To Whom it may concern:

As an investor in mutual stocks I urge you to keep the current method of postal delivery. I believe in the sanctity of the mail and I trust the US postal service. I think that privacy and reliability are important, and I believe that most people would want the hard copy information. Also not all citizens are connected to the Internet.

Though I am connected, I do not trust ~~the~~ in the sanctity of the web. I recently had to get a new credit card not long after I made a purchase on what was supposed to be a "safe" site. I don't want some hacker in China or wherever to know anything about my investments!

Sincerely,

Remington Murphy
