Re: Ross Stores, Inc.
Notice of Intent to Omit from Proxy Materials the Shareholder Proposal from The Humane Society of the United States

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter is to inform you that our client, Ross Stores, Inc., a Delaware corporation (“Ross Stores” or the “Company”), intends to omit from its proxy statement and form of proxy for its 2018 Annual Meeting of Stockholders (collectively, the “2018 Proxy Materials”) a stockholder proposal (the “2018 Proposal”) and statement in support thereof (the “2018 Supporting Statement”) received from The Humane Society of the United States (“HSUS” or the “Proponent”).

Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j), we have:

- filed this letter with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “Commission”) no later than eighty (80) calendar days before the Company intends to file its definitive 2018 Proxy Materials with the Commission; and
- concurrently sent copies of this correspondence to the Proponent.

Rule 14a-8(k) and Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14D (Nov. 7, 2008) (“SLB 14D”) provide that a stockholder proposal proponent is required to send the company a copy of any correspondence that the proponent elects to submit to the Commission or the staff of the Division of Corporation Finance (the “Staff”). Accordingly, we are taking this opportunity to remind the Proponent that if the Proponent elects to submit additional correspondence to the Commission or the Staff with respect to the 2018 Proposal, a copy of that correspondence should be furnished concurrently to the undersigned on behalf of the Company pursuant to Rule 14a-8(k) and SLB 14D.

THE PROPOSAL

The 2018 Proposal states:

RESOLVED, that shareholders ask that Ross adopt a policy, and amend other governing documents as necessary, to require that the Board's Chair be held by an independent director, as defined in accordance with applicable requirements of The NYSE. This independence requirement shall apply prospectively, so as not to violate any contractual obligation at the time this resolution is adopted. Compliance with this policy is waived if no independent director is available and willing to serve as Chair. The policy should also specify how to select a new independent Chair if a current Chair ceases to be independent between annual shareholder meetings.

A copy of the 2018 Proposal and 2018 Supporting Statement is attached to this letter as Exhibit A. A copy of related correspondence from the Proponent is attached to this letter as Exhibit B-1.

BACKGROUND

The 2018 Proposal is nearly identical to the proposal HSUS submitted to Ross Stores last year, for the Company's 2017 Annual Meeting of Stockholders (the "2017 Proposal"). We submitted a letter on behalf of Ross Stores to the Staff last year, dated December 28, 2016, requesting that the Staff concur with the conclusion that Ross Stores could properly exclude the 2017 Proposal for substantially the same reasons as are set forth below. HSUS withdrew the 2017 Proposal before the Staff had responded to our no-action request. See Ross Stores, Inc. (avail. Jan. 31, 2017). The no-action request from Ross Stores and related correspondence with HSUS relating to the 2017 Proposal can be found at:

<https://www.sec.gov/divisions/corpfin/cf-noaction/14a-8/2017/humanesociety013117-14a8.pdf>.

Sadly, the ongoing pattern continues for another year, in which the HSUS seeks to exploit SEC rules intended to promote stockholder access and voting rights as a tool for leverage in support of its personal interest and agenda to promote animal rights.

While the 2018 Proposal submitted by HSUS, like the 2017 Proposal, ostensibly relates to a matter of corporate governance, that is a pretext. As plainly indicated in emails sent by an HSUS representative to Ross Stores officers and directors prior to submitting the 2017 Proposal, as well as in other prior and subsequent communications from HSUS, in reality this is just a tactic and a further chapter in an ongoing campaign by HSUS to pressure the Company to adopt a "fur free" policy, consistent with the pursuit by HSUS of its mission to promote the broad adoption of such policies by retailers, food companies and others. In its own words, HSUS has “engaged with Ross for many years regarding the issue of products containing real fur.”

In an email dated September 13, 2016 addressed to Michael Balmuth (Executive Chairman of Ross Stores), P.J. Smith (then Corporate Engagement Manager, now Sr. Manager, Fashion Policy of HSUS) states:

“I’m writing from The Humane Society of the United States to let you know that we’re considering a shareholder proposal at Ross seeking an independent board chair policy, and to see if you or senior management would consider coming to the table with us instead. . . .

We’ve engaged with Ross for many years regarding the issue of products containing real fur. . . .

Since Ross does not knowingly buy real animal fur, we hope you’ll agree that it won’t take much to make the policy public on your website. Is this something you’d support? Thanks so much, and I’m happy to chat any time. Have a great day.” (emphasis added).

A copy of the referenced email, as well as other related email correspondence from the Proponent, is attached to this letter as Exhibit C.

Previously, HSUS has made numerous other efforts and threats in pursuing its unique agenda over the years, including the 2017 Proposal and a prior stockholder proposal in 2012, and other attempts to take advantage of rules and resources of federal governmental agencies that are intended for other purposes. These past efforts have also included campaigns of personal emails to the Company’s officers and Board members, offering to stop the governmental action if “appropriate action” (i.e. adoption of a “fur free” policy) is taken.

For the Company’s 2012 Annual Meeting of Stockholders, HSUS submitted an express proposal for the purpose of requesting a vote by the Company’s shareholders on adoption of a “fur free” policy. HSUS withdrew that proposal however, before the Staff had responded to a no-action request submitted by Ross Stores, presumably because the Staff had issued its response in connection with an essentially equivalent proposal, concurring with the other registrant/company’s determination to exclude it. See Ross Stores, Inc. (avail. Mar. 6, 2012) and Dillard’s Inc. (avail. Feb. 22, 2012). The 2012 no-action request from Ross Stores and related correspondence with HSUS can be found at:

<https://www.sec.gov/divisions/corpfin/cf-noaction/14a-8/2012/humanesociety030612-14a8.pdf>.

More recently, HSUS sought to use the threat of federal rules intended to provide consumer protection rights as a tool to pursue its own desire to pressure the Company and other retailers to adopt and publicly announce “fur free” policies. In August of 2016, HSUS issued a press release to draw attention to the petition it filed with the US Federal Trade Commission (the “FTC”) to request that the FTC bring enforcement action under federal consumer protection laws against seventeen retailers, alleging false advertising in regard to garments containing fur. At page 22 of its 33-page long petition, HSUS noted that one item of women’s clothing (previously called out in a press release by HSUS in 2012) had allegedly been obtained by an HSUS investigator from a Company store in October 2012, and that the investigator had examined the black fur trim and determined that it was animal fur and not faux fur as indicated on one sewn-in label. In conjunction with making the press release, a representative of HSUS sent an email to the Chief Executive Officer of Ross Stores (the “CEO”), ending with a post script note: “p.s. In the past, we’ve recommended to the FTC that the agency remove certain companies from our petitions even after they’re filed, and would consider doing so here too, if appropriate actions could be taken on this issue.” A copy of relevant items of email correspondence from representatives of HSUS is included in Exhibit C attached to this letter. The 2017 Proposal and now the 2018 Proposal are a continuation of this campaign by HSUS that is in reality about pressuring targeted retailers to adopt a “fur free” policy, by any available means.

As is apparent to anyone who visits the stores, Ross Stores does not target apparel or other merchandise that contains animal fur, or consistently carry any particular merchandise that contains fur. As an off-price retailer, Ross Stores sources its products primarily from excess inventory of other retailers and from production overruns by manufacturers. Items made from fur or that include fur are not a meaningful merchandise category for the Company, and are not significant or recognizable enough to even be separately tracked. To the extent the Company from time to time happens to carry isolated items that use any fur, they are typically items of apparel with purely incidental amounts of fur trim, such as on winter coats, or perhaps on fashion accessories or in the lining of gloves. The Company’s buying staff believes that products that use animal fur represent far less than one percent (1%) of the Company’s clothing, shoes and accessory purchases.

Ross Stores operates two brands of off-price retail apparel and home fashion stores. At October 28, 2017, Ross Stores operated 1,627 stores – 1,412 Ross Dress for Less® locations in 37 states, the District of Columbia and Guam, and 215 dd’s DISCOUNTS® stores in 16 states. Ross offers first-quality, in-season, name brand and designer apparel, accessories, footwear, and home fashions for the entire family at savings of 20% to 60% off department and specialty store regular prices every day. Ross Dress for Less targets customers who are primarily from middle income households, while dd’s DISCOUNTS features a more moderately-priced assortment of first-quality, in-season, name brand apparel, accessories, footwear, and home fashions for the entire family at savings of 20% to 70% off moderate department and discount store regular prices every day. Ross Stores sells recognizable brand-name merchandise that is current and fashionable in each category. The mix of sales year to date by department in fiscal 2017 has been approximately as follows: Ladies 28%; Home Accents and Bed and Bath 25%; Shoes 14%; Men's 13%; Accessories, Lingerie, Fine Jewelry and Fragrances 12%; and Children's 8%. The merchandise offerings also include product categories such as small furniture and furniture accents, educational toys and games, luggage, gourmet food and cookware, watches, sporting goods and, in select Ross stores, fine jewelry.

The Board of Directors of Ross Stores (the "Board") currently consists of eleven (11) authorized members. The roles of Chairman of the Board ("Chair") and of CEO are held by two separate individuals. A separation of those roles has been in place on the Board for twenty years. The current CEO is Barbara Rentler; she has been in that position since 2014. Michael Balmuth currently serves as Executive Chairman. Mr. Balmuth was formerly the Company's CEO from 1996 to 2014. Beginning in fiscal 2014, the Board has also designated a Lead Independent Director to act as a liaison between Chair, CEO and independent directors, and to serve as the designated Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The designation of a Lead Independent Director is a widely adopted approach in structuring Board leadership to enhance the involvement and oversight of management by the independent directors. The Lead Independent Director position currently rotates annually among the independent directors.

BASES FOR EXCLUSION

The Company believes that the 2018 Proposal is excludable under at least two of the bases for exclusion set forth in Rule 14a-8(i) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the "Exchange Act"):

1. [Rule 14a-8(i)(4)] Personal Grievance; Special Interest: If the proposal relates to the redress of a personal claim or grievance against the company or any other person, or if it is designed to result in a benefit to [the proponent], or to further a personal interest, which is not shared by the other shareholders at large; and
2. [Rule 14a-8(i)(3)] Violation of Proxy Rules: If the proposal or supporting statement is contrary to any of the Commission's proxy rules, including Rule 14a-9, which prohibits materially false or misleading statements in proxy soliciting materials.

ANALYSIS

A. The 2018 Proposal is designed to result in a benefit to HSUS, or to further a personal interest of HSUS, which is not shared by the other shareholders at large.

Rule 14a-8(i)(4) permits the exclusion of a shareholder proposal that is designed to result in a benefit to the proponent, or to further a personal interest of the proponent, which is not shared by the other shareholders at large. Such a proposal is an abuse of the security holder proposal process.

Although on its face appearing to be a proposal seeking a change on a matter of board governance, that is merely a pretext and is not the objective of HSUS in submitting its proposals. The 2018 Proposal, just like the 2017 Proposal, was submitted by HSUS as a tactic to obtain leverage in its ongoing efforts to pressure Ross Stores to publicly adopt a “fur free” policy. The real reason HSUS submitted the 2018 Proposal is baldly revealed in the earlier (September 13, 2016) email from HSUS in connection with the nearly identical 2017 Proposal, quoted at length in the Background Section above: “. . . we’re considering a shareholder proposal at Ross [sic] seeking an independent board chair policy, and to see if you or senior management would consider coming to the table with us instead. . . . Since Ross does not knowingly buy real animal fur, we hope you’ll agree that it won’t take much to make the policy public on your website. Is this something you’d support?” (emphasis added). HSUS sent similar email messages to members of the Board at that time. This was clearly not an invitation to meet in order to discuss concerns about matters of Board governance. This was strictly an effort to drive adoption of a “fur free” policy. When the Company declined the invitation to “come to the table” or engage further with HSUS regarding its continued demands for public announcement of a “fur free” policy, HSUS subsequently delivered a request to include the 2017 Proposal, by letter dated October 31, 2016. HSUS withdrew the 2017 Proposal on January 30, 2017. Without any explanation or substantive engagement whatsoever, HSUS on July 14, 2017 submitted the nearly identical 2018 Proposal. Copies of relevant items of correspondence from representatives of HSUS are included in Exhibits B-1 and B-2 attached to this letter. The 2018 Proposal is part of a multi-year harassment campaign in furtherance of a special interest of HSUS, and is not a bona fide shareholder proposal.

The Commission has stated that Rule 14a-8(i)(4) is designed to “insure that the security holder proposal process [is] not abused by proponents attempting to achieve personal ends that are not necessarily in the common interest of the issuer’s shareholders generally.” Exchange Act Release No. 20091 (Aug. 16, 1983). In addition, the Commission has stated, in discussing the predecessor of Rule 14a-8(i)(4) (Rule 14a-8(c)(4)), that Rule 14a-8 “is not intended to provide a means for a person to air or remedy some personal claim or grievance or to further some personal interest. Such use of the security holder proposal procedures is an abuse of the security holder proposal process and the cost and time involved in dealing with these situations do a disservice to the interests of the issuer and its security holders at large.” Exchange Act Release No. 34-19135 (Oct. 14, 1982). Thus, Rule 14a-8(i)(4) provides a means to exclude a shareholder proposal the purpose of which is to “air or remedy” a personal grievance or advance some personal interest. This interpretation is consistent with the Commission’s statement at the time the rule was adopted that “the Commission does not believe that an issuer’s proxy materials are a proper forum for airing personal claims or grievances.” Exchange Act Release No. 12999 (Nov. 22, 1976).

The Commission also has confirmed that this basis for exclusion applies even to proposals phrased in terms that “might relate to matters which may be of general interest to all security holders,” and thus that Rule 14a-8(i)(4) justifies the omission of neutrally-worded proposals “if it is clear from the facts presented by the issuer that the proponent is using the proposal as a tactic designed to redress a personal grievance or further a personal interest.” Exchange Act Release No. 19135 (Oct. 14, 1982). The Staff’s interpretation of Rule 14a-8(i)(4) clearly contemplates looking beyond the four corners of a proposal for the purpose of identifying a personal interest or grievance to which the submission of the proposal relates.

Consistent with this interpretation of Rule 14a-8(i)(4), the Staff on numerous occasions has concurred in the exclusion of a proposal that included a facially-neutral resolution, but where the facts demonstrated that the proposal’s true intent was to further a personal interest or redress a personal claim or grievance. For example, in State Street Corp. (avail. Jan. 5, 2007), the Staff agreed that the company could exclude under Rule 14a-8(i)(4) a facially-neutral proposal that the company separate the positions of Chair and CEO and provide for an independent Chair when brought by a former employee, after that former employee was ejected from the company’s previous annual meeting for disruptive conduct and engaged in a lengthy campaign of public harassment against the company and its CEO.

Similarly, in Pfizer, Inc. (avail. Jan. 31, 1995), the proponent contested the circumstances of his retirement, claiming that he had been forced to retire as a result of illegal age discrimination. He also sent a letter to the company’s CEO, asking the CEO to review and remedy his situation. After failing to receive a satisfactory outcome from Pfizer’s internal review and from the CEO, the proponent submitted what Pfizer described in its no-action request to the Staff as a “very unclear” shareholder proposal that appeared to seek a shareholder vote on the CEO’s compensation. Despite the proposal addressing a topic that potentially could have been of general interest among Pfizer’s shareholders, Pfizer argued that the evidence of the proponent’s continued claims against Pfizer, including in the letter that the proponent sent to the CEO, supported the conclusion that the shareholder proposal was part of his effort to seek redress against Pfizer, and the Staff concurred that the proposal was excludable under the predecessor to Rule 14a-8(i)(4). See also American Express Co. (avail. Jan. 13, 2011) (proposal to amend the code of conduct to include mandatory penalties for noncompliance was excludable as a personal grievance when brought by a former employee who previously had sued the company for discrimination and defamation). The factual showing in support of the pattern of pursuing a separate, ulterior, personal objective – and the transparency in the misuse of the security holder proposal process as a tool toward furthering that alternative interest – is much stronger here than it was in The Kroger Co. (avail. Mar. 27, 2017), where the Staff was unable to concur that the company could omit, on the basis of Rule 14a-8(i)(4), an independent Chair proposal made by a proponent (Sum of Us) whose underlying motivation for the proposal, the company contended, was to pressure the company to reduce or ban use of neonic pesticides in its supply chain, on which the proponent had publicly campaigned.

As was the case in State Street Corp., where there was a lengthy campaign of public harassment against the company and its CEO, here HSUS has “engaged with Ross for many years regarding the issue of products containing real fur” in a continuous and public campaign of harassment. The 2018 Proposal is, in reality, not made for the ostensible and apparently neutral reasons it states, but in an ongoing quest for leverage in pursuit of a special interest unique to the Proponent.

It is further evidence of the Proponent’s insincerity and lack of good faith in submitting both the 2017 Proposal and the 2018 Proposal, that the proposals include obvious errors, and both supporting statements are off topic. The 2018 Proposal (like the 2017 Proposal) seeks a policy “that the Board’s Chair be held by an independent director, as defined in accordance with applicable requirements of The NYSE” (emphasis added). But Ross Stores is listed on the NASDAQ Stock Market, not The NYSE. And as discussed further under Section B.2. below, the 2018 Supporting Statement still predominantly contains arguments for the separation of the Chair position from the role of CEO, which the Board of Ross Stores has already done, for more than twenty years. Last year, almost nothing in the Supporting Statement for the 2017 Proposal (the “2017 Supporting Statement”) was at all applicable to Ross Stores. An obvious explanation for this thoughtlessness is that the Proponent has no actual interest in changing, or even understanding, the governance aspects of the Company. The 2018 Proposal, like the 2017 Proposal before it, is not really submitted for that reason, but purely as a cynical tactic to pressure senior management of Ross Stores to “come to the table instead” and to meet the demand by HSUS to adopt a “fur free” policy. This is an abuse by the Proponent of the SEC’s rules and processes for bringing shareholder proposals and an effort to achieve personal ends that are not in the common interest of the issuer’s shareholders generally, which should not be tolerated.

For the reasons discussed above, the Company has concluded that it may exclude the 2018 Proposal from the 2018 Proxy Materials under Rule 14a-8(i)(4). We respectfully ask that the Staff concur that from the facts presented by the Company, it has been shown the Proponent is using the 2018 Proposal as a tactic designed to further a personal interest and to result in a benefit to the Proponent which is not shared by the other shareholders at large.

December 29, 2017

B. The 2018 Proposal may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) because the 2018 Proposal relies upon a reference to the NYSE independence definitions for a central aspect of the proposal, rendering the proposal impermissibly vague and indefinite, and because the 2018 Supporting Statement is largely off topic and misleading.

We believe that the 2018 Proposal may also be properly excluded from the 2018 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(3) because the 2018 Proposal seeks to impose a policy of independence by reference to a particular set of external standards, namely The New York Stock Exchange (the “NYSE”) listing rules, to implement the central aspect of the 2018 Proposal but fails to sufficiently describe or explain the substantive provisions of those standards, rendering the 2018 Proposal impermissibly vague and indefinite so as to be inherently misleading.

In addition, the 2018 Supporting Statement is devoted largely to arguments in support of separating the roles of Chair and CEO (which Ross has done, for many years), and mischaracterizes the voting policy recommendations of Institutional Shareholder Services (“ISS”), and is therefore materially misleading.

1. Impermissible Reliance on Reference to External Requirements.

The Staff consistently has taken the position that a shareholder proposal is excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) as vague and indefinite, and therefore misleading, if “neither the stockholders voting on the proposal, nor the company in implementing the proposal (if adopted), would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what actions or measures the proposal requires.” Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14B (Sept. 15, 2004) (“SLB 14B”); see also Dyer v. SEC, 287 F.2d 773, 781 (8th Cir. 1961) (“[I]t appears to us that the proposal, as drafted and submitted to the company, is so vague and indefinite as to make it impossible for either the board of directors or the stockholders at large to comprehend precisely what the proposal would entail.”).

In Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14G (Oct. 16, 2012) (“SLB 14G”), the Staff further explained its approach to assessing whether a proposal that contains a reference to an external standard is vague and misleading, addressing specifically the context where a proposal contains a reference to a website:

In evaluating whether a proposal may be excluded on this basis, we consider only the information contained in the proposal and supporting statement and determine whether, based on that information, shareholders and the company can determine what actions the proposal seeks.

If a proposal or supporting statement refers to a website that provides information necessary for shareholders and the company to understand with reasonable certainty exactly what actions or measures the proposal requires, and such information is not also contained in the proposal or in the supporting statement, then we believe the proposal would raise concerns under Rule 14a-9 and would be subject to exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) as vague and indefinite.

The Staff has consistently applied this approach to a number of proposals that – just like the 2018 Proposal – requested that companies adopt a policy to appoint an independent director to serve as Chair. The 2018 Proposal is virtually identical to the proposals in Chevron Corp. (avail. Mar. 15, 2013) and Wellpoint, Inc. (avail. Feb. 24, 2012; recon. denied Mar. 27, 2012), and substantially similar to proposals in The Proctor & Gamble Company (avail. Jul. 6, 2012; recon. denied Sept. 20, 2012), Cardinal Health, Inc. (avail. Jul. 6, 2012), The Clorox Company (avail. Aug. 13, 2012) and Harris Corporation (avail. Aug. 13, 2012). In each case, the Staff permitted the company to exclude a similar proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(3).

In Chevron Corp., the Staff quoted the first paragraph of the language from SLB 14G set forth above and concurred that a proposal could be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(3) because the proposal referred to, but did not explain, the NYSE listing standards for determining whether a director qualified as an independent director. Because an understanding of the NYSE listing standards' definition of "independent director" was necessary to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what actions or measures the proposal required, the Staff explained, "[i]n our view, this definition is a central aspect of the proposal." Thus, the Staff concurred in exclusion of the proposal "because the proposal does not provide information about what the New York Stock Exchange's definition of 'independent director' means." See also McKesson Corp. (avail. Apr. 17, 2013; recon. denied May 31, 2013), in which the Staff repeated the evaluation standard from SLB 14G, and then concluded: "Accordingly, because the proposal does not provide information about what the New York Stock Exchange's definition of 'independent director' means, we believe shareholders would not be able to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what actions or measures the proposal requires."

Similarly, in Wellpoint, Inc., the Staff concurred that the company could exclude a proposal that was virtually identical to the 2018 Proposal. In its no-action request, Wellpoint argued that it could exclude the proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(3) because it relied upon an external standard of independence to implement the "central aspect" of the proposal (as in the 2018 Proposal, the NYSE standards) but failed to describe the substantive provisions of those standards. The Staff concurred, noting "in particular, [the company's] view that, in applying this particular proposal to [the company], neither shareholders nor the company would be able to determine with any reasonable certainty exactly what actions or measures the proposal requires."

The 2018 Proposal requests that "Ross Stores Inc. adopt a policy, and amend other governing documents as necessary, to require that the Board's Chair be held by an independent director, as defined in accordance with applicable requirements of The NYSE." As in each of the cited cases, the 2018 Proposal relies entirely upon an external standard of independence (the NYSE standards) in order to implement the requested policy, but fails to describe or explain the substantive provisions of those standards. Without a description of the NYSE's listing standards in the proposal, shareholders will be unable to determine the specific standard of independence to be applied under the 2018 Proposal and therefore would be unable to make an informed decision on the merits of the proposal. As Staff precedent indicates, the Company's shareholders cannot be expected to make an informed decision on the merits of the 2018 Proposal without knowing what they are voting on. See SLB 14B.

The 2018 Proposal is distinguishable from other independent chair proposals that do not rely entirely on external standards for the central aspect of the relevant independence standard, but instead include a definition or substantive description of the relevant standard within the proposal and supporting statement. See, e.g., PepsiCo., Inc. (avail. Feb. 2, 2012) (proposal requested that the chair be independent in accordance with the NYSE standard, and be someone who has not served as an executive officer of the company), Reliance Steel & Aluminum Co. (avail. Feb. 2, 2012), Sempra Energy (avail. Feb. 2, 2012), General Electric Co. (avail. Jan. 10, 2012, recon. denied Feb. 1, 2012) and Allegheny Energy, Inc. (avail. Feb. 12, 2010); see also Boeing Co. (avail. Feb. 26, 2015, recon. denied March 4, 2015) (proposal requested that chair be an independent director who is not a current or former employee and who has no nontrivial connections to the company other than the directorship) and Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (avail. Mar. 20, 2015) (proposal included a substantive definition of independence within the proposal). The 2018 Proposal is also distinguishable from proposals that do not include or reference any independence standard at all, in which cases stockholders and companies could reasonably understand that stockholders were voting on a general concept of independence as opposed to a specified, external standard that is not defined or explained within the proposal or supporting statement. See, e.g., Comcast Corp. (avail. Feb. 8, 2016) and Kohl's Corp. (avail. Feb. 8, 2016), where in both cases the Staff did not concur that the company could exclude an independent chair proposal as vague and indefinite when the proposal did not include or reference any external independence standard.

In contrast, the 2018 Proposal, like those in Chevron Corp., Wellpoint and the other examples noted, only includes a single standard of independence (the NYSE standard) that is neither described nor explained in, nor understandable from, the text of the 2018 Proposal or the 2018 Supporting Statement. In this regard, the 2018 Supporting Statement's references to separation of the roles of Chair and CEO do not provide any information to shareholders as to the NYSE standard of independence. In fact, many companies that have separated the role of Chair and CEO have an executive chairman who would not satisfy the NYSE standards for independence.

Consistent with Wellpoint, Chevron Corp. and the other precedents, because the 2018 Proposal similarly relies on the NYSE standards of independence for implementation of a central element of the 2018 Proposal without describing or explaining those standards, the 2018 Proposal is impermissibly vague and indefinite so as to be inherently misleading and, therefore, excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(3).

2. Materially False or Misleading Supporting Statements.

Under Rule 14a-8(i)(3), a proposal may also be omitted from a registrant's proxy statement if the proposal or supporting statement is contrary to any of the Commission's proxy rules, including Rule 14a-9, which prohibits materially false or misleading statements in proxy soliciting materials.

In SLB 14B, the Staff indicated that it is appropriate for a company to rely on Rule 14a-8(i)(3) to exclude or modify a shareholder proposal where "substantial portions of the supporting statement are irrelevant to a consideration of the subject matter of the proposal such that there is a strong likelihood that a reasonable stockholder would be uncertain as to the matter on which he or she is being asked to vote." It is also a basis for exclusion where "the company demonstrates objectively that a factual statement is materially false or misleading." SLB 14B. See, e.g., McDonald's Corp. (avail. Mar. 13, 2001) (granting no-action relief because the proposal to adopt "SA 8000 Social Accountability Standards" did not accurately describe the standards).

The Proponent has removed several of the off-topic paragraphs found in the 2017 Supporting Statement from the 2018 Supporting Statement, but the 2018 Supporting Statement still remains largely an argument for separation of the Chair and CEO positions, and is irrelevant to the question of requiring an independent Chair. This creates a mistaken and misleading impression as to the subject of the 2018 Proposal, and the impression that Ross Stores does not already separate those roles, when in fact the Board of Ross Stores has had a separate Chair and CEO for twenty years.

The quote in the 2018 Supporting Statement that is attributed to Andy Grove (famous former chairman of Intel Corporation): "If he's an employee, he needs a boss, and that boss is the Board" is taken completely out of context. The full quote (as generally cited) is: "The separation of the two jobs goes to the heart of the conception of a corporation. Is a company a sandbox for the CEO, or is the CEO an employee? If he's an employee, he needs a boss, and that boss is the board. The chairman runs the board. How can the CEO be his own boss?" In context, this is entirely an argument for separation of the Chair and CEO roles, and not for an independent director as Chair. It is materially misleading to attribute to Andy Grove support for an entirely different proposition than he stated.

The next paragraph cites a Sullivan & Cromwell survey, stating that approximately 70% of respondents believe the head of management should not concurrently chair the Board. Again, this is an argument for separation, and irrelevant to the issue of adopting a policy to require an independent Chair. This is misleading to include.

The next paragraph is misleading when it cites ISS as “recommend[ing] voting in favor of proposals such as this one which seek policies to ensure the Board Chair is an independent director.” In fact, ISS has a more nuanced approach in which numerous attributes of a company’s governance and recent history are taken into consideration, on a case by case basis, in determining whether to support such a proposal. It is not at all clear that ISS would actually support the 2018 Proposal given the specifics and other Board governance attributes of Ross Stores, and it is misleading to suggest that ISS does or would in fact support it. Until 2014, ISS had a stated voting recommendation policy that would have likely led ISS to recommend “AGAINST” this Proposal, because Ross Stores has a separate CEO and Chair, and also a Lead Independent Director with a specified role and duties in support of Board oversight of management. In 2015, ISS adopted a change in its voting recommendation guidelines on the issue of an independent director as Chair, in favor of a “holistic” approach to that question. However, ISS still includes, on a case-by-case basis, the same considerations it had in 2014. While ISS indicates that in general it favors an independent director as Chair, it is misleading to suggest that ISS categorically recommends a vote “FOR” such a proposal.

As this detailed analysis of the 2018 Supporting Statement shows, it is misleading on multiple levels. Fundamentally, it is misleading because it remains mainly off topic. Setting aside the obligatory introductory and concluding paragraphs, well over half of the discussion in the remaining four paragraphs is off topic. It is largely an argument in support of separating the Chair and CEO positions – which would mislead a stockholder either into thinking that subject (separation of the two roles) is what the 2018 Proposal addresses (when it doesn’t), and/or into believing that Ross Stores does not already do so (when it does).

The 2018 Supporting Statement is misleading in its key elements and its citations, which are mischaracterized as being focused on and supportive of the independence/non-independence of a separate Chair. As in the no-action letters referenced above, the 2018 Supporting Statement contains substantial discussion of matters that are unrelated to and do not support the actual subject matter of the 2018 Proposal. These statements are misleading because they mischaracterize or are irrelevant to the “core topic” of the 2018 Proposal and are likely to confuse shareholders as to what they are being asked to approve. In view of the foregoing, the Company has concluded that the 2018 Proposal may be excluded in reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(3).

CONCLUSION

Ross Stores hereby requests that the Staff concur with the conclusion that it can properly exclude the 2018 Proposal, and confirm that the Staff will not recommend any enforcement action if Ross Stores excludes the 2018 Proposal from the 2018 Proxy Materials. Should you disagree with the conclusions set forth herein, we would appreciate the opportunity to confer with you prior to the issuance of the Staff's response. Moreover, Ross Stores reserves the right to submit to the Staff additional bases upon which the 2018 Proposal may properly be excluded from the 2018 Proxy Materials.

By copy of this letter, the Proponent is being notified of Ross Stores' intention to omit the 2018 Proposal from its 2018 Proxy Materials.

We would be happy to provide you with any additional information and answer any questions that you may have regarding this subject. If we can be of any further assistance in this matter, please do not hesitate to call me at (415) 836-2598.

Very truly yours,

PROPOSAL

RESOLVED, that shareholders ask that Ross adopt a policy, and amend other governing documents as necessary, to require that the Board's Chair be held by an independent director, as defined in accordance with applicable requirements of The NYSE. This independence requirement shall apply prospectively, so as not to violate any contractual obligation at the time this resolution is adopted. Compliance with this policy is waived if no independent director is available and willing to serve as Chair. The policy should also specify how to select a new independent Chair if a current Chair ceases to be independent between annual shareholder meetings.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT:

Having a company executive serve as board Chairman, as Ross does, represents risky governance and puts shareholders at risk, since the role of management is to run the company and the Board's role is to provide independent oversight of management.

As Intel's former Chair Andrew Grove stated: "If he's an employee, he needs a boss, and that boss is the Board."

Increasingly, board members seem to agree. According to a Sullivan & Cromwell survey of 400 Board members, approximately 70% of respondents believe the head of management should not concurrently Chair the Board.

Indeed, shareholders are best served by an independent Board Chair who can provide a balance of power between the company and its Board and support strong Board leadership. The primary duty of a Board of Directors is to oversee company management on behalf of its shareholders. We believe a non-independent Chairman position creates a conflict of interest, resulting in excessive influence by, and oversight of, management.

Not surprisingly, numerous institutional investors recommend that Board Chairs be independent directors. For example, the California Public Employees' Retirement System (CalPERS)—America's largest public pension fund—encourages such a policy. And proxy analysis and voting firm Institutional Shareholder Services (ISS) recommends voting in favor of proposals such as this one which seek policies to ensure the Board Chair is an independent director.

We believe that ensuring the Board Chair position is held by an independent director would benefit the company and its shareholders and encourage shareholders to vote FOR this proposal.

RESOLVED, that shareholders ask that Ross Stores Inc. adopt a policy, and amend other governing documents as necessary, to require that the Board's Chair be an independent director, as defined by NYSE. This independence requirement shall apply prospectively, so as not to violate any contractual obligation at the time this resolution is adopted. Compliance with this policy is waived if no independent director is available and willing to serve as Chair. The policy should also specify how to select a new independent Chair if a current Chair ceases to be independent between annual shareholder meetings.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT:

As Executive Chair, Ross Stores' Board Chair is a company executive rather than an independent director—a practice that's come under increasing scrutiny for putting shareholders at risk. This concept of a Board Chair independence requirement is based on the following logic:

1. The role of management, including the CEO, is to run the company; and
2. the Board's role is to provide independent oversight of management, including of the CEO; therefore
3. there is a potential conflict of interest and lack of checks and balances when a CEO is his or her own overseer while simultaneously managing the business.

As Intel's former chair Andrew Grove asks, "Is a company a sandbox for the CEO, or is the CEO an employee? If he's an employee, he needs a boss, and that boss is the Board. The Chairman runs the Board. How can the CEO be his own boss?"

Increasingly, board members seem to agree. According to a Sullivan & Cromwell survey of 400 Board members, approximately 70% of respondents believe the head of management should not concurrently Chair the Board.

Indeed, this is a growing issue: in 2012, 44% of all S&P 500 companies had Boards not chaired by their CEO.

An independent Board Chair has also been found to improve financial performance. A 2012 GMI Ratings report, titled The Costs of a Combined Chair/CEO, found that companies with a separate CEO and Chair provide investors with five-year shareholder returns nearly 28% higher than those of companies helmed by a party of one.

It makes sense, then, that numerous institutions support separation, including CalPERS (America's largest public pension fund) and Institutional Shareholder Services (ISS). Additionally, The Council of Institutional Investors, whose members invest over $3 trillion, states that a "board should be chaired by an independent director."

Ensuring the Board Chair position is held by an independent director—rather than by company management—would benefit Ross Stores and its shareholders, and we encourage shareholders to vote FOR this proposal.

Dear Michael,

I hope you're well. I'm writing from The Humane Society of the United States to let you know that we're considering a shareholder proposal at Ross seeking an independent board chair policy, and to see if you or senior management would consider coming to the table with us instead.

As background: Everyone from the company who I've worked with has been terrific, including Mark LeHocky, who was a great emissary for Ross. We've engaged with Ross for many years regarding the issue of products containing real fur. Ross has told us privately that it does not knowingly sell items containing real fur, though unfortunately will not confirm that point in a public statement.

Today, animal welfare issues have come to bear such social and business relevance that we now ask all companies to make their sourcing policies transparent—which is indeed what dozens of the largest companies with animals in their supply chains (especially those that are publicly-owned) have done. For examples: Armani, Hugo Boss, H&M, Zara, Overstock.com, SeaWorld and many top food companies.

Since Ross does not knowingly buy real animal fur, we hope you'll agree that it won't take much to make the policy public on your website. Is this something you'd support? Thanks so much, and I'm happy to chat any time. Have a great day.

Subject: FYI, HSUS to FTC: take action against 17 retailers that sold animal fur as “faux fur”

Dear Ms. Rentler - I’m writing regarding Ross’s misrepresentation of animal fur garments, as detailed in our newly-released investigation report and petition to the Federal Trade Commission (see below).

Are you open to discussing how Ross might be able to rectify these issues? If so, we’re happy to connect.

Best,
PJ Smith

p.s. In the past, we’ve recommended to the FTC that the agency remove certain companies from our petitions even after they’re filed, and would consider doing so here too, if appropriate actions could be taken on this issue.

http://www.humanesociety.org/news/press\_releases/2016/08/hsus-ftc-action-against-fur-retailers-080916.html

HSUS to FTC: take action against 17 retailers that sold animal fur as “faux fur”

Amazon, Neiman Marcus, Kohl’s, Nordstrom among those facing potential civil or criminal penalties

The Humane Society of the United States asks the Federal Trade Commission to bring enforcement action under federal consumer protection laws against 17 retailers for false advertising of fur garments. The retailers sold a combined 37 different styles of apparel and accessories that were advertised or labeled as “faux fur,” but actually included animal fur from raccoon dogs, rabbits and coyotes.

In its largest collection of industry misrepresentations to date, The HSUS highlights violations from December 2011 through December 2015 by retailers Amazon, A-List/Kitson, Barneys, Belk, Bluefly, Century 21 Department Stores, Eminent/Revolve, Gilt, Kohl’s, La Garconne, Mia Belle Baby, Neiman Marcus, Nordstrom, Ross, Ruelala, Searle and Stein Mart.

“Consumers would be horrified to know they have been duped into purchasing animal fur when they thought they were buying a humane alternative,” said Pierre Grzybowski, Research and Enforcement manager of The HSUS’s Fur-Free Campaign. “The FTC must crack down on this industry-wide problem of misrepresentation that The HSUS has been uncovering and documenting year-after-year for a decade.”

The sale of these coats, footwear, key chains, handbags and cardigans as “faux fur,” when in fact they include animal fur, is a violation of the Fur Products Labeling Act, The Federal Trade Commission Act, and in some cases a violation of outstanding cease-and-desist orders already issued by the agency. Violations can carry penalties of up to one year in prison and/or fines of up to $40,000.

MICHAEL Michael Kors, Marc by Marc Jacobs, Burberry Brit, Canada Goose, Rebecca Minkoff, Elie Tahari and Rag & Bone are among the 32 different brands of apparel and accessories sold by the retailers named in the petition.

The submission represents the latest in a series of HSUS investigations and actions regarding rampant false advertising and labeling in the animal fur apparel industry. The HSUS previously sought FTC action on the problem in March 2007, April 2008, November 2011, July 2014 and April 2015. But lack of vigorous industry-wide enforcement has allowed widespread violations to go unchecked.

Neiman Marcus and Eminent/Revolve are already under 20-year cease-and-desist orders from the FTC following an HSUS petition that identified similar violations in 2011.
