Emeco Holdings – 1H09 Earnings and Updated FY09 Guidance

Emeco Holdings Limited (ASX: EHL) today issued a preliminary overview of its first half earnings to 31 December 2008 and provided an update to 2009 full year earnings guidance due to ongoing market volatility currently being experienced.

31 December 2008 Interim Earnings Result

Emeco expects to report a record interim net profit after tax of $39.1 million for the six months ended 31 December 2008 representing a 27.9% increase on the prior corresponding period. Operating free cashflow (including net maintenance capex) is expected to be $51.4 million for the period. The results remain subject to final audit review.

The interim result, on an annualized basis, is in line with Emeco's previous earnings guidance of $75 - $81 million and reflects a strong operational contribution from Emeco's businesses in Australia, Canada, Indonesia and the US.

The Company continues to observe stable equipment asset values due to a combination of factors including exchange rate movements, production cuts by equipment manufacturers, differential pricing advantage of used over new equipment and general quality of the Emeco fleet due to its world class asset management practices. As a result Emeco expects to announce at its half year results net tangible assets per share of $0.82 as at 31 December 2008.

Outlook and FY2009 Guidance

At the Company's Annual General Meeting in mid November 2008, FY2009 earnings guidance was reaffirmed at $75 - $81 million, however it was noted that Emeco was not immune from the external global influences emerging at that time.

Since November 2008 the global economy and financial markets have continued to weaken, resulting in a rapid deterioration in the global mining and construction industries. In particular Emeco is experiencing an emerging decline in demand from customers exposed to base metals and coking coal and from customers forced to close mines due to commodity price pressure rendering them sub economic.

These declines have been to date partly offset by demand from customers exposed to thermal coal, gold and iron ore, and those looking to preserve capital and operating flexibility through the rental model. However, Emeco expects some earnings volatility in the short term as customers continue to adjust to the current operating environment.

Emeco believes downside risks to the previous FY2009 earnings guidance have now emerged and the Company now anticipates net profit after tax for the full year to be in the range of $65 - $72 million, broadly in line with average consensus estimates of approximately $70 million and FY2008 earnings of $67.5 million. Furthermore, the present market volatility and the uncertain global outlook for Emeco's customer base have significantly increased the uncertainty of any forecasts made in the current environment.

Despite an expected weaker second half, Emeco's rental model is expected to capitalise on opportunities resulting from tighter credit and operating conditions for its customers and the significant levels of infrastructure investment targeted by recently announced government initiatives. Management remains confident in the strength of Emeco's operating model and believes that it stands to benefit significantly in the longer term from these opportunities.

The Company remains well capitalised with significant headroom under its 3 year debt facility, which was renegotiated in August 2008 and is comfortably compliant with all of its debt covenants demonstrating its strong financial position. Emeco remains focused on improving operating cashflows through a continued focus on working capital management and capital expenditures.

Emeco CEO, Mr Laurie Freedman said; "Our Business model is sound, and the strength of Emeco is best demonstrated by the delivery of a record first half result. Our revised guidance is based on the back of extraordinary market conditions. We believe the quality of Emeco's fleet and its global diversification position the business very well to capitalise upon the return of normal market conditions, the expected boost from major infrastructure spending projects and a continuation of the capital preservation theme throughout the resource industry."

Emeco is scheduled to release its interim financial statements and further operational detail on Wednesday, 25 February 2009.
