

I am concerned that allowing broker-dealers to compete based on commissions they charge and the services they provide will lead to a “race to the bottom” causing middle market investors to overly focused on price and ending up without access to valuable advice and ongoing account services.