Re: Stockholder Proposal of Trinity Health and Co-filers¹
Securities Exchange Act of 1934 – Rule 14a-8

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter and the enclosed materials are submitted by Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (the “Company”) to inform you that the Company intends to omit from its proxy statement and form of proxy for its 2018 Annual Meeting of Stockholders (collectively, the “2018 Proxy Materials”) a stockholder proposal (the “Proposal”) and a statement in support thereof (the “Supporting Statement”) received from Trinity Health and co-filers (collectively, the “Proponents”). We have concurrently sent copies of this correspondence to the Proponents.

In accordance with Section C of Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14D (Nov. 7, 2008) (“SLB 14D”), we are emailing this letter and its attachments to the Staff of the Division of Corporation Finance (the “Staff”) of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the “Commission”) at shareholderproposals@sec.gov. In accordance with Rule 14a-8(j), we are simultaneously sending a copy of this letter and its attachments to the Proponents as notice of the Company’s intent to omit the Proposal from the 2018 Proxy Materials. Rule 14a-8(k) and Section E of SLB 14D provide that shareholder proponents are required to send companies a copy of any correspondence that the proponents elect to submit to the Commission or the Staff. Accordingly, we are taking this opportunity to remind the Proponents that if the Proponents elect to submit any correspondence to the Commission or the Staff with respect to the Proposal, a copy of that correspondence should be furnished concurrently to the undersigned on behalf of the Company.

¹ The following stockholders have co-filed the Proposal: UAW Retiree Medical Benefits Trust, the Sister of St. Francis of Philadelphia, Boston Common Asset Management, LLC, Friends Fiduciary, American Baptist Home Mission Societies, Mercy Health, Daughters of Charity, Mercy Investment Services, Inc., School Sisters of Notre Dame Cooperative Investment Fund, Catholic Health Initiatives, and Monasterio De San Benito.

THE PROPOSAL

The Proposal states in relevant part:

RESOLVED, that shareholders of Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (“BMS”) urge the Compensation and Management Development Committee (the “Committee”) to report annually to shareholders on the extent to which risks related to public concern over drug pricing strategies are integrated into BMS’s incentive compensation policies, plans and programs (together, “arrangements”) for senior executives. The report should include, but need not be limited to, discussion of whether incentive compensation arrangements reward, or not penalize, senior executives for (i) adopting pricing strategies, or making and honoring commitments about pricing, that incorporate public concern regarding the level or rate of increase in prescription drug prices; and (ii) considering risk related to drug pricing when allocating capital.

The Proposal also includes a Supporting Statement that explains the Proponents’ basis for submitting the Proposal.

BACKGROUND

On November 17, 2017, the Company received the Proposal, accompanied by a cover letter from Trinity Health dated November 13, 2017, and a letter from The Northern Trust Company dated November 13, 2017, verifying Trinity Health’s stock ownership as of such date. Copies of the Proposal, the accompanying cover letter, the broker letter and all related correspondence for lead filer Trinity Health are attached to this letter as Exhibit A.

BASIS FOR EXCLUSION

We hereby respectfully request that the Staff concur in our view that the Proposal may be excluded from the 2018 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rules 14a-8(i)(10) and 14a-8(i)(7) for the reasons discussed below.

ANALYSIS

We believe that the Company may properly exclude the Proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(10), because the Proposal has already been substantially implemented through the oversight of the Compensation Management & Development Committee (the “Compensation Committee” or “Committee”) of the Company’s Board of Directors (the “Board”), and the executive compensation disclosures in the Company’s annual proxy statements filed with the Commission. Additionally, we believe that the Company may exclude the Proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it deals with matters relating to the Company’s ordinary business operations.

- 1. The Proposal May Be Excluded in Reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(10), as the Company has Substantially Implemented the Proposal Through the Oversight of its Compensation Committee and its Proxy Statement.

Rule 14a-8(i)(10) permits a company to exclude a proposal from its proxy materials if the company “has already substantially implemented the proposal,” which does not require a proposal to be implemented in full or precisely as presented. See Exchange Act Release No. 20091 (August 16, 1983). The exclusion set forth in Rule 14a-8(i)(10) is “designed to avoid the possibility of shareholders having to consider matters which already have been favorably acted upon by management.” See Exchange Act Release No. 12598 (July 7, 1976) (regarding the predecessor to Rule 14a-8(i)(10)). The Staff has stated that a proposal is considered substantially implemented when the company’s practices are deemed consistent with the “intent of the proposal.” Aluminum Company of America (January 16, 1996). Similarly, the Staff has expressed the view that a proposal is substantially implemented if the company’s “policies, practices and procedures compare favorably with the guidelines of the proposal.” Texaco, Inc. (March 28, 1991). The Staff has consistently interpreted this to mean that a company has substantially implemented a proposal when it has put in place policies and procedures relating to the subject matter of the proposal or has implemented the essential objective of the proposal. See, e.g., Exelon Corp. (Feb. 26, 2010); Anheuser-Busch Cos., Inc. (Jan. 17, 2007); ConAgra Foods, Inc. (July 3, 2006). Furthermore, the company need not take the exact action requested and the company may exercise discretion in implementation without losing the right to exclude the proposal. McKesson Corp. (Apr. 8, 2011). Accordingly, even if a company has not implemented every detail of a proposal, the proposal may still be excluded where the company has substantially implemented it.

The Staff has consistently permitted the exclusion of shareholder proposals that have been substantially implemented through compliance with applicable laws and regulations. See, e.g., Goldman Sachs (March 15, 2012) (proposal requests that a committee of independent directors of the board assess how the company is responding to risks, including reputational risks, associated with the high levels of senior executive compensation at the company and report to shareholders); JPMorgan Chase & Co. (March 15, 2012) (same); Verizon Communications Inc. (Feb. 21, 2007) (proposal that company disclose relationship between each independent director and the company that the board considered when determining such director’s independence is excludable as substantially implemented because Item 407 of Regulation S-K requires disclosure of each nominee for director that is independent under stock exchange standards and the transactions considered by board in reaching that conclusion); Eastman Kodak Co. (Feb. 1, 1991) (proposal that company disclose in annual report all fines paid for violating environmental laws is excludable as substantially implemented because Item 103 of Regulation S-K requires disclosure of all fines exceeding $100,000); see also King Pharmaceuticals Inc. (Mar. 17, 2010) (proposal that board amend company bylaws to give holders of 10% of the company’s common stock the power to call special shareholder meetings is excludable as substantially implemented because under relevant state law 10% of shareholders already have the authority to call special meetings); Johnson & Johnson (Feb. 17, 2006) (proposal that required the company to verify employment eligibility of current and future employees and to terminate any employee not authorized to work in the United States is excludable as substantially implemented on the basis that the company already was required to take such actions under federal law).

Here, the Proposal calls for the Compensation Committee to report annually to shareholders on “the extent to which risks related to public concern over drug pricing strategies are integrated into [the Company's] incentive compensation policies, plans and programs." In addition, the Supporting Statement in the Proposals notes that "public outrage over drug prices and their impact on patient access may force price rollbacks and harm corporate reputation." The Compensation Committee is an independent committee of the Board, as disclosed in the Company's 2017 proxy statement and as required by the Compensation Committee's charter and by New York Stock Exchange rules. The Compensation Committee's charter, as noted in the Company's proxy statement, is available on the Company's website. The Compensation Committee's charter sets forth the duties and responsibilities of the Committee, which include, among other things, determining and approving the compensation of the Company's Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and other senior executive officers. The charter makes clear that the duties and responsibilities of the Committee encompass a determination of the risks relating to executive compensation, including, but not limited to, reputational risks. In particular, the charter provides that, in fulfilling its duties and responsibilities, the Committee (like all standing committees of the Board) shall, among other things, annually review incentive compensation programs to confirm incentive pay does not encourage unnecessary risk-taking.

The Commission's rules currently require the Company to provide significant disclosure regarding the material factors considered by the Compensation Committee in making compensation determinations for the named executive officers. This disclosure is set forth in the Compensation Discussion and Analysis ("CD&A") included in the Company's annual proxy statements. Instruction 3 to Item 402(b) of Regulation S-K provides that the CD&A should "focus on the material principles underlying the registrant's executive compensation policies and decisions and the most important factors relevant to analysis of those policies and decisions." In addition, Item 402(s) of Regulation S-K requires the Company to provide disclosure regarding its "compensation policies and practices as they relate to [its] risk management." The nature of the "risks" that may require disclosure under Item 402(s) is not limited—Item 402(s) relates to all risks, including risk related to public concern over drug pricing, reputational risks, among others. Item 402(s) requires disclosure of "the [Company's] policies and practices of compensating its employees, including non-executive officers, as they relate to risk management practices and risk-taking incentives" if those compensation policies and practices are reasonably likely to result in a material adverse effect on the Company. This disclosure requirement was tailored to "elicit disclosure about incentives in the company's compensation policies and practices that would be most relevant to investors." (emphasis added) See Exchange Act Release No. 61175 (February 28, 2010). Further, as the Commission stated in footnote 38 to Exchange Act Release No. 61175, "...to the extent that risk considerations are a material aspect of the company's compensation policies or decisions for named executive officers, the company is required to discuss them as part of its [CD&A] under the current rules." The CD&A is reviewed by the Compensation Committee, and the Committee recommends its inclusion in the proxy statement, as stated in the Committee's report included in the proxy statement. Accordingly, the Company's board is required to assess precisely the issue presented in the Proposal—it is required to assess the risk associated with its compensation policies and decisions. As noted, after the Company's board has completed this assessment, "to the extent that risks arising from [the Company's] compensation policies and practices for its employees are reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on the [Company], [the Company is required to] discuss the [Company's] policies and practices of compensating its employees, including non-executive officers, as they relate to risk management practices and risk-taking incentives.”

In response to Item 402(b) and Item 402(s), the Company already provides significant disclosure on the considerations underlying the Compensation Committee’s executive compensation determinations in the CD&A, including risk-related considerations. In particular, the Company’s description of its compensation philosophy in the CD&A beginning on page 38 of the Company’s 2017 proxy statement (the “2017 Proxy Statement”) for the 2017 annual meeting of shareholders (“2017 CD&A”), specifically notes that the Company “has structured its compensation program to closely align the interests of [its] executives with the those of [its] shareholders” and has also designed the compensation program with certain principles in mind, including “to implement best practices in compensation governance, including risk management and promotion of effective corporate policies.” The 2017 Proxy Statement states on pages 18-19 that as a part of the administration of the Board’s risk oversight function, the Compensation Committee annually conducts a worldwide review of the Company’s compensation policies and practices to “determine whether incentive pay encourages excessive risk or inappropriate risk taking,” and discusses the manner in which the Company and the Compensation Committee seek to address and mitigate risk-related issues arising from compensation practices, including by striking an appropriate balance between short-term and long-term incentives, using the Committee’s ability to exercise downward discretion in determining incentive payouts, using a diversity of metrics to assess performance under the incentive programs, using different forms of long-term incentives, placing caps on the incentive award payout opportunities, following equity grant practices that limit potential for timing awards, having stock ownership and retention requirements and clawback provisions. As required by Item 402(s) and Item 402(b), this emphasis on risk management applies to all risks faced by the company—including drug pricing risk and reputational risk.

With regard to compensation practices, on page 29 of the 2017 CD&A the Company also disclosed “that aligning pay to the achievement of both [its] short-term and long-term goals, engagement, the achievement of [its] mission and the delivery of value to [its] shareholders is a cornerstone of [the Company’s] compensation philosophy and program structure.” The Company further noted its practice of refining its compensation programs as conditions change, while striving to maintain consistency in its philosophy and approach. Namely, the Company reported that, in responding to shareholder feedback regarding compensation practices in 2015, the Company revised its compensation practices to: (i) include three-year performance measurement periods in its long-term incentive program to ensure an appropriate and balanced focus on profitable growth, (ii) eliminate the non-GAAP earnings per share (EPS) metric overlap in the annual and long-term incentive plans, (iii) alter the mix of financial performance metrics in the long-term incentive plan and (iv) reduce the existing cap on the annual incentive award payout opportunities. The 2017 Proxy Statement at page 8. Indeed, contrary to the Proposal’s Supporting Statement’s incorrect assertion that “...incentive arrangements applicable to [the Company’s] senior executives may not encourage them to take actions that result in lower short-term financial performance even when those actions may be in [the Company’s] best long-term financial interests,” collectively, these compensation program practices, including the recent design changes, which place greater emphasis on long-term performance, significantly align executive compensation with shareholder value and discourage excessive or inappropriate risk-taking, are consistent with the Company's compensation philosophy and principles.

Furthermore, any negative impact from reputational risk is typically realized through a decline in a company's stock price. Our current long-term incentive (LTI) program (60% performance share units (PSUs) and 40% market share units (MSUs)) incorporates the Company's stock price into its performance measures and generally magnifies the impact of changes in stock price as well as relative total shareholder return (TSR) performance over the mid and longer-term. As illustrated in the 2017 CD&A at page 48, when the Company's stock price declines, the value of MSU awards decreases in two ways: (i) the number of shares earned goes down in proportion to the change in stock price and (ii) the value of those shares is less due to the lower stock price. Similarly, the value of PSU awards decreases in two ways: (i) the TSR metric reduces the number of shares earned (assuming the stock price declined more than the Company's peers' did) and (ii) the value of those shares is also less. This disclosure goes further to graphically illustrate how the decline in the Company's stock price from March 2016 through the end of 2016 is magnified in the value of its 2016 LTI awards. These disclosures are generally aligned with what the Proposal seeks—the extent to which reputational risk is integrated into the Company's incentive policies, plans and programs.

As discussed above, in compliance with Item 402(s) and Item 402(b) of Regulation S-K, the Company's Compensation Committee comprised of independent directors conducts an annual assessment of the goals and operational objectives of the Company's compensation structure through a robust risk management framework and provides substantial disclosure as to the relationship of the Company's compensation policies and practices to risk management, including reputational risk. The Company fully complied with the disclosure and assessment obligations of Item 402(b) and Item 402(s) of Regulation S-K in its 2017 Proxy Statement and intends to fully comply with these disclosure and assessment requirements in its 2018 proxy statement. As such, the assessment sought by the Proposal is undertaken annually as a means to satisfy the Commission's disclosure requirements and the information that would be included in the report requested in the Proposal is provided annually to shareholders in accordance with the Commission's disclosure requirements. Accordingly, the Proposal has been substantially implemented and the Company believes it may properly omit the Proposal and Supporting Statement from its 2018 Proxy Materials in reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(10).

2. The Proposal May be Excluded Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) Because the Proposal Deals with Matters Relating to the Company's Ordinary Business Operations.

We believe that the Company may exclude the Proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it deals with matters relating to the Company's ordinary business operations. According to the Exchange Act Release No. 34-40018 (May 21, 1998) (the "1998 Release"), the Commission explained that the ordinary business exclusion rests on two central considerations. The first consideration relates to the subject matter of a proposal; the 1998 Release provides that "[c]ertain tasks are so fundamental to management's ability to run a company on a day-to-day basis that they could not, as a practical matter, be subject to direct shareholder oversight.” Id. The second consideration is the degree to which the proposal attempts to “micro-manage” a company by “probing too deeply into matters of a complex nature upon which shareholders as a group, would not be in a position to make an informed judgment.” Id. (citing Exchange Act Release No. 12999 (November 22, 1976). In addition, in order to constitute “ordinary business,” the proposal must not raise a significant social policy issue that would override its ordinary business subject matter, which the Proposal does not. See id.; Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14A (July, 12, 2002); Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14E (October 27, 2009) (“SLB 14E”).

The Staff has also determined that where a shareholder proposal seeks to require that a board of directors conduct a risk analysis and issue a report for public review, it is the underlying subject matter of the report or risk assessment that is to be considered in determining whether the report or risk assessment involves a matter of ordinary business (Release 34-20091 (August 16, 1983) and SLB 14E). See also Sempra Energy (January 12, 2012), in which the Staff concurred with the company’s exclusion of a shareholder proposal seeking a board review of Sempra’s management of specific risks, noting that “the underlying subject matter of these risks appears to involve ordinary business matters.” As discussed below, the Proposal clearly relates to the Company’s ordinary business operations as it addresses the manner in which the Company complies with the Commission’s disclosure requirements. Additionally, the Proposal also relates to the Company’s ordinary business operations because the underlying subject matter of the Proposal relates to how the Company makes specific pricing decisions regarding certain of its products.

With respect to compliance with the Commission’s disclosure requirements, the Proposal seeks an annual report to shareholders from the Compensation Committee on the “extent to which risk related to public concern over drug pricing” are integrated into the Company’s compensation practices. However, as discussed in Section 1. above, the Company is already subject to requirements on this very topic. Specifically, the Commission’s rules require the Company to discuss its policies and practices of compensating executives as they relate to risk management practices, if such policies and practices are reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on the Company—for example, if such practices were reasonably likely to result in a material adverse effect on the reputation of the Company (disclosure specifically sought by the Proposal). Most notably, the Proposal’s Supporting Statement notes that “[t]he high prices of some of [the Company’s] cancer drugs have stirred controversy” and that “[p]ublic outrage over drug prices and their impact on patient access may force price rollbacks and harm corporate reputation.” In addition, Item 402(s) provides specific examples of the types of disclosure that a registrant should consider addressing, if disclosure is required, including: (i) the general design philosophy of the registrant’s compensation policies and practices for employees whose behavior would be most affected by the incentives established by the policies and practices, as such policies and practices relate to or affect risk taking by employees on behalf of the registrant, and the manner of their implementation; and (ii) the registrant’s risk assessment or incentive considerations, if any, in structuring its compensation policies and practices or in awarding and paying compensation.

The Company's compliance with this disclosure requirement is an ordinary business matter, consistent with a long line of Staff precedent recognizing that a proposal addressing a company's compliance with state or federal laws and regulations is a matter relating to its ordinary business operations for purposes of Rule 14a-8(i)(7). See, e.g., Yum! Brands, Inc. (March 5, 2010) (concurring in the omission of a proposal seeking management verification of the employment legitimacy of all employees in reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it concerned the company's legal compliance program); Johnson & Johnson (February 22, 2010) (same); FedEx Corporation (July 14, 2009) (concurring in the omission of a proposal seeking establishment of a committee to prepare a report on the company's compliance with state and federal laws governing proper classification of employees and independent contractors in reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it concerned the company's general legal compliance program); The AES Corporation (March 13, 2008) (concurring in the omission of a proposal seeking an independent investigation of management's involvement in the falsification of environmental reports in reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it concerned the company's general conduct of a legal compliance program); and Coca-Cola Company (January 9, 2008) (concurring in the omission of a proposal seeking adoption of a policy to publish an annual report on the comparison of laboratory tests of the company's product against national laws and the company's global quality standards in reliance on Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because it concerned the company's general conduct of a legal compliance program). Accordingly, similar to the above precedents, the Commission regulations specifically require the Company to provide disclosure on the very topic of the Proposal. To comply with this Commission requirement, the Company undertakes an annual assessment of the subject matter of the Proposal and provides the required disclosure relating to that topic in its proxy statement. Therefore, the manner in which the Company complies with this Commission requirement is an ordinary business matter for purposes of Rule 14a-8(i)(7).

With respect to the underlying subject matter of the Proposal, the Staff consistently has permitted exclusion of shareholder proposals under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when those proposals relate to how a company makes specific pricing decisions regarding certain of its products. See, e.g., Host Hotels & Resorts, Inc. (Feb. 6, 2014) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board consider providing senior citizens and stockholders discounts on hotel rates, noting that discount pricing policy determinations is an ordinary business matter); Equity LifeStyle Properties, Inc. (Feb. 6, 2013) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting a report on, among other things, "the reputational risks associated with the setting of unfair, inequitable and excessive rent increases that cause undue hardship to older homeowners on fixed incomes" and "potential negative feedback stated directly to potential customers from current residents," noting that the "setting of prices for products and services is fundamental to management's ability to run a company on a day-to-day basis"); Ford Motor Co. (Jan. 31, 2011) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal seeking to allow shareholders who purchased a new vehicle and "had no spare tire and hardware for mounting [the spare tire]...be able to purchase same from Ford Motor at the manufacturing cost of same," noting that "the setting of prices for products and services is fundamental to management's ability to run a company on a day-to-day basis"); MGM Mirage (Mar. 6, 2009) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal urging the board to implement a discount dining program for local residents); Western Union Co. (Mar. 7, 2007) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board review, among other things, the effect of the company's remittance practices on the communities served and compare the company's fees, exchange rates, and pricing structures with other companies in its industry, noting that the proposal related to the company's "ordinary business operations (i.e., the prices charged by the company)").

Although the Proposal does not specifically call for a discount as in the foregoing no-action letters, the Supporting Statement to the Proposal suggests that current prices of the Company's drugs are too high. See, e.g., Supporting Statement for Proposal (referring to "the high prices of some of [the Company's] cancer drugs have stirred controversy"). Similarly, the Staff has permitted exclusion of proposals requesting a report on how companies intend to respond to particular regulatory, legislative and public pressures relating to pricing policies or price increases. See UnitedHealth Group Inc. (Mar. 16, 2011) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting a board report on how the company is responding to regulatory, legislative, and public pressures to ensure affordable health care coverage and the measures the company is taking to contain price increases of health insurance premiums as relating to ordinary business matters); Johnson & Johnson (Jan. 12, 2004) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board review pricing and marketing policies and prepare a report on how the company will respond to regulatory, legislative and public pressure to increase access to prescription drugs). The Company's ability to set prices and its rationale and criteria for adopting pricing strategies or allocating capital are ordinary business matters that should not be subject to shareholder oversight. Staff agreed with the Company's assertions earlier this year, and permitted the Company's exclusion of a similar proposal by some of the same proponents. See Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (Feb. 10, 2017) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) regarding the disclosure of "the rationale and criteria used" to determine "the rates of price increases year-to-year of [the] company's top ten selling branded prescription drugs between 2010 and 2016, including the rationale and criteria used for these price increases, and an assessment of the legislative, regulatory, reputational and financial risks they represent for [the] company"). Here, similar to Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (Feb. 10, 2017), the Proposal only makes a passing reference to access to medicine, but instead squarely focuses on the Company's decisions on pricing strategies, including its rationale for allocating capital, which the Staff has previously determined to be ordinary business matters.

We are aware that, under limited circumstances, the Staff has declined to permit the exclusion of proposals relating to the pricing policies for pharmaceutical products. In all of those instances, however, the proposal focused on the company's fundamental business strategy with respect to its pricing policies for pharmaceutical products rather than on how and why the company makes specific pricing decisions regarding certain of those products. In particular, the request in each of those proposals appeared to focus on restraining or containing prices with the goal of providing affordable access to prescription drugs. See Celgene Corp. (Mar. 19, 2015) (declining to permit exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting a report on the risks to the company from rising pressure to contain U.S. specialty drug prices, noting that the proposal focused on the company's "fundamental business strategy with respect to its pricing policies for pharmaceutical products"); Vertex Pharmaceuticals Inc. (Feb. 25, 2015) (same); Gilead Sciences, Inc. (Feb. 23, 2015) (same); Bristol-Myers Squibb Co. (Feb. 21, 2000) (declining to permit exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board create and implement a policy of price restraint on pharmaceutical products for individual customers and institutional purchasers to keep drug prices at reasonable levels and report to shareholders any changes in its pricing policies and procedures, noting that the proposal related to the company's "fundamental business strategy, i.e., its pricing for pharmaceutical products"); Warner-Lambert Co. (Feb. 21, 2000) (same); Eli Lilly and Co. (Feb. 25, 1993) (declining to permit exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) where the proposal requested that the company "seek input on its pricing policy from consumer groups, and to adopt a policy of price restraint," noting that the proposal related to "the [c]ompany's fundamental business strategy with respect to its pricing policy for pharmaceutical products"). Furthermore, the Staff has consistently permitted exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of shareholder proposals couched as relating to executive compensation but whose thrust and focus is on an ordinary business matter. See e.g., Apple Inc. (Dec. 30, 2014) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) where a proposal urged the compensation committee to determine incentive compensation for Apple's five most-highly compensated executives in part based on "a metric related to the effectiveness of Apple's policies and procedures designed to promote adherence to laws and regulations."); Delta Air Lines, Inc. (Mar. 27, 2012) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the board prohibit payment of incentive compensation to executive officers unless the company first adopts a process to fund the retirement accounts of its pilots, noting that "although the proposal mentions executive compensation, the thrust and focus of the proposal is on the ordinary business matter of employee benefits").

Here the Supporting Statement makes only a passing reference to access to medicine in one line of the Supporting Statement, and tries to cloak the argument and overall presentation of the Proposal under the guise of executive compensation risk assessment. The majority of the Proposal however, including the Resolved clause, focuses on the Company's drug pricing decision making regarding certain of its products. And, although the Resolved clause summarily attempts to draw focus on strategy by asking the Company to report on "risks related to public concern over drug pricing strategies," this assertion quickly loses its authenticity once you read further into the Supporting Statement. Specifically, the Supporting Statement quickly reverts back to the Company's drug pricing decision making regarding particular drugs, noting "[t]he high prices of some of [the Company's] cancer drugs have stirred controversy" and addresses topics such as economic risks ("[t]he [Credit Suisse] report identified [the Company] as having the "greatest risk of future pricing pressures") and potential compliance considerations ("[p]ublic outrage over drug prices and their impact on patient access may force price rollbacks and harm corporate reputation."). By focusing on these topics, the Proposal provides additional bases for exclusion, as a proposal focusing on any of these topics may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7). The Proposal delves much more deeply into the day-to-day affairs of the Company than those proposals described above that focused on companies' fundamental business strategy with respect to pricing policies for pharmaceutical products and on restraining prices with the goal of providing affordable access to prescription drugs. Unlike the requests in those proposals, the primary focus of the Proposal's request is on obtaining explanation and justification for price increases in the Company's products—namely, detailed information on drug pricing and capital allocation decisions that are squarely within management's exercise of its business judgment. These statements, read together with the Proposal's specific request, demonstrate that the Proposal focuses on the ordinary business matter of how and why the Company makes specific pricing decisions regarding certain of its pharmaceutical products as well as capital allocation and not on a more general notion of fundamental business strategy. For this reason, the Proposal is excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) as relating to ordinary business matters.

3. The Proposal Does Not Raise a Significant Social Policy Issue

We note that a proposal may not be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) if it is determined to focus on a significant policy issue. The fact that a proposal may touch upon a significant policy issue, however, does not preclude exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7). Instead, the question is whether the proposal focuses primarily on a matter of broad public policy versus matters related to the company's ordinary business operations. See the 1998 Release and Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14E (Oct 27, 2009). The Staff consistently has permitted exclusion of shareholder proposals where the proposal focused on ordinary business matters, even though it also related to a potential significant policy issue. For example, in Amazon.com, Inc. (Mar. 27, 2015), the Staff permitted exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal requesting that the company "disclose to shareholders reputational and financial risks it may face as a result of negative public opinion pertaining to the treatment of animals used to produce products it sells" where the proponent argued that Amazon's sale of foie gras implicated a significant policy issue (animal cruelty). In granting no-action relief, the Staff determined that "the proposal relate[d] to the products and services offered for sale by the company." Similarly, in PetSmart, Inc. (Mar. 24, 2011), the Staff permitted exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of a proposal calling for suppliers to certify that they have not violated certain laws regarding the humane treatment of animals, even though the Staff had determined that the humane treatment of animals was a significant policy issue. In its no-action letter, the Staff specifically noted the company's view that the scope of the laws covered by the proposal were "fairly broad in nature from serious violations such as animal abuse to violations of administrative matters such as record keeping." See also, e.g., CIGNA Corp. (Feb. 23, 2011) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when, although the proposal addressed the potential significant policy issue of access to affordable health care, it also asked CIGNA to report on expense management, an ordinary business matter); Capital One Financial Corp. (Feb. 3, 2005) (permitting exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) when, although the proposal addressed the significant policy issue of outsourcing, it also asked the company to disclose information about how it manages its workforce, an ordinary business matter). In this instance, while the Proposal ostensibly touches on a social policy issue relating to the pricing of pharmaceutical drugs, similar to the precedents above, the Proposal's request focuses on ordinary business matters (i.e., the Company's specific pricing decisions regarding certain of its pharmaceutical products as well as capital allocation). Additionally, the Company currently has over 100 products that are marketed and sold in over 40 countries around the globe, including in key markets in the U.S., the European Union and Japan. The factors underlying price changes and allocation of capital are necessarily complex and vary by product, region and, in some cases, country, for a myriad of reasons, including due to, among other things, different healthcare regulatory regimes and differences in payment methods and programs depending on the jurisdiction in which a patient is located. See Bristol-Myers Squibb Company Annual Report on Form 10-K for the Year Ended December 31, 2016 at 13-16 (discussing the Company's drug pricing policy and efforts to make its products more affordable). By requesting such “intricate detail” in a report on this fundamental element of the Company’s business strategy, the Proposal “prob[es] too deeply into matters of a complex nature upon which shareholders as a group, would not be in a position to make an informed judgment.” Exchange Act Release No. 40018 (May 21, 1998).

Accordingly, consistent with the precedents described above, the Company believes that the Proposal may be excluded from its 2018 Proxy Materials pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) as relating to the Company’s ordinary business operations.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, we respectfully request the Staff’s concurrence that it will take no action if the Company omits the Proposal from its 2018 Proxy Materials.

Should the Staff disagree with the conclusions set forth in this letter, or should any additional information be desired in support of the Company's position, we would appreciate the opportunity to confer with the Staff concerning these matters prior to the issuance of the Staff's response. Please do not hesitate to contact the undersigned at (212) 546-5727.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Kelly,

Trinity Health is the beneficial owner of over $2,000 worth of stock in Bristol-Myers Squibb Company. Trinity Health has held these shares continuously for over twelve months and will continue to do so at least until after the next annual meeting of shareholders. A letter of verification of ownership is enclosed.

I am authorized to notify you of our intention to present the attached proposal for consideration and action by the stockholders at the next annual meeting. The proposal asks the Compensation and Management Development Committee to report on the extent to which risks related to public concern over drug pricing strategies are integrated into our Company's incentive compensation policies, plans and programs. I submit this proposal for inclusion in the proxy statement, in accordance with Rule 14-a-8 of the General Rules and Regulations of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934.

As the representative for Trinity Health, I am the primary contact for this shareholder proposal and intend to present it in person or by proxy at the next annual meeting of the Company. Other BMS shareholders may be co-filing this same proposal as well.

We look forward to speaking with you about this proposal at your convenience.

Sincerely,

Catherine Rowan

enc

RESOLVED, that shareholders of Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (“BMS”) urge the Compensation and Management Development Committee (the “Committee”) to report annually to shareholders on the extent to which risks related to public concern over drug pricing strategies are integrated into BMS’s incentive compensation policies, plans and programs (together, “arrangements”) for senior executives. The report should include, but need not be limited to, discussion of whether incentive compensation arrangements reward, or not penalize, senior executives for (i) adopting pricing strategies, or making and honoring commitments about pricing, that incorporate public concern regarding the level or rate of increase in prescription drug prices; and (ii) considering risks related to drug pricing when allocating capital.

SUPPORTING STATEMENT

As long-term investors, we believe that senior executive incentive compensation arrangements should reward the creation of sustainable long-term value. To that end, it is important that those arrangements align with company strategy and encourage responsible risk management.

A key risk facing drug companies is potential backlash against high prices. Public outrage over drug prices and their impact on patient access may force price rollbacks and harm corporate reputation. Investigations regarding pricing of prescription medicines may bring about broader changes, with some favoring allowing Medicare to bargain over drug prices. (E.g., <https://democrats-oversight.house.gov/news/press-releases/cummings-and-welch-launch-investigation-of-drug-companies-skyrocketing-prices>; <https://democrats-oversight.house.gov/news/press-releases/cummings-and-welch-propose-medicare-drug-negotiation-bill-in-meeting-with>) The high prices of some BMS cancer drugs have stirred controversy. (E.g., <http://www.businessinsider.com/r-the-cost-of-cancer-new-drugs-show-success-at-a-steep-price-2017-4>)

A recent Credit Suisse analyst report stated that “US drug price rises contributed 100% of industry EPS growth in 2016” and characterized that fact as “the most important issue for a Pharma investor today.” The report identified BMS as having the “greatest risk of future pricing pressures” of major pharmaceutical firms. (Global Pharma and Biotech Sector Review: Exploring Future US Pricing Pressure, Apr. 18, 2017, at 3)

We are concerned that the incentive compensation arrangements applicable to BMS’s senior executives may not encourage them to take actions that result in lower short-term financial performance even when those actions may be in BMS’s best long-term financial interests. BMS uses revenue and non-GAAP earnings per share, along with a pipeline goal and individual performance factors, as metrics for the annual bonus, and revenue and non-GAAP operating margin as metrics for performance share unit awards. (2017 Proxy Statement, at 43-44, 47)

In our view, excessive dependence on drug price increases is a risky and unsustainable strategy, especially when price hikes drive large senior executive compensation payouts. For example, coverage of the skyrocketing cost of Mylan’s EpiPen noted that a 600% rise in Mylan’s CEO’s total compensation accompanied the 400% EpiPen price increase. (See, e.g., <https://www.nbcnews.com/business/consumer/mylan-execs-gave-themselves-raises-they-hiked-epipen-prices-n636591>; <https://www.wsj.com/articles/epipen-maker-dispenses-outsize-pay-1473786288>; <https://www.marketwatch.com/story/mylan-top-executive-pay-was-second-highest-in-industry-just-as-company-raised-epipen-prices-2016-09-13>)

The disclosure we request would allow shareholders to better assess the extent to which compensation arrangements encourage senior executives to responsibly manage risks relating to drug pricing and contribute to long-term value creation. We urge shareholders to vote for this Proposal.
