points of faith and ceremony to be avoided, and the attention of the lecturers to be directed to the moral doctrines of the Gospel, stating their opinions, if they will, but not engaging in controversy, even on the subject of the penalty for disobedience.

'As the prosperity of my native land, New England, which is sterile and unproductive, must depend hereafter, as it has heretofore depended, first, on the moral qualities, and secondly, on the intelligence and information of its inhabitants, I am desirous of trying to contribute towards this second object also; — and I wish courses of lectures to be established on physics and chemistry, with their application to the arts; also, on botany, zoology, geology, and mineralogy, connected with their particular utility to man.

'After the establishment of these courses of lectures, should disposable funds remain, or, in process of time, be accumulated, the trustee may appoint courses of lectures to be delivered on the literature and eloquence of our language, and even on those of foreign nations, if he see fit. He may, also, from time to time, establish lectures on any subject that, in his opinion, the wants and taste of the age may demand.

'As infidel opinions appear of late injurious to society, and easily to insinuate themselves into a man's dissertations on any subject, however remote from religion, no man ought to be appointed a lecturer, who is not willing to declare, and who does not previously declare, his belief in the divine revelation of the Old and New Testaments, leaving the interpretation thereof to his own conscience.'

He appointed his cousin executor of his will and sole trustee of the lecture foundation, providing further that each trustee should appoint his successor within a week after his accession to the office. He stipulated that the trustee should choose to follow him in preference to all others some male descendant of his grandfather, the Old Judge, 'provided there be one competent to hold the office and of the name of Lowell.' The study he had given to the most minute details of the bequest appears in the provision governing the fees that might be charged for the more abstruse courses for advanced students. In the event of inflation the charge for admission to a six-months course should be equal to the current price of two bushels of wheat. To keep the lecture hall from filling up with the floating population that even in those days was wont to despise in loco on the Common, the trustee was directed to require of every person attending the lectures that he be neatly dressed and of orderly behavior.

It was a far-sighted benefaction shrewdly formulated in a majestic setting! The story of the success of the enterprise is part of the record of John Amory Lowell who as first trustee invested and multiplied the endowment, planned the courses, and selected the lecturers for more than forty years.

From Luxor, John, Jr., having joined forces with a young English expert, penetrated Ethiopia on his Arab horse as far as the site of the ancient city of Meroe. But his dysentery had returned and he was attacked by a painful disease of the eyes. He felt it was time to push on to India. Following the advice of Mohammed Ali, he crossed the Nubian Desert, fourteen days by camel-back, to a small port on the western coast of the Red Sea, and chartered a schooner navigated by Arabs, to carry him with his attendants and impedimenta across to Moscha. They sailed on the sixteenth of December, 1835. Six days later he was shipwrecked. On the evening of the twenty-second, it came on to blow with blinding rain, they drifted among shoals — but let the traveller himself take up the tale:

At the end of several hours, we struck on a coral reef. Then all hands jumped overboard to push the vessel off the rocks. My sari and cook joined the crew in this duty; but a fresh north-west wind, accompanied by rain and much mist, rendered their efforts unavailing. I retreated to my covered litter again, and put what gold was not already in my broad Turkish girdle, into my pocket. I did the same with my letters of credit. The water now entered fast through all the seams in the larboard side of the vessel. The men could not bail the schooner fast enough; and, as she continued to strike, it was evident that the leak would become worse. Yanni now called out, "They are throwing our cases overboard!" True enough; the hold of the little vessel had been crowded with my effects, and I now saw them floating alongside. There went my best tent, for its poles kept it from sinking, and the waves soon carried it out of sight. Here lay the box that contained my reflecting circle, and another with my Parisian rifle. These two boxes were large, and besides the above and various perishable articles, were filled with a variety of European luxuries and provisions. Macaroni, olives, tongues, the best of the biscuit, the best of the rice, sugar, and tea, were among the number.

I kept nothing back, except my trunks of wearing apparel, my books, writing materials, a leather bag, into which I had thrust my journals, my pistols, certain gilt French Bayonettes for presents, and a few other articles.

Presently the dragoman exclaimed, "The hands are going to quit the vessel, and I shall quit too." His threat did not disturb me, as I knew the poor fellow had not the wherewithal to buy a dinner without me; but I did not much relish being left alone on the deck by the seamen. I had always counted, if it came to the worst, on having their aid and the raft to put me on shore. As for swimming, I have not strength for that, especially in my clothes, and so thorough a ducking and exposure might of itself make an end of me. I entered my litter again to get a pistol, which I thrust into my girdle. Yanni exclaimed, "They are carrying away our raft!" I stepped again on deck and sure enough, the men were all in the water, foolishly attempting to put one of their packs of four great elephants' teeth upon a raft that could scarcely carry more than one. "That raft is mine," I exclaimed; "I made it, and it is tied with my cord, for the purpose of saving my effects." These people were accustomed to hear me speak with the tone of a master; they hesitated, and then slowly made off with the raft. "Quit that raft," said I; "I will

by FERRIS GREENSLET

Much water of life has flowed under Mr. Greenslet's bridge, and he has fished it as profitably for the symbolic trout of the imagination as for the actual trout whose capture is his hobby. This is the perceptive autobiography of a man-of-letters turned publisher, and brought by the richness of his own temperament as much as by his professional activities into touch with movements of the mind and leaders of the race both here and abroad. I suspect that this excellently written, always charming, often penetrating book belongs among the permanent records of our country, in the last of one century and the beginnings of another one. Here is a shrewd literary artist who gives more of the history of this area of our culture than the professional historians, and only by telling his own story.

Born in New York State, educated in Connecticut and New York, operating from Boston where he was successively editor of The Atlantic Monthly and Houghton Mifflin Company, this scholar, gentleman, fisherman, and familiar philosopher has made his career as interesting as a novel, because, like the best novelists, he has seen through the eyes of a character — himself — the significance of action. Few in English in our day have done it better, few with the informality of the great essayists, few with story-telling power, and few with such unashamed delight in what he regards as really important — friendship, fishing, and quality in living, wherever and however you find it. Unpretentious, like most good personal books, informative without effort, literature in the best sense, which means that ease conceals its art, I strongly recommend this autobiography to those who are looking for books that are to be owned and kept as well as read. — Henry Seidel Canby

A graduate of Wesleyan and Columbia Universities, Ferris Greenslet began his literary career as a reviewer for The Nation, was later Associate Editor of The Atlantic Monthly, and then served for many years as editor-in-chief at Houghton Mifflin Company. Since 1942 he has produced three books — a distinguished autobiographical volume, Under the Bridge; a meaty anthology, The Practical Cogitator (with Charles P. Curtis, Jr.), and now this 'history of the heart, mind, imagination, animal spirits, and pocketbooks of New England.' His earlier books include biographies of Walter Pater, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, and James Russell Lowell. He is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Dear Shareowner:

We are pleased to announce IDACORP, Inc.'s participation in the Direct Registration Profile Modification System. This system will allow IDACORP shareowners to hold their shares in book-entry form, rather than through physical certificates. Effective July 2, 2007, all issuances and transfers of IDACORP shares will be in book-entry form unless you specifically request a stock certificate.

Book-entry shares provide several advantages over share certificates:

- Shares held in book-entry form cannot be lost, stolen or misplaced, eliminating the cost and inconvenience of safekeeping or replacing stock certificates.
- Book-entry shares can be electronically transferred between your account at our transfer agent, Wells Fargo Shareowner Services, and your account at your broker/dealer. This eliminates the time, cost and risk related to transporting physical certificates.

Shareowners may also convert their existing stock certificates to book-entry shares.

To convert your existing IDACORP stock certificates to book-entry form, mail your certificates and your instructions for converting the certificates to:

Wells Fargo Shareowner Services
P O Box 64874
St Paul, MN 55164-0874

COPY

Do not sign your stock certificates since you are only converting them into book-entry form in your account and not requesting a transfer. We suggest you send your certificates by registered mail, insured for 3% of the market value. A confirmation of the transaction will be mailed to you for your records.

IDACORP is excited to be able to offer its shareowners this method of holding shares in our company. Questions regarding this service may be directed to Wells Fargo Shareowner Services at the above address or at 1-800-565-7890. Please also refer to a list of Frequently Asked Questions on the reverse side of this letter.

Yours truly,

J LaMont Keen
President & Chief Executive Officer

Frequently Asked Questions about Direct Registration

What is direct registration?

Direct registration is a method for recording your shares of IDACORP stock in "book-entry" form. Book-entry means that your shares are registered in your name on IDACORP's stock record books without the need for a stock certificate. Direct registration shares have the same rights and privileges as shares held in stock certificate form. Shares held in book-entry form can be electronically transferred or sold without having to deliver a physical certificate.

Are there any costs for direct registration?

No. Shareowners are not charged any fees to hold their shares in book-entry form.

What type of confirmation will I receive regarding my shares held in book-entry?

A Direct Registration Statement confirming any activity affecting your book-entry shares will be mailed by Wells Fargo after your transaction is completed. Please retain your statement for tax purposes.

Does holding shares in book-entry form affect my receipt of dividends or communications from IDACORP?

No. There will be no change in the way you receive dividend payments, proxy information or other communications from IDACORP as a result of direct registration.

What impact does direct registration have on my brokerage account?

You can move book-entry shares electronically between your Wells Fargo account and your brokerage account if your broker/dealer participates in the direct registration system. You still can sell shares through your broker/dealer. Please contact your broker/dealer for more information.

COPY

How do I sell shares held in book-entry?

You may sell your book-entry shares through Wells Fargo at a cost of $10.00 per transaction plus $.10 per share commission or transfer the shares to your broker/dealer and sell the shares through your broker/dealer.

How do I request a certificate for my shares held in book-entry? Is there any cost?

If you prefer to hold a physical certificate, you may request a certificate from Wells Fargo. There is no cost for issuance of the certificate.

How do I access my account online?

Log on to <http://www.shareowneronline.com>, select "First Time Visitor," click on "New Member Sign-up" and follow the prompts to access your account.

1. Sell all or a portion of your Plan shares and remain in the Plan: Complete number 1 below. To direct deposit your sales proceeds, see number 2. Your shares will be sold as soon as practicable following receipt of your request, as defined by the terms and conditions of the Plan.

2. Direct deposit of sale proceeds: Complete number 2 below. Provide us your Account Type, ABA/Routing Number (nine-digit number begins with 0, 1, 2, or 3), and Bank Account Number. All requests to deposit sale proceeds directly into an account must be accompanied by a voided check for checking account, a savings deposit slip for savings account, or written request with signature(s) medallion guaranteed. The net sale proceeds will be credited to your bank account as soon as practicable following the settlement date of the trade.

Please note:

- Your bank information will not be retained for future use.
- If we are unable to process your bank credit with the information you provide, a check for the net proceeds will be sent to the address of record.
- Bank credits can only be made to Banks or Financial Institutions operating in the United States.

3. Deposit stock certificates: Complete number 3 below to deposit stock certificate(s) you may be holding into the Plan. DO NOT ENDORSE your certificate(s). Send stock certificate(s) and the completed Transaction Request Form to the address shown on the front of your statement. We recommend that you use traceable mail and insure the package for 3% of the current market value, which is the cost to replace lost certificate(s).

4. Automatic Cash Withdrawal and Investment: Complete number 4 below to either discontinue or change the amount of your automatic cash withdrawal.

5. Terminate from the Plan: Complete number 5 below, checking only one of the options for termination. To direct deposit your sales proceeds, see number 2. Your account will be terminated as soon as practicable following receipt of your request, as defined by the terms and conditions of the Plan.

To transfer shares held in the Plan for gifting or other purposes: Enclose a stock power or separate sheet with transfer instructions listing the names, addresses and taxpayer identification numbers of the new owners. Transfer instructions must bear a Medallion Guarantee (do not date or notate). A notarized signature is not acceptable. You may obtain a stock power by visiting www.wellsfargo.com/shareownerservices or from your bank or broker. Other transfer requirements may apply. To receive additional information on this transaction call Shareowner Services at the number located on the front of your statement.

Stock certificates may be obtained by calling, faxing or mailing a request to Shareowner Services.¹

The transaction request below and any other communication regarding the Plan should be sent to the Plan address shown on the front of this statement. Be sure to include the bottom portion of this statement.

Selling participants should be aware that the share price may fall or rise during the period between a request for sale, its receipt by Shareowner Services, and the actual sale in the open market. The price risk will be borne solely by you. Once a sale request has been submitted to Shareowner Services, it cannot be modified or cancelled.

Net Amount: For shares sold, the net amount reflects brokerage commission, service charges and any taxes withheld.

Price Per Share: Purchase price per share includes brokerage commission if paid by participant.

Settlement Date: Market purchases & sales are posted to your account as of the settlement date. The settlement date is the date the plan administrator receives the shares or cash proceeds from the broker. Settlement date is three business days after the purchase/sale trade-date.

¹Certain requirements or restrictions may require your request to be submitted in writing.
²If you hold shares in a company that participates in DRS, your shares will be issued in book-entry form.

DIVISION OF CORPORATION FINANCE
INFORMAL PROCEDURES REGARDING SHAREHOLDER PROPOSALS

The Division of Corporation Finance believes that its responsibility with respect to matters arising under Rule 14a-8 [17 CFR 240.14a-8], as with other matters under the proxy rules, is to aid those who must comply with the rule by offering informal advice and suggestions and to determine, initially, whether or not it may be appropriate in a particular matter to recommend enforcement action to the Commission. In connection with a shareholder proposal under Rule 14a-8, the Division's staff considers the information furnished to it by the Company in support of its intention to exclude the proposals from the Company's proxy materials, as well as any information furnished by the proponent or the proponent's representative.

Although Rule 14a-8(k) does not require any communications from shareholders to the Commission's staff, the staff will always consider information concerning alleged violations of the statutes administered by the Commission, including argument as to whether or not activities proposed to be taken would be violative of the statute or rule involved. The receipt by the staff of such information, however, should not be construed as changing the staff's informal procedures and proxy review into a formal or adversary procedure.

It is important to note that the staff's and Commission's no-action responses to Rule 14a-8(j) submissions reflect only informal views. The determinations reached in these no-action letters do not and cannot adjudicate the merits of a company's position with respect to the proposal. Only a court such as a U.S. District Court can decide whether a company is obligated to include shareholder proposals in its proxy materials. Accordingly a discretionary determination not to recommend or take Commission enforcement action, does not preclude a proponent, or any shareholder of a company, from pursuing any rights he or she may have against the company in court, should the management omit the proposal from the company's proxy material.

Response of the Office of Chief Counsel
Division of Corporation Finance

Re: IDACORP, Inc.
Incoming letter dated October 26, 2007

The proposal requests that the company's board of directors provide a report in its next proxy statement on "the process of submission, introduction, presentation, and approval and carrying out of shareholder proposals."

There appears to be some basis for your view that IDACORP may exclude the proposal under rule 14a-8(i)(7), as relating to IDACORP's ordinary business operations (i.e., the process of introducing and presenting shareholder proposals at an annual meeting). Accordingly, we will not recommend enforcement action to the Commission if IDACORP omits the proposal from its proxy materials in reliance on rule 14a-8(i)(7).

Sincerely,
