Re: Regulation Best Interest, S7-07-18; Form CRS Summary, S7-07-18

Dear Chairman Clayton:

On behalf of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC),¹ we write today regarding the proposed rules package published May 9, 2018, by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). We commend the work done by the SEC in preparing this package to enhance retail investor protections by raising the standard of conduct for broker-dealers. Efforts to bring clarity to the terms of the relationship between broker-dealers and their clients, while preserving access to investment services and products, are laudable and if done correctly, will have a positive impact on investors. The NAIC respectfully submits the following comments to proposed rule “Regulation Best Interest.” In regard to “Form CRS – Relationship Summary,” state insurance commissioners, working through the NAIC, have begun considering whether to adopt a new disclosure summary form and believe it would be useful to coordinate with the SEC on such form once our process is further along.

Like the SEC’s proposed rules, the NAIC’s work is preliminary, ongoing, and subject to further discussion and revision. For this reason, our comments are somewhat constrained by the progress of our own thinking and work on these same issues, and we will focus to some extent on our own work in the context of what the SEC is considering, with the intent of highlighting areas where consistency and compatibility between our efforts would be most useful. We believe a continued dialogue with the SEC would be productive as we each continue to consider revisions in our respective processes.

NAIC Annuity Suitability Revisions

State insurance regulators have adopted laws and implemented regulations to ensure the suitability of annuity sales for policyholders. Much of this insurance regulatory framework is based on the NAIC’s Suitability in Annuity Transactions Model Regulation (#275) (the Suitability model), which has been widely adopted by the states. This model sets forth standards and procedures for recommendations to consumers that result in transactions involving annuity products so that the insurance needs and financial objectives of consumers at the time of the transaction are appropriately addressed. The provisions of the Suitability model reflect revisions the NAIC adopted in 2010 for consistency with the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority's (FINRA) Rule 2821. As a result of increasing requests from state insurance regulators, the insurance industry, and consumers for an updated and consistent standard of care applicable to the sale of annuity products, the NAIC's Life Insurance and Annuities (A) Committee (A Committee) appointed the Annuity Suitability Working Group (Working Group) last year. The Working Group has been charged with reviewing and revising, as necessary, the Suitability model and considering how to promote greater uniformity across NAIC member jurisdictions.

The Working Group is currently drafting revisions to the model and hopes to complete its work by the end of this year. The most recent working draft is attached. After the Working Group finishes its work, it will continue moving through the NAIC's committee structure where ultimately the full NAIC membership will consider adoption.

Objectives

In revising the Suitability model, the NAIC seeks to provide clear, enhanced standards for annuity sales so that consumers understand the products they are purchasing, are made aware of any potential conflicts, and are assured that those selling the products do not place their financial interests above consumers' interests. In undertaking our work, we seek to avoid excessive regulatory complexity and uncertainty in the application and enforcement of any revisions.

State insurance regulators are also concerned about the potential for confusion regarding the differences in the duties owed to consumers by insurance agents and brokers (insurance producers), investment advisers, and broker-dealers. Registered investment adviser representatives and broker-dealer representatives that also function as insurance producers may sell a broad array of financial products, including insurance and annuities.² When the sale of each of these products is regulated by different entities requiring different standards of care, it can understandably bewilder even the most informed consumer. For this reason, the NAIC believes a high degree of harmonization across regulatory platforms would be beneficial to consumers and the industry.

However, while the SEC and state insurance regulators have shared oversight for variable annuity products, there are some fundamental differences among the entities within our regulatory purview. Indeed, an insurance producer's interaction with her customer may differ from that of a registered investment adviser or a broker-dealer in significant ways. An insurance producer does not direct premium dollars or control policies in the same way a registered investment adviser manages the assets of a financial portfolio or a broker-dealer may recommend an investment strategy. Variable annuity products are similar in some ways to mutual funds, hence the Series 6 securities agent registration. But variable, fixed and fixed index annuities have insurance benefits and features and are designed to be long-term contracts that may involve annual review and only intermittent consultation. While we seek consistency among our respective rules, there may be some areas where it may be necessary for a degree of deviation.

Nevertheless, there are many areas where we believe we may be able to find common ground. There are also several open issues that are under active consideration in our process that would benefit from further discussion and coordination with the SEC.

² 39.5 percent of broker-dealers' business lines include selling variable contracts, such as life insurance or annuities, Regulation Best Interest, 83 Fed. Reg. 21633 (proposed May 9, 2018) (to be codified at 17 C.F.R. 240).

Potential Areas of Consistency with Proposed Changes

Suitability Rules

We understand that FINRA's suitability rules were used as the foundation for the SEC's Regulation Best Interest. As described above, our own work utilizes the NAIC's Suitability model as its foundation. We urge you to continue to use the suitability rules as the basis for any revisions as we believe this approach will enhance the prospects for regulatory consistency.

Duty of Care

As part of its current discussions, the majority of the NAIC's Working Group has discussed including in the draft revisions a new affirmative duty of care in which, "the producer or insurer must act with reasonable diligence, care, skill and prudence in making suitable recommendations." This is similar to the SEC's proposed care obligation to require a broker-dealer to "exercise reasonable diligence, care, skill and prudence"³ in making recommendations of any securities transaction or investment strategy to a retail customer.

Regulation Best Interest states the new care obligation approach "would not require a broker-dealer to analyze all possible securities, all other products, or all investment strategies to recommend the single 'best' security or investment strategy for the retail customer, nor necessarily require a broker-dealer to recommend the least expensive or least remunerative security or investment strategy."⁴ Similarly, the NAIC's Working Group has discussed including in the draft revisions a similar provision for annuities.

Duty of Loyalty and Material Conflicts of Interest

Regulation Best Interest discusses the duty of loyalty prescribed by the 913 Study and proposes requirements that the broker or dealer "at a minimum disclose, or eliminate, all material conflicts of interest, which draws from principles of an investment adviser's duty of loyalty under the Adviser's Act."⁵ We appreciate the SEC's approach in addressing the duty of loyalty in a way that "reflects the unique structure and characteristics of broker-dealer relationships with retail customers."⁶ Likewise, the Working Group is discussing drawing from these same principles in a way that reflects the structure of insurance transactions.

Accordingly, consistent with the SEC's approach, the Working Group has also discussed that written policies and procedures to identify and address material conflicts of interest should be established, maintained, and enforced. The Working group is also considering draft revisions new recordkeeping requirements, a definition for the term "material conflict of interest," and new disclosure requirements with respect to such material conflicts of interest.

Additional Areas under Discussion

Best Interest Definition and Requirements

The NAIC generally agrees that providing clear guidance is a better approach to address a new duty rather than creating a new, loosely defined term which may cause confusion. As you are undoubtedly aware, "best interest" has historically been a principles-based concept and it can be difficult to reconcile the various definitions of "best interest" found in state common law, and state and federal statutes and regulations. For these reasons, the Working Group is discussing not defining the term "best interest" in the revisions. Working Group members have also considered that consumers and state courts may be confused by the term to the point where they may confuse “best interest” with a “bona fide fiduciary” duty. The fiduciary duty is often explained to a lay person as a best interest standard, which can be circular and misleading. The Working Group discussed not wanting to give a consumer the false impression that a producer or insurer is acting solely in their best interest when that standard does not correspond with the transactional, sales relationship between the producer or insurer and the consumer. Further, several members of the Working Group do not wish to substitute an entirely new “fiduciary” concept into the text of the Suitability model that may lead to a wide variety of interpretations in the courts, when preserving “suitability” offers a very firm framework upon which to build.

⁴ Id. at 21609.

⁵ Id. at 21575.

In lieu of defining “best interest,” the Working Group is considering draft revisions that describe the requirements needed to achieve an enhanced suitability standard equivalent to a “regulatory best interest standard.” Specifically, the Working Group is considering adding language to the Suitability model that states, “any recommendation made to the particular consumer shall be made without placing the financial or other interests of the producer, or insurer where no producer is involved, ahead of the consumer’s interests as known from the consumer’s suitability information.”

Disclosures

The Working Group discussed a consumer’s expectation that producers and insurers would disclose certain conflicts of interest and other information, particularly as related to compensation. Currently, the draft revisions require producers and insurers to disclose “the grounds for the recommendation and make a written record of the recommendation and the grounds for that recommendation.” The draft revisions also include requirements for an insurer “to maintain reasonable procedures to assess, prior to or upon issuance or delivery of an annuity, whether a producer has provided to the consumer the information required.

The Working Group is considering developing a separate section on consumer disclosures that insurers and/or insurance producers would be required to provide prior to a recommendation and at the time of sale. This is an area where we believe we can work with the SEC to ensure that disclosures are mutually complementary and limit regulatory burden and duplication.

Fee Disclosures

The disclosure of fees has generated much discussion among the Working Group members as they consider the draft revisions. Some Working Group members expressed concern that the fees may be confusing to consumers without some additional explanation. The Working Group will continue discussing the issue and would also benefit from the perspectives of the SEC and its staff to inform such discussions.

Although not related to disclosures, the Working Group is considering developing a separate section on producer and insurer prohibited practices, which could include prohibited practices regarding both cash and non-cash compensation.

The Working Group is aware that FINRA suitability rules have prohibited non-cash compensation, with certain exceptions, for decades. Currently, the draft revisions include a requirement that a producer disclose non-cash compensation that exceeds a value of $500 per producer per year they receive from an insurer or intermediary that is connected to the sale of the annuity.

With respect to cash compensation, the working group has discussed including a requirement for a producer or insurer to disclose a description of the sources of and types of cash compensation to be received by the producer, including whether the producer is to be compensated for the sale of an annuity through commission as part of the premium or other payment from the insurer, intermediary or other producer or by contract fees for advice or consulting services.

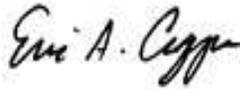

Conclusion

The current draft revisions to the NAIC's Suitability model reflect many of the same principles contained in the SEC's Regulation Best Interest. While our work is ongoing and any revisions are still subject to change, it is essential that the SEC and state insurance regulators continue a productive dialogue in order to find areas in which we can create compatibility, clarity, and efficiency through our respective regulatory developments and enforcement activities to provide robust consumer protection. We look forward to continuing our ongoing dialogue as we continue to consider this important but complex issue. Section 7. Insurance Producer Training

- (2) The minimum length of the training required under this subsection shall be sufficient to qualify for at least four (4) CE credits, but may be longer.
- (3) The training required under this subsection shall include information on the following topics:
- (a) The types of annuities and various classifications of annuities;
- (b) Identification of the parties to an annuity;
- (c) How product specific annuity contract features affect consumers;

Additional topics may be offered in conjunction with and in addition to the required outline.

Section 8. Compliance Mitigation; Penalties

- A. An insurer is responsible for compliance with this regulation. If a violation occurs, either because of the action or inaction of the insurer or its insurance producer, the commissioner may order:
 - (1) An insurer to take reasonably appropriate corrective action for any consumer harmed by the insurer's, or by its insurance producer's, violation of this regulation;
 - (2) A general agency, independent agency or the insurance producer to take reasonably appropriate corrective action for any consumer harmed by the insurance producer's violation of this regulation; and
 - (3) Appropriate penalties and sanctions.
- B. Any applicable penalty under [insert statutory citation] for a violation of this regulation may be reduced or eliminated [, according to a schedule adopted by the commissioner,] if corrective action for the consumer was taken promptly after a violation was discovered or the violation was not part of a pattern or practice.

Drafting Note: Subsection B above is intended to be consistent with the commissioner's discretionary authority to determine the appropriate penalty for a violation of this regulation. The language of subsection B is not intended to require that a commissioner impose a penalty on an insurer for a single violation of this regulation if the commissioner has determined that such a penalty is not appropriate.

Drafting Note: A State that has authority to adopt a schedule of penalties may wish to include the words in brackets. In that case, "shall" should be substituted for "may" in the same sentence. States should consider inserting a reference to the NAIC Unfair Trade Practices Act or the State's statute that authorizes the commissioner to impose penalties and fines.

Section 9. [Optional] Recordkeeping

- A. Insurers, general agents, independent agencies and insurance producers shall maintain or be able to make available to the commissioner records of the information collected from the consumer and other information used in making the recommendations that were the basis for insurance transactions for [insert number] years after the insurance transaction is completed by the insurer. An insurer is permitted, but shall not be required, to maintain documentation on behalf of an insurance producer.

Drafting Note: States should review their current record retention laws and specify a time period that is consistent with those laws. For some States this time period may be five (5) years.

- B. Records required to be maintained by this regulation may be maintained in paper, photographic, micro-process, magnetic, mechanical or electronic media or by any process that accurately reproduces the actual document.

Drafting Note: This section may be unnecessary in States that have a comprehensive recordkeeping law or regulation.

Section 10. Effective Date

The amendments to this regulation shall take effect six (6) months after the date the regulation is adopted or on [insert date], whichever is later.
