§ 78aa, because certain of the transactions, acts, practices and courses of conduct constituting violations of the federal securities laws occurred within this District.

SUMMARY

- 3. This action concerns a financial fraud perpetrated on the investing public by the former top management and finance officers of MaxWorldwide, Inc., formerly known as L90, Inc. ("L90"), an Internet advertising firm formerly located in Marina Del Rey, California, and now based in New York, New York. Defendants John C. Bohan, Lucrezia Bickerton, Mark D. Roah, and Chantel J. Loo were, respectively, L90's Chief Executive Officer, Vice President of Finance, Senior Vice President of Business Development, and Controller. Bohan and Roah were also Directors of L90.
- From L90's third quarter 2000 ("Q3 2000") through the third quarter of 2001, each of the defendants engaged in fraudulent conduct to overstate L90's revenues. The principal scheme to generate false revenues involved barter transactions in which L90 recognized revenue by "check-swapping" or "roundtripping" cash with one or more third party companies. In these transactions, L90 exchanged advertising on its proprietary website, webMillion.com, with advertising on another company's website and, to generate revenue from the barter, swapped cash with the other company. Initially, L90 merely swapped checks of identical or similar amounts with the other company. Then, in order to better hide the transactions from its auditor, L90 began round-tripping the money through multiple companies. In the second revenue-generating scheme, L90 booked revenue for a large advertising campaign despite the fact that Bohan and Bickerton knew from the outset of the campaign that L90 would never receive payment from the client. As a result of these fraudulent transactions, L90 overstated its revenue in Commission filings by at least $4.9 million, or 9.2%, and by as much as 29% in one quarter, and was thereby able to meet stock analysts' revenue estimates in all but one quarter during the relevant period.

- 5. Bohan orchestrated and approved the fraudulent barter and advertising campaign schemes; lied to L90's auditor about the transactions related in to these schemes; and signed L90's public filings with the Commission that incorporated false financial information. Bickerton helped orchestrate, implement, and facilitate the barter and advertising schemes, recorded revenue on the transactions related to these schemes into L90's books and records, and lied to L90's auditor about the transactions related to these schemes. Roah negotiated, implemented, and facilitated the fraudulent barter transactions with the outside companies, misappropriated money from two of the round-trip transactions, lied to L90's auditor about certain barter transactions, and signed L90's public filings that incorporated false financial information. Loo helped coordinate some of the check-swaps, was involved in recording some of the barter transactions into L90's books and records, and lied to L90's auditor about L90's barter transactions.
- 6. The defendants, by engaging in the conduct alleged in this Complaint, have violated the antifraud provisions of Section 17(a) of the Securities Act, 15 U.S.C. § 77q(a), and Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. § 78j(b), and Rule 10b-5 thereunder, 17 C.F.R. § 240.10b-5; aided and abetted violations of the issuer reporting provisions of Section 13(a) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. § 78m(a), and Rules 12b-20, 13a-1 and 13a-13 thereunder, 17 C.F.R. §§ 240.12b-20, 240.13a-1 & 240.13a-13; violated the recordkeeping and internal control provisions of Section 13(b)(5) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. § 78m(b)(5), and Rule 13b2-1 thereunder, 17 C.F.R. § 240.13b2-1; and lied to L90's auditor in violation of Exchange Act Rule 13b2-2, 17 C.F.R. § 240.13b2-2. Defendant Roah also aided and abetted violations of the antifraud provisions of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5 thereunder by certain former employees of Homestore.com, Inc., one of the other parties to two of the round-trip transactions.

In order to sell its common stock and other securities to members of 12. the public and maintain public trading of its securities, L90 was required to comply with statutes, rules and regulations designed to ensure that its financial information was accurately recorded and disclosed to the investing public. Under these statutes, rules and regulations, L90 had a duty to, among other things, (a) make and keep books, records and accounts which, in reasonable detail, accurately and fairly reflected its transactions and dispositions of assets; (b) devise and maintain a system of internal accounting controls sufficient to provide reasonable assurances that transactions are recorded as necessary to permit preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles and to maintain accountability for assets; (c) file with the Commission an annual report on the appropriate form (known as a "Form 10-K") for each fiscal year including a financial statement including a balance sheet and statements of income and cash flows prepared in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles and certified by an independent public accountant; and (d) file with the Commission quarterly reports on the appropriate form (known as a "Form 10-Q") for each of the first three quarters of each fiscal year including financial statements that disclose its financial condition and results of business operations for each three-month period.

THE FRAUDULENT SCHEME

Bohan And Bickerton Conceive The Fraudulent Barter Scheme And A. Roah Implements The Barter Deals

In Q3 2000, Bohan and Bickerton met to discuss L90's financial performance and the possibility that L90 would not meet analysts' revenue estimates that quarter. During this meeting, it was suggested that, in order to meet analysts' estimates, L90 record barter revenue through webMillion and not

- disclose in its financial statements that the revenue came from barter transactions. Soon thereafter, it was determined to use barter transactions for the purpose of inflating L90's revenues.
- In Q3 2000, Bohan informed Roah that L90 was going to be short on revenue and that engaging in barter transactions would help L90 meet the quarterly analysts' estimates. Bohan then instructed Roah to set up barter transactions to help L90 meet these quarterly expectations. Bickerton also instructed Roah to implement these revenue-generating barter transactions. Further, Bohan and Bickerton told Roah that it was important to swap checks on certain barter deals so that there would be evidence that L90 received the revenue it was to record on such transactions. As instructed, Roah negotiated and implemented such barter transactions.
- 15. Each month during the relevant period, Bickerton apprised Bohan of L90's financial performance in order to determine whether any barter revenue needed to be recorded to meet analysts' quarterly revenue estimates. Bohan often asked Roah if there was enough barter advertising running to meet analysts' revenue estimates. Roah implemented several barter deals at the same time and ran advertising for these deals to ensure that there would be sufficient barter revenue at the end of each quarter to meet analysts' estimates.

В. The Fraudulent Revenue-Generating Barter Transactions

16. From Q3 2000 through Q3 2001, the defendants engaged in fraudulent conduct that resulted in purported revenue from ten barter transactions being fraudulently recorded on L90's books. In five of these transactions, L90 agreed to exchange Internet advertising on its proprietary website, webMillion.com, with one other company, swapped checks of identical or similar amounts with the same company, and recognized revenue on the money received in the exchange. In five other transactions, L90 agreed to exchange advertising on webMillion with at least one other company, engaged in the round-tripping of money through at least two other companies, and recognized revenue on money received from the round-tripping.

Bohan approved the use of the fraudulent barter transactions to inflate 17. L90's revenue; Bickerton facilitated the transactions and recorded, or ensured the recording, of revenue from the transactions; Roah negotiated, structured, and implemented the transactions; and Loo helped coordinate some of the check-swaps and was involved in recording some of the transactions into L90's books and records.

The Check-Swap Transactions 1.

The $211,094 Check-Swap

18. As set forth in the table below, from September 2000 to November 2000, L90 recognized $211,094 in revenue from a barter transaction and check swap between webMillion and an online email service provider (the "Online Email Co."):

Date	L90 Disbursement	L90 Receipt	L90 Revenue Recognized	L90 Expense Recorded
9/01/00			$ 59,178
10/01/00			$ 67,917
10/31/00				$230,000
11/01/00			$ 83,999

11/28/00		$229,750
Total	$230,000	$229,750	$211,094	$230,000

19. Bickerton signed the $230,000 check issued to the Online Email Co., instructed a subordinate to work on the check-swap with Loo, instructed Loo to record an advertising expense for the deal, and ensured that L90 recorded revenue for the deal. Roah was L90's sales account executive for this transaction and communicated with the Online Email Co. regarding the terms and reciprocal nature of the transaction. Loo communicated with the Online Email Co. regarding the check exchange, provided the Online Email Co. with check and payment information related to the deal, and prepared the L90 cash receipt register that detailed the check received from the Online Email Co.

The $320,000 Check-Swap b.

As set forth in the table below, from December 2000 through April 20. 2001, L90 recognized $320,000 in total revenue from a barter transaction and check swap between webMillion and an online game company (the "Online Game Co."):

Date	L90 Disbursement	L90 Receipt	L90 Revenue Recognized	L90 Expense Recorded
12/01/00			$132,740.97
1/01/01			$ 34.39

4/30/01				$320,000
Total	$320,000	$320,000	$320,000	$320,000

Roah approved the transaction with the Online Game Co. Loo signed 21. the $320,000 check issued to the Online Game Co. and ensured that L90 recorded an advertising expense for this transaction in its books.

The $500,000 Check-Swap

As set forth in the table below, in March 2001 L90 recognized 22. $500,000 in total revenue from a barter transaction and check swap between webMillion and an online dating company (the "Online Dating Co."):

Date	L90 Disbursement	L90 Receipt	L90 Revenue Recognized	L90 Expense Recorded
3/01/01			$500,000

Loo signed the $500,000 check issued to the Online Dating Co., coordinated the check-swap with the Online Dating Co., and recorded a journal entry posted into L90's general ledger reflecting the $500,000 check received by L90. The $99,082 Check-Swap d.

Roah negotiated the terms of the barter deal with the Online Dating

As set forth in the table below, in August 2000 L90 recognized 24. $99.082 in total revenue from a barter transaction and check swap between webMillion and an online lottery company (the "Online Lottery Co."):

Date	L90 Disbursement	L90 Receipt	L90 Revenue Recognized	L90 Expense Recorded
8/01/00			$99,082
9/25/00	$100,000			$100,000
3/27/01		$99,082
Total	$100,000	$99,082	$99,082	$100,000

25. Bickerton and Roah conceived and executed this transaction. Bickerton instructed a subordinate to prepare the check for the Online Lottery Co., signed the check issued to the Online Lottery Co., and ensured that L90 recorded revenue on this transaction. Roah was L90's sales account executive for the deal, negotiated the terms of the deal with the Online Lottery Co., coordinated the signing of the insertion orders (i.e., advertising agreements) with the Online Lottery Co., provided an L90 insertion order to the Online Lottery Co. that had a forged signature, and facilitated the check-swap.

The $99,990 Check-Swap

As set forth in the table below, in September 2000 L90 recognized 26. $252,990 in total revenue from a second barter transaction and check swap between webMillion and the Online Lottery Co.:

Date	L90 Disbursement	L90 Receipt	L90 Revenue Recognized	L90 Expense Recorded
9/01/00			$252,990
3/07/01	$ 99,450 (part of a $146,870 check)
3/27/01		$99,990
Total	$99,450	$99,990	$252,990	$0

27. Bickerton and Roah conceived and executed this transaction. Bickerton ensured that L90 recorded revenue on the transaction. Roah was L90's sales account executive for the deal, negotiated the terms of the transaction with the Online Lottery Co., and facilitated the check-swap. Loo approved an L90 insertion order related to the deal and signed the check issued to the Online Lottery Co.

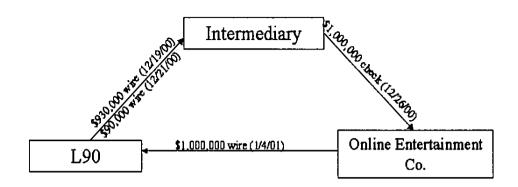

2. The Round-Trip Transactions

28. In or about Q4 2000, after recognizing revenue from several of the check-swaps described above, Bohan told Bickerton that L90 needed to structure barter transactions that were not as risky. Specifically, Bohan explained to Bickerton that he wanted to insert a third party intermediary into the barter transactions to better hide the transactions from L90's auditor. Bohan arranged for a specific intermediary company (the "Intermediary") to be included in the barter transactions and instructed Bickerton to work with the Intermediary. Bohan also instructed Roah to use the Intermediary in the barter transactions.

a. The $1,000,000 Round-Trip Transaction

29. From November 2000 to January 2001, L90 recognized $1,000,000 in total revenue from a barter transaction involving webMillion, the Intermediary, and a company that owned two entertainment websites (the "Online Entertainment Co."). As set forth in the diagram below, this transaction involved the round-trip movement of money between L90, the Intermediary, and the Online Entertainment

Co.:

30. Bickerton instructed Roah to effect this round-trip transaction, communicated with the Intermediary regarding the deal, ensured that L90 recorded revenue from the deal, and signed the $930,000 wire transfer request. Roah was L90's sales account executive for the transaction, negotiated the terms of the transaction with the Online Entertainment Co., instructed L90 employees how to prepare the L90 insertion order related to the deal, communicated with the Online Entertainment Co. regarding the delivery of advertising by webMillion, and coordinated the movement of money.

b. The $1,098,000 Round-Trip Transaction

31. In March 2001, L90 recognized $1,098,000 in total revenue from a barter transaction involving webMillion, the Intermediary, and three Internet-related companies. As set forth in the diagram below, this transaction involved the round-trip movement of money between L90, the Intermediary, and three Internet-related companies:

*

27 | 1

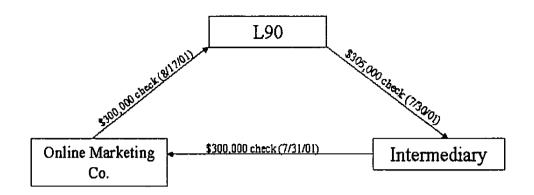

28 |

32. Bickerton informed the Intermediary of the three Internet-related companies participating in this transaction, provided the Intermediary with specific check and wiring instructions regarding the flow of money, communicated with the Intermediary about the Intermediary's fee related to the transaction, coordinated the round-trip movement of money, and ensured that L90 recorded revenue. Roah was L90's sales account executive for the transaction, negotiated the terms of each leg of the barter transaction with the three Internet-related companies, instructed a subordinate to prepare L90 insertion orders related to the transaction, communicated with the Internet-related companies regarding signing L90's insertion orders, instructed a subordinate to improperly sign documents on behalf of the Intermediary, and communicated with the Internet-related companies regarding the movement of money. Loo prepared and signed the $1,603,000 wire transfer request and approved recording a portion of the revenue from the transaction.

c. The $300,000 Round-Trip Transaction

33. In June 2001, L90 recognized $300,000 in total revenue from a barter transaction involving webMillion, the Intermediary, and an online marketing company (the "Online Marketing Co."). As set forth in the diagram below, this transaction involved the round-tripping of money between L90, the Intermediary, and the Online Marketing Co.:

34. Bickerton approved an L90 insertion order for this transaction, instructed the Intermediary to issue the check to the Online Marketing Co., coordinated the movement of money with the Intermediary, signed the check issued to the Intermediary, and ensured that L90 recorded revenue. Roah was L90's sales account executive for the deal, negotiated the barter transaction with the Online Marketing Co., communicated with the Online Marketing Co. regarding the insertion orders, and coordinated the movement of money with the Online Marketing Co.

d. The Two Round-Trip Transactions With Homestore

35. As discussed below, L90 recognized $500,000 in total revenue from two barter transactions involving Homestore.com, Inc.

i. The $250,000 Round-Trip Transaction for Q2 2001

- 36. In June 2001, L90 recognized $250,000 in total revenue from a barter transaction involving Homestore. As part of this transaction, L90 received a wire transfer on July 20, 2001, of $4,250,000 from a third-party company (the "Third Party Co.") participating in the transaction, and then wired $4,000,000 to Homestore on the same date.
- 37. In or about Q2 2001, a Homestore employee contacted Roah and told him that Homestore wanted to put together a barter deal with L90. The Homestore employee also told Roah that Homestore would pay L90 a "leave behind" or commission of $250,000 for participating in the transaction. Roah told

- 38. Roah similarly discussed this barter transaction with Bickerton and told her that L90 would receive $250,000 in cash for its participation. Bickerton asked Bohan if he wanted L90 to participate in this deal. Bohan approved the transaction and determined that L90 should record the $250,000 as revenue.
- 39. Roah negotiated this round-trip transaction with the Homestore employee, recommended to Homestore the participating Third Party Co., was L90's sales account executive for the transaction, and provided wiring instructions to the Third Party Co. Bickerton signed the $4,000,000 wire transfer request, instructed a subordinate to wire the $4,000,000 to Homestore, and ensured that L90 recorded revenue from this transaction. Loo signed the wire transfer request and recorded a journal entry posted to L90's general ledger related to this transaction.
- 40. As part of this transaction, the Third Party Co. received a $300,000 commission and agreed to split this commission with Roah. On or about July 17, 2001, unbeknownst to the other defendants, Roah instructed the Third Party Co. to wire $150,000 to Roah's own company, NTB Media. On or about July 20, 2001, NTB Media received $150,000 from the Third Party Co., which Roah then misappropriated for his own use.

ii. The $250,000 Round-Trip Transaction for Q3 2001

- 41. In September 2001, L90 recognized $250,000 in total revenue from a second round-trip transaction involving Homestore. In this transaction, L90 received a wire transfer of $5,900,000 from a company participating in the transaction (the "Participating Co.") on November 19, 2001, and then wired $5,650,000 to Homestore on the same date.
- 42. In or about Q3 2001, the Homestore employee contacted Roah about setting up another round-trip transaction involving L90. Roah approached Bickerton regarding this deal and asked her if she wanted to engage in another transaction with Homestore that was similar to the previous transaction. Bickerton told Bohan about this deal, asked Bohan if he wanted to participate in this deal, and told Bohan that L90 would only recognize the net amount of revenue from the transaction. Bohan approved this transaction and determined that L90 should record the $250,000 as revenue.

- 43. Roah negotiated the details of this round-trip transaction with Homestore, recommended to Homestore the Participating Co., informed the Participating Co. about the cash flow in the transaction, provided the Participating Co. with specific check and wiring instructions, instructed the Participating Co. to use a bogus address on an insertion order, signed insertion orders using the alias "Larry Quest," and was L90's sales account executive for the transaction. Bickerton ensured that L90 recorded $250,000 in revenue from the transaction. Bohan and Loo signed the $5,650,000 wire transfer request.
- 44. In addition, unbeknownst to the other defendants, Roah instructed the Participating Co. to send $507,000 to his company, NTB Media, as part of this transaction. On or about November 28, 2001, NTB Media received the $507,000, which Roah then misappropriated for his own use.

iii. Roah Knowingly And Substantially Assisted Homestore Employees In Their Fraudulent Conduct

- 45. Certain former Homestore employees recorded or caused to be recorded in Homestore's books inflated revenues in Q2 and Q3 2001 of up to $9.6 million pertaining to the above round-trip transactions involving L90. These inflated revenues were reported in Homestore's financial statements included in its Q2 and Q3 2001 Forms 10-Q filed with the Commission.
- 46. Roah knew that his conduct in the above transactions helped inflate Homestore's revenues. Moreover, on or about November 13, 2001, at the request of several Homestore employees, Roah signed a confirmation letter for Homestore's auditor. This letter falsely confirmed that the total sales between

3. Fraudulent Revenue Recognition From The Barter Transactions

47. The essence of the check-swap and round-trip transactions was a circular flow of money by which L90 improperly recognized revenue. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP") do not permit companies to recognize revenue on transactions without any economic substance, such as the check swap and round-trip transactions discussed above.

C. Bohan And Bickerton Implement The Fraudulent Advertising Campaign

- 48. In a further attempt to boost L90's revenues, Bohan and Bickerton conceived and implemented a scheme whereby L90 recognized total revenue of $567,421, in December 2000 and January 2001, from an advertising campaign it ran for another Internet company (the "Internet Co."). L90 ran the advertising campaign on webMillion in or about Q4 2000 and Q1 2001, but it never received any payment for the campaign. In Q2 2001, L90 wrote off the $567,421 as bad debt.
- 49. From the outset of this transaction, Bohan and Bickerton knew that L90 would never receive payment from the Internet Co. and that L90 would have to write off the $567,421 receivable in a subsequent quarter. Nevertheless, Bohan approved this transaction. Further, after reviewing L90's accounting records to ensure that this transaction would not be detected, Bickerton told Bohan that L90 could proceed with the transaction. Bickerton recorded the revenue from this transaction. In or about Q2 2001, Bickerton told a subordinate not to reverse the revenue or make any collection efforts on this campaign.
- 50. The recording of revenue from this campaign was improper because the collection of money was not "reasonably assured," as required by GAAP.

 Further, Bohan and Bickerton concealed the fraudulent nature of the campaign from L90's auditor.

D. The Defendants Lie to L90's Auditor

1. Bohan, Bickerton, And Roah Deceive The Auditor Regarding The Intermediary

51. As discussed above, in or about Q4 2001, Bohan determined to add the Intermediary to the barter transactions to better hide the barter transactions from L90's auditor. Bohan told Bickerton and Roah to work with the Intermediary in structuring these transactions. Pursuant to Bohan's instructions, Roah implemented the three transactions detailed above using the Intermediary from Q4 2000 through Q2 2001. In connection with the 2000 audit and Q1 and Q2 2001 financial statement reviews, Bohan, Bickerton, and Roah concealed L90's use of the Intermediary from L90's auditor.

2. Bohan, Bickerton, And Loo Sign False Management Representation Letters

- 52. The management representation letters provided to L90's auditor in connection with its 2000 audit, and Q3 2000, and Q1, Q2, and Q3 2001 financial statement reviews, included numerous false representations in light of the concealed barter transactions. Specifically, these letters included the following misrepresentations:
 - The financial statements were fairly presented in conformity with GAAP and complied in all material respects with accounting requirements of the Exchange Act and Commission rules and regulations;
 - There were no material transactions that had not been properly recorded in the accounting records underlying the financial statements;
 - There had been no fraud involving management or employees who had significant roles in internal control; and

- The accounting records underlying the financial statements accurately and fairly reflected, in reasonable detail, the transactions of the Company.
- 53. Bohan and Loo signed each of the false management representation letters provided to L90's auditor. Additionally, Bickerton signed the false management representation letters for Q3 2000, Fiscal Year 2000, and Q3 2001.

3. Roah Falsely Represents That Fraudulent Barter Deals Were Legitimate Transactions

- 54. In connection with the Q1 2001 financial statement review, L90's auditor raised questions regarding several large transactions that occurred near the end of Q1 2001, including the $500,000 check-swap and $1,098,000 round-trip transaction discussed above. In response to these questions, Roah lied to L90's auditor by telling it that the revenue related to these transactions was legitimate.
 - 4. Bickerton Falsely Represents That L90 Did Not Engage In Barter Transactions
- 55. Bickerton represented to L90's auditor in 1999 and early-to-mid 2000 that L90 would not engage in barter transactions. Subsequently, Bickerton failed to inform the auditor that L90 engaged in barter transactions and recognized barter revenue from Q3 2000 through Q3 2001. In addition, in early 2002, in connection with the 2001 audit, Bickerton falsely represented to L90's auditor that L90 had engaged in only the two barter transactions with Homestore.

5. Loo Deceives The Auditor

56. During the audit and quarterly reviews for Q3 2000 through Q3 2001, Loo provided L90's auditor with supporting documentation for the auditor's quarterly revenue selections. Unbeknownst to L90's auditor, however, it had selected and reviewed revenue related to eight of the ten barter transactions discussed above. Loo never disclosed to the auditor that she knew that some of the eight revenue selections related to these barter transactions. Further, when the auditor asked Loo for information pertaining to L90's barter transactions in connection with the 2001 audit, Loo responded by falsely stating that she knew of only the two barter transactions involving Homestore.

E. Bohan And Roah Sign False Commission Filings

57. L90 reported revenue from the fraudulent barter transactions and advertising campaign in its financial statements filed with the Commission. As shown in the table below, L90 reported these false financial results in its 2000 Form 10-K and its Q3 2000, Q1, Q2, and Q3 2001 Forms 10-Q. L90 also filed in May 2001 a registration on Form S-3 that incorporated by reference the 2000 Form 10-K, which included overstated revenue figures. In addition, L90 issued quarterly earnings releases that included the same false financial results as the periodic filings discussed above.

	Q3 2000	Q4 2000	FY 2000	Q1 2001	Q2 2001	Q3 2001
Reported Revenue ($ in Millions)	14.7	16.5	52.0	9.8	9.0	8.4
Revenue Adjusted For Fraudulent Transactions	14.3	15.2	50.3	7.6	8.3	8.1
Overstated Revenue From Fraudulent Transactions ($ in Millions)	0.4	1.3	1.7	2.2	0.7	0.3
Percentage Overstatement of Revenue	2.8%	8.6%	3.4%	29.0%	8.4%	3.7%

- 58. Bohan signed each one of the false periodic filings and the registration statement. Roah signed the false 2000 Form 10-K and registration statement.
- 59. In May and June 2002, after the defendants were no longer employed by the company, L90 restated its financial statements for 2000 and 2001. These restatements included the $4.9 million of revenue generated by the fraudulent barter transactions and advertising campaign discussed above.
