

To Whom It May Concern:

There is a dire need for increased transparency in US markets. Its gotten bad enough that you have entire sections of the population that legitimately believe the US stock market is unsafe for their funds – that it serves only the 1%, and that they manipulate it to their own ends, shorting companies into the ground and never closing positions because those companies are delisted, taking tax-free profits.

Prove to the American people that markets are free and fair – there is no need for the opaqueness that has taken over the markets. A free and fair market has nothing to fear from the light, and should not need to hide in the darkness. Show us, the people, that we are not being cheated.

Thank you for your time.
