Re: Pay Ratio Disclosure, File No. S7-07-13

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am an investor.

I strongly support regulations that would require publicly-traded companies to disclose CEO-to-median worker pay ratios. As income inequality reaches unprecedented heights, the public has the right to know which corporations are fueling the yawning gap between rich and poor.

Americas oligarchy is already too rich and powerful. It needs to spend its wealth to keep America a world leader, by keeping Americans working and productive doing quality innovative jobs necessary to stay ahead in a competitive world where innovation is the key to a healthy leader nation that America still is !!

The rich and the middle class are a team at best. Not at odds to see who can accumulate the most wealth to see who can give the most to charity..Charity is welfare and is not good for the self esteem of a healthy working class..Jobs are necessary to keep a country strong in all ways..Laws are needed to control the rich who lose sight of the true value of life and the working class that made them wealthy working for the lowest wage the rich could get the job done for..The rich need a history lesson..Great Courses can supply the courses for a very low cost, and the professors who taught them !!

Disclosure of CEO-to-worker pay ratios are also crucial for investors. This information is important for determining whether corporations are diverting resources to executives at the expense of long-term investments and workforce development. Additionally, investors need to be able to gauge whether executives' compensation is falling in line with their performance.

Sincerely,
