TruView Advisors LLC, a newly formed independent investment advisor announced today an agreement with Capstone Asset Management Company to provide credit analysis and fund support services for the Capstone Church Capital Fund (XCBFX) www.capstonechurchcapitalfund.com. TruView, leveraging the 16 years of experience and success of CEO and founder David Blankman, provides Capstone with risk/reward analysis, independent evaluations, and investment advisor relationship development and support.

We are thrilled by the opportunity to partner with the Capstone Church Capital Fund, (XCBFX), on two important fronts:

1. Conduct arms length, third party credit analysis on the church bond issues being considered for allocations by the fund manager.
2. Implement our proven investment advisor relationship building program to grow assets under management. We have a long and successful track record in working with independent fee based advisors, wealth managers, and financial planners. Capstone manages this specialty interval fund that will allow independent advisors to fill specific allocations with the Capstone Church Capital Fund.

The Fund's (XCBFX) investment objective is to provide a high level of current income through investment in church mortgage bonds & church mortgage loans. It is unique in offering quarterly repurchase option which permits a certain amount of liquidity, not less than 5%, on a quarterly basis. The fund broadly diversifies a new distinct fixed income asset class (church bonds) for unique allocations

Helping non-traditional investment funds such as Capstone Church Capital Fund grow assets under management through a comprehensive proven institutional business development plan. We work independently from the originators and distributors of the funds providing a TruView of the risk/reward dynamics.

David Blankman, CEO, prior to founding TruView Advisors, owned and directed his own independent fee only investment advisory firm. David is a veteran sponsor of the FPA, NAPFA, SRI, KA, TDA and Garret Planning organizations. David makes presentations at industry conference events on the topic of non-traditional fixed income solutions for investment advisor asset allocations.

TruView consults with two primary groups:

1. Client investment firms such as Capstone that offer non-traditional investment opportunities. We work on behalf of our client investment firms who choose to outsource their institutional client relationship development and provide arms length third party credit analysis. This saves the client firm significant start up times and costs and helps with due diligence on the security selection process. We provide a TruView of the risk/reward dynamics on the purchases of new bonds, certificates and loans for the Capstone Church Capital Fund.
2. Existing relationships with 100s of professional independent fee based and wholesale wealth managers. David offers a very high level of relationship driven professional consultation. He develops and manages these relationships and helps RIA/CFPs make allocations into the Capstone fund. Since TruView is independent from the investment firms, we facilitate complete disclosure to help our RIA/CFPs conduct their due diligence.
