Hello,

I am writing after many attempts to call and speak with someone in the related offices, about pending Notice of Proposed Exemptive Order for Finders; File number S7-13-20.

My first question is: what is the current status of this proposal? I have already become certified in the state of California as Finder under the California state guidelines, and I wish to extend this status nationally. I have 28 years in the financial industry, including everything from stockbroker, hedge fund owner/manager, private equity to investment banking. I currently own a well-respected and thriving Angel Investment Consortium.

I acquired SEC licenses for Series 7, 63, and 65. Unfortunately when I no longer thought I would need those licenses for the capacities in which I was working, I let them lapse. Worst decision!

I am now in a position to help many entrepreneurs and early-stage companies seeking investment capital. I am constantly sought to guide these early-stage companies and introduce them to the massive network of investors I know and have worked with over my career. I wish to help these firms and to do so in compliance with SEC guidelines.

I am hoping that you or one of your associates can work with, or direct me, in acquiring the full Exemption (Agency /Docket Numbers: Release no. 34-90112, File No. S7-13-20) to enable me to work and receive compensation in introducing young start-up companies to capital sources I've worked with for years. I am highly respected in my field, and I am confident that I can bring value that is so much in demand for these businesses.
