Re: Pay Ratio Disclosure, File No. S7-07-13

Dear Ms. Murphy,

I am an investor.

This is about time! The disappearing middle class is the backbone of our economy, and if we don't do something to be more transparent, and let working professionals, and laborers across the spectrum know exactly how their hard earned efforts are rewarding execs, then I fear for the future.

I strongly support regulations that would require publicly-traded companies to disclose CEO-to-median worker pay ratios. As income inequality reaches unprecedented heights, the public has the right to know which corporations are fueling the yawning gap between rich and poor.

Disclosure of CEO-to-worker pay ratios are also crucial for investors. This information is important for determining whether corporations are diverting resources to executives at the expense of long-term investments and workforce development. Additionally, investors need to be able to gauge whether executives' compensation is falling in line with their performance.

Please don't give in to those at the high end of corporate America who have been long overpaid at the expense of millions of middle class Americans. The greed they have displayed in recent years is mind boggling. They actually believe they are worth the millions of dollars, stock options, bonuses and tax shelters they have. America needs to rethink these policies and shift their vision for the future. Let's rethink equity.

Sincerely,

Marsha Camp
