UNITED STATES TAXATION

United States Internal Revenue Service Circular 230 Notice: To ensure compliance with Internal Revenue Service Circular 230, prospective investors are hereby notified that: (a) any discussion of United States federal tax issues contained or referred to in this final terms or any document referred to herein is not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used by prospective investors for the purpose of avoiding penalties that may be imposed on them under the U.S. Internal Revenue Code; (b) such discussion is written for use in connection with the promotion or marketing of the transactions or matters addressed herein; and (c) prospective investors should seek advice based on their particular circumstances from an independent tax advisor.

The following summary supplements the discussion under "Tax Matters" in the Prospectus dated as of June 3, 2008.

Original Issue Discount

All stated interest payments made on the note will be treated as original issue discount ("OID") to a U.S. Holder, and will be included in income in one of the manners described below. OID will accrue on the notes on either a straight-line basis or under a constant-yield method, based on daily compounding.

Accruing U.S. Holder

An accrual basis taxpayer, a taxpayer in a special class, including, but not limited to, a regulated investment company, common trust fund, or a certain type of pass-through entity, or a cash basis taxpayer who so elects (each such holder an "Accruing U.S. Holder"), will be required to include OID in its income on a current basis. More specifically, an Accruing U.S. Holder can calculate the amount of OID that it must include in income by adding the daily portions of OID with respect to the note for each day during the taxable year that such Accruing U.S. Holder holds its note. An Accruing U.S. Holder can determine the daily portion by allocating to each day in any accrual period a pro rata portion of the OID allocable to that accrual period. An Accruing U.S. Holder may select an accrual period of any length that does not exceed six months with respect to its note, and such Accruing U.S. Holder may vary the length of each accrual period over the term of your note (not exceeding six months). An Accruing U.S. Holder can determine the amount of OID allocable to an accrual period by multiplying the note's adjusted issue price at the beginning of the accrual period by the note's yield to maturity. An Accruing U.S. Holder must determine the note's yield to maturity on the basis of compounding at the close of each accrual period and adjusting for the length of each accrual period. Further, an Accruing U.S. Holder determines the note's adjusted issue price at the beginning of any accrual period by adding the note's issue price and any accrued OID for each prior accrual period, and then subtracting any payments previously made on the note. The amount of OID allocable to the final accrual period is equal to the difference between the amount payable at the maturity of the note and the note's adjusted issue price as of the beginning of the final accrual period.

Non-Electing U.S. Holder

In general, an individual or other cash basis U.S. Holder is not required to currently include OID in its income, unless such holder elects to do so (each such holder that does not elect to accrue OID on the notes a "Non-Electing U.S. Holder"). However, the treatment of stated interest payments by Non-Electing U.S. Holders is unclear, and it is possible that a Non-Electing U.S. Holder may be required to include any stated interest in income as it receives it. Any gain a Non-Electing U.S. Holder realizes on the sale or retirement of its note will be ordinary income to the extent of accrued OID that has not yet been included in income through the date of sale or retirement. However, a Non-Electing U.S. Holder will be required to defer deductions for interest on borrowings allocable to its note in an amount not exceeding the amount of accrued OID not yet included in income until the taxable year in which such OID is included in income.

Medicare Tax

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 2012, a U.S. Holder that is an individual or estate, or a trust that does not fall into a special class of trusts that is exempt from such tax, will be subject to a 3.8% tax on the lesser of (1) the U.S. Holder's "net investment income" for the relevant taxable year and (2) the excess of the U.S. Holder's modified adjusted gross income for the taxable year over a certain threshold (which in the case of individuals will be between $125,000 and $250,000, depending on the individual's circumstances). A holder's net investment income will generally include its interest income and its net gains from the disposition of notes, unless such interest income or net gains are derived in the ordinary course of the conduct of a trade or business (other than a trade or business that consists of certain passive or trading activities). If you are a U.S. Holder that is an individual, estate or trust, you are urged to consult your tax advisors regarding the applicability of the Medicare tax to your income and gains in respect of your investment in the notes.

Information with Respect to Foreign Financial Assets

Owners of "specified foreign financial assets" with an aggregate value in excess of $50,000 (and in some circumstances, a higher threshold) may be required to file an information report with respect to such assets with their tax returns. "Specified foreign financial assets" include any financial accounts maintained by foreign financial institutions, as well as any of the following, but only if they are not held in accounts maintained by financial institutions: (i) stocks and securities issued by non-United States persons, (ii) financial instruments and contracts held for investment that have non-United States issuers or counterparties, and (iii) interests in foreign entities. U.S. Holders are urged to consult their tax advisors regarding the application of this legislation to their ownership of the notes.
