My father, Sam and I, own a security guard alarm company in Las Vegas, Nevada. Las Vegas is famous for taking chances; however, the one thing that we will not take a chance on is our business. We have not worked tirelessly to build a solid company with a reliable customer base, only to have it infiltrated by outsiders who do not have the company's best interest at heart. Also, during this time of economic uncertainty, it is mind boggling that one would seek to reduce share pricing, thereby, negatively impacting my future retirement. The proposed SEC rule is a horrible idea that will lead to the demise of many small business owners.

Our company stems from humble beginnings. What began with just a few monitoring accounts rapidly grew into a full grown security guard alarm company. It is unthinkable that the establishment we put so much time and effort into, may end up paying us nothing back in return. That is not the payoff I had hoped to see after having been in business for the past thirty years.

Having your expenses dictated to you is not well received. Not only are we facing the possibility of reduced share pricing, but our expenses would increase thanks to costly board elections. The proposed SEC rule should be extinguished and dismissed as nothing more than a passing thought.

Thank You

Cory Moore
