Re: Shareholder Proposal to 3M Company Regarding Public Benefit Corporation on Behalf of The John Bishop Montgomery Trust

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The John Bishop Montgomery Trust (the “Proponent”) is the beneficial owner of common stock of 3M Company (the “Company”) and has submitted a shareholder proposal (the “Proposal”) to the Company. I have been asked by the Proponent to respond to the letter dated December 31, 2020 (“Company Letter”) sent to the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) by Alan L. Dye (“Company Counsel”). In the Company Letter, the Company contends that the Proposal may be excluded from the Company’s 2021 proxy statement. A copy of the Proposal is attached to this letter.

We respectfully submit that the Proposal must be included in the Company’s 2021 proxy materials and that it is not excludable under Rule 14a-8. A copy of this letter is being emailed concurrently to Company Counsel.

SUMMARY

The Proposal requests that the Board of Directors take steps necessary to amend our certificate of incorporation and, if necessary, bylaws (including presenting such amendments to the shareholders for approval) to become a public benefit corporation (a "PBC") in light of its adoption of the Business Roundtable Statement of the Purpose of a Corporation (the "Statement").

The Company Letter asserts that the Proposal is excludable as addressing ordinary business under Rule 14a-8(i)(7). However, the Proposal advances an extraordinary transaction, namely, an amendment of the Company's constitutional documents that would fundamentally alter the arrangement of rights and interests of shareholders and directors in the Company. Even if the Proposal did not involve an extraordinary transaction, the underlying issues regarding PBCs and shareholder primacy represent a significant policy issue that transcends ordinary business: indeed, legislatures around the country and around the world have passed laws to create benefit corporations in the last decade, and legislation has been introduced in both houses of the U.S. Congress to make all large companies benefit corporations.<sup>1</sup> In addition to this legislative activity, the efficacy of shareholder primacy has been debated for years. All of this demonstrates that the Proposal addresses a significant policy issue that transcends the business of the Company and is thus not excludable as relating to ordinary business.

In addition, the Proposal does not "regulate" the Company's relationship with certain constituencies, as claimed the Company, because it does not specify how any particular business question should be resolved—indeed, if adopted, the Proposal would expand the discretion of directors with respect to business decisions, which is the polar opposite of regulation or micromanagement.

BACKGROUND

The request to exclude the Proposal under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) is based on a misunderstanding of the provisions of the Delaware General Corporation Law that authorize PBCs. Accordingly, we begin with an explanation of the purpose and mechanics of Subchapter XV of the DGCL, "Public Benefit Corporations."<sup>2</sup>

A. Conventional Corporate Law

Prior to 2013, directors of all Delaware stock corporations were required to prioritize shareholder interests. While there has been a fierce ongoing debate as to whether corporations should be managed for the benefit of only shareholders or for a broader group of stakeholders,<sup>3</sup> the concept of shareholder primacy has dominated Delaware corporate law. A series of decisions by the Delaware courts cemented the place of shareholder primacy in the United States.<sup>4</sup>

The most important of these was the famous Revlon case decided by the Delaware Supreme Court in 1985.<sup>5</sup> Other Delaware authority has established that corporations exist primarily to generate shareholder value.<sup>6</sup> eBay Domestic Holdings, Inc. v. Newmark<sup>7</sup> is a more recent example of the Delaware focus on shareholder wealth maximization, even outside the sale context. The court embraced shareholder primacy, finding that it was a violation of the directors' fiduciary duties to make decisions primarily for the benefit of users of the corporation's platform:

Having chosen a for-profit corporate form, the craigslist directors are bound by the fiduciary duties and standards that accompany that form. Those standards include acting to promote the value of the corporation for the benefit of its stockholders. The "Inc." after the company name has to mean at least that. Thus, I cannot accept as valid . . . a corporate policy that specifically, clearly, and admittedly seeks not to maximize the economic value of a for-profit Delaware corporation for the benefit of its stockholders.<sup>8</sup>

The former Chief Justice of the Delaware Supreme Court has explained that the law clearly favors shareholders, stating that, "a clear-eyed look at the law of corporations in Delaware reveals that, within the limits of their discretion, directors must make stockholder welfare their sole end, and that other interests may be taken into consideration only as a means of promoting stockholder welfare."<sup>9</sup>

B. Public Benefit Corporations

The doctrine of shareholder primacy has caused great consternation regarding the harm that it poses to stakeholders and the public.<sup>10</sup> In response, the benefit corporation option was created to provide a corporate form where directors could prioritize interests other than shareholders. Beginning in 2010, U.S. jurisdictions began to adopt benefit corporation provisions, which created a corporate form that required directors to consider other stakeholder interests; a statute has now been adopted in 39 U.S. jurisdictions, one Canadian province and three other countries.<sup>11</sup>

Delaware's version, the PBC, was adopted in 2013. It allows any stock corporation to be formed as a PBC and any stock corporation that is not a PBC to amend its certificate of incorporation to become one.<sup>12</sup> Any such amendment must identify one or more public benefits, which are defined as "a positive effect (or reduction of negative effects) on one or more categories of persons, entities, communities or interests (other than stockholders in their capacities as stockholders) including, but not limited to, effects of an artistic, charitable, cultural, economic, educational, environmental, literary, medical, religious, scientific or technological nature."<sup>13</sup>

PBC directors have modified obligations that do not prioritize shareholder interests over all others. Instead, as a PBC, a corporation is intended to operate in a "responsible and sustainable manner."<sup>14</sup> Specifically, the directors must balance three considerations: (1) the shareholders' financial interests, (2) the best interests of those materially affected by the corporation's conduct and (3) a specific public benefit identified in the corporation's certificate of incorporation.<sup>15</sup> Thus, a PBC does not only serve shareholders and those named in the public benefit provision—the balancing duty runs to anyone materially affected by the corporation. This balancing obligation distinguishes PBCs from conventional corporations: rather than focusing solely on economic return to shareholders, a PBC must balance the interests of stakeholders other than shareholders as ends in themselves. Its purpose and its obligations are thus broader than financial return to shareholders.

In order for a conventional Delaware corporation to become a PBC, the board of directors must approve an amendment to the certificate of incorporation and then present that amendment to its shareholders for a vote.<sup>16</sup> In other words, the change is considered so fundamental that shareholder approval is required.

Conversion to a PBC reconfigures the rights and duties of the board and shareholders. While the board maintains discretion under the business judgment rule, it is given responsibility to consider a broad range of stakeholder interests as ends in themselves, rather than only as means to satisfy shareholder interests.<sup>17</sup> Shareholders also gain new rights to bring lawsuits for

C. The Proposal Would Implement a Fundamental Change

The list of core business matters and constituencies in the Company Letter that may be affected by the Proposal does not change a fundamental truth: for a conventional corporation like the Company, those matters and constituencies must be considered through the lens of serving shareholder interests. The Proposal would eliminate this priority. A leading Delaware law firm made exactly this point in a recent memorandum to another issuer: J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. had received a shareholder proposal asking the board to evaluate the issue of becoming a PBC. JP Morgan immediately implemented the proposal by obtaining a report (the ("Richards Report") stated:

Because the interests of customers, employees, suppliers, and the community in general are often key to the success of the corporation (and therefore are aligned with the interests of the corporation's stockholders), directors of conventional corporations may, consistent with their fiduciary duties, consider such stakeholder interests in making decisions. If the interests of the stockholders and the other constituencies conflict, however, the board's fiduciary duties require it to act in a manner that furthers the interests of the stockholders.

In a public benefit corporation, on the other hand, directors are required to manage the corporation in a manner that balances the pecuniary interest of the stockholders, the best interests of those materially affected by the corporation's conduct, and the specific public benefit or benefits identified in its certificate of incorporation.<sup>18</sup>

of the statute:

[T]he business judgment rule is a doctrine developed by the courts, which prohibits interference with board decisions made by disinterested and fully informed directors acting in good faith. [Chapter XV] states that this rule applies to all balancing decisions made by PBC directors.

Alexander, supra n. 3 at 93. In order to ensure that directors' discretion remains unimpeded for PBC's, the statute was amended in 2020 to clarify that ownership of corporate stock would not render a director "interested" and thus ineligible for the protections of the business judgment rule. Richards, Layton & Finger, 2020 Proposed Amendments to the General Corporation Law of the State of Delaware ("the amendment clarifies that a director's ownership of or other interest in the stock of the public benefit corporation will not, of itself, create a conflict of interest on the part of the director with respect to any decision implicating the director's balancing requirements, except to the extent such ownership or other interest would create a conflict of interest if the corporation were a conventional corporation") available at <https://www.rlf.com/2020-proposed-amendments-to-the-general-corporation-law-of-the-state-of-delaware/>.

ANALYSIS

A. The Proposal Seeks an Extraordinary Transaction, Not Ordinary Business

Contrary to the Company's assertions, the Proposal does not relate to the Company's ordinary business, because it involves an extraordinary transaction: amending the certificate of incorporation to alter the rights and obligations of the board to account for stakeholder interests and creating new rights of shareholders for relief if the board neglects those interests. The Delaware legislature deemed this change to fiduciary duties so important that it could only be made by an amendment that required board action followed by shareholder approval.

Because of the fundamental nature of a change in fiduciary duties, the Delaware legislature requires a shareholder vote to implement PBC status. The change in governance contemplated by the Proposal is the opposite of ordinary—it is nothing short of extraordinary to change directors' fiduciary duties, as Subchapter XV reflects.

The fact that shareholders have a place in the process also demonstrates the propriety of a request from shareholders for the board to take action. The issue is not a matter reserved to the sole discretion of the board, but one that the Delaware legislature found appropriate for shareholder engagement as well. As a matter of state law, the issue is within the zone of interest of shareholders, and not a matter reserved to the discretion of the board or considered ordinary business.<sup>19</sup>

Staff positions on prior proposals are clear on this: for example, proposals requesting that a company reincorporate in a more investor friendly state—proposals that would similarly require board approval followed by a shareholder vote in order to change important rights--were found to be non-excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) in Lowes Companies Inc. (March 19, 2009) and American International Group (March 16, 2009). The registrants argued that the proposal merely related to the determination and implementation of business strategies, and therefore to ordinary business operations. But the proponent argued that these were not mere business decisions but related to major determinations that would affect the rights and interests of shareholders. The Staff found that the proposals were not excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7). Certainly, a change to the very purpose of the Company from shareholder priority to shareholder priority among shareholders, workers, communities, and others is no less extraordinary than reincorporation to a more investor-friendly jurisdiction. As the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Delaware has said:

[T]he benefit corporation movement represents a refreshing and substantial step forward for those who believe that corporations—and all business entities—not only can, but should both do well by

<sup>19</sup> In contrast, adoption of the Statement does not require the approval of either the shareholders or the board, and, in fact, most boards do not approve the their corporation's adoption of the Statement, see Lucian A. ## B. The Proposal Transcends Ordinary Business

In addition to addressing an extraordinary transaction and not relating to ordinary business, the Proposal transcends ordinary business because it addresses a significant policy issue, as the prior quote from Chief Justice Strine makes clear. The Company itself has recognized the issue by executing the Statement along with another 180 large corporations, which acknowledges the critical nature of the relationship between a corporation and its stakeholders. But while it recognized the issue, it also sidestepped it, like the commentators referred to in another passage from the Chief Justice:

Rather than fighting to change the corporate law statutes . . . , these good-hearted, but often faint-willed, commentators just urge the directors to "do the right thing."<sup>21</sup>

That is exactly what the Company has done: pledged to do the right thing, but not changed the law that actually prevents them from following that pledge when it fails to redound to the benefit of shareholders. This distinction between the real change of a PBC amendment and the window dressing of the Statement raises a significant policy issue.

The reaction to the Statement's issuance (as well as the number of companies signing on) in August 2019 demonstrated the policy significance of addressing shareholder primacy. One dubious commentator noted that "For many of the BRT signatories, truly internalizing the meaning of their words would require rethinking their whole business."<sup>22</sup> Others noted the importance of the change, but also that it was meaningless without ending shareholder primacy:

Ensuring that our capitalist system is designed to create a shared and durable prosperity for all requires this culture shift. But it also requires corporations, and the investors who own them, to go beyond words and take action to upend the self-defeating doctrine of shareholder primacy.<sup>23</sup>

Other commentators were worried not that the Statement did not go far enough, but rather that it went too far:

Asking corporate managers to focus more on improving society and less on making profits may sound like a good strategy. But it's a blueprint for ineffective and counterproductive public policy on the one hand, and blame-shifting and lack of accountability on the other. This is a truth Milton Friedman recognized nearly five decades ago — and one that all corporate stakeholders ignore today at their peril.<sup>24</sup>

Another writer agreed, linking the issue to the same essay by Milton Friedman:

The issue of which constituency – or “stakeholder” – has the highest priority has long been a classic corporate governance conundrum. Still, the prevailing consensus, as espoused by Milton Friedman in his September 13, 1970 New York Times Magazine article, has been corporate executives work for their owners (i.e., shareholders) and have a responsibility to do what those owners desire, which is to make as much money as (legally) possible. That all changed on August 19, 2019.<sup>25</sup>

While exploring the laudable aspects of commitments to corporate social responsibility, the author of these articles returned to Friedman’s famous article, which stated that:

*[T]he doctrine of ‘social responsibility’ taken seriously would extend the scope of the political mechanism to every human activity. It does not differ in philosophy from the most explicitly collectivist doctrine. It differs only by professing to believe that collectivist ends can be attained without collectivist means. That is why, in my book Capitalism and Freedom, I have called it a ‘fundamentally subversive doctrine’ in a free society, and have said that in such a society, ‘there is one and only one social responsibility of business—to use its resources and engage in activities designed to increase its profits so long as it stays within the rules of the game, which is to say, engages in open and free competition without deception or fraud.’<sup>26</sup>*

The outpouring of commentary around the Statement<sup>27</sup> raises two related but distinct significant policy issues: first, should corporations focus more on stakeholders interests and if so, is a legal change to reject shareholder primacy necessary or desirable? In a conventional corporation, stakeholders interests are subordinate to the interest of shareholders—the board of directors or management can consider stakeholder interests only to the degree that they serve shareholder interests. Many commentators on the Statement believe it is necessary but insufficient on its own because attaining a fair and durable prosperity will sometimes demand that companies put the interests of stakeholders over those of shareholders.

<sup>27</sup> One more recent event has unleashed a second rush of commentary around the shareholders v. stakeholders question: the 2020 recognition of the 50th anniversary of Friedman’s essay. See, e.g., Friedman 50 Years later, PROMARKET (collecting 27 essays about Friedman’s article and its legacy) (Stigler Center for the Study of the Economy and the State).

The clearest signal of the significance of the policy issue is legislative action to address the issue around the nation and the world. Legislatures have acted in 39 U.S. jurisdictions, the Canadian province of British Columbia, and the countries of Italy, Colombia, and Ecuador over the last decade to make this new form available. In addition, legislation was introduced in the last U.S. Congress in both houses that would have imposed benefit corporation duties on the directors of all billion dollar companies.<sup>28</sup> The issue even surfaced in the most recent U.S. presidential election, as one candidate decried “the era of shareholder capitalism.”<sup>29</sup> In response, critics argued that favoring shareholders was the best recipe for a successful economy:

In reality, corporations do enormous social good precisely by seeking to generate returns for shareholders.<sup>30</sup>

Shareholder primacy is clearly an issue of great policy significance being addressed in legislatures around the country and the world, and even in the latest race for the U.S. presidency. Moreover, the Company’s decision not to address its legal strictures matters deeply. In a recent study, Schroders determined that publicly listed companies imposed social and environmental costs on the economy with a value of $2.2 trillion annually—more than 2.5% of global GDP and more than half of the profits those companies earned.<sup>31</sup> These costs have many sources, including pollution, water withdrawal, climate change and employee stress. The study shows exactly the areas where corporations are likely to ignore stakeholder interests, to the detriment of the global economy.

By participating in this common corporate practice of prioritizing the financial return to its shareholders above all stakeholder concerns, corporations harm those very shareholders, the vast majority of whom are diversified.<sup>32</sup> Such shareholders and beneficial owners suffer when companies follow the shareholder primacy model and impose costs on the economy that lower GDP, which reduces overall equity value.<sup>33</sup> Thus, while corporations may increase their isolated return to shareholders under the rule of shareholder primacy by ignoring the costs they externalize to stakeholders, their diversified shareholders will ultimately pay these costs. Such shareholders would benefit from corporate governance that enabled corporations to prioritize the stakeholders to whom the Statement refers.

<sup>32</sup> Indeed, as of the January 2020 proxy statement, the top two holders of Company shares were mutual fund companies Vanguard and BlackRock, whose clients are generally indexed or otherwise broadly diversified investors.

<sup>33</sup> See, e.g., <https://www.advisorperspectives.com/dshort/updates/2020/11/05/market-cap-to-gdp-an-updated-look-at-the-buffett-valuation-indicator> (total market capitalization to GDP “is probably the best single measure of where valuations stand at any given moment”) (quoting Warren Buffet).

Thus, the Proposal addresses a significant policy issue that is not excludable for purposes of Rule 14a-8(i)(7). Consistent with the foregoing analysis, questions around duties to stakeholders have not been excluded under 14a-8(i)(7) in recent staff decisions in Bank of America Corporation (February 12, 2020), Goldman Sachs Inc. (February 25, 2020), and Citigroup Inc. (February 25, 2020).

C. The Proposal Does Not Micromanage

Finally, the Proposal does not micromanage the Company but rather requests the board to initiate an extraordinary action that Delaware law establishes as a matter that requires the approval of the shareholders as well as the board of directors.

Far from constituting micromanagement—focusing on any single activity or operation—PBC status would overlay every decision, allowing the directors to authentically balance the interests of workers, customers, and others without dictating the outcome of any decision, so that all of the matters mentioned in the Company Letter would remain entirely in the hands of the board and management under the business judgment rule.<sup>34</sup> Indeed, if the Company went forward with the Proposal and became a PBC, directors would have increased discretion with respect matters that implicate stakeholder interests, and granting increased discretion is the precise opposite of micromanaging.

The Company Letter is based on a basic misapprehension of Delaware law, arguing as follows:

In addition, implementation of the Proposal would require the Company, in making fundamental decisions about its core business matters, to take into account and “balance” numerous factors and interests in any particular context. As discussed above, selection of the factors to take into account in making core business decisions is fundamentally the responsibility of management.<sup>35</sup>

But as explained above, the decision whether to continue to stop prioritizing shareholders over stakeholders in all matters—the sole focus of the Proposal—is decidedly not “the responsibility of management.” Without converting to a PBC, management would have to violate Delaware law in order to effect its underlying purpose. The question whether to apply such prioritization is, by law, a function of whether the Company remains a conventional corporation or converts into a PBC.

The Company’s ordinary business argument asserts that the change in duties will affect decisions that are made in the ordinary course of business, and the No-Action Request lists areas of decision-making that such a change might affect. But the length of the list simply <sup>34</sup> In cases where a higher standard of review applied because of board conflicts or entrenchment concerns, any limitation on board discretion would be the same as the limits that would otherwise apply to a conventional corporation. Alexander, supra n. 3, Chapter 8.

demonstrates that the Proposal transcends ordinary business because it provides an overall policy shift that potentially touches every decision the board makes, without dictating any particular outcome.

As the Staff has said, “The purpose of the exception is ‘to confine the resolution of ordinary business problems to the management and the board of directors, since it is impracticable for shareholders to decide how to solve such problems at an annual shareholders meeting.’”<sup>36</sup>

Effecting the Proposal will leave problem-solving firmly in the hands of the board and management. Indeed, the enactment of the suggested amendments actually would enhance rather than limit the directors’ discretion by allowing directors to add other considerations and priorities other than shareholder interests. This concept is written right into the statute: as discussed above, Section 365 fully preserves the discretion of the board with respect to business decisions but expands the purposes that can satisfy. The Proposal would thus give the Company’s directors and executives greater leeway on every matter listed by the Company in its No-Action Request, rather than in any way “confining” such decisions. Such a request transcends the Company’s ordinary business and is not excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7).

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, we believe it is clear that the Company has provided no basis for the conclusion that the Proposal is excludable from the 2021 proxy statement pursuant to Rule 14a-8. As such, we respectfully request that the Staff inform the company that it is denying the no action letter request. If you have any questions, please contact me.

Sincerely,

PROPOSAL

[3M Company: Rule 14a-8 Proposal, November 25, 2020]
[This line and any line above it – Not for publication.]

ITEM 4* – Transition to Public Benefit Corporation

RESOLVED: 3M Company (“Company”) shareholders request our Board of Directors take steps necessary to amend our certificate of incorporation and, if necessary, bylaws (including presenting such amendments to the shareholders for approval) to become a public benefit corporation (a “PBC”) in light of its adoption of the Business Roundtable Statement of the Purpose of a Corporation (the “Statement”).<sup>1</sup>

SUPPORTING STATEMENT: The Company signed the Statement, which proclaims “we share a fundamental commitment to all of our stakeholders. . . . We commit to deliver value to all of them, for the future success of our companies, our communities and our country.”

However, the Company is a conventional Delaware corporation, so that directors’ fiduciary duties emphasize the company and its shareholders, but not stakeholders (except to the extent they create value for shareholders over time). Accordingly, when the interests of shareholders and stakeholders such as workers or customers clash, the Company’s legal duty excludes all but shareholders.

As one Delaware law firm reported to another signatory considering conversion, directors may consider stakeholder interests only if “any decisions made with respect to such stakeholders are in the best interests of the corporation and its stockholders.”<sup>2</sup> That contradicts the commitment made in the Statement.

In contrast, directors of a PBC must “balance” the interests of shareholders, stakeholders, and a specified benefit<sup>3</sup>, giving legal status to the Statement’s empty promise.

This matters. A recent study determined that listed companies create annual social and environmental costs of $2.2 trillion<sup>4</sup>. These costs have many sources, including pollution, climate change and employee stress.<sup>5</sup> A company required to balance stakeholder interests could prioritize lowering these costs, even if doing so sacrificed higher return

That matters to our shareholders, the majority of whom are beneficial owners with broadly diversified interests. As of the 2020 proxy statement, the Company's top three holders were Vanguard, State Street and BlackRock, which are generally indexed or otherwise broadly diversified.

Such shareholders and beneficial owners are unalterably harmed when companies follow Delaware's "shareholder primacy" model and impose costs on the economy that lower GDP, which reduces equity value.<sup>6</sup> While the Company may profit by ignoring costs it externalizes, diversified shareholders will ultimately pay these costs. As a PBC, our Company could prioritize reducing these costs.

Shareholders are entitled to vote on a change that would serve their interests and ensure the commitment made to stakeholders is authentic and lasting.

The graphic would be the same size as the largest management graphic (and accompanying bold or highlighted management text with a graphic) or any highlighted management executive summary used in conjunction with a management proposal or a rule 14a-8 shareholder proposal in the 2021 proxy.

The proponent is willing to discuss the in unison elimination of both shareholder graphic and management graphic in the proxy in regard to specific proposals.

[16] Companies should not minimize or otherwise diminish the appearance of a shareholder's graphic. For example, if the company includes its own graphics in its proxy statement, it should give similar prominence to a shareholder's graphics. If a company's proxy statement appears in black and white, however, the shareholder proposal and accompanying graphics may also appear in black and white.

Re: 3M Company
Shareholder Proposal of the John Bishop Montgomery Trust

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen:

On behalf of 3M Company (the “Company”), we are submitting this letter pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to notify the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “Commission”) of the Company’s intention to exclude from its proxy materials for its 2021 annual meeting of stockholders (the “2021 Annual Meeting”) a shareholder proposal (the “Proposal”) submitted to the Company by John Montgomery as trustee of The John Bishop Montgomery Trust (the “Proponent”). We also request confirmation that the staff of the Division of Corporation Finance (the “Staff”) will not recommend to the Commission that enforcement action be taken if the Company omits the Proposal from its 2021 proxy materials for the reason discussed below.

A copy of the Proposal, together with other correspondence relating to the Proposal, is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

In accordance with Staff Legal Bulletin No. 14D (Nov. 7, 2008) (“SLB No. 14D”), this submission is being delivered by e-mail to shareholderproposals@sec.gov. Pursuant to Rule 14a-8(j), a copy of this submission also is being sent to the Proponent. Rule 14a-8(k) and SLB No. 14D provide that a shareholder proponent is required to send to the Company a copy of any correspondence the proponent elects to submit to the Commission or the Staff. Accordingly, we hereby inform the Proponent that, if the Proponent elects to submit additional correspondence to the Commission or the Staff relating to the Proposal, the Proponent should concurrently furnish a copy of that correspondence to the undersigned by e-mail.

Pursuant to the guidance provided in Section F of Staff Legal Bulletin 14F (Oct. 18, 2011), we ask that the Staff provide its response to this request to the undersigned via e-mail at the address noted in the last paragraph of this letter.

The Company intends to file its definitive 2021 Proxy Materials with the Commission more than 80 days after the date of this letter.

THE PROPOSAL

The Proposal requests that the Company's stockholders approve the following:

RESOLVED: 3M Company ('Company') shareholders request our Board of Directors take steps necessary to amend our certificate of incorporation and, if necessary, bylaws (including presenting such amendments to the shareholders for approval) to become a public benefit corporation (a "PBC") in light of its adoption of the Business Roundtable Statement of the Purpose of a Corporation (the "Statement").

BASIS FOR EXCLUDING THE PROPOSAL

We request that the Staff concur that the Company may exclude the Proposal pursuant to Rule 14a-8(i)(7) because the Proposal deals with matters relating to the Company's ordinary business operations.

A. Rule 14a-8(i)(7) centers on management functions directing certain core matters involving a company's business and operations

A shareholder proposal may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) if "the proposal deals with a matter relating to the company's ordinary business operations."

The term "ordinary business" refers to matters that are not necessarily "ordinary" in the common meaning of the word; instead the term "is rooted in the corporate law concept of providing management with flexibility in directing certain core matters involving the company's business and operations." See Securities Exchange Act Release No. 34-40018 (May 21, 1998) (the "1998 Release"). In the 1998 Release, the Commission explained that the ordinary business exclusion rests on two central considerations: first, that "[c]ertain tasks are so fundamental to management's ability to run a company on a day-to-day basis that they could not, as a practical matter, be subject to direct shareholder oversight"; and second, the degree to which the proposal attempts to "micromanage" a company by "probing too deeply into matters of a complex nature upon which shareholders as a group, would not be in a position to make an informed judgment.” In essence, a shareholder proposal may be excluded under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) if it pertains to core matters involving the company’s business and operations that are traditionally and properly the domain of management and board discretion and judgment.

B. The Proposal relates to the Company’s ordinary business matters

The Proposal requests that the Company take the steps necessary to amend its organizational documents to re-incorporate the Company as a public benefit corporation. A public benefit corporation is a for-profit Delaware corporation that is intended to produce a public benefit or operate in a responsible or sustainable manner. 8 Del. C. § 362(a). To convert from a Delaware corporation into a public benefit corporation under the terms of the Proposal, the Company would be required to amend its certificate of incorporation, which would require first that the board of directors adopt a resolution approving the conversion and second that the amendment be approved by the holders of two-thirds of the outstanding stock of the Company entitled to vote thereon. 8 Del. C. §363(a).

In doing so, the Proposal seeks to direct the Company’s core business operations by calling for a specific change to its corporate structure. The Staff has concurred with the principle that a company’s corporate structure is a matter of ordinary business. In The Goldman Sachs Group, Inc. (Jan. 26, 2017), the Staff allowed a company to exclude a proposal requesting that the company prepare and make public a study of the benefits and drawbacks of reorganizing as a bank holding company. In its letter allowing exclusion, the Staff noted that the proposal related to the company’s ordinary business operations because it “relates to a study of the benefits and drawbacks of the company’s current corporate structure.” In accordance with this principle, the Staff has also concurred in the omission of proposals relating to general corporate restructurings. See, e.g., HomeTrust Bancshares, Inc. (Aug. 31, 2015) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting that the company “make no acquisitions of any other financial institution” until its common stock traded above a certain price); The Reader’s Digest Association Inc. (Aug. 18, 1998) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting that the board of directors retain an investment bank to evaluate the options for reorganization or divestment of any or all company assets as well as any strategic acquisitions). Similarly, the Staff has concurred in the exclusion of proposals requesting spinoffs or sales of parts of a company on the grounds that these activities relate to ordinary business operations. See, e.g., PPL Corp. (March 11, 2015) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting the company’s board of directors to postpone a spin-off and allow shareholders to make certain decisions related to the proposed spin-off); Sears, Roebuck and Co. (Feb. 7, 2000) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting that the board of directors retain an investment bank to arrange for the sale of all or parts of the company). The Proposal, which explicitly requests a change in the Company’s corporate structure via a re-incorporation, similarly relates to the Company’s ordinary business.

Furthermore, the Proposal seeks merely a re-incorporation of the Company, which would have the same assets, liabilities and operations following the re-incorporation as before. Accordingly, the Proposal does not seek a sale of the Company or any other form of extraordinary transaction. While proposals pertaining exclusively to “extraordinary corporate transactions” are not excludable, see, e.g., Allegheny Valley Bancorp, Inc. (Jan. 3, 2001), such denials have been limited to proposals that address solely the sale or merger of the company in question. For example in Analysts International Corp. (March 11, 2013), the Staff permitted exclusion of a proposal requesting that the company engage the services of an investment banking firm to evaluate alternatives that could enhance shareholder value including, but not limited to, a merger or sale of the company. The Staff noted that “[p]roposals concerning the exploration of strategic alternatives for maximizing shareholder value which relate to both extraordinary and non-extraordinary transactions are generally excludable under Rule 14a-8(i)(7).” See also Anchor Bancorp, Inc. (July 11, 2013) (same).

Directors are charged by state law with responsibility for setting the Company’s priorities, objectives and goals to maximize long-term shareholder value. In setting a company’s priorities, objectives and goals, a board may be required to review and establish business strategies, make an assessment of the risks and liabilities associated with the objectives and goals, perform a cost/benefit analysis of transactions to be undertaken, ensure compliance with laws, rules and regulations and undertake many other responsibilities, including consideration of the company’s impact on its employees, customers, and suppliers and the communities in which the company operates. It is well understood that directors, not shareholders, have the responsibility to manage or oversee management of the corporation. As written, the Proposal usurps the business judgment of the board by dictating that the Company be re-incorporated to adopt a specific corporate structure that may or may not be beneficial to the Company’s shareholders or consistent with the board’s existing fiduciary duties or business judgment. These are precisely the types of “core matters involving the company’s business and operations” that are appropriately reserved to the board.

In addition, implementation of the Proposal would require the Company, in making fundamental decisions about its core business matters, to take into account and “balance” numerous factors and interests in any particular context. As discussed above, selection of the factors to take into account in making core business decisions is fundamentally the responsibility of management. For example:

- Relationships with Constituents such as Customers, Employees, Suppliers and the Community. If the Company re-incorporated as a public benefit corporation, it would be required to re-assess its relationships with all of its corporate constituencies, including by having the board “balance[] the pecuniary interests of the stockholders, the best interests of those materially affected by the corporation's conduct, and the specific public benefit or public benefits identified in its certificate of incorporation." 8 Del. C. § 365. The Staff has consistently permitted exclusion under Rule 14a-8(i)(7) of proposals that sought to regulate companies' relationships with certain constituencies, including:

- customers (see, e.g., Ford Motor Co. (Feb. 13, 2013) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting removal of dealers that provided poor customer service, noting that "[p]roposals concerning customer relations are generally excludable under rule 14a-8(i)(7)");
  - employees (see, e.g., Walmart, Inc. (Apr. 8, 2019) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting a report evaluating discrimination risk from the company's policies and practices for hourly workers taking medical leave, noting that the proposal "relates generally to the [c]ompany's management of its workforce");
  - suppliers and subcontractors (see, e.g., Foot Locker, Inc. (Mar. 3, 2017) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting a report outlining the steps the company was taking, or could take, to monitor the use of subcontractors by the company's overseas apparel suppliers, noting that "the proposal relates broadly to the manner in which the company monitors the conduct of its suppliers and their subcontractors.");
  - the community in which the company operates (see, e.g., Amazon.com, Inc. (Mar. 28, 2019) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting an analysis of the community impacts of the company's operations, noting that "the [p]roposal relates generally to 'the community impacts' of the [c]ompany's operations and does not appear to focus on an issue that transcends ordinary business matters"); and
  - the company's shareholders, generally (see, e.g., Con-way Inc. (Jan. 22, 2009) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting that the board take steps to ensure future annual shareholder meetings be distributed via webcast, as "relating to [the company's] ordinary business operations (i.e., shareholder relations and the conduct of annual meetings)"); Prudential Financial, Inc. (Feb. 7, 2003) (permitting exclusion of a proposal seeking a shareholders' association to be established, "as relating to ordinary business matters (i.e., shareholder relations)").
- Enhancing Shareholder Value. The Staff has permitted the exclusion of proposals relating to the determination and implementation of a company's strategies for enhancing shareholder value, on the basis that such matters are the domain of management. See, e.g., Bimini Capital Management (March 28, 2018) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting that the company’s board take measures to close the gap between the book value of the company’s common shares and their market price); Ford Motor Co. (Feb. 24, 2007) (permitting exclusion of a proposal requesting that the company’s chairman “honor his commitments to shareholders to increase stock performance,” noting that the proposal appeared to relate to the company’s “ordinary business operations (i.e., strategies for enhancing shareholder value)”).

CONCLUSION

For the reasons discussed above, the Company believes that it may omit the Proposal from its 2021 proxy materials. We request the Staff’s concurrence in our view or, alternatively, confirmation that the Staff will not recommend any enforcement action to the Commission if the Company excludes the Proposal.

Dear Mr. Fong,

I am pleased to be a 3M shareholder through my trust, The John Bishop Montgomery Trust, of which I am the sole trustee. I appreciate the leadership our company has shown on numerous issues.

I am submitting the attached shareholder proposal requesting that 3M amend its certificate of incorporation to become a Delaware public benefit corporation. I will meet Rule 14a-8 requirements including the continuous ownership of the required stock value until after the date of the respective shareholder meeting. My submitted format, with the shareholder-supplied emphasis, is intended to be used for definitive proxy publication.

This is my delegation to John Chevedden and/or his designee to act as my agent regarding this Rule 14a-8 proposal, and/or modification and presentation of it before and during the forthcoming shareholder meeting. This delegation does not cover proposals that are not rule 14a-8 proposals and does not grant the power to vote.

Please direct all future communications regarding my rule 14a-8 proposal to John Chevedden to facilitate prompt and verifiable communications. Please identify this proposal as my proposal exclusively.

Your consideration and the consideration of the Board of Directors is appreciated in responding to this proposal. Of course, I would welcome a dialogue and negotiations over the terms of the proposal. We expect to forward a broker letter soon, so if you simply acknowledge our proposal in an email message to *** , it may not be necessary for you to request such evidence of ownership.

Sincerely,

John Montgomery, Trustee for the John Bishop Montgomery Trust UA 4/4/2019

ITEM 4* – Transition to Public Benefit Corporation

RESOLVED: 3M Company ('Company') shareholders request our Board of Directors take steps necessary to amend our certificate of incorporation and, if necessary, bylaws (including presenting such amendments to the shareholders for approval) to become a public benefit corporation (a "PBC") in light of its adoption of the Business Roundtable Statement of the Purpose of a Corporation (the "Statement").<sup>1</sup>

SUPPORTING STATEMENT: The Company signed the Statement, which proclaims "we share a fundamental commitment to all of our stakeholders. . . . We commit to deliver value to all of them, for the future success of our companies, our communities and our country."

However, the Company is a conventional Delaware corporation, so that directors' fiduciary duties emphasize the company and its shareholders, but not stakeholders (except to the extent they create value for shareholders over time). Accordingly, when the interests of shareholders and stakeholders such as workers or customers clash, the Company's legal duty excludes all but shareholders.

As one Delaware law firm reported to another signatory considering conversion, directors may consider stakeholder interests only if "any decisions made with respect to such stakeholders are in the best interests of the corporation and its stockholders."<sup>2</sup> That contradicts the commitment made in the Statement.

In contrast, directors of a PBC must "balance" the interests of shareholders, stakeholders and a specified benefit<sup>3</sup>, giving legal status to the Statement's empty promise.

This matters. A recent study determined that listed companies create annual social and environmental costs of $2.2 trillion<sup>4</sup>. These costs have many sources, including pollution, climate change and employee stress.<sup>5</sup> A company required to balance stakeholder interests could prioritize lowering these costs, even if doing so sacrificed higher return

That matters to our shareholders, the majority of whom are beneficial owners with broadly diversified interests. As of the 2020 proxy statement, the Company's top three
