All accounts are reviewed at least once a month. The Operations Manager reconciles internal books and records to that of the custodian statements Accounts are reviewed more frequently as to specific security holdings by the Portfolio Manager to ensure adherence to client guidelines and conformance to broad account profiles. Significant changes in market conditions or levels or significant changes in client financial situation may also trigger a review of an account.

Securities, which are common to a number of managed accounts, are monitored on a constant basis for price activity and for individual corporate developments and changing industry fundamentals.

Client requests for individual portfolio review may be submitted to Summit at any time and are given immediate attention by appropriate staff members and/or John Dickerson.

- B. Describe below the nature and frequency of regular reports to clients on their accounts.

Independent custodians hold client assets. In all cases clients receive the normal reporting package provided by their respective custodian, either monthly or quarterly statements and trade confirmations. The custodians provide year-end summaries of realized gains and losses (IRS Schedule D) as well as dividends and income received (IRS 1099-B and 1099-DIV). In addition, through telephone calls and/or in person meetings, portfolio management keeps clients informed of the investment policy and strategy being used in client/investor portfolios.

For investors in the funds of the Adviser, the investor receives reporting from the Fund Administrator either monthly or quarterly that provides a statement of positions and the Fund NAV.

Clients are encouraged to contact the staff of Summit at any time to discuss their portfolio. Toll-free access is provided to all clients as well as access by email through the internet.
