Item 2 - Material Changes

On July 28, 2010, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission voted unanimously to adopt amendments to Part 2 of Form ADV and related rules under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (the “Advisers Act”). A. Firm Information

Christian Curry Batchelder, CFP® ("CCB") is a registered investment advisor with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. CCB is currently organized as sole proprietorship in the State of California and has been in continuous operation since May 1993. Chris Batchelder, CFP is the owner/operator of CCB.

B. Advisory Services Offered

Financial Planning Services – CCB provides comprehensive financial planning and consulting services. Financial planning services are rendered via a proprietary service methodology. A financial plan may include a review of your net worth (including assets and liabilities), objectives, risk tolerance, risk capacity, cash flow and expenses, income tax analysis, review and analysis of fringe benefits, retirement forecast and probability analysis, educational funding analysis, estate planning analysis and risk management review. CCB's approach to providing this service starts with gathering your current financial and subjective information. CCB assesses your goals, objectives, time horizon, and risk tolerance to compare where you are today in relation to the attainment of your stated goals. A comprehensive financial plan thereafter is prepared to discuss your situation, along with various alternatives for your consideration. At the end of the processes, you will receive an education about the alternatives recommended.

In performing financial planning services CCB will attempt to put together a plan that meets your fundamental financial concerns. Those issues, detailed above, are essential for financial health and stability. An additional aspect to CCB's financial planning process is helping you reconcile your personal feelings about money, wealth, investments and legacy planning. Once basic financial necessities are met, you may begin to explore deeper feelings about your financial life and how those feelings may cause aberrant financial decisions. Among other issues addressed are issues associated with risk/investing, differing wealth attitudes in relationships, attitudes regarding wealth and financial legacy planning. CCB seeks to uncover these issues to help you plan and cope accordingly.

CCB entrusts that you will provide accurate information and CCB will not be obligated to verify any information received from you. If requested by you, CCB may recommend the services of other professionals for purposes of implementing certain aspects of your financial plan. You are under no obligation to engage the services of any such recommended professional. You retain absolute authority over all implementation decisions and are free to accept or reject any recommendation from CCB. Moreover, you are advised that it remains your responsibility to promptly notify CCB if there is ever any change in your financial situation during the financial planning process.

Investment Advisory Services – CCB provides continuous, active management of each Client's investment portfolios. CCB has developed a proprietary, high-touch service model that includes discovery, implementation and monitoring components.

- Client Discovery – Upon entering into an advisory agreement CCB will begin a process of discovery. CCB seeks to uncover your true investment objectives, tolerance and capacity for risk, as well as other issues surrounding your attitudes and feelings about money, wealth, investing and financial legacy. CCB will also collect information concerning your financial status, and assets, among other things.
- Manager Selection and Implementation – Upon completion of this investment profile information CCB will implement an investment plan for you and select an investment portfolio. CCB will typically invest your managed money with mutual funds. These mutual funds, depending on a variety of factors, may invest in stocks, bonds, options, or any other marketable security as deemed appropriate by the fund manager.

- Investment Monitoring and Maintenance – CCB will continuously monitor your investment portfolio to ensure that the portfolio meets your goals and objectives as well as appropriate benchmarks. Further, CCB monitors each your portfolio in order to ensure you are invested in accordance with CCB's firm-wide investment guidance and broad economic outlook.

It is your responsibility to notify CCB promptly of any change to the information provided by you, including any change to your investment objectives, risk tolerance, investment time horizon, and any investment policies, guidelines or reasonable restrictions. CCB will honor your restrictions unless those restrictions impair CCB's ability to manage your account.

Prior to rendering investment management services, CCB will ascertain, in conjunction with the Client, the Client's financial situation, risk tolerance, and investment objective(s).

C. Client Account Management

Prior to engaging CCB to provide investment advisory services, you are required to enter into an investment management agreement with CCB setting forth the terms and conditions of the engagement and the services to be provided. These services will include:

- Determining Portfolio Asset Allocation – CCB will formulate a long-term asset allocation strategy that specifies the percentage of your assets to be invested between equity, fixed-income securities and money market funds.
- Asset Allocation Recommendation – CCB will implement its recommended asset allocation via an asset allocation model based upon proprietary research regarding market conditions and a broad-based economic outlook. Generally, portfolio management is done on a discretionary basis. CCB will use the services of a discount broker-dealer to provide account custodial services for your account, and to affect trades.
- Ongoing Investment Monitoring – CCB provides ongoing oversight over your investment program. All your investments are monitored for performance relative to certain benchmarks and CCB expectations.

Your portfolio will be rebalanced as necessary upon CCB review. More or less frequent rebalancing may be required depending on macroeconomic, market or sector factors.

D. Wrap Fee Programs

CCB does not manage any proprietary wrap fee programs.

E. Assets Under Management

As of December 31, 2010, the most recent date for which such calculations are available, CCB manages the following assets:

Discretionary Assets	$64,500,000.00
Non-discretionary Assets	$0.00
Total	$64,500,000.00

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

The following paragraphs detail the fee structure and compensation methodology for investment management services. Prior to commencing any work, you will sign an Investment Management Agreement that details the responsibilities of CCB and you.

A. Fees for Advisory Services

Investment Advisory Services – CCB's fee for investment advisory services varies based on the amount of assets managed by CCB. Typically, fees are a fixed percentage of the assets under management. This fee includes all investment recommendations and portfolio implementation, unless the client contract states otherwise. Your fees will generally adhere to the following table.

Investment Advisory Services
Assets	Annual Fee
$0 to $499,99	1.00%
$500,000 to $1,999,999	0.75%
$2,000,000 and over	0.50%

All securities held in a portfolio managed by CCB will be independently valued by the Custodian. CCB will not have the authority or responsibility to value portfolio securities.

B. Fee Billing

Asset-Based Fee – Fees are a fixed percentage of assets under management, based upon the account value on the last day of the prior quarter. Fees for investment management services vary depending on the amount of assets to be managed. You will be invoiced quarterly in arrears for advisory services. For accounts opened during the quarter fees will be prorated to cover only that period which your account was managed by CCB.

Management fees will be automatically deducted from your account by the Custodian. CCB shall send a quarterly invoice to the Custodian indicating the amount of the fees to be deducted from your account. The amount due is calculated by applying the annual rate in the table above to the total assets under management with CCB at the end of each quarter. Each billing will be for a single quarter, paid in arrears. You will receive independent statements from the Custodian no less frequently than quarterly. It is your responsibility to verify the accuracy of these fees as listed on the Custodian's brokerage statement as the Custodian does not assume this responsibility.

You may also elect to pay their fees directly. In such cases, no invoice will be sent the Custodian of your account. The invoice will be sent to your directly for payment.

C. Other Fees and Expenses

You may incur certain fees or charges imposed by third-parties, other than CCB, in connection with investment made on behalf of your account[s]. The Client is responsible for all custodial and securities execution fees charged by the Custodian and executing broker-dealer. The investment advisory charged by CCB is separate and distinct from these Custodian and execution fees. In addition, all fees paid to CCB for Investment Advisory Services are separate and distinct from the expenses charged by mutual funds and exchange-traded funds to their shareholders. These fees and expenses are described in each fund's prospectus. These fees and expenses will generally be used to pay management fees for the funds, other fund expenses, account administration (e.g., custody, brokerage and account reporting), and a possible distribution fee. You may be able to invest in certain investments, without the services of CCB, but you would not receive access to Advisor and Institutional shares classes. You also would not receive the services provided by CCB which are designed, among other things, to assist you in determining which products or services are most appropriate to each Client's financial condition and objectives. Accordingly, the Client should review both the fees charged by the fund(s) and the fees charged by CCB to fully understand the total fees to be paid.

D. Advance Payment of Fees and Termination

Advance Fees – CCB clients pay advisory fees in arrears. This disclosure does not apply to CCB.

Termination – Clients may request to terminate their Investment Management Agreement with CCB, in whole or in part, by providing advance written notice to CCB. You will be responsible for investment advisory fees up to and including the effective date of termination. CCB will refund any unearned, prepaid fees, if any. Your Investment Management Agreement with CCB is non-transferable without your written approval.

You may terminate the Investment Management Agreement without penalty (full refund or no fees due) within 5 business days of signing the Agreement if the CCB Form ADV Part 2 was not delivered at least 48 hours prior to the execution of the Agreement.

E. Compensation for Sales of Securities

CCB does not receive commissions or any compensation for transactions in your account. As a fee-only advisor, CCB is paid only on the advice and investment management provided to you based on the assets under management in the Client's account(s).

Additional Fee Disclosure – Subsection (i) of Rule 260.238, California Code of Regulations requires that all investment advisors disclose to their advisory clients that higher or lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources. Accordingly, CCB hereby discloses to you that similar or same investment services may be available from other sources for higher or lower overall fees.

Item 6 - Performance-Based Fees

Performance-based Fees – CCB does not charge performance-based fees for its investment advisory services. The fees charged by CCB are as described in Item 5 – Fees and Compensation above and are not based upon the capital appreciation of the funds or securities held by you.

Side-by-side Management – CCB does not manage any proprietary investment funds or limited partnerships (for example, a mutual fund or a hedge fund) and has no financial incentive to recommend any particular investment options for its clients.

Item 7 - Types of Clients

CCB may provide services to a variety of client types. Clients may include:

- Individuals, Families, Personal Trusts and Estates – Private investors, investing personal assets

In selecting a mutual fund and allocating assets to them, CCB considers both quantitative and qualitative factors including:

- Relative performance during various time periods and market cycles
- Industry reputation
- Experience and training of staff investment professionals
- The clarity of, and adherence to, a viable investment philosophy
- Risk management process
- Portfolio management capabilities
- Fee structure
- Any other factor deemed appropriate by CCB

CCB may use various databases of information in order to facilitate the discovery process on each investment manager utilized by CCB.

B. Investment Strategies

CCB seeks to place client assets with third-party investment managers, generally mutual funds. CCB does not maintain any fixed portfolios or strategies. Rather, your personal financial situation is assessed on an individual basis, and the appropriate mutual funds are selected that fulfill the investment strategy designed for you by CCB.

CCB will not pursue strategies that are highly speculative in nature.

C. Risk of Loss

General Investment Risks – Investing in securities involves certain investment risks. Securities may fluctuate in value or lose value. You should be prepared to bear the potential risk of loss. CCB will assist you in determining an appropriate strategy based on your tolerance for risk and other factors noted above. However, there is no guarantee that you will meet their investment goals.

Your engagement with CCB will entail a review of your investment goals, financial situation, time horizon, tolerance for risk and other factors to develop an appropriate strategy for managing your account. Your participation in this process, including full and accurate disclosure of requested information, is essential for the analysis of your financial situation. CCB will rely on the financial and other information provided by you or your designees (accountant, attorney, etc.) without the duty or obligation to validate the accuracy and completeness of the information you have provided. It is your responsibility to inform CCB of any changes in financial condition, goals or other factors that may affect this analysis.

CCB generally employs investment strategies that do not involve any significant or unusual risk other than typical market risks. The risks associated with a particular strategy are provided to you in advance of investing any money.

Margin Transactions – Borrowing on margin is the practice of borrowing securities or cash to pay for securities, referred to as “leverage”. Leverage allows an investment manager to control more securities than they may otherwise without cash on hand. Leverage may compound both your gains and your losses, if any. Further, investment gains must be greater than the cost of borrowing for such investments to be profitable.

Real Estate Partnerships – CCB may recommend to you investment in real estate investment partnerships. This type of fund is subject to special risk considerations similar to those associated with the direct ownership of real estate. Real estate valuations may be subject to factors such as changing general and local economic, financial, competitive, and environmental conditions. All risks are disclosed in advance, should CCB and you decide that real estate investment partnerships are an appropriate investment in meeting your financial goals.

The Code of Ethics was developed to provide general ethical guidelines and specific instructions regarding our duties to you. CCB and its personnel owe a duty of loyalty, fairness and good faith towards you, and all clients. It is the obligation of CCB associates to adhere not only to the specific provisions of the Code but to the general principles that guide the Code. B. Personal Trading and Conflicts of Interest

CCB allows employees to purchase or sell the same securities that may be recommended to, and purchased on behalf of, our clients. Owning the same securities recommended (purchase or sell) to clients presents a potential conflict of interest that, as fiduciaries, CCB must disclose to you and mitigate through policies and procedures. As noted above, CCB has adopted, consistent with Section 204A of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, a Code of Ethics, which addresses insider trading (material non-public information controls) and personal securities reporting procedures.

Further, CCB has adopted written policies and procedures to detect the misuse of material, nonpublic information. CCB may have an interest or position in certain securities, which may also be recommended to you and other clients.

At no time, will CCB or any associated person of CCB, transact in any security to the detriment of any client.

CCB is a Fee-Only advisor, who, in all circumstances, is compensated solely by our clients. CCB does not engage in any transactions where it has a financial interest, including, but not limited to commissionable securities transactions, buying securities from or selling securities to its clients.

As a registered investment advisor, CCB does not have a broker-dealer relationship and has no incentive to sell products of any kind to its Clients.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

A. Recommendation of Custodian[s]

CCB does not have discretionary authority to select the broker-dealer/custodian for custodial and execution services. You will select the broker-dealer or custodian (herein the "Custodian") to safeguard your assets and authorize CCB to direct trades to this Custodian as agreed in the Investment Management Agreement. Further, CCB does not have the discretionary authority negotiate commissions on behalf of our clients on a trade-by-trade basis.

Where CCB does not exercise discretion over the selection of the Custodian, it may recommend the custodian[s] to Clients for execution and/or custodial services. You are not obligated to use the recommended Custodian and will not incur any extra fee or cost associated with using a broker not recommended by CCB. CCB may recommend a Custodian based on criteria such as, but not limited to, reasonableness of commissions charged for trade execution, ancillary services made available to you, experience and financial stability, reputation and the quality of services provided and location of the Custodian's offices. CCB does not receive research services, other products, or compensation as a result of recommending a particular broker that may result in you, or other clients, paying higher commissions than those obtainable through other brokers.

CCB typically recommends to Clients that they established their brokerage account[s] at the Institutional Services division Charles Schwab and Company, Inc. ("Schwab"). Schwab is an independent and unaffiliated SEC-registered broker-dealer and FINRA member. Schwab offers services to independent investment Advisors and their Clients, which include custody of securities, trade execution, clearance and settlement of transactions. CCB receives some benefits from Schwab through its participation in its Advisory program. CCB considers a number of factors in selecting and/or recommending brokers and custodians for its Clients' accounts, including, but not limited to, execution capability, experience and financial stability, reputation and the quality of services provided. CCB is not affiliated with, or related to, Schwab. All trading executed via Schwab is subject to a best execution review by CCB.

1. Soft Dollars - Soft dollars are revenue programs offered by broker-dealers whereby an advisor enters into an agreement to place security trades with the broker in exchange for research and other services. CCB does not participate in soft dollar programs sponsored or offered by any broker-dealer.

2. Brokerage Referrals - CCB does not receive any compensation from Schwab or any other entity in connection with the recommendation for establishing a brokerage account.

3. Directed Brokerage - All Clients are serviced on a "directed brokerage basis", where CCB will place trades within the established account[s] at the custodian designated by the Client. Such custodian designation may be made in accordance with a recommendation by CCB, as noted above, or independently by the Client. Further, all Client accounts are traded within their respective brokerage account[s]. Clients may use the custodian recommended by CCB. In such cases, the recommendation of a specific broker-dealer will be in accordance with CCB's duty to seek best execution.

If a Client uses a custodian of their own choosing and not recommended CCB, CCB will not be obligated to select competitive bids on securities transactions and does not have an obligation to seek the lowest available transaction costs. These costs are determined by the designated custodian. When Clients direct the brokerage partner to be used, CCB may not achieve best execution and the Client may pay higher trade costs than would otherwise be available. Custodians chosen by the Client, and not recommended by CCB, are not subject to a best execution review.

CCB will not engage in any principal transactions (i.e., trade of any security from or to the Advisor's own account) or cross transactions with other Client accounts (i.e., purchase of a security into one Client account from another Client's account[s]).

B. Aggregating and Allocating Trades

The primary objective in placing orders for the purchase and sale of securities for client accounts is to obtain the most favorable net results taking into account such factors as 1) price, 2) size of order, 3) difficulty of execution, 4) confidentiality and 5) skill required of the broker. CCB will execute its transactions through an unaffiliated broker-dealer designated by you. CCB may aggregate orders in a block trade or trades when securities are purchased or sold through the same broker-dealer for multiple discretionary accounts. If a block trade cannot be executed in full at the same price or time, the securities actually purchased or sold by the close of each business day must be allocated in a manner that is consistent with the initial pre-allocation or other written statement. This must be done in a way that does not consistently advantage or disadvantage particular client accounts.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts

A. Frequency of Reviews

Accounts are monitored on an ongoing basis by CCB for adherence to investment strategy and your objectives, goals and restrictions. Investment management and supervision over the securities contained in your portfolio are performed in an ongoing basis by CCB, as applicable. Reviews are conducted by Chris Batchelder, CFP.

Often reviews will consist of a personal interview. This time will typically be non-billable, and is structured such that CCB may get to know you more fully, and develop a financial plan to meet your financial and emotional needs.

B. Causes for Reviews

In addition to the investment monitoring noted in Item 13.A, your account will be reviewed at least annually. Reviews may be conducted more or less frequently upon your request. Accounts may be reviewed as a result of major changes in economic conditions, known changes in your financial situation, and/or large deposits or withdrawals in your account. You are encouraged to notify CCB if changes occur in your personal financial situation that might adversely affect the investment plan designed for you by CCB.

Additional reviews may be triggered by material market, economic or political events.

C. Review Reports

You will receive brokerage statements no less than quarterly from the Custodian. These brokerage statements are sent directly from the Custodian to you. You may also establish electronic access to the Custodian's website so that you may view these reports and any activity in your account. Your brokerage statements will include all positions, transactions and fees relating to your account[s].

Item 14 - Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. Compensation Received by CCB

CCB is a Fee-Only advisor, who, in all circumstances, is compensated solely by the Client. Referrals, if any, are done as a professional courtesy in your interests.

B. Client Referrals from Solicitors

CCB does not presently pay any solicitors to refer business to CCB. CCB may receive referrals from various third-parties. No compensation is paid for such referrals. All referrals are a professional courtesy and in the interest of the referred client.

Item 15 - Custody

CCB does not accept or maintain custody of your account. You must place your assets with a qualified custodian. You are required to select your own custodian to retain their funds and securities and direct CCB to utilize that custodian for your security transactions. CCB may make a recommendation for a Custodian. For more information on custodians and brokerage practices, see Item 12 - Brokerage Practices.

While CCB will not have custody of your funds or securities, payments of fees may be paid by the Custodian from the custodial brokerage account that holds your assets. In certain jurisdictions this may be deemed constructive custody. Prior to permitting direct debit of fees you will provide written authorization permitting fees to be paid from your account Custodian. CCB will send you and the Custodian a bill showing the amount of the fee and the way in which it was calculated. The Custodian will send to you an account statement not less than quarterly showing all account activity, including the amounts disbursed from your account to CCB.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

Discretionary Trading Authority – CCB generally has discretion over the selection and amount of securities to be bought or sold in your account without obtaining prior consent or approval from you. This is known as ‘limited discretionary authority’. Purchases or sales are subject to specified investment objectives, guidelines, or limitations previously set forth by you and agreed to by CCB. Discretionary authority will only be authorized upon full disclosure to you. The granting of such authority will be evidenced within the Investment Management Agreement signed by you, and containing all applicable limitations to such authority. All discretionary trades made by CCB will be in accordance with your investment objectives and goals.

Item 17 - Voting Client Securities

CCB does not accept proxy voting responsibility for you, or any client. Therefore, although CCB may provide investment advisory services relative to your investment assets, you maintain exclusive responsibility for: (1) directing the manner in which proxies solicited by issuers of securities beneficially owned by you shall be voted, and (2) making all elections relative to any mergers, acquisitions, tender offers, bankruptcy proceedings or other type events pertaining to your investment assets. CCB and/or you will correspondingly instruct the Custodian of the assets to forward to you copies of all proxies and shareholder communications relating to your investment assets.

Item 18 - Financial Information

Neither CCB, nor any of its advisory persons has any adverse financial situations that would reasonably impair the ability of CCB to meet all obligations to you. Neither CCB, nor any of its advisory persons, has been subject to a bankruptcy or financial compromise. CCB is not required to deliver a balance sheet along with this brochure as the firm does not collect advance fees for services to be performed six months or more in advance.
