Dear Ms. Murphy:

As a small business owner, I am opposed to the proposed rule on shareholder proxy access. If this ruling passes, single-minded non-professionals will be distracting the board of major corporations. If I had an amateur adding input and proposing decisions for my shop, I would consider them a waste of my business time, especially considering the years of professional experience and business operations skills that the rest of the board is able to contribute.

My husband and I have been in the custom golf cart retail business in New Port Richey for the past seven years. As is the case with most small business owners in the area, sales have been slow. Whether you are a Fortune 500 corporation or a small local business, your goal is the same- make the decisions that allow your business to profit and flourish. The modified shareholder proxy access rule runs counter to this principal and should not be considered.

This proposal is just one more ploy by the recent administration to interfere in privately run business. Frankly, I am becoming more and more concerned over government's continual push to extend control in to these areas. Please do not change the shareholder proxy access rules.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Sue Crawford
