Re: Pay Ratio Disclosure, File No. S7-07-13

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am an investor.

To: The SEC

I strongly support proposed regulations that would require publicly-traded companies to disclose CEO-to-median worker pay ratios.

The greed, lies and corruption that spawned the "Great Recession" have caused a massive redistribution of wealth. The same corporate and banking CEOs and executives who tanked the global economy have remained in power and have dramatically increased their wealth, while concomitantly downsizing their workforces and holding down the real wages of their workers.

These same executives and corporations have also corrupted the democratic process through large "Citizen's United" donations.

The public has the right to know which corporations are fueling the huge gap between rich and the working class, many of whom are now more accurately characterized as "the working poor,"

Disclosure of CEO-to-worker pay ratios are also crucial for investors. This information is important for determining whether corporations are diverting resources to executives at the expense of long-term investments and workforce development. Additionally, investors need to be able to gauge whether executives' compensation is falling in line with their performance.

It's time for transparency and accountability. The American workers deserve the truth.

Thank you.

A Lampone

Sincerely,

Alexander Lampone
