

August 26, 2008

To Whom It May Concern: I've been selling Annuities now for the past two years. It's been a huge asset to my company. I have also helped a lot of people in securing their money from the down side potential of the stock market. Since there is no down side potential I don't see a need for this to be regulated as money security license and if this ruling goes through then my business would suffer a great deal. I am requesting that you listen to of the similar email and correspondence that you have been getting from different agents and companies on this new ruling that the SEC is trying to pass through. Please grant the extension or dismiss this case and keep it the way it is.

Thank You,

Jeffrey Alejos