

OPPENHEIMERFUNDS, INC.

Two World Financial Center
225 Liberty Street, 11th Floor
New York, New York 10281-1008
212-323-0200
www.oppenheimerfunds.com

FORM ADV PART 2A BROCHURE

June 6, 2012

This Form ADV Part 2A Brochure ("Brochure") provides information about the qualifications and business practices of OppenheimerFunds, Inc. If you have any questions about the contents of this Brochure, please contact us at 212-323-0200. Additional information about OppenheimerFunds, Inc. also is available on the SEC's website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov.

The information in this Brochure has not been approved or verified by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") or by any state securities authority. OppenheimerFunds, Inc. is registered with the SEC as an investment adviser. Registration as an investment adviser does not imply any level of skill or training.

Item 2 – Material Changes

The following is a summary of the material changes made to this Brochure since the last annual update on March 30, 2012:

- Item 9 - revised to include updated litigation disclosure.

Pursuant to new SEC rules, we will ensure that you receive an updated Brochure or a summary of any material changes to the Brochure within 120 days of the end of our fiscal year. We may further provide to you, without charge, disclosure information regarding material changes to our business during the fiscal year as necessary.

Table of Contents

Item 2 – Material Changes	ii
Item 4 – Advisory Business	1
Item 5 – Fees and Compensation	2
Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management	2
Item 7 – Types of Clients.....	2
Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss	3
Item 9 – Disciplinary Information	5
Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations	5
Item 11 – Code of Ethics	9
Item 12 – Brokerage Practices	9
Item 13 – Review of Accounts	20
Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation	20
Item 15 – Custody	21
Item 16 – Investment Discretion	21
Item 17 – Voting Client Securities.....	21
Item 18 – Financial Information.....	24
Appendix A - Privacy Policy	25

Item 4 – Advisory Business

OppenheimerFunds, Inc. (the “Adviser”) is an investment adviser registered under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (“Advisers Act”). The Adviser is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Oppenheimer Acquisition Corp. (“OAC”). Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company (“MassMutual”), through its subsidiary MassMutual Holding LLC, is the indirect primary shareholder of OAC. The Adviser operates as an independent subsidiary of MassMutual, which, with its other subsidiaries, comprises a global, growth-oriented, diversified financial services organization providing life insurance and other financial products and services.

The Adviser has been helping investors achieve their financial goals since 1960. The primary business of the Adviser is managing the investments and business affairs of a variety of registered investment companies (the “Oppenheimer Mutual Funds”) that cover most major asset classes and investment styles, including:

- Domestic Equity: Growth, Core, Value
- Global and International Equity
- Domestic and International Fixed Income
- National and State Specific Municipal Bonds
- Alternative Investments: Asset Allocation, Commodities

The Adviser also serves as sub-adviser to certain registered investment companies that are sponsored by unaffiliated third-parties (each, a “Sub-Advised Fund”) and provides sub-advisory services with respect to certain separate accounts and investment options within certain qualified tuition plans under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code (“Section 529 Plans”).

In addition, the Adviser’s business includes OFI Global Asset Management (“OFI Global”), an independent investment management team that operates and holds itself out to the public as a separate division of the Adviser.¹ Formed in 2011, OFI Global specializes in the management of global, international and developing markets equity portfolios, fixed income portfolios, currency portfolios and metals and mining portfolios. OFI Global leverages the well-established tradition of excellence and investment resources of the Adviser to provide investment advisory services to certain Oppenheimer Mutual Funds and Sub-Advised Funds. OFI Global personnel who provide advisory, trading, and other services may be dually employed by the Adviser and its affiliates.

Generally, the Adviser seeks to manage accounts within the same investment strategy in a uniform manner. However, the Adviser may agree to tailor its advisory services in order to comply with certain client requirements, such as compliance with special investment restrictions or the use of a specially designed securities universe.

¹ All references in this Brochure to the “Adviser” include the OFI Global Asset Management division, as appropriate.

As of December 31, 2011, the Adviser managed approximately $168,692,558,757 in client assets on a discretionary basis and approximately $207,441,243 in client assets on a non-discretionary basis.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

The Adviser's fees are set forth in the prospectus for each Oppenheimer Mutual Fund and Sub-Advised Fund and may vary according to the investment objective of the investment company, the investment approach used in managing the portfolio of the investment company and other factors.

The Adviser's services and fees as investment manager or sub-adviser are performed pursuant to the terms of investment advisory agreements or sub-advisory agreements that are negotiated with and approved by the Boards of Directors/Trustees of each investment company. The Adviser's fees are calculated at an annual rate as a percentage of average daily net assets of each investment company and are paid out of each investment company's assets on an ongoing basis.

Generally, the Adviser's fees may be negotiable. The Adviser may negotiate a higher or lower fee arrangement on a case-by-case basis in the event that the Adviser is asked to take on responsibilities that differ from those normally involved in the management of an account. Special client requirements, such as compliance with special investment restrictions or the use of a specially designed securities universe, may also result in different fee rates. In certain instances, a single client with more than one account with the Adviser and/or affiliates may have its assets aggregated for fee calculation purposes or be charged a lower rate with respect to the aggregate assets invested in all its accounts.

Clients may incur additional fees or expenses in connection with the Adviser's advisory services, such as custodian fees or fund expenses. In addition, clients will incur brokerage and other transaction costs. Please refer to Item 12 below for a discussion of the Adviser's brokerage practices.

Lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

The Adviser does not receive any performance-based fees (i.e., fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client).

Item 7 – Types of Clients

The Adviser provides portfolio management services to the Oppenheimer Mutual Funds, and also serves as sub-adviser to Sub-Advised Funds, as well as to trusts, estates, or charitable organizations. The Adviser also provides sub-advisory services with respect to certain separate accounts and investment options within certain Section 529 Plans.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

The Adviser utilizes various methods of analysis and investment strategies in managing client assets. The Adviser's methods of security analysis include economic analysis, fundamental analysis and technical analysis. In its economic analysis, the Adviser maintains some of its own charts on the economy and certain cyclical factors. In addition, it uses outside consultants as well as "brokerage and research services," as such term is defined in Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 for economic analysis. In its fundamental analysis, the Adviser relies on analysis by its portfolio managers and their analysts on both an industry and individual company basis. The Adviser also relies extensively on brokerage and research services for fundamental analysis. In its technical analysis, the Adviser subscribes to many technical and charting services and frequently uses information from these services. The Adviser may use quantitative analysis for certain of its products to predict the value of securities based on the combination and measurement of various fundamental elements of those securities, such as: dividends, earnings and book values.

The Adviser and its affiliates subscribe to nearly every major financial newspaper and magazine. It also receives annual and other company reports, and has access to public filings with the SEC, corporate press releases and corporate rating services. In addition to the Adviser's own inspection of corporate activities, it relies extensively on brokerage and research services.

The Adviser's investment strategies are generally guided by the investment objective, investment policies and restrictions set forth in the prospectus and statement of additional information of each registered management investment company for which it acts as investment adviser. Please refer to disclosure documents, the prospectus and statement of additional information of each investment company, as well as to the Adviser's website (www.oppenheimerfunds.com), for a more detailed description of the Adviser's investment strategy for each investment company and the material risks associated with such strategy.

The Adviser's investment strategies may also be guided by (i) the investment objectives, policies, strategies, and restrictions set forth in the applicable advisory agreement with its clients, (ii) any limits or restrictions set forth in any disclosure document or trust document applicable to a client for which the Adviser serves as investment adviser or otherwise provides advisory services, and (iii) applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

The Adviser may work with a client to develop additional investment approaches from time to time to tailor to the individual needs of the client. In addition, clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities.

As a general matter, the Adviser may offer portfolio strategies in the following broad asset classes: equity (global equity, domestic equity), fixed income (global debt, domestic debt, municipal bonds), asset allocation, and other alternative investment approaches.

- Global Equity. The Adviser may employ a theme-based approach, investing in companies that are well-positioned to gain from long-term global growth trends, without consideration of country or region.
- Domestic Equity. The Adviser may have portfolio strategies that employ growth, value, and/or core strategies with respect to domestic equity. When focused on high quality growth, the Adviser looks to companies with sustainable earning, quality management and attractive valuations to help balance potential long-term growth with downside protection. When a value approach is taken with respect to domestic equities, the Adviser focuses on long-term earnings, a key driver of performance, to seek consistent results through stock selections rather than sector or macroeconomics factors. The Adviser may also employ a core strategy with respect to domestic equities that involves sophisticated quantitative models to construct portfolios designed to deliver consistent results.
- Global Debt. When employed, the Adviser's strategy with respect to global fixed income may use experienced and innovative active management to seek to generate competitive returns by actively managing global currency, credit and interest rate risk.
- Domestic Debt. When focusing on a domestic fixed income objective, the Adviser may balance risks and opportunities, seeking to generate competitive returns while reducing overall volatility through actively investing across the U.S. corporate and government markets.
- Municipal Bonds. When seeking to provide highly competitive levels of tax-free income, the Adviser may turn to diverse portfolios of carefully assessed municipal bonds.
- Asset Allocation. The Adviser may offer professionally managed portfolio solutions that consist of lifestage-based portfolios of Oppenheimer Mutual Funds in a single package.
- Alternative Investments. The Adviser may also offer portfolio diversifiers in the form of access to low-correlated and non-correlated asset classes (for example, commodities, precious metals, and real estate), managed by specialized portfolio teams.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. There is no assurance that the Adviser will achieve its investment objectives. The value of investments in a client's account managed by the Adviser may change because of broad changes in the markets in which the Adviser invests or from poor security selection, which could cause the account to underperform other accounts with similar investment objectives. Securities markets may experience substantial short-term volatility and may fall sharply at times. Different markets may behave differently from each other and U.S. markets may move in the opposite direction from one or more foreign markets. The Adviser's investment strategies may involve active and frequent trading of securities. A client's portfolio may have a portfolio turnover rate of over 100% annually. Increased portfolio turnover may result in higher brokerage fees or other transaction costs and taxes, which can affect investment performance.

Please refer to disclosure documents, the prospectus and statement of additional information of each investment company, as well as to the Adviser's website (www.oppenheimerfunds.com), for a more detailed description of the Adviser's investment strategy for such investment company and the material risks associated with such strategy.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

A number of lawsuits have been filed in various state and federal courts against the Adviser and/or certain of its advisory affiliates relating to the provision of investment advisory services by the Adviser and/or its advisory affiliates. A summary of those lawsuits and other matters is set forth below.

On September 8, 2005, the Adviser and OFDI reached a settlement with the SEC regarding their past directed brokerage practices in connection with certain revenue sharing arrangements made between OFDI and certain broker/dealers. The Adviser and OFDI had voluntarily reported those practices to the SEC. Prior to its discussions with the SEC, the Adviser had voluntarily paid approximately $15.8 million to certain funds and other accounts it managed, representing the amount of all brokerage commissions used by the Adviser and OFDI to offset revenue sharing payments to the broker-dealer firms that had executed the brokerage transactions during the period between January 2000 and July 2003. In its Consent Order with the SEC, the Adviser and OFDI also agreed to certain undertakings regarding revenue sharing procedures and fund portfolio trading practices. The Consent Order completed a series of actions voluntarily taken by the Adviser and OFDI to resolve issues related to these practices. Without admitting or denying the findings in the Consent Order, the Adviser and OFDI were censured and ordered to cease-and-desist from violations of applicable laws and regulations. The Consent Order imposed no additional fines or penalties, disgorgement or prejudgment interest payments on the Adviser or OFDI.

OAC is the parent company of the Adviser and Tremont Group Holdings, Inc. (together with its subsidiaries, "Tremont"). Since 2008, investors in certain investment funds managed by Tremont have commenced class action and individual lawsuits against Tremont and its affiliates under state and federal laws seeking to recover investments they allegedly lost as a result of the "Ponzi" scheme run by Bernard L. Madoff ("Madoff") and his firm, Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities, LLC ("BLMIS"). Plaintiffs in these suits allege that investors suffered losses as a result of their investments in several funds managed by Tremont and assert a variety of claims, including breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, negligent misrepresentation, unjust enrichment, and violation of federal and state securities laws and regulations, among others. The lawsuits seek unspecified damages, equitable relief and awards of attorneys' fees and litigation expenses. In certain of these lawsuits, OAC, the Adviser and certain former officers and directors of the Adviser are named as defendants. Neither OFDI, nor any of the Oppenheimer Mutual Funds or any of their independent trustees or directors is named as a defendant in these lawsuits. No Oppenheimer Mutual Funds invested in any funds or accounts managed by Madoff or BLMIS. On February 28, 2011, a stipulation of partial settlement of three groups of consolidated putative class action lawsuits relating to these matters was filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. On August 19, 2011, the court entered an order and final judgment approving the settlement as fair, reasonable and adequate. In September 2011, certain parties filed notices of appeal from the court's order approving the settlement. The settlement does not resolve other outstanding individual lawsuits arising from the Tremont funds' investments with BLMIS.

In December 2010, the Trustee appointed under the Securities Investor Protection Act to liquidate BLMIS filed an adversary proceeding in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York against Tremont, a number of the investment funds managed by Tremont, OAC and certain of their affiliates. The Trustee asserted preference, fraudulent transfer and unjust enrichment claims against the defendants and sought to recover payments allegedly received from BLMIS by certain of the Tremont funds. On July 29, 2011, a stipulation of settlement of the Trustee's lawsuit was filed with the court. On September 22, 2011, the court entered an order approving the settlement as fair, reasonable and adequate. In October 2011, certain parties filed notices of appeal from the court's order approving the settlement.

Since 2009, a number of class action, derivative and individual lawsuits have been filed in federal courts against the Adviser, OFDI, and certain Oppenheimer Mutual Funds advised by the Adviser and distributed by OFDI (the "Defendant Funds"). Several of those lawsuits also name as defendants certain officers and current and former trustees of the respective Defendant Fund. The lawsuits raise claims under federal securities laws and various states' securities, consumer protection and common law and allege, among other things, that the disclosure documents of the respective Defendant Funds contained misrepresentations and omissions and that the respective Defendant Funds' investment policies were not followed. The plaintiffs in these actions seek unspecified damages, equitable relief and awards of attorneys' fees and litigation expenses. On September 30, 2011, the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado entered orders and final judgments approving stipulations and agreements of settlement of the putative class action lawsuits involving two Defendant Funds, Oppenheimer Champion Income Fund ("Champion Income Fund") and Oppenheimer Core Bond Fund ("Core Bond Fund"). Those orders are not subject to further appeal. These settlements do not resolve other putative class action lawsuits pending in federal court against the Adviser, OFDI, and other Defendant Funds and their independent trustees.

On June 6, 2012, the SEC entered a settled order instituting administrative cease-and-desist proceedings against the Adviser and OFDI, resolving an investigation into the 2008 performance of Champion Income Fund and Core Bond Fund. The Adviser and OFDI neither admitted nor denied the allegations set forth in the SEC Order. As set forth in the Order, the SEC found that the January 2008 prospectus for Champion Income Fund did not adequately disclose its practice of assuming substantial economic leverage through the use of total return swaps tied to AAA-rated commercial mortgaged-backed securities, and that in November 2008 the Adviser made misleading statements about the ability of Champion Income Fund and Core Bond Fund to recoup losses incurred as a result of unprecedented volatility in the credit markets. The Adviser and OFDI were censured and ordered to cease and desist from violations of applicable laws and regulations. The SEC also ordered the Adviser to pay disgorgement of certain management fees charged to Champion Income Fund and Core Bond Fund, prejudgment interest and a civil money penalty in an aggregate amount of approximately $35.4 million. In entering into the settlement, the SEC considered the cooperation it received from the Adviser and OFDI and remedial acts promptly undertaken by them.

In 2009, the State of Oregon filed a lawsuit against the Adviser, OFIPI and OFDI in connection with OFIPI's management of the state's Section 529 Plan, alleging violations of Oregon securities laws, breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, negligence and negligent misrepresentation. Subsequently, the State of Oregon filed a notice of dismissal with prejudice of the lawsuit as part of a voluntary settlement of all claims by the parties, and a general judgment of dismissal of the lawsuit was entered by the Circuit Court for the State of Oregon, Marion County on March 12, 2010.

The Adviser, OFIPI and OFDI also reached settlement agreements with Illinois, Texas, Nebraska, Maine and New Mexico to resolve investigations into the management of those states' section 529 college savings plans ("Section 529 Plans") in light of the effects of the 2008 financial crisis on those Section 529 Plans.

In 2009, two lawsuits were filed in the Circuit Court for Santa Fe County, New Mexico that challenged the settlement discussed above regarding the New Mexico Section 529 Plan. Those suits were purportedly brought derivatively on behalf of the New Mexico Education Plan Trust (the "Trust"). The lawsuits named various parties as defendants, including the Adviser and OFIPI, and alleged breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty and violations of state securities laws. The suits sought compensatory damages, equitable relief and awards of attorneys' fees and litigation expenses. Plaintiffs also sought to enjoin the implementation of the settlement agreement between the Education Trust Board of New Mexico (the "ETB") and the Adviser and OFIPI. On December 1, 2009, the court denied certain of the plaintiffs' claims and ruled that the ETB and the Adviser and OFPI could enter into the settlement agreement. On September 9, 2011, the court denied plaintiffs' request for a hearing to determine the fairness of the settlement, finding that plaintiffs lacked standing to pursue derivative claims on behalf of the Trust. On October 27, 2011, the parties to these actions filed a joint motion to dismiss the lawsuits with prejudice, which the court granted on October 28, 2011.

Two derivative actions on behalf of two Oppenheimer Mutual Funds were filed in the U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado on March 19, 2010 and were subsequently transferred to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York. The lawsuits named OFDI, the two Oppenheimer Mutual Funds and certain current and former officers and trustees of the two Oppenheimer Mutual Funds as defendants and alleged that as a matter of law, asset-based payments made under each of the two Oppenheimer Mutual Fund's Rule 12b-1 Distribution and Service Plan or by OFDI to broker-dealers that are not registered as investment advisers violated federal laws. On June 6, 2011, the court granted the defendants' motions to dismiss the suits. Plaintiffs did not appeal the dismissals.

On April 16, 2010, a lawsuit was filed in New York state court against the Adviser, HarbourView and AAardvark IV Funding Limited ("AAardvark IV"), an entity advised by HarbourView, in connection with investments made by TSL (USA) Inc. ("TSL") and other investors in AAardvark

IV. The complaint, as amended, alleges breach of contract against the defendants and seeks compensatory damages and an award of attorneys' fees and litigation expenses. On July 15, 2011, a lawsuit was filed in New York state court against the Adviser, HarbourView and AAARDvark Funding Limited ("AAARDvark I"), an entity advised by HarbourView, in connection with investments made by TSL and other investors in AAARDvark I. The complaint alleges breach of contract against the defendants and seeks compensatory damages and an award of attorneys' fees and litigation expenses. On November 9, 2011, a lawsuit was filed in New York state court against the Adviser, HarbourView and AAARDvark XS Funding Limited ("AAARDvark XS"), an entity advised by HarbourView, in connection with investments made by Scaldis Capital Limited in AAARDvark XS. The complaint alleges breach of contract against the defendants and seeks compensatory damages and an award of attorneys' fees and litigation expenses.

The Adviser believes that the lawsuits discussed above are without legal merit and, with the exception of actions it has settled, is defending against them vigorously. While it is premature to render any opinion as to the outcome in the lawsuits described above, the Adviser believes that these lawsuits should not impair the ability of the Adviser to perform its duties, and that the outcome of all of the suits together should not have any material effect on the operations of the Adviser, its affiliates or any of the Oppenheimer Mutual Funds.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

The Adviser and/or its management persons have relationships or arrangements with the related persons listed below that are material to the Adviser's advisory business or to its clients. Item 11 and Item 12 of this Brochure discuss the potential conflicts of interest that may arise as a result of such arrangements or relationships. Clients should carefully consider such potential conflicts of interest in determining whether to engage the Adviser.

The Adviser is ultimately controlled by MassMutual, a mutual life insurance company that, together with its subsidiaries, is a global, growth-oriented, diversified financial services organization providing life insurance and other financial products and services, including providing advice to pension plans and investment companies.

MM Asset Management Holding LLC, a wholly-owned subsidiary of MassMutual, has acquired substantially all of the voting stock of OAC and through it acquired voting control of the Adviser and its wholly-owned subsidiaries. The common stock of OAC is owned by (i) certain officers and/or directors of the Adviser and (ii) MassMutual. No institution or person holds 5% or more of OAC's outstanding stock except MassMutual.

OppenheimerFunds Distributor, Inc. ("OFDI"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Adviser, acts as the general distributor of shares of the Oppenheimer Mutual Funds advised by the Adviser and its affiliates (as well as certain other registered investment companies for which Adviser serves as sub-adviser). OFDI is also the distributor of Section 529 Plans managed by OFI Private Investments, Inc. ("OFIPI"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Adviser.

OppenheimerFunds Services ("OFS"), a division of the Adviser, is the registered transfer agent for the Oppenheimer Mutual Funds advised by the Adviser.

Shareholder Services, Inc. ("SSI") and Shareholder Financial Services, Inc. ("SFSI") are registered transfer agents and are wholly-owned subsidiaries of the Adviser.

OFI Institutional Asset Management, Inc. ("OFII"), a registered investment adviser with the SEC (Reg.No. 801-60027), is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Adviser that provides investment supervisory services on a discretionary basis to various types of clients, including trusts, pension plans, insurance company separate accounts, foundations, corporations, ERISA qualified retirement plans, foreign entities (including governmental entities, corporations, investment companies and pension plans), investment companies registered with the SEC as open-end management investment companies under the Investment Company Act ("Mutual Funds"), investment companies excepted from the definition of investment company by Section 3(c)(7) of the Investment Company Act ("Private Funds"), and bank sponsored commingled pools excepted from the definition of investment company by Section 3(c)(11) of the Investment Company Act ("Trust Company Funds") that are maintained by OFI Trust Company ("OFITC"), a New York organized trust company and an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of the Adviser.

OFI Private Investments Inc. ("OFIPI"), a registered investment adviser with the SEC (Reg. No. 801-57520), is a wholly-owned subsidiary of OFI that provides investment advisory services to certain qualified tuition programs under Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code ("Section 529 Plans") and to separate accounts (including wrap-fee programs). The Adviser acts as sub-adviser to OFIPI for certain investment strategies that are offered in certain Section 529 Plans.

HarbourView Asset Management Corporation ("HarbourView") is a registered investment adviser with the SEC (Reg. No. 801-27136), and is a wholly-owned subsidiary of OFII that provides investment supervisory services on a discretionary basis to corporations that are primarily structured finance vehicles.

Oppenheimer Real Asset Management, Inc. ("ORAMI"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Adviser, is registered as an investment adviser with the SEC (Reg. No. 801-34455), and is a "commodity trading adviser" ("CTA") registered with the Commodities Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC") and the National Futures Association ("NFA") (NFA Reg. No. 0274661). ORAMI acts as the investment sub-adviser to certain Private Funds, Trust Company Funds, Oppenheimer Mutual Funds and non-U.S. investment companies in futures- and commodities- related strategies managed by the Adviser.

OFI Global Asset Management ("OFI Global"), an independent investment management team within that operates and holds itself out to the public as a separate division of the Adviser. Formed in 2011, OFI Global provides investment advisory services to certain Oppenheimer Mutual Funds and Sub-Advised Funds.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics

The Adviser and its Affiliates have adopted a Code of Ethics (the "Code") in compliance with Rule 17j-1 under the Investment Company Act and Rule 204A-1 under the Advisers Act. The Code establishes standards of conduct expected of all employees of the Adviser including compliance with federal securities laws (as that term is defined in Rule 204A-1), addresses conflicts that arise from employees' personal trading and establishes procedures for the detection and prevention of activities by which employees having knowledge of the holdings, recommended investments and investment intentions of advisory clients may abuse their fiduciary duties, and otherwise addresses the types of conflict of interest situations addressed by Rule 17j-1 and Rule 204A-1. A copy of the Code will be provided to any client or prospective client upon request.

The Code is designed to establish procedures to detect and, where possible, prevent all employees from using knowledge about pending or currently considered securities transactions for clients to profit personally (directly or indirectly) as a result of such transactions, including by purchasing or selling such securities. Under the Code, all employees are prohibited from purchasing or selling any security in which the employee has or will acquire a beneficial interest if the employee knows that, at the same time, the security is being considered for purchase or sale by a client or is the subject of an outstanding purchase or sale order by an advisory client. Such prohibition continues until such information is made publicly available. All employees also are subject to the Adviser's Policy to Detect and Prevent Insider Trading. In general, all employees are prohibited from trading (either personally or on behalf of others) while in possession of material, non-public information. Employees are also prohibited from communicating material, non-public information to others in violation of federal or state law. Additionally, the Code subjects employees to the Adviser's separate Gift Policy that sets forth specific guidelines and information regarding the receipt and provision of gifts or entertainment. In general, employees must limit any gifts or entertainment received from or given to any person or entity that does business with or on behalf of the Adviser or an advisory client.

The Code includes certain personal trading restrictions and reporting requirements that apply to "Access Persons." Access Persons generally include officers and directors of the Adviser (including any of its subsidiaries or directly controlled affiliates), as well as any person (i) who makes, participates in, or obtains information regarding the purchase or sale of securities by an advisory client in connection with his or her regular functions or duties, (ii) whose functions relate to the making of any recommendations with respect to such purchases or sales, (iii) who has access to timely information relating to investment management activities, research and/or client portfolio holdings, and (iv) who in the course of their employment regularly receive access to trading activity of advisory clients. Access Persons also include "investment persons" which generally encompasses: (i) each portfolio manager, (ii) each securities analyst or trader that provides information and advice to portfolio managers or who helps execute a portfolio manager's investment decisions, or (iii) any other person who, in connection with his or her duties, makes or participates in recommendations regarding a client's purchase or sale of securities.

A summary of the restrictions and reporting requirements for the personal investing activities of Access Persons is set forth below.

Generally, Access Persons are prohibited from purchasing a security in an initial public offering or in a private placement unless express prior approval from the person(s) appointed by the Adviser for administering the Code (“Code Administrator”) is received (and certain other conditions are satisfied). Investment persons must obtain prior approval of personal securities transactions that are not exempt from the prior approval requirements of the Code. The Code also imposes a “blackout” period on investment persons that prohibits an investment person from purchasing or selling certain securities during a time period before or after the purchase or sale of the same security by an advisory client for whom he or she is an investment person. Investment persons also are prohibited from purchasing and selling or selling and purchasing the same security within a 60 day period.

The prior approval requirements of the Code for an investment person apply to personal securities transactions (not exempt from the prior approval requirements of the Code) conducted in an investment person’s personal securities account or a securities account for which the investment person has investment discretion. In addition, the Code requirements that are applicable to an investment person generally apply to the family members residing with such investment person.

The Code also prohibits employees of OFI (and of its subsidiaries or directly controlled affiliates, including the Adviser) from engaging in outside business activities unless each such outside business activity is pre-approved by the employee’s department manager or supervisor and the Adviser’s General Counsel, the Code Administrator or their designees.

The Code also includes certain procedures relating to reporting and record keeping of personal securities transactions by Access Persons, including disclosure of personal holdings (e.g., initial and annual statements of holdings), quarterly reporting of transactions and annual certification of compliance with the Code. All employees also must submit initial and periodic acknowledgements of receipt, compliance and understanding of the Code.

Potential Conflicts of Interest.

The Adviser, its affiliates, and their officers, directors and employees, including those who may be involved in the management, sales, investment activities and business operations of the Adviser (collectively, “Affiliates”), may be engaged in businesses and have interests that include the provision of investment advisory services to the assets of registered and unregistered funds (both publicly and privately offered) in the United States and foreign jurisdictions, bank trust company commingled pools, and separately managed accounts. These activities and interests include potential multiple advisory, transactional, financial and other interests in securities, instruments and companies that may be directly or indirectly purchased, invested in, or sold by the Adviser for client accounts managed by the Adviser and its Affiliates (“Client Accounts”). These activities and interests also include potential multiple advisory, transactional, financial and other interests with consultants and other third parties who may facilitate the procurement, or advise in the opening, of Client Accounts. These are considerations of which clients should be aware. Present and future activities of the Adviser or its Affiliates, in addition to those described in this section, may give rise to additional potential conflicts of interest.

The Adviser makes decisions for Client Accounts and any account of the Adviser or its Affiliates (“Affiliate Account”) in accordance with its obligations as investment manager to the Client

Accounts and Affiliate Accounts. The Adviser may have potential conflicts in connection with the allocation of investments or transaction decisions for Client Accounts, including situations in which the Adviser, its Affiliates or personnel of Affiliates ("Personnel") may have interests in the investment being allocated and situations in which an Affiliate Account may receive certain of the investments being allocated. The Adviser seeks to manage Client Accounts and Affiliate Accounts according to each account's investment objectives and applicable guidelines and applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

The Adviser and its Affiliates may receive greater fees or other compensation (including performance-based fees) from certain Client Accounts and Affiliate Accounts, which may create an incentive for the Adviser or its Affiliates to favor such accounts. In addition, the advice provided by Adviser to a Client Account or Affiliate Account may compete or conflict with the advice provided to another Client Account, or may involve a different timing or course of action taken than with respect to a Client Account. For example, a Client Account may be competing for investment opportunities with Affiliates and Affiliate Accounts and with other Client Accounts for certain limited investment opportunities. The Adviser or its Affiliates may acquire confidential or material, non-public information pertaining to an issuer or the issuer's securities which may prevent or prohibit the Adviser from providing investment advice to Client Accounts and Affiliated Accounts with respect to such issuer or the issuer's securities irrespective of an account's investment objective or guidelines. Moreover, the Adviser and its Affiliates may have ownership interests in issuers or broker-dealers which may prevent the Adviser or its Affiliates from purchasing securities or other instruments from such issuers or broker-dealers.

The Adviser, Affiliates or Affiliate Accounts may buy or sell positions while a Client Account is undertaking the same or a differing strategy, which could disadvantage the Client Account. For example, a Client Account may buy a security and the Adviser, its Affiliates, Affiliate Accounts or other Client Accounts may establish a short position in that same security and subsequent short sales may result in impairment of the price of the security which is owned or held by the Client Account. Conversely, a Client Account may establish a short position in a security and the Adviser, Affiliates, Affiliated Accounts or other Client Accounts may buy that same security and the subsequent purchase(s) may result in an increase in the price of the underlying position in the short sale exposure of the Client Account. In addition, transactions in investments by one or more Client Accounts, Affiliate Accounts, the Adviser or Affiliates may have the effect of diluting or otherwise disadvantaging the values, prices or investment strategies of a Client Account. This may occur when portfolio decisions regarding a Client Account are based on research and other information that is also used to support portfolio decisions for Affiliate Accounts, other Client Accounts, the Adviser or Affiliates which could impact the timing and manner in which the portfolio decisions for the Client Account and other Client Accounts are implemented. When the Adviser, Affiliates or an Affiliate Account implements an investment decision or strategy ahead of, or contemporaneously with, similar investment decisions or strategies for a Client Account, market impact, liquidity constraints, or other factors could result in the Client Account receiving less favorable trading results and the costs of implementing such investment decisions or strategies could be increased or the Client Account could otherwise be disadvantaged. The Adviser or Affiliates may, in certain cases, elect to implement internal policies and procedures designed to limit such consequences to the Client Accounts and Affiliate Accounts, which may cause a Client Account to be unable to engage in certain activities, including purchasing or disposing of securities, when it might otherwise be desirable for it to do so.

Conflicts may also arise because investment decisions regarding a Client Account may benefit Adviser, Affiliates or other Client Accounts. For example, the sale of a long position or establishment of a short position by a Client Account may impair the price of the same security sold short by (and therefore benefit) the Adviser, its Affiliates or other Client Account, and the purchase of a security or covering of a short position in a security by a Client Account may increase the price of the same security held by (and therefore benefit) the Adviser, its Affiliates, Affiliate Accounts or other Client Account.

The Adviser, its Affiliates, Affiliate Accounts and other Client Accounts may also pursue or enforce rights with respect to an issuer or security in which a Client Account has invested, and those activities may have an adverse effect on the Client Account. As a result, prices, availability, liquidity and terms of Client Account investments may be negatively impacted by the Adviser's, its Affiliates', Affiliate Accounts' or other Client Accounts' activities, and transactions for the Client Account may be impaired or effected at prices or on terms that may be less favorable than would otherwise have been the case.

The Adviser's management of Client Accounts may benefit the Adviser, its Affiliates or Affiliate Accounts. For example, the purchase, holding and sale of securities or other investments by a Client Account may enhance the profitability of the Adviser's, its Affiliates', Affiliate Accounts' or other Client Accounts' investments in and investment activities with respect to such securities, other investments or issuer. A Client Account may also be adversely affected by cash flows and market movements arising from purchase and sale transactions, as well as increases of capital in and withdrawals of capital from Affiliate Accounts and other Client Accounts.

Moreover, from time to time, the Adviser, Affiliate or an Affiliate Account may engage in principal securities transactions in which it purchases or sells securities from an account of Adviser or an Affiliate Account from or to an account of a client. The execution of each principal securities transaction is subject to the approval of each applicable client and regulatory requirements.

Due to the factors noted above, the investment and performance results of a Client Account may differ significantly from the results achieved by Affiliate Accounts and other Client Accounts that follow the same or a similar investment objective and/or strategy.

The Adviser and Affiliates may also have business relationships with, and purchase, distribute or sell services or products from or to, distributors, consultants, and other third parties that facilitate the procurement or recommend the use of the Adviser or its Affiliates to provide advisory or other services to Client Accounts, or who engage in transactions with or for Client Accounts. As a result, those persons and institutions may have conflicts associated with their promotion of or other dealings with the Adviser, its Affiliates, Client Accounts or Other Client

Accounts that would create incentives for them to promote the Adviser, its Affiliates, Affiliate Accounts, Client Accounts and other Client Accounts over others or raise other conflicts.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

Investment, Brokerage and Trading Allocation Policy.

The Adviser and its investment advisory Affiliates have adopted an investment, brokerage and trading allocation policy (the “Policy”) that sets out standards that their portfolio managers, traders and other personnel involved in the purchase and sale of securities on behalf of clients must follow when:

- seeking best execution for client transactions;
- using client commissions in return for brokerage and research services that are provided by broker-dealers (i.e., entering into “soft dollar” arrangements);
- determining which Client Accounts will participate in an investment opportunity; and
- aggregating client orders and allocating securities among clients that participate in aggregated orders.

A committee composed of personnel with responsibilities in the operation of a particular investment or trading area oversees the implementation and monitoring of these guidelines for that area.

Best Execution.

In evaluating the best execution of client transactions, the Adviser will consider the full range and quality of a broker’s services, taking into account all relevant factors. Although it is not possible to create a definitive list of factors to guide this determination, the Adviser may consider some or all of the following:

- price of security;
- commission rate or spreads;
- execution capability, including execution speed and reliability;
- trading expertise and knowledge of the other side of the trade;
- financial responsibility;
- responsiveness;
- reputation and integrity;
- capital commitment;
- value of research or brokerage services or products provided;
- access to underwritten and secondary market offerings;
- confidentiality;
- reliability in keeping records;
- fairness in resolving disputes;
- market depth and available liquidity;
- recent order flow;
- timing and size of an order; and

- current market conditions.

In selecting broker-dealers to execute client transactions, the Adviser will bear in mind that no factor is necessarily determinative and that seeking to obtain best execution for all client trades must take precedence over all other considerations. Generally, the Adviser's portfolio traders allocate brokerage based upon recommendations from the Adviser's portfolio managers.

The Adviser does not recommend, request or require that a client direct the Adviser to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer. However, in certain circumstances, a client may designate a particular broker or dealer through which trades are to be effected or through which transactions may be introduced, typically under such terms as the client negotiates with the particular broker or dealer. Where a client has directed the use of a particular broker or dealer, the Adviser generally will not be in a position to negotiate commission rates or spreads freely or, depending on the circumstances, to select brokers or dealers based on the most favorable price execution for a transaction.

Additionally, transactions for a client that has directed that the Adviser use a particular broker or dealer may lose certain advantages. For example, clients who do not direct the Adviser to use a particular broker or dealer may benefit from commingling or "bunching" multiple orders into a single order for the purchase or sale of a particular security. In addition, "non-bunch" orders for directed brokerage clients may be executed after or following any "bunched" orders for non-directed client accounts. Moreover, there may be times when the trading activity in a security for a client that has directed the Adviser to use a particular broker or dealer occurs at a time after the Adviser has completed the execution of all other transactions in that security for all other accounts managed or traded by the Adviser and its affiliates. Accordingly, directed transactions may be subject to price movements, particularly in volatile markets, that may result in the client receiving a price that is less favorable than the price obtained for comparable bunched orders. Under these circumstances, the direction by a client to use a particular broker or dealer to execute transactions may result in higher commissions, greater spreads, or less favorable net prices than might be the case if the Adviser were empowered to negotiate commission rates or spreads freely, or to freely select brokers or dealers.

Use of Client Commissions (i.e., "Soft Dollar Arrangements").

The Adviser uses client commissions (i.e., "soft dollars") to procure research and brokerage products and services from a number of broker-dealers. These research and brokerage products or services are used by the Adviser's investment teams, and are generally in the form of market, economic, or securities analysis, or products and services that assist in the execution of trades (e.g., execution and post-trade matching systems), and are used in conjunction with the day to day investment management process conducted by these teams.

Such "soft-dollar" arrangements generally may arise in various forms. In a third-party arrangement, the broker-dealer provides the Adviser with products, services or research produced by a third party. A broker-dealer may provide the Adviser with products, services or research that the broker-dealer itself, or an affiliate has produced (i.e., proprietary research). By participating in "soft dollar" arrangements, clients should be aware that (i) the Adviser

(and/or its Affiliates) generally receives a benefit because it does not have to otherwise produce or pay for such research, products or services; (ii) as a result, the Adviser may have an incentive to select or recommend a broker-dealer based on its interest in receiving the research, products or services, rather than on the client's interest in receiving most favorable execution; and (iii) the research service provided by a particular broker may be useful to any or all of the advisory accounts of the Adviser and its Affiliates and such research services may not necessarily be used by the Adviser in connection with the accounts that paid commissions to the broker providing such services.

In addition to the Policy, the Adviser has adopted specific procedures to guide its use of client commissions when obtaining research or brokerage services for its clients. The Adviser may avail itself of the safe harbor set forth in Section 28(e) of the Exchange Act and may effect a securities transaction at a commission in excess of the commission that another broker-dealer would have charged if the following conditions are met:

- the Adviser must be supplied with "brokerage and research services" (as defined in Section 28(e) and interpreted by the SEC and its staff), not other products or services;
- the eligible products or services must provide lawful and appropriate assistance to the Adviser in the performance of its responsibilities (e.g., research must be used to assist the Adviser in its investment decision-making);
- the services must be "provided" by the broker-dealer;
- the Adviser must have "investment discretion" in placing the brokerage;
- the Adviser must make a good faith determination that the commissions paid are "reasonable" in relation to the services provided; and
- brokerage placed must be for "securities transactions."

The Adviser is not required to measure the reasonableness of commissions in terms of a particular transaction and it is not required to show that specific research products or services it receives benefit specific accounts. The Adviser measures the reasonableness of commissions in terms of its overall responsibilities over the accounts for which it exercises investment discretion.

Fixed income accounts and wrap-fee accounts of the Adviser and its Affiliates do not generally generate client commissions that may be used by the Adviser to acquire eligible brokerage and research services.

In order to rely on the 28(e) safe harbor, a product or service must qualify as "brokerage" or "research". "Research" is restricted to "advice," "analyses," and "reports" that reflect the expression of reasoning or knowledge. Products or services generally do not qualify as "research" if they do not reflect the expression of reasoning or knowledge. Non-research products and services include those with inherently tangible or physical attributes (such as telephone lines or office furniture), and usually fall within two broad categories: items the Adviser uses in marketing its investment management services or items the Adviser uses in its day-to-day administrative activities. "Brokerage services" are those products and services that relate to the execution of the trade from the point at which the Adviser communicates with the broker-dealer for the purpose of transmitting an order for execution, through the point at which funds or securities are delivered or credited to the advised accounts.

The following is a general list of eligible research/brokerage products and services that the Adviser and/or its affiliates may receive:

- Traditional company/stock research reports
- Discussions with research analysts as to the advisability of investing in securities
- Meetings with corporate executives to obtain oral reports on a company's performance
- Seminars or conferences on eligible topics
- Software that provides analyses of securities portfolios
- Software and other products that depend on market information to generate market research, including research on optimal execution and trading strategies
- Market or economic data services (e.g., stock price quotation services)
- Investment portfolio performance publications (e.g., Lipper reports) when not used for marketing purposes
- Corporate governance research, analytics, and ratings services
- Consultant services which result in the delivery of advice, analyses, portfolio strategy or reports
- Financial newsletters and economic publications that are not targeted to a wide, public audience
- Trade magazines and technical journals concerning specific industries or product lines that are marketed to, and intended to serve the interests of a narrow audience
- Pre-trade and post-trade analytics
- Reports and analyses on issuers, securities and the advisability of investing in securities that are transmitted through a proxy service
- Order or execution management systems if they otherwise qualify as "research" or "brokerage"
- Post-trade matching
- Exchange of messages among broker-dealers, custodians and institutions related to the trade
- Electronic communications of allocation instructions between institutions and broker-dealers
- Routing settlement instructions to custodian banks and broker-dealer clearing agents
- Communications services related to the execution, clearing and settlement of securities transactions
- Comparison services required by SEC or SRO Rules (e.g., use of electronic confirmation and affirmation of institutional trades)
- Connectivity service between OFI, broker-dealer and other relevant parties such as custodians (including dedicated lines between the broker-dealer and OFI's order management systems operated by a third party vendor, direct dial-up service between OFI and the broker-dealer's trading desk and message services used to transmit order to broker-dealers for execution)
- Trading software used to route orders to market centers

- Software used to transmit orders to direct market access systems
- Trade analytics
- Algorithmic trading software

The Adviser cannot be required to make cash payments to a broker-dealer or third party provider from its own resources (i.e., “hard dollars”) for services that must be “provided” by the broker-dealer, even if it did not satisfy the broker-dealer’s expectation as to the amount of business it would receive from the Adviser’s clients. If the Adviser does not meet a broker-dealer’s expectations for commissions earned by such broker-dealer, it may elect (but not commit) to pay any part of the shortfall in hard dollars.

For products or services obtained using client commissions that serve functions that are related (research and brokerage) and not related (non-research or non-brokerage) to the investment decision-making or order execution process (generally referred to as “mixed-use” products and services), the Adviser makes a good faith, reasonable allocation of the cost of the product according to use. The percentage of the product or service (or specific component) that provides assistance to the Adviser in the investment decision-making process may be paid for with eligible client commissions. The percentage of the product or service (or specific component) that provides administrative or other assistance not related to the investment decision-making process must be paid for by the Adviser with its own funds.

Securities Trade Allocation and Aggregation.

The overriding principle governing the Adviser’s allocation of investment opportunities among clients and the order aggregation process with respect to securities is the fair and equitable treatment of all clients that participate in an aggregated order for securities, or that receive an allocation of securities or transaction proceeds.

When allocating investments, the Adviser first determines the clients for which a particular investment opportunity is appropriate, based on, among other things, a client’s investment strategy and objectives, the clients’ overall portfolio composition and the characteristics of the specific security. If an investment is appropriate for more than one client, the Adviser allocates the investment opportunity across those client accounts based on a defined allocation methodology developed by the applicable trading area.

Generally, the Adviser makes initial allocation decisions at the strategy-level, followed by an assessment of how to allocate investments between funds/accounts within the same strategy. Amongst funds and accounts within a particular strategy, the Adviser may allocate investments pro rata based on net assets. However, allocations may be modified to accommodate the different needs and objectives of each fund and account, taking into consideration factors such as current exposure to securities, issuers or markets (including any concentration and diversification requirements), cash flows and relative risk profiles.

Once the Adviser determines that an investment opportunity is suitable for multiple accounts, the Adviser may aggregate or “bunch” trade orders for the same securities if it believes that aggregation is consistent with its duty of best execution and the terms of the applicable client’s investment advisory agreement. Certain portfolio managers of the Adviser make investment decisions for both Client Accounts and, in their capacity as a portfolio manager for an advisory Affiliate, Affiliate Accounts in accordance with the Adviser's obligations as investment manager to the Client Accounts and Affiliate Accounts. In those instances in which the same security is traded at or about the same time for a Client Account and an Affiliate Account, the Adviser and its Affiliates will place trades first for transactions on behalf of the Oppenheimer Mutual Funds and non-directed institutional Client Accounts (including Affiliated Accounts) and then second for directed institutional Client Accounts and finally any wrap-fee program separate accounts sequenced by the wrap-fee program sponsor. If a trade for an account cannot be aggregated with a much larger aggregated order for reasons of client direction, it is appropriate for the non-aggregated order to follow the aggregated orders.

Each client that participates in an aggregated order for a security generally will participate at the average price to the extent practicable for transactions in the security or instrument on a given business day, with transaction costs shared pro rata based on each client's participation in the transactions. For certain odd lot transactions, clients may not receive the average price. Pending unexecuted trade orders may be stopped so that subsequent trade orders for the same security may be aggregated with the remaining unexecuted portion of an existing trade order for the security. Each Client Account and Affiliate Account that participated in a partially executed trade order that was stopped so that a subsequent trade order for the same security could be aggregated with the remaining uncompleted portion of an existing order will generally receive the average price of the completed portions of the partially executed trade order. Each Client Account and Affiliate Account that participates in a revised aggregated trade order for a security or instrument will participate at the average price for all transactions in the security subsequent to the formation of an aggregated trade order for the same security on a particular business day and the transaction costs related to such transactions will be shared pro rata based on each Client Account's and Affiliate Account's participation in the transactions.

If an aggregated order cannot be executed in its entirety, the order generally would be allocated among clients pro rata based on each client's participation in the transactions. However, under certain circumstances, it may be necessary to revise or adjust an allocation after the trade is executed, but before the final allocation. For example, it may be appropriate to depart from the original allocation (subsequent to the trade but before final allocation) if, among other things, the Adviser determines that the security is no longer suitable for a client, cash or liquidity concerns arise, or the allocation would result in a de minimis allocation.

The Adviser and its Affiliates have adopted an Initial Public Offering ("IPO") allocation policy (the "IPO Allocation Policy") for the administration of IPO allocation to Client Accounts and Affiliate Accounts traded by the Adviser's equity trading desk. This IPO allocation policy supplements the Policy. Portfolio managers are responsible for submitting initial indications of interest ("IOI") to the equity trading desk for each account that, in the portfolio managers' judgment and, consistent with the Policy, should participate in the IPO.

As a general policy, equity IPO opportunities should be allocated pro rata among similar accounts managed by a portfolio manager or portfolio management team, subject to certain permitted modifications described in Policy. In the event that the Adviser does not receive its full requested allocation of the IPO securities, the equity trading desk will determine the allocation to be given to each account for which an IOI has been submitted by portfolio management in accordance with the IPO allocation formula provided in the IPO Allocation Policy. IPO allocations will be assigned up to, but not exceeding, the IOI amount for that account.

Overall, the Adviser will endeavor to ensure that its allocation and aggregation procedures do not operate to systematically advantage or disadvantage clients over time.

Trade Errors

Consistent with the Adviser's fiduciary duties, contractual obligations and applicable law, the Adviser has a responsibility to effect investment decisions correctly, promptly and in the interests of its clients and to verify that placed orders are correct and properly executed. Although the Adviser strives to assure proper execution of investment decisions, errors may occur in the trading process. Consequently, the Adviser has adopted a policy with respect to the identification, escalation and resolution of trade errors (the "Trade Error Policy"). The Trade Error Policy seeks to assure that appropriate care is taken in implementing investment decisions on behalf of client accounts, any potential trade errors are identified and reported promptly, and each identified error is corrected on a timely basis.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

The Adviser reviews its investment advisory accounts (i) daily through the efforts of portfolio managers and their associates, (ii) in preparation for meetings with clients, which may be held periodically, including preparation for the meetings of each Oppenheimer Mutual Fund's Board of Directors or Trustees which are normally scheduled to be held 4 times each year for each Oppenheimer Mutual Fund's Board, and (iii) in preparation for each Oppenheimer Mutual Fund Board's Audit and Review and/or Study committee meetings, as applicable, which are held at least 4 times each year. Each investment team will meet with a supervisory group periodically. Account trading is monitored on a daily basis by operations and compliance personnel.

In addition to the reports periodically generated in conjunction with the reviews described above, the Directors or Trustees of each Oppenheimer Mutual Fund are given various reports required of registered investment advisers by federal securities laws, including, if applicable, annual reports in connection with advisory contracts as required by Section 15(c) of the Investment Company Act for investment companies registered with the SEC under the Investment Company Act.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Employees of the Adviser and certain of its Affiliates (typically those in sales and related positions) may be awarded compensation at the discretion of senior management of the Adviser or the applicable Affiliate for successful efforts in bringing in new accounts. Senior management of the Adviser or the applicable Affiliate determines the amount of the compensation, taking into account the particular efforts of the employee involved in bringing in the particular account. Any such compensation paid to employees of the Adviser or the applicable Affiliate, as applicable, does not result in higher fees to clients. Additionally, a subsidiary of the Adviser has entered into an agreement to pay an unaffiliated third party for referrals of non-US clients a percentage of the fees generated from such non-US clients. All compensation for such referrals will be paid in accordance with applicable law and does not result in higher fees to clients.

Employees of the Adviser's Affiliate have participated in paid educational programs offered by consulting firms from which the Adviser and its Affiliates may indirectly seek client referrals. The consulting firms that sponsor these educational programs provide conferences and published research to the Affiliate on current topics that are of interest to plan sponsors and investment management organizations. While there may be the appearance of a conflict of interest, the Adviser does not believe that it has received any preferential treatment as a result of the Affiliate's participation in these programs.

Item 15 – Custody

The Adviser and/or its Affiliates may have custody over certain Client Accounts. Clients should receive statements at least quarterly from the broker dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains the client's investment assets. The Adviser urges its clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements provided by the Adviser. The Adviser's statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

The Adviser usually receives written authority from the client at the outset of an advisory relationship to determine (i) what securities are to be bought or sold, (ii) amount of securities to be bought or sold, (iii) the broker or dealer to be used, and (iv) the commissions to be paid. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives and guidelines for the particular client account and in accordance with applicable law. For Mutual Funds, the Adviser's authority to trade securities may also be limited by certain federal securities and tax laws that require diversification of investments and favor the holding of investments once made.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

The Adviser and its Affiliates have adopted Portfolio Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures, which include Proxy Voting Guidelines, under which the Adviser votes proxies relating to securities held by clients ("portfolio proxies"), in compliance with Rule 206(4)-6 of the Advisers

Act. Unless otherwise specifically provided in the agreement between the client and the Adviser, the Adviser will generally be responsible for evaluating and voting on all proposals. The following summary of the Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures is intended to provide clients with a description of Adviser's proxy voting process. For purposes of this discussion, the term "clients" shall include the Mutual Funds, the Private Funds and Trust Company Funds advised or sub-advised by the Adviser (and/or its affiliates) and the shareholders of such funds.

As an investment adviser that has been granted the authority to vote portfolio proxies, the Adviser generally undertakes to vote portfolio proxies with a view to enhancing the value of the company's stock held by clients. The Adviser has retained an independent, third party proxy voting agent to vote portfolio proxies in accordance with the Proxy Voting Guidelines and to maintain records of such portfolio proxy voting. The Portfolio Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures include provisions to address conflicts of interest that may arise between the client and the Adviser or the Adviser's affiliates or business relationships. Such a conflict of interest may arise, for example, where the Adviser or an affiliate of the Adviser manages or administers the assets of a pension plan or other investment account of the portfolio company soliciting the proxy or seeks to serve in that capacity. The Adviser and its affiliates generally seek to avoid such material conflicts of interest by maintaining separate investment decision making processes to prevent the sharing of business objectives with respect to proposed or actual actions regarding portfolio proxy voting decisions. Additionally, the Adviser employs the following procedures, as long as the Adviser determines that the course of action is consistent with the best interests of its clients: (1) if the proposal that gives rise to the conflict is specifically addressed in the Proxy Voting Guidelines, the Adviser will vote the portfolio proxy in accordance with the Proxy Voting Guidelines, unless (i) the Proxy Voting Guidelines provide discretion to the Adviser on how to vote on the matter; or (ii) to the extent a portfolio manager has requested that Adviser vote in a manner inconsistent with the Proxy Voting Guidelines, it is determined that such a request is in the best interest of the clients and does not pose an actual material conflict of interest; (2) if such proposal is not specifically addressed in the Proxy Voting Guidelines or the Proxy Voting Guidelines provide discretion to the Adviser on how to vote, the Adviser will vote in accordance with the third-party proxy voting agent's general recommended guidelines on the proposal provided that the Adviser has reasonably determined that there is no conflict of interest on the part of the proxy voting agent or item (1) (ii), above, is not applicable; and (3) if neither of the previous two procedures provides an appropriate voting recommendation, the Adviser may retain an independent fiduciary to advise the Adviser on how to vote the proposal or may abstain from voting. The Proxy Voting Guidelines' provisions with respect to certain routine and non-routine proxy proposals are summarized below:

- The Adviser evaluates director nominees on a case-by-case basis, examining the following factors, among others: composition of the board and key board committees, experience and qualifications, attendance at board meetings, corporate governance provisions and takeover activity, long-term company performance and the nominee's investment in the company.

- The Adviser generally supports proposals requiring the position of chairman to be filled by an independent director unless there are compelling reasons to recommend against the proposal such as a counterbalancing governance structure.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals asking that a majority of directors be independent. The Adviser generally supports proposals asking that a board audit, compensation, and/or nominating committee be composed exclusively of independent directors.
- The Adviser generally supports shareholder proposals to reduce a super-majority vote requirement, and opposes management proposals to add a super-majority vote requirement.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals to allow shareholders the ability to call special meetings.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals to allow or make easier shareholder action by written consent.
- The Adviser generally votes against proposals to create a new class of stock with superior voting rights.
- The Adviser generally votes against proposals to classify a board.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals to eliminate cumulative voting.
- The Adviser generally votes against proposals to establish a new board committee.
- The Adviser generally opposes re-pricing of stock options without shareholder approval.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals to require majority voting for the election of directors.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals seeking additional disclosure of executive and director pay information.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals seeking disclosure regarding the company's, board's or committee's use of compensation consultants.
- The Adviser generally supports "pay-for-performance" and "pay-for-superior-performance standard" proposals that align a significant portion of total compensation of senior executives to company performance, and generally supports an annual frequency for advisory votes on executive compensation.
- The Adviser generally supports having shareholder votes on poison pills.
- The Adviser generally supports proposals calling for companies to adopt a policy of not providing tax gross-up payments.
- In the case of social, political and environmental responsibility issues, the Adviser will generally abstain where there could be a detrimental impact on share value or where the perceived value if the proposal was adopted is unclear or unsubstantiated. The

Adviser generally supports proposals that would clearly have a discernible positive impact on short- or long-term share value, or that would have a presently indiscernible impact on short- or long-term share value but promotes general long-term interests of the company and its shareholders.

To receive a copy of the Adviser's Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures and Client Voting Record, please contact the Adviser at 1-800-322-1854 or write us at: Attention: Compliance Officer, 2 World Financial Center, 225 Liberty Street, 11th Floor, New York, New York, 10281-1008.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Generally, the Adviser does not require or solicit prepayment of fees from its clients. The Adviser currently has no financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair its ability to meet its contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients. In addition, the Adviser has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding at any time during the past ten years.

Appendix A - Privacy Notice

PRIVACY NOTICE TO CLIENTS OF OPPENHEIMERFUNDS, INC.

You are entitled to know how we protect your personal information and how we limit its disclosure.

Information Sources

We obtain non public personal information about our shareholders from the following sources:

- Applications or other forms
- When you create a user ID and password for online account access
- When you enroll in eDocs Direct, our electronic document delivery service
- Your transactions with us, our affiliates or others
- A software program on our website, often referred to as a “cookie,” which indicates which parts of our site you’ve visited
- When you set up challenge questions to reset your password online

If you visit www.oppenheimerfunds.com and do not log on to the secure account information areas, we do not obtain any personal information about you. When you do log on to a secure area, we do obtain your user ID and password to identify you. We also use this information to provide you with products and services you have requested, to inform you about products and services that you may be interested in and assist you in other ways.

We do not collect personal information through our website unless you willingly provide it to us, either directly by email or in those areas of the website that request information. In order to update your personal information (including your mailing address, email address and phone number) you must first log on and visit your user profile.

If you have set your browser to warn you before accepting cookies, you will receive the warning message with each cookie. You can refuse cookies by turning them off in your browser. However, doing so may limit your access to certain sections of our website.

We use cookies to help us improve and manage our website. For example, cookies help us recognize new versus repeat visitors to the site, track the pages visited, and enable some special features on the website. This data helps us provide a better service for our website visitors.

Protection of Information

We do not disclose any non-public personal information (such as names on a customer list) about current or former customers to anyone, except as permitted by law.

Disclosure of Information

We send your financial advisor (as designated by you) copies of confirmations, account statements and other documents reporting activity in your fund accounts. We may also use details about you and your investments to help us, our financial service affiliates, or firms that jointly market their financial products and services with ours, to better serve your investment needs or suggest financial services or educational material that may be of interest to you. If this requires us to provide you with an opportunity to “opt in” or “opt out” of such information sharing with a firm not affiliated with us, you will receive notification on how to do so, before any such sharing takes place.

Right of Refusal

We will not disclose your personal information to unaffiliated third parties (except as permitted by law), unless we first offer you a reasonable opportunity to refuse or “opt out” of such disclosure.

Internet Security and Encryption

In general, the email services provided by our website are encrypted and provide a secure and private means of communication with us. To protect your own privacy, confidential and/or personal information should only be communicated via email when you are advised that you are using a secure website.

As a security measure, we do not include personal or account information in non-secure emails, and we advise you not to send such information to us in non-secure emails. Instead, you may take advantage of the secure features of our website to encrypt your email correspondence. To do this, you will need to use a browser that supports Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) protocol.

We do not guarantee or warrant that any part of our website, including files available for download, are free of viruses or other harmful code. It is your responsibility to take appropriate precautions, such as use of an anti-virus software package, to protect your computer hardware and software.

- All transactions, including redemptions, exchanges and purchases, are secured by SSL and 128-bit encryption. SSL is used to establish a secure connection between your PC and OppenheimerFunds’ server. It transmits information in an encrypted and scrambled format.
- Encryption is achieved through an electronic scrambling technology that uses a “key” to code and then decode the data. Encryption acts like the cable converter box you may have on your television set. It scrambles data with a secret code so that no one can make sense of it while it is being transmitted. When the data reaches its destination, the same software unscrambles the data.
- You can exit the secure area by either closing your browser, or for added security, you can use the Log Out button before you close your browser.

Other Security Measures

We maintain physical, electronic and procedural safeguards to protect your personal account information. Our employees and agents have access to that information only so that they may offer you products or provide services, for example, when responding to your account questions.

How You Can Help

You can also do your part to keep your account information private and to prevent unauthorized transactions. If you obtain a user ID and password for your account, do not allow it to be used by anyone else. Also, take special precautions when accessing your account on a computer used by others.

Who We Are

This notice describes the privacy policy of OppenheimerFunds, Inc. It applies to all accounts you presently have, or may open in the future. In the event it is updated or changed, we will post an updated notice on our website at www.oppenheimerfunds.com. If you have any questions about these privacy policies, write to us at Two World Financial Center, 225 Liberty Street, 11th Floor, New York, New York 10281-1008, email us by clicking on the "Contact Us" section of our website at www.oppenheimerfunds.com, or call us at 212-323-0200.