When an agency wishes to establish or significantly modify a system of records, it must notify in advance Congress and the Office of Management and Budget ("OMB") in order to permit an evaluation of the probable or potential effects of the proposal on the privacy or other rights of individuals. Currently, the SEC has 37 Privacy Act SORNs in its inventory. As directed by OMB,¹ and as part of the SEC's continuous privacy monitoring program, the SEC periodically reviews these SORNs to confirm the accuracy of the information. The Office of Information Technology ("OIT"), Privacy and Information Assurance Branch ("Privacy Office"), in collaboration with the system of records system

As a result of the review, revisions were made to SEC systems of records, as necessitated by changes in information handling practices within the SEC and in compliance with OMB Circular No. A-108, Federal Agency Responsibilities for Review, Reporting, and Publication under the Privacy Act.² Routine uses were also evaluated to ensure that they were necessary and compatible with the purposes for which the information is collected.

Accordingly, the Commission is proposing the following Table of Contents to provide a better guide to its inventory of systems of records, and the modified systems of records to read as follows:
