

As a licensed agent for the State of Florida, I understand the importance of regulating the sales of indexed annuities to prevent unscrupulous agents behavior. However, my business partners and I became licensed life agents because we are able to secure our clients wealth in annuities without a securities license. In addition, we feel if the SEC's proposed rule, although has good intentions, no guarantees.