Re: Pay Ratio Disclosure, File No. S7-07-13

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am an investor.

I strongly support regulations that would require publicly-traded companies to disclose CEO-to-median worker pay ratios. As income inequality reaches unprecedented heights, the public has the right to know which corporations are fueling the yawning gap between rich and poor.

Disclosure of CEO-to-worker pay ratios are also crucial for investors. This information is important for determining whether corporations are diverting resources to executives at the expense of long-term investments and workforce development. Additionally, investors need to be able to gauge whether executives' compensation is falling in line with their performance.

It is atrocious that in a technological society with the means to create such enormous wealth that a system cannot be devised to insure a more equitable distribution of it to the bulk of the world's population. The inequality is shameful, and in any final analysis can only be regarded as evidence that Humanity has, is and will be a dismal failure. Should it be the goal of the Human race to concentrate vast wealth in the hands of a miniscule few, while the majority can acquire only a negligible portion? And lets not have any bull crap about who deserves what!

Sincerely,

Kenneth Healy
