

Bill Mann

Bill Mann is a senior analyst for The Motley Fool and the lead advisor for “Motley Fool Global Gains”, an investment newsletter service focused on identifying market-beating international stocks. Bill’s talent for identifying superior investments led him to be named co-advisor for “Motley Fool Hidden Gems”, a small-cap investment newsletter service. With experience analyzing a wide range of industries, it was Bill’s expertise in issues of corporate governance that led the U.S. Senate Committee on Commerce, Science & Transportation to ask him to testify as an expert witness at a hearing regarding the collapse of Enron.

Bill is a sought-after public speaker and commentator and has frequently appeared on CNBC, Bloomberg, FOX News Channel, CNN, BBC, CBS, and numerous business radio programs. In his more than a year and a half as an advisor, Bill’s recommended stock picks have performed roughly 50% better than the S&P 500. Prior to joining The Motley Fool in 1999 Bill was a co-founder of Denwa Communications, a specialty international telecommunications carrier. Bill holds a degree in international service from American University.
