Hello,

My concern is the SEC wanting to do away with the paper use for shareholder reports .Many stockholders in this country are senior citizens and they like the idea of receiving this important information in print. We are talking about these peoples finances without this some of these people may not be able to make the decisions that are best for them. As a person in his fifty's I like the idea of getting this information in print. I hope this will not become the law. With the country moving forward in the electronic world I feel that people should not have to find this information on there own.
